It was disclosed the bombing of a Swedish ambulance unit was in retaliation for the alleged decapitation of a pilot.

(An Ethiopian communique said 28 Ethiopians were killed and two Swedish physicians wounded in the air raid).

Desaye, Ethiopia.—Six Italian war flyers were killed when Ethiopian sharpshooters brought down their enemy planes on the northern front, official announcement asserted here.

The reports read that for some quarters of further attacks against Red Cross hospitals and first aid stations. It was recalled here Italian authorities had asserted the bombardment which wrecked the Swedish ambulance unit on the southern war front was in retaliation for alleged decapitation for recent beheading of two Italian pilots whose plane was brought down in Ogaden.

Of the two planes shot down, one was crippled by Ethiopian snipers when it fell to earth, Dessie, a settlement in the Wolkait region in northwestern Ethiopia Tsere Amon reportedly died in the crash. They were said to have attacked Kebeira's civil population. The flyers were burned to death in the plane.

Two other Italian airmen were reported killed in a plane which was forced into a crash by a tribal sharpshooter in one of the armies surrounding Makale

Want Basic Dividends

Reported Demand Will Be Made By Delegation To Alberta Government

Edmonton. Demands will be made by a large delegation of the Legislature session of the Alberta house opens on Feb. 6 for payment of the $35 dividend which, it is said, was promised by Premier Aberhart during the provincial election campaign, says A. S Rhodes, member of the Alberta Basic Dividends Association

We are preparing to organize locals all over Alberta to carry on the work," says Mr Rhodes

Automobile Mortality

Chicago.—Safety campaigns designed to reduce the 1936 automobile mortality total on United States highways by 5,000 lives, will carry to a poor start on New Year's Day. Statistics showed at least 93 persons died in automobile accidents compared with 96 on Jan 1, 1935, or a drop of slightly better than five per cent The figures were incomplete and unofficial

Woman Carries Mail

Juneau, Alaska.—A step of a woman is mushing 700 miles across Alaska's frozen tundras carrying the mail to Fairbanks "and I'll bet she could do it." Mary Joyce arrived safely Dec 31 at Tulsequah at the end of the first leg of the trip which began at Taku, December 20, a message said

New Year Honors

No Canadians Appear In List Announced In London

London.—Two barons are raised to the rank of viscount, while the king has been pleased to create four new barons, two privy councillors and four baronets, it was announced in the New Year honors list. One Order of Merit and about four score knighthoods are also included in the long list of those whom His Majesty honors on New Year's Day.

After the years' inclusion, Canada again disappears from the list. In a special supplement of the London Gazette, the Union of South Africa and the Irish Free State are also unrepresented.

Extending over 18 printed pages the supplement covers the United Kingdom, India, the colonies and protectorates as well as Australia and New Zealand.

Two of the king's sons appear in the list. The second, the Duke of York is given a triple promotion becoming vice-admiral of the fleet, lieutenant-general in the army and marshal of the Royal Air Force. The king's fourth son, the Duke of Kent, receives the Royal Victorian chain.

Elevated to the viscounts are Lord Hanworth, former master of the rolls, and Lord Trenchard, former commissioner of the Metropolitan police.

Lord Hanworth is a member of the Labor family, famous in legal history for the number of its judges and lawyers. Until recently, Sir Ernest Pollock, who since 1933, has presided over the court of appeal, previously having served as solicitor-general and attorney-general

Imperial Airways Crash

Nine Passengers And Three Members Of Crew Are Drowned

London. Hope was abandoned for 12 persons lost in the Mediterranean crash of the Imperial Airways liner Scipio near Marseilles.

Crane-equipped tugs worked in 12 fathoms of water off Alexandria, where the plane plunged with the nine passengers and three members of the crew Bodies were seen a few minutes short of an Alexandria landing. Pilot Shaw, with all three members dead. The only survivor, Pilot Vernon Gerry Wilson, was in a critical condition aboard H.M.S. Brilliant, which took him from the water

Two women were among the passengers, the rest of whom were Britons. One was an Italian and one an American.

Pilot Shaw, who was in the water for five hours before the Brilliant found him, was too weak to be questioned in the cause of the tragedy, the worst Imperial Airways accident in two years.

The admiralty, however, said in a statement that "The crash apparently was due to all three engines cutting out."

Imperial Airways asserted. "Imperial Airways deeply regrets their flying boat, City of Khartoum, flying from Alexandria to Alexandria, came down at sea about 1½ miles off Alexandria and was lost. Hope must now be abandoned for the safety of the other survivors.

"Until the wreckage is salvaged and full inquiries made the cause of the accident cannot be ascertained."

Conference To Continue

Several Committees Of Dominion-Provincial Parley To Meet

Ottawa. — A miniature dominion-provincial conference will open here next month to continue the work of the main conference, held earlier this month Several continuing committees of the conference will meet, probably at the same time to consider financial relations between the Dominion and the provinces, the British North America Act agriculture, mining and highways

It is expected these committees will meet as early as possible so the result of their deliberations will be available when parliament assembles

Epidemic In Manitoba

Winnipeg An outbreak of a mild type of scarlet fever in rural Manitoba was reported by Dr. C H. Donovan, provincial epidemiologist. In October, 207 cases were reported, 183 in November and 169 in December In Roland public gatherings attended by children have been forbidden

Regulations Lifted

Moscow Regulations which have barred children of "non-toilers" and disfranchised persons from Soviet high schools and colleges have been lifted by order of the government. Families of former kulaks, merchants and members of the political opposition will chiefly benefit.

REDUCED TARIFF RATES ON CATTLE NOW IN EFFECT

Washington. — Although the reduced tariff rates which became effective on January 1 on cattle imported from Canada are available also to Mexican shippers, a state department spokesman said there was no indication of any influx of the weights affected.

Under the Canadian - American trade treaty the rate on cattle weighing 700 pounds or more each was cut from three cents to two cents a pound, and on those of which were Britons. One was an Italian and one an American.

Pilot Shaw, who was in the water for five hours before the Brilliant found him, was too weak to be questioned in the cause of the tragedy, the worst Imperial Airways accident in two years.

Kists In Cairo

Police And Troops Guard Public Buildings

Cairo. — Heavy detachments of police and troops were posted around British and Egyptian government buildings as 2,000 Nationalist students again paraded through the streets shouting "Down with England."

Nahas Pasha, Nationalist leader, said in an interview that British High Commissioner Sir Miles Lampson had informed him Great Britain was willing to open negotiations for regulation of the Anglo-Egyptian question.

He quoted Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, as informing the high commissioner that because of the international crisis he had been unable to undertake a complete study of the Egyptian question, but that Great Britain had no objection to negotiating with a constitutional Egyptian government.

In an effort to check the crowd of students pouring into the capital from the provinces, authorities closed all bridges across the Nile except Zamalek bridge, where strong detachments of police were centred.

Acting to halt a repetition of the demonstrations which marred the opening of the 10th International Surgery conference, authorities put police guards around the convention hall and closed the University of Cairo's medical school until next week.

The government issued a warning to students that further disorders would be met by "energetic steps" and appealed to them to stop political agitation and return to their studies.

Pleased With Acclamation

Federal Minister Of Finance Expresses Thanks At Banquet

Charlottetown — Minister of Finance C. A. Dunning expressed his thanks for the acclamation that will send him to the House of Commons for one of Queen's county's representatives

His gratitude was voiced at a banquet of the Queen's County Liberal Association a few hours after nominations for the Queen's by-election had closed with only Mr. Dunning's name on file Conservatives had decided not to contest the seat thrown open when J. J. Lassler resigned as minister of trade and commerce.

"I'll try to discharge my functions of judge in deciding what is justice for Prince Edward Island" Mr. Dunning said, "and I think it will be justice tempered with a measure of generosity."

Departments Will Be Added

Two New Branches For Training Of Mounted Police

Ottawa Two departments will be added shortly to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to place the force on a footing with Scotland Yard and the American government's G-Men, it was indicated by Sir James Mackie Brass commissioner

Two branches will deal with scientific crime detection featuring ballistic, photographic and pathological instruments. Closer co-operation of more universities will be sought in establishment of this branch

A training school for constables also is to be established to instruct the men in crime detection police duties and criminal law.

Local Mechanic Builds Sno-plane

R. A. "Newt" Cooper, local mechanic has constructed Vermilion's first snow plane. This vehicle is powered by a car motor and a propeller supplies the motive power. It travels on four runners or skis instead of wheels and is built sleigh wide. It is thus enabled to go anywhere. Following a few trial trips last week, several minor adjustments were made which brought wonders in the running abilities of the machine. Fared on the highway by a car it maintains an even speed under any control of from 35 to 40 miles per hour and negotiates snow hills without much difficulty.

It runs at its best away from the travel flat highway on straight stretches and appears to be a definite solution to winter travel in Alberta.

This snow plane was completely built by Newt Cooper, who followed the prints of proven machines. It was a completely closed in body, seating four men, carrying up to five passengers.

SENIOR HOCKEYISTS LOSE AT VEGREVILLE

Local Boys Fade in Third Frame-

The local senior hockey team played a return game at Vegreville on Monday evening and lost out 7-3 in what the spectators claimed was a good game as they have seen all season. The Vermilion boys were leading until well on into the second period at 3-1 score but lack of condition and practice took their toll (one time on and the well trained Rangers ran in the necessary goals. At the end of the 2nd it was 3-2 Nillai in proceeds to have turned in a swell game and matched toe to toe hockey with Stan Waldenberger getting the other. Manson was busily checking in great style and gave Lem Nillai and Kolmatzki a tough ride all evening.

The local line up: Powell, M. Barr and Nillai, Waldenberg (cap.) Kennedy, Lindale, C. Barr and Hanson.

Fans for the trip were supplied by Loyal Amos. Manson Barr and Maurice Fallon. Russell Carroll managed the team.

ISLAY ALL STARS GO DOWN TO DEFEAT

A team of all stars from Islay played the Civic League Elks on Monday evening at the arena here and were trimmed 6-1. The visitors enjoyed the game in the big rink and put up a spirited, energetic resistance at all times but could not stem the quick passing attacks of the homesters. Mac got the visitors home goal, with Hirendale Leitch, Gallagher and Petrik also prominent on both attack and defence. Another Gallagher turned in a fifty goal twirling exhibition, all counters being made from a short distance. Wright, Corbu and Norton also aided the visiting team.

PERSONAL COLLECTION OF TOWN ACCOUNTS

Effort Being Made to Secure Regular Payments

In an effort to secure more orderly collection of accounts, owing to the town, the council, at a recent meeting authorized that Chief Oakley, in addition to his other duties, be furnished with a list of those in arrears entering any account. He is to make a personal call with a view of ascertaining the amount that you feel that you can afford to pay on a monthly collection basis in order that these accounts may be liquidated as soon as possible.

When the collector makes his call, give him that consideration and help that has already been afforded you by the town council up to the present time. Remember that the town cannot finance on its good reputation and knowing this fact, the council deems it wise and prudent to make these calls in order that you might facilitate the easing of our town's financial position. Your co-operation is respectfully solicited by the town council in this regard. 2tx

Swedish Folk Celebrate

Historic Event Of Four Centuries Ago Is Reprised

On Christmas morning, 1520, as the country folk of Mora, in Sweden's Dalecarlia, were coming home from church, began the historic tale of Gustaf Vasa, Sweden's liberator. His offer of leadership and its rejection, his despair and escape to the mountains, and the message sent day confirming his country's wrongs, are vivid chapters in Swedish folklore history. The fastest ski-runners of the province were two days later sent to bid him welcome and ask his return.

At Salen near the Norwegian border, they overtook him. This reunion on Christmas morning 124 great run was made again by the best skiers of the nation to honor Sweden a national hero, and also to show the northland's largest program of winter sports scheduled in Scandinavia since the Olympic winter games of 1912.

Railway Crossing Accidents

Increase Is Reported In 1935 Over Previous Year

An increase of 20 was recorded in 1935 in the number of motor accidents at railway crossings across Canada. In 1934, they totalled 314 but jumped to 342 last year.

A total of 114 persons were killed and 304 injured as a result of the 1935 mishaps. Both aggregates were higher than in 1934, when 91 were killed and 302 injured.

The rise is attributed to the increased use of the automobile. An analysis of records of the board of railway commissioners, where the figures were obtained, shows the vacation months of August and September, and November, when roads become slippery and weather bad are the worst months of the year.

Historic Scene Reconstructed

Royal Bank Calendar Depicts Opening Of Canada's First Railroad

Was Canada's first railroad opened in 1836 or 1837? Were the cars hauled by a locomotive or by horses on the inaugural run? How big was the locomotive and did it break down or not?

These and many similar questions which have centered around the opening of Canada's first railroad a century ago find their answer in a new calendar just issued by The Royal Bank of Canada. Executed by Sherriff Scott, one of Canada's foremost painters of historic subjects, this year's calendar depicts in the colourful scene at Laprairie when the first train of the Champlain & St. Lawrence Railroad steamed out on her inaugural run.

On many important aspects of this opening ceremony, on the character of the locomotive itself and even on the events which transpired, historians differ. Indeed, some doubt has recently existed as to the exact date of the opening of this short fifteen mile line between Laprairie, Que., and St. Johns near the head of Lake Champlain.

Faced with these difficulties and in order to ensure the accuracy of this year's painting, The Royal Bank went to original sources. For the actual locomotive used and structural details of the "Dorchester" which hauled the first train, the artist used the actual full size drawings supplied by the firm of Robert Stephenson & Company of Great Britain, from which shops the "Dorchester" came early in 1836. For reliable information on the events of the day, reference was made to the files of the issues of the Montreal "Courier" and "Gazette" for July 22, 1836, which carried complete eye-witness accounts.

These accounts demonstrated clearly that the actual opening ceremony took place on Thursday, July 21, 1836, and that the locomotive, "Dorchester", contrary to the generally held belief, did actually haul the first train on that occasion. They also established the approximate weights of those present were the Governor-General, the Earl of Gosford, Sir George Simpson, governor of the Hudson War and Sir Charles Grey, formerly a supreme judge of the Court of Madras. These three had come to Canada in 1835 as a commission to enquire into the grievances that were agitating the colony and which were soon to culminate in open rebellion. Peter Mechill, chairman of the railway company, and later mayor of Montreal was also present.

The story, as it appeared in the "Gazette" of a hundred years ago, is reproduced in essence on the calendar pad. The relative dimensions of the "Dorchester" and a locomotive of the present day are also provided and strikingly demonstrate the pygmy size of Canada's first passenger locomotive. Somewhat larger than a Henry Austin or Jem Mechanic by Ford, a grown man could easily see over the boiler of the "Dorchester" she was only 12' 10" long as compared with the 90 foot giants commonly used to-day by both Canadian railways. And yet, for all this diminutive size, she performed heroic service and over a fifteen year period worked in her first year of operation, she travelled 8,600 miles and hauled 13,979 passengers besides freight.

Additional interest is given to this year's calendar picture by the fact that plans are now going forward for a centenary celebration next July.

BASIC SPONGE RECIPES

A large variety of attractive breads, rolls, coffee-cakes etc., can be prepared by using one general sponge recipe which being the "base" or start of the operation, is termed "Basic Sponge".

With this "Basic Sponge" the housewife is able to produce very simply and easily a variety of attractive bread and cakes. In fact, there is no end to the possibilities opened up by this "Basic" recipe

1 cake of Royal Yeast
1 cup of lukewarm water
1 cup of milk
1 tablespoon sugar
4 cups of sifted bread flour

Soak the yeast cake for 15 minutes in the lukewarm water

Dissolve the sugar in the milk and add same to the dissolved yeast cake. Add the flour and beat thoroughly into a batter. Cover and let rise in a warm place, free from draughts overnight or until doubled in bulk

If this batter is started at 9 to 10 p.m. it will be ready to use 7 or 8 o'clock the following morning

It is advisable to add 1 teaspoonful of salt to the above sponge in winter weather as this helps to prevent excessive fermentation

Has Become Linguist

Toronto Newsie Picks Up Smattering Of Six Languages

This business of riding up and down the country's railroads, peddling pop and peanuts, has developed Harry Hill, Toronto veteran newsagent, into somewhat of a linguist.

Hill, who at present travels on the Canadian National Railway train between Windsor and Toronto, has picked up a smattering of six different languages, not including English, during his 26 years of railroading.

The genial, white-haired Hill can peddle his wares in French, Russian, Ukrainian, Polish, Chinese and Iroquois. Endowed with a wonderful memory, he remembers customers' preferences after hearing them once or twice.

He has travelled all through the Maritimes and as far west as Winnipeg and it was during the hey-day of immigration when the peoples of many nations were flocking into this country that he first acquired a flair for language.

"I found these different races were delighted and pleased that somebody could understand and converse with them in their own tongue," reminisced Hill.

Hill got his first taste of railroading when he became a "red-cap." To-day, if he had the means to retire he says he would enroll at some school of languages and improve his knowledge of these tongues he already knows.

South American Now Thought To Hold World's Greatest Quantity

Dr. Otto Vogt Von Bickingen, Haverford, Pa., bacteriologist, has discovered what he believes to be the largest radium deposit in the world along the Carentyn river in South America.

Dr. Von Bickingen also said he had discovered a possible cure for tuberculosis. The cure is to be given by boiling the skin of a South American reptile.

The new municipal indoor swimming pool at Milan, reputed to be one of the three finest in the world, has been ordered closed during the present national crisis in order to effect economies in light, power and heating.

The swimming pool was opened in October, 1934, and occupies an entire building newly erected on the site of the old railroad station torn down four years ago.

Tennyson's Home For Rent

House At Farringford Always Associated With His Works

Tennyson's home at Freshwater, in the Isle of Wight, is for rent. It has long been a shrine to which many journey.

At Farringford, the name of the place, just off the main road from Freshwater to Alum Bay, sheltered by fine old trees which the poet loved and immortalized in his verse, he did much of his best work. His name is irrevocably associated with his, for it was during the last 40 years of his life—his period of residence there—that he acquired his prestige. The poet's connection with Farringford dates from November, 1853, when he rented it. Three years afterward he bought the house and estate outright.

PATTERN 5264

What more conducive to forty winks' than this fluffy, lacy afghan! Its crocheted warmth will ward off the most treacherous draughts, its color brighten and gladden any room it adorns. A very simple pattern to follow, too. The stripes look like tiny daisies strung together, and are in a crochet stitch which busy hands and needle soon learn to do by heart. Lovely in three shades of one color it is also effective with each stripe a different color.

In pattern 5264 you will find directions for making the afghan; an illustration of it and of the stitches used, material requirements, and color suggestions.

To obtain this pattern send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave., E., Winnipeg.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JANUARY 19

JESUS PREPARES FOR HIS WORK

Golden text: Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve Luke 4:8.

Lesson: Luke 3:1—4:15.

Devotional reading: Hebrews 2:10-18.

Explanations And Comments

The Baptism of Jesus, Luke 3:21, 22. While crowds were being baptized by John, Jesus came and was baptized also. Then the account in Matthew, "in his baptism Jesus was sealing his quiet years of preparation at Nazareth and was about to enter the ministry of sacrifice which was to be performed in obedience to the will of his Father. It is for this reason that Luke, with the art of a skilled historian, first completed the story of John, the great forerunner, before mentioning that which in reality was the supreme incident in the career of John—his baptism of Jesus. Then he introduced Jesus to his public ministry and that ministry was to be the very substance of the Gospel.

Luke does not describe the baptism. He merely mentions it to designate the time when Jesus saw the descending Spirit and heard the voice from heaven. We are not to suppose that Jesus had been locked in the presence of the Holy Spirit, nor that he had received from the Father voice to his Father, but, as in baptism he had yielded himself to his appointed service, so now he was empowered for his task; as in humility he had identified himself with the sons of men, so now he was assured that he was the Son of God; as he had shown his sympathy with penitent sinners, so now was declared to be the sinless One in whom God was well pleased." (C. R. Erdman).

Considered Poor Risk

Insurance Men Are Not Interested In Steeplejack

Insurance agents in Halifax, N.S. cross to the other side of the street when they spot Frank Quigley. They're just not interested in selling him insurance.

For his job is one of the riskiest so hazardous that no company will write him a policy. He's a steeplejack, and he goes about his business swinging at the end of a rope anywhere from 100 to 500 feet above ground.

It doesn't matter much to him how high it is. "If you fall from ten says the 25-year-old steeplejack "you're through anyway, so you might as well go higher."

He has been climbing since he was eight years old. The job fascinates him first as a cabin boy in Montreal where he used to watch the "jacks climb spires. As soon as he was big enough he got into the game himself.

Since then, he has never had an accident though he has gone up 500 feet at Sudbury, Ont., 265 at Saint John N.B., and 210 feet at Trenton N.S. But that's no inducement to the insurance men. They only have one accident in Quigley's business.

A Star Attraction

The Dionne Quintuplets, who brought money to many during 1935, did greatly by the Ontario government, the province's hotel keepers, store owners, service station proprietors and almost everybody who sold anything on the roads that led to their birthplace.

Over a four-month period, from June to September, 90,076 automobiles rolled their way around Dafoe hospital and some 380,504 persons stepped out for a glance at the world's most famous babies.

In June, an average of 570 cars a day stopped at the quintuplet home. The number crept to 710 a day in July and burst to a high of 1,480 a day during August. As summer left, so did the visitors, and only 328 cars a day were seen during September.

Those figures, compiled by the Ontario tourist bureau, dropped at least $74,307 into the coffers of the Ontario department of highways in the four months, and almost $1,000,000 into the pockets of the province's business men and women.

Estimates place the number of United States visitors as 60 per cent. of the total. With the nearest entrance into Canada some 300 miles from this northern Ontario village, the automobile would need at least 18 gallons of gasoline on a two-day trip. Here it took 20.

That meant 1,223,450 gallons from the pumps on the way to Callander. For every gallon the highway department took six cents, a total of $74,307 from those below the border alone. You could add $25,000 from Canadian visitors and total almost $100,000 in just four months.

Basing the total number of visitors on four to a car, it left some $565,-700 for various people such as the restaurant and the restaurant proprietor. It's an overnight stop from almost anywhere to Callander and back, and if your expenses run under $2.50 a person, you're thrifty

Petroleum In Five Colors

White Inside But Have Red, White Blue And Green Skins

Color was given to the potato tuber in its evolutionary stage by different hues of potatoes—red, white, blue, green and black—were marketed by Prince Edward Island farmers. The first four varieties are shipped to various sections of Canada and the United States, and the latter color is grown for local use only.

While the skins have different hues, the potatoes, once peeled, are white with perhaps a slight tinge noticeable in the blue and black varieties. For this the blues are popular in Jamaica, the West Indies and Newfoundland where gourmands claim they have the finest eating spud.

More generally known and main source of revenue for Island potato growers are the Green Mountain. Shipments are sent throughout Canada, Eastern and Southern United States and West Indies. The total production of this variety are in wide demand and command a substantial premium over table stock. Cobblers, the "whiter" are second in popularity.

Reds, a heavy yielder, are doubly welcome this year with potatoes selling at 40 cents per bushel, compared to 60 cents last year. Although a lighter crop than usual has been harvested, farmers are expecting the first paying crop in years; the green and black tubers are not for sale, when the growers exclaim "Hurrah for red, white and blue"

Expert At Gift Wrapping

Girl Kept Busy At Job She Created For Herself

A girl who has learned to wrap up packages beautifully let it be known last gift season that she would go to anyone's home with a supply of gift wrappings and do up all the gifts that were to be sent out. Soon she arrived, clad in bright crayon colors if they wished. She carried a line of pretty bows and some cards to accompany the gifts if they were desired. When a tired shopper for Christmas gifts came home and laid out all her purchases and tagged them with the proper names, she found great relief in seeing someone who knew how, doing them all up in pretty papers, and tied with lovely bows. Chas E Armstrong is the Canada Valley district, has his name on the F W. 6436 gives established carry ing a complete line of groceries to supply to shortly add a line of dry goods, boots and shoes. With the able staff at present some, Charlie is building up a large trade.

Mrs. J. W. Walters has resigned from the postoffice staff and is returning to B C her former home where she intends to reside.

A railroad engineering ramp is to be raised to Ty 12 Rge 5. A feeling of confidence that the construction of the Vermilion Bruderheim line is to commence this spring is taking firm hold of the district.

A report has been current around the streets of the town that the Canadian National railway may be placed on into the $1,000,000 at this point during the year. Though the amount may be somewhat exaggerated there is every prospect of very large extensions and improvements being under taken at this divisional point, one of the most important on the transcontinental line.

A. E Kaiser was in receipt of a wire on Thursday from Mrs. Kaiser, Edmonton, announcing the birth of her brother Mrs. D Turk, who passed away at her home, Bridgeview. The deceased lady visited in Vermilion a little over two years ago.

Mr and Mrs Merrick left with their family on Saturday for their old home in Hastings Michigan. Many regrets at the sad closure of the district but the kindest homeward party of the town when the first big rush of settlers came in.

Messrs R A Pilkie and Ray Cunningham took from the prairie province have opened a furniture store in the old Commercial Hotel block, now beyond "The Progress" office.

THE CIVIC LEAGUE

Texans and Elks continued their winning ways last night and as a result are far out in the lead. They are practically assured of a place in the play offs. Next week the College will play the League, both these teams having a chance for the third play off position. The Elks will endeavor to put a crimp in the otherwise unblemished record of the Texas hitters.

TEXAS VS. V. S. A.

The Texas Oilers trimmed the red hot V. S. A. aggregation in a spirited first encounter last night. Dell scoring on Corson's assist with Watson Burr and Loder also getting the others. Thereafter as the V. S. A. marked up their lone counter

LEGION LOSE TO ELKS

Everyone was set for a Legion victory over the Elks in the second encounter as the latters spark plug, Stan Waldenberg was missing. However, such was not to be. The smart young players on the Elks line such as Gilbert, Marfleet, Drimmendine and Sodan were on their toes and backed by splendid [illegible] sending by Aitkin marked up a 6-2 win. The Legion seemed to be playing in touch luck all evening. The gentlemen of the Drimmendine from Gilbert, Soldan, Gilbert from Marfleet, Marfleet from Drimmendine, Captain Brooks from Fraser, C. NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the South-East

Mr and Mrs. Wes. Isley are receiving the heartiest congratulations of the Neighborhood on the birth of a fine son. This is the first young man to carry the Isley name in the third generation in this part of the country.

Kolnee is doing without her most interesting and picturesque resident this winter, since Mrs Loughlin has moved from her lakeside home to stay with her daughter, Mrs. de Pard, of Barnsdale. This fine old lady, well known to all her friends and kindly qualities, has had a very varied and full life, and one never has had a dull moment with her. We have been privileged to read her observations on her long life (she is a great grandmother) and human nature, as well as many practical garden and household hints, from time to time in the correspondence columns of one of the leading farm papers. Mr. Carl Marklin has taken over the care of her farm and we trust that Mrs. Loughlin's health, which has given her trouble lately, is strong enough so that she may enjoy many more years among her Kolnee friends.

More than once we've heard the remark "There's always something doing in that Neighborhood", this time it is a group or pastrons who make the boys—but we'll not spoil the "scoop" and you'll soon be seeing their own account of their activities and plans.

At the annual ratepayer's meeting of Woodside district, Mr. A. Pridaland retiring member, was re-elected on the school board. A good deal of business pertaining to the school was discussed and policies decided upon in regard to permitted questions. The ladies were in the main discouraged by the stormy day, and left it to the more enduring half of the family to air the opinions (air is right, and frosty at that!) for the afternoon.

WILDMERE WINKS

L. Graham and Gordon Hall were town visitors on Monday and Tuesday, both having decided work done. They also headed in the Winks to the Standard. Thanks boys.

On Tuesday evening Jan. 7th about twenty-five or thirty people gathered and sure Rush and Roger Pare a charivari. After the noise was over, Roger invited the folks in, cards and dances were played until about mid night, when a dainty lunch was served after which everyone left for home.

Miss Marion Gibson spent Wednesday evening at the Wallington home.

Friday night a number of Wildmere and Tolland folks gathered at Triangle school for a dance. A good crowd and good music made an enjoyable time.

Preston school meeting was a rather quiet affair, J. C. Wallington went back on the school board by acclamation.

Wildmere Community Club held its annual meeting Saturday evening. L. Graham is the President and Mrs. and Nellie Riley Sec.-Treas. The club is putting on a dance at Wildmere in the school on Feb. 7th.

Mr. and Mrs. G Scaffert spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm Ellis Basement.

Mr. and Mrs. J Wallington were invited to supper Sunday at the home of Mr and Mrs. Tom Gullroyle of Bee Creek. A very pleasant time was spent at cards and visiting. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Howson and children, Mr. and Mrs. H. Pare and Tom O'Reilly were also visitors at the same home.

Alice Gibson had a jolly birthday party on Sunday evening, when a number of young people gathered with her many happy returns on her fifteenth birthday.

Mrs J Peterson is visiting for a few days with Mrs. T. Elaine.

Furniture thing seen this week was Jimmie Wallington standing beside a hot stove with his overcoat on, and Mr. Hines, Rawleigh man, asking him "Are you cold, Jim"

R. S. LAW

Mr. Law, as President and General Manager of United Grain Growers Limited, is to take up his residence in Calgary within a few months.

The Board or Directors of the company has decided to establish the office of the president and general manager at its Calgary office. That office has been in Winnipeg since 1917, when the Alberta Farmers' Co-operative Elevator Company amalgamated with the Grain Growers' Grain Company to form United Grain Growers Limited.

Although the company operates extensively in all three prairie provinces, the extent of its business is much larger in Alberta than in either Saskatchewan or Manitoba. That fact together with the importance of the company's business at Vancouver, Calgary is a suitable location for the office of the president and general manager.

ISLAND HILL

What a day Saturday last was! Freezing—snowing—snow-drifting. It was certainly a day to be depressed, and we are afraid the depressing reached the annual meeting of the school district ratepayers which took place here. The writing on the wall appeared for those in the shape of a forwarded by the Local Education Bill and to be candid, the trustees did not like it. But there were several little things cropped up during the meeting which tickled us most immensely.

What tickled us most was a reference in the Inspector's report that the teacher had no pupils in the district in grade 8 and ten little to grades 1, 2 and 3. Further there was a reference to the fact that a boy was a football for the pupils and one ratepayer gave a blood-curdling description of the method he used to kill a cat by bloodshed broken limbs. We are reminded he has been reading of the war between Ethiopia and Italy and he thinks the impression it is a football match. And the pupils will not see the football Minister at education, please keep an eye on him, you'll get you he reads Island Hill news, steps organized man and woman down!

Mr. Wm. Hall who was chairman of the meeting was re-elected trustee on the motion of Mrs. H. A. Warfe seconded by Mr. Bert Scaife. [illegible] presided at the reports in a masterly manner and there is no doubt that the district is well served by Mr. Hall by means busy.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

Here is an exciting and exciting story of a fight against stubborn prejudice and a bitter personal malignancy—of a girl and a man who have ridicule, sabotage, bullets, and the treachery that [illegible] against each other.

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Bonne County settlers, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roper Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide Kilgo ranch, is the only man to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, for Link Fleming, a surveyor, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo knew would be called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to reverse his earlier endorsement, and declare that irrigation in Boone county so far as Hamilton a plan was concerned, was only a new fangled way to waste money.

The same night Hamilton but Buss Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo sit down to a game of poker. Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buss, who objects to Fleming's trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "ground". Buss insults at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buss is arrested. The doctor attends Townsend and dresses his wound. Kilgo [illegible] engaged taking Helen to her home, but she refuses and Fleming escorts her home instead. This angers Kilgo and he vows to declare open hostility to Fleming. Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties, Link goes home, and is surprised to find Kilgo there ahead of him. Kilgo tries to induce Link to drop his scheme, and when Fleming refuses, gives a signal by taking off his hat, and Link is shot at from outside the house

(How Go On With The Story)

There was a short silence "Don't know why you think I want your scalp, Link," he complained. "Course there may be guys that do. I wouldn't go so far as to name 'em, but you know as well as I do, you ain't [illegible] popular with friends of Buss Hamilton. Some of the guys are sore because you tried to [illegible] them into irrigation scheme that would cost sixty thousand bucks and wouldn't be worth a cent. Maybe some'll blame you for gettin' Buss so mad he tried that shootin' in the hotel. Can't explain how folks are apt to look at a thing," he reminded [illegible]

Fleming waited Roper moved nearer. "I need more range for my cows, Link, and your grass looks pretty good to me. Specially I need more if we have trouble about that football order from the government. And I reckon I'll be high means bum."

Link only Roper might suffer from a hard winter, if we'd have one Guys have found out before that they couldn't stand the climate here in Bonne County. So I just thought I'd drop in to talk it over with you."

"Begin you out. Want to sell, Link?" His grin had an evil, mocking glint to it

"Willing to sell anything I have for the right price," was the prompt answer.

Roper rubbed his hands. "Shucks, I don't half believe that guy that shot at you really meant to kill you at all. Just sort of tossed a scare, I reckon. But you're smart to head that warnin', Link. How about price: I'll give you three thousand dollars cash for your land, cattle, and everything on the Star Loop but your personal stuff."

Fleming rubbed his chin thoughtfully. He must and smothered a yawn at the door. Opening it with care lest another ambusher's shot come whistling through, he looked back at Kilgo.

"It would take just six times three thousand to start me considering, Now Roper, you can git!"

His face suffused with ire. His small, piggish eyes were fresh with longing for the opportunity to shoot and send a bullet in his host's body. Remembrance of the "interference" which had thwarted his rankled fiercely as did also thought of more than one previous claim between them.

"Fleming, I'll get you savagely, "yuh can't take this spread to hell with yuh. And that's where yuh [illegible] you don't pick them up mighty soon. I'm boss of this county, and it ain't leltin' you take my girl away from me. Now git, you [illegible] and I'll get it—or break yuh. Savvy?

"I'm offerin' three thousand dollars. How about it?"

A dry, tantalizing smile creased from the corners of Link's nose to his mouth. Roper stepped sideways to him in the doorway. Suddenly he booted foot rose with speed and power that gave no chance of escape. There was a thud, a grunt, and Kilgo lurched forward and out onto the stoop. Curses burst from his fat lips, acrid and searing.

Link slammed the door and leaped back. He was in the nick of time. A shot roared outside, and the nose of a lead slug burrowed into view through the oak panels. Had Fleming not sprung away he would certainly have received the bullet full in the stomach, in a wound similar to that which had laid poor Buster Townsend at death's door.

Swiftly he blew out the lamp and for several moments waited in the dark seen. When hoofbeats sounded faintly outside he produced a match and struck it. The flame was cupped in his palms when someone pounded impertinently on the door.

"Hey, Link, open up!"

He lighted the lamp, then complied. It was Wayo Byrne with [illegible] Hall. Those behind, their faces [illegible] as they saw him

Gosh! Heard shootin' again and thought yuh were a gonner. What [illegible]

Just a little disagreement. Kind of a warning I'm not hurt, but it may be Roper'll have to stand in his stirrups half way to town. Did you find that rifleman?"

"Naw!" disgustedly. "We'll go after him again"

"Afraid it's no use, boys, save yuh trouble. Good night."

They left the room and could be heard growling as they went toward the bunkhouse. An brunk, musing smile hovered on Fleming's lips as he strolled into the kitchen and set about preparing his belated evening meal.

"Kilgo never did have much sense of humor," he muttered, measuring coffee into the pot. "I'll bet he'll [illegible] this real serious, and makes trouble. Or tries to, anyhow."

CHAPTER V.

Judge Parkhill's courtroom in the ramshackle county building at Atlas was filled with interested spectators on the trial of Buss Hamilton for attempted murder drew to a close. Punchers whose duties were light since the end of the recent roundup eal with employers equally free from the activities of summer cattle-raising. Otto Pieper, who was an attorney as well as a banker, slumped in his chair and sighed. Through the high dusty windows could be seen the season's first dribbling flakes of snow.

Link sat a few feet from Buss, who was between Sheriff Stephen and Deputy Anse Hicks. Near him Helen and Hamilton poised white-faced and tense. The trial was over; Buss had been found guilty. Silence reigned as Judge Parkhill prepared to pass sentence.

It had been with great reluctance that Fleming testified in regard to the shooting. He tried to make it appear accidental, but as the sheriff commented cynically, "A man don't draw on another just by accident, Yore Honor." And there had been Buster Townsend's story, brought to the courtroom in writing. Buss, he declared, tried to kill Fleming. The jury had so decided.

"Stand before the court to have sentence passed upon you, Arnold Hamilton."

Buss rose. His thin lips twitched and his face was pale. His manner was cringing and fearful, quite the reverse of his former aggressiveness. Judge Parkhill cleared his throat and leaned forward. He fixed stern gaze on the prisoner.

"The jury has found you guilty of attempting to murder Lincoln Fleming. Have you anything to say?"

Hamilton merely stared down at his hands.

"According to the law it is now my duty to impose sentence. It is the order of this court that you be [illegible] to the penitentiary at the state of Alberta for the term of [illegible] Stone Penitentiary, there to be held prisoner for three years according to law. Court adjourned."

"And when you get free, young fellow," the Judge added with sympathy, "I warn you to keep away from Helen. I ain't wide open. The sheriff's duty is to maintain order. That means no shootin' scrapes at all, kindly weapon. Take the prisoner away!"

A rustle of whispering went around the room. "Three years!" Stephen snapped disgustedly. "Say, he should've got ten!"

"Court adjourned!"

Spectators arose and began to file out. As Hicks jerked Buss to his feet Helen stepped to him and threw her arms around his neck. After a brief, touching exchange of whispered farewells, then the sheriff gently pushed her away. Buss shuffled out, and Pieper accompanied Buss out of the room. He would be started for the penitentiary at once, the boss knew, to prevent a [illegible]

Fleming concluded to wait outside, and took himself down the rear stairway. Pausing to build a cigarette, he heard others descend in his wake. Roper Kilgo's booming tones carried to his ears as the man sought to comfort Helen.

"I should have hid in the foothills till this was over, that's what he should have done. If Link was any kind of a friend, he would have, too, I would, yuh bet!"

"But, Roper—"

If Link wasn't on hand to speak his piece Buss might 've got off. Townsend ain't gonna die for a tough. Why didn't Fleming just stay away from the trial?"

They paused just beside where the girl donned her coat "Helen, it looks to be like he framed that whole thing. Link Turney may be back of it, I suppose, but he ain't a fool. He was pruned what to say, but when he got up in front of all them men, he decided to tell the truth. He sure showed up since. Why? Must be he's afraid something'll happen to him!"

"With that scheme spoiled, and yore Triple H the logical spread to buy for that irrigation plan, Link figured right off he needed to get rid of in charge Buss was wise to him. Buss was wise to him. Buss was sore enough to draw Townsend was waitin' handy to jump on him. Upshot of the [illegible] Triple H is now, and Fleming will try to talk yuh into puttin' money in that dam he wants to build!"

"But, Roper he has no influence over me I—"

"Mebbe not, but yuh letters, ain't he? Got yuh sold on the proposition even before yuh got home He knew I wouldn't let yuh join up on a loss proposition like that, nor Buss. We're lookin' after yore welfare

"To show I got your interest at heart, I'm went on impressively, I tried to buy Link's ranch the very night you came home. So yuh would've have him hangin' around for better'n' yuh. Offered him a high price, too! He turned it down Can you beat that?"

Emerging through the doorway, his startled eyes found Link. "You offered me twenty thousand cash, eh, Roper?" he whined.

"Why uh " Quickly he changed his tone to a bluster. "Yuh know darn well I did!"

"That's funny. I understood you to offer me three thousand. In fact I'm positive that's what you said."

His red face deepened in hue "Yuh claim I'm a liar, Fleming?"

"You might call it that—yes."

Helen uttered a gasp. She would have thrown herself between the two men, but with each Kilgo had already lashed out one box-like fist.

It struck a glancing blow to his opponent's shoulder. Link retreated, his arms raised in defense as if he was afraid Roper waded in, sending blow after blow "Yuh yellow-bellied—" he snarled. "I'll—"

Prospectors Crowd Into North

Young Men And Old Veterans Looking For Gold

Gold the yellow-lure of the North country, which has sent thousands of prospectors into the land in the last few years, holds the 1936 northern spotlight as preparations are made for a new gold rush.

Reports of fabulous finds, made during the 1935 season, many of which have yet to be proved by actual mining operations, are bringing prospectors from east and west, from young men in the search for the precious metal and veterans who have prospected other fields in Canada and the United States.

By land, train waterways and airplane, they will make their way to Edmonton, the "gateway to the north." Some will remain in winter start snow-shakers, others will await the spring break-up

Referring to the proposed market week on the 1936 crop, Mr. Bennett declared that the cause for the many rules of the enormous efforts being made to continue on Premier Bennett in the wisdom of stabilizing the wheat market and the acute necessity of all getting the 1936 crop on an equitable basis.

An order in council had been asked by the Bennett administration but without a change of government, it was natural that the new Liberal regime wanted to know what they were doing before they did it," and to this end were not disposed to take action out of the wheat board's actions, he said.

Mr. Bennett said that he fully believed the payment would be made.

The meeting ended with the speaker answering a barrage of questions.

J. W. G. Morrison, in replying to a toast to the Board of Trade at a banquet on Boxing day, delved into the ancient past and brought to light some facts that are probably not generally known to the people of the town and district which the Board serves.

For instance, the Board of Trade records show that such a body existed in 1907, when no other than H. W. Brown was the president and H. V. Fieldhouse, secretary. In 1908 the officers were all well known, the exception being H. N. Stephens, G. B. Jackson, W. H. Cameron, H.W. Brown and M. A. Brimacombe. Subsequent executives contain the names of many more well known business men, some still here and others moved to distant parts or passed to the Great Beyond.

It is also interesting to note that problems dealt with in the early years bore fruit. For instance, as early as 1907 the subject of a government experimental farm was discussed; better transportation facilities over the C.N.R. was being pushed; improvement of business conditions in the town, better mail routes; establishment of a Flour mill and creamery and the securing of more settlers for the district. The matter of a band stand was also mooted and a grant of $150 was asked from the town council which has not unfortunately, this stand was built about 25 years later). Complaints about express rates were also then as now. A great many more subjects were dealt with, some of them were brought to a successful and successful culmination while others were forgotten.

In 1908 there were 26 members on the Board, 1909 only 17 members and in 1910, 55 joined up. Many of the names on the roll at that time occupy high positions elsewhere but only 11 still reside in this district.

Facts and figures of the early days of any organization in Vermilion are interesting and the minutes of the B. of T. prove doubly so, as they deal with the very development of the town itself.

It is safe to judge, however, as the speaker pointed out, that Vermilion has not yet the development and population which the members of the Board of Trade in the early days, foolishly imagined for their town.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the South-East
(Too late for last week)

One hard-working school mam's step is temporarily off the map of Vermilion by journeying to Winnipeg for the Xmas celebrations. And pretty soon we hope to find out some of what we have missed by never spending Xmas in Winnipeg.

Having weathered a winter in Man Tobin expedition last we'll bet they'll remember flirted with zero just as much there as here. But that's all part of a good time for Christmas.

The Mutual Telephone Co. met last Saturday and returned the same executive. F. F. van Wageningen, Pres. E. Green Bee. Treas. A very favorable balance was reported to the treasury. The only regrets crop was that there could not be more on the subscribers' list. All growth takes time, however, but the present parties and canvass seem bound to gain confidence and results.

Miss Katie Dickson of Watson spent the holidays in battling arctics against dirt developments in the Vermilion hospital. The Neighborhood extends all good wishes for recovery and a much better 1936 than pa-bestowing for her.

A real shock accompanied the last Standard, when we came upon the news of the passing of Mrs. Belle Mc. Memories of brighter and better times crowded in, with Belle's cheerfulness and courageous spirit a light that in our many meetings. We extend to her

Seed Grain Situation

Attention of farmers is drawn again to the serious damage that the frosts of last August and September have done to the vitality of a large part of Alberta's cereal grain crops. It is advisable that each lot of grain intended for seeding purposes should be tested for germination in order that disappointment and loss may not follow from the use of seed of low vitality. Germination tests may be made satisfactorily at home by the grower. The recommended procedure is as follows:

Clean a portion of grain up to satisfactory seed standard and make sure that it is thoroughly dry. Exposure of the grain in a sunny window for a few days will insure the removal of any excess moisture. Do not attempt to dry the grain in an oven or to apply other heat in any way; such procedure is likely to injure the vitality of the seed.

Count out two hundred or four hundreds and plant one hundred of them in each of two large flower pots or similar receptacles in soil. In doing this put several inches of moist soil into the pots, space the one hundred kernels as evenly as possible and cover them with from two to three inches of soil. Place the pots in a sunny window where they will be maintained at ordinary living room temperatures. The soil should be kept moist at all times but not so wet as to exclude air.

Count the number of shoots that are above the surface of the soil at the end of twelve days and give the results obtained from the two pots. This will give a close approximation of the value of the seed under field conditions.

Growers who are interested in the viability of their seed supply only for their own use, are recommended to follow the procedure outlined above as they can thus observe the attendant

OBITUARY

GEOFFREY BIRD

The lovely dark place at the Mill has Memorial hospital and the whole town of January, was a sad one. Geoffrey Bird, a resident of Vermilion district for many years, passed away at the hospital on Friday, Jan. 10th, after a short illness. The funeral was held on Sunday, Jan. 12th, from the Mrs. Hilda Cook to the cemetery, Rev. Canon W. Leversedge officiating. Mr. Bird's death at the age of 54 years, leaves a wife and six children to mourn their loss. The pallbearers were Messrs. Ralph Cook, Bill Newson, Jack Bird, Frank Bird, Thomas Bird and Bill Bird. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. The members of the family wish to express their appreciation to all those who helped during their sad bereavement.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to my friends and neighbors for the many kindnesses shown me during my recent illness.

What About Immigration?

The question of encouraging and permitting immigration to Western Canada is again looming on the horizon after a hiatus of six or seven years of the flow of new settlers to this country from Great Britain and some of the European countries.

With the age which has elapsed since the end of the past five years and during a heavy hand on the peoples of the prairie provinces and with the shadow of half a dozen years of widespread unemployment and direct relief still hanging over many communities in some Western Canada as one of the conditions which are being considered and launched on both sides of the Atlantic.

In the British House of Commons a motion was adopted in late December inviting the House to take prompt steps to survey the possibility of emigration within the Empire and the Under-secretary for Foreign Affairs announced that the government's decision to appoint an Empire Settlement Board of eight members and its acceptance of the report of an inter-departmental committee for overseas settlements.

The details of the scheme, public announcement was recently made of the government's provisionally by private interests of a colonization scheme, under which it is proposed to bring out for settlement on purchased land in Saskatchewan one hundred families of experienced farmers from the Cotswold Hills, England accompanied by a loan equal to what has been raised on as a number of similar combines.

Under this scheme British capital it was reported is investing sufficient settlers to purchase 100 quarter sections of land at $30 an acre, farm implements, livestock and machinery to the extent of $12,500 per family. The settlers are to be treated as a revolving fund, for, according to press reports, they will repay the emigrants over the period of years the amount of their passage money. At the end of five years they are supposed to have saved enough to be able to operate the farms and buy farms for themselves. The capital which is to be found in England is not equal to what has been raised so as to enable the purchase of farm and equipment. When they leave their places will be taken by other British emigrants.

The plan it is reported, is designed to prevent the migrants becoming a charge on the country during their five year apprenticeship period and their activities are to be supervised.

Without taking cognizance of the possible ultimate fate of a percentage of the settlers—a matter on which the effort of colonization of new settlers in the centres of established farmers of the agricultural industry in the west and of the country under the or any other immigration plan, at the present time and under existing conditions is worthy of serious consideration on the part of the provincial and Dominion authorities, before action to such plans is given, or, in fact, to immigration generally.

It must not be forgotten that the immediate future of agriculture in the prairie provinces is somewhat doubtful with export markets for hard spring wheat contracting with consumption tending to decline in Canada a best wheat market and with, as yet, no new markets opened up.

Thus, the farmers on the hard land now in the prairie provinces are more than able to take care of the existing market for their major export product and to bring in others to compete with them in this particular product does not appear to be a reasonable act.

There appears to be some hope of expanding markets for some other exportable agricultural products which can be produced on the prairies, principally livestock and livestock products but, so far, these markets have not been sufficiently developed to warrant increased production by advertising methods. The trend rather is in the direction of improvement in quality and maintenance of regularity of supply. Until this has been achieved and markets for such products broadened because of it, it is reasonable to suppose that farmers already on the land can take care of the demand. As for added agricultural products to be produced for local markets, everybody knows that the capacity of these markets is so limited at present, and likely to be for some time to come, that their requirements can easily be catered for without bringing in new settlers to increase production.

Until these problems are in a fair way to be solved and farmers already established in the country have had a reasonable opportunity to at least partially rehabilitate themselves and recover some of their lost ground, the wisdom of bringing in new settlers, no matter how desirable the type, is open to serious question.

Certainly the rural sections of the west cannot be expected to welcome new immigrants with open arms, and it is equally certain that the urban centres, who are busily engaged in assisting former farm residents to get back on the land or return to the countries of their origin, will look askance at any proposal to establish more new settlers from overseas.

Building Up A Fortune

Trust Fund Of Dionne Quintuplets Is Now $750,000

The Dionne quintuplets will soon have enough money to retire for life if their present rate of income continues. Dr Allan Roy DaFoe and Judge J. A. Valin, guardians to the famous children, announced each baby was worth about $30,000 in her own right.

Between them the sisters have in a trust fund $120,000 of government bonds amassed since the Ontario government took charge of their affairs a year ago almost to the day. If they live to three years of age, present contracts assure the quints $300,000.

"It is our aim and the aim of the guardians to bring the trust fund up to the point where the interest will support them without touching the principal," said Welfare Minister Croll. "It's place that amount at about $300,000 which we expect to reach in a year or a year and a half."

Croll said that the trust fund has been spent enlarging and equipping the hospital where the quints live. Pay for nurses and salaries of guards necessary to patrol the place day and night comes out of the fund.

Regular payments are made to the sisters' parents. Each receives nearly $1,000 monthly for the operating cost of the hospital. In all $35,000 has been expended this year.

The babies' fortune is being built up by royalties on the quint feature picture "The Country Doctor," royalties on postcards, calendars, dresses, coats, bonnets and dolls.

Adventurer is Still Going

Will Be Some Time Yet Finishing Long Hike

Jean de Vaudeuil, 66 Belgian adventurer, left Europe land in 1920 to "see the world," and now is completing the final stages of the long journey. "When he passed through Calgary, Alta., he said it would take four years to finish his tour of Canada, but that was a year ago.

Claiming to have tramped through every country in the world except Africa, he stated he would visit that country next.

Although handicapped by the loss of his left arm at the front in a mine explosion in 1916, he claimed he had covered 30,711 miles on foot since he started, travelling 1,000 miles in 30 days each day on his artificial leg. Vaudeuil said he fought in a revolt in Palestine, in 1936, was shot in Spain, escaped to South Africa in 1909 and, in 1914, joined the allied forces in the World War.

In the last month de Vaudeuil has filled 64 note books. He has the autograph of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Premier King and Premier Hepburn of Ontario.

Educational Campaign

Ottawa Meeting Launches Movement In Support Of Canada Fund

A Canada-wide educational campaign will be the first step launched by the trustees of the King George Canada Fund, it was learned here. It was announced at the conclusion of a meeting of the trustees at Ottawa. In the larger centres of the Dominion, meetings of the public and of medical men will be held. Assistance in the campaign will be given by an outstanding British authority, whose name for the present the trustees withheld.

The policy as to how the fund should be carried out was discussed by the trustees and plans were adopted to ensure the greatest amount of income should accrue from the funds in hand.

Heroine Of Australia Dead

Earned Name By Rescuing Crew Of Wrecked Ship

The "Grace Darling" of Western Australia, Mrs Grace Vernon Drake-Brockman mother of Judge Drake-Brockman and Lady Moulden, of Adelaide, died at the age of 73. She earned her name, when as a young girl she was riding on horseback by moonlight to cattle she saw the sailing vessel Georgette pounding to pieces on the reef on the coast. She rescued a native boy who with her rescued the ship's company by riding their horses into the surf and bringing people ashore. She was later awarded the Royal Humane Medal and a gold watch and chain from the British Government.

A Soviet Hollywood

Film Industry To Be Developed In Southern Russia

Hal Roach, Hollywood cameraman who is filming Shakespeare's "As You Like It," featuring Elisabeth Bergner, will explore Russia and the Orient for film prospects on his way round the world and back home.

The Russian government has invited me to Russia when I am through with this picture," Hal said. "Construction of a gigantic Soviet Hollywood' is to start early next year.

"I think there may be a great future for Russian films. In the silent days they produced some of the most beautiful I have seen.

"England to-day can produce pictures as good, on as average, as America. She is improving fast. For instance, a picture like 'Broadway Melody of 1936' could never be turned out in England."

The new film city in Russia is to be located in the semi-tropical south. More than 9,000 people, according to S. E. Simanovsky, chief of the Soviet cinema industry, will engage in film production. It will not be ready until the summer of 1937.

Tickets As Gifts

English Railways Had Novel Idea For Holiday Season

A new method to encourage railway travel and the traditional pantomimes in London marked the Christmas season in the United Kingdom.

Under the auspices of the Rail and Road Clubs where business has showed marked improvement, it was one of the happiest celebrations in years.

First place among Christmas novelties must be given to the British railway which issued tickets to patients for the sale of tickets in advance which could be sent to pantomimers. The companies also undertook to enclose a special Christmas greeting card devised to hold the tickets as novelties.

The schemes, for instance, enabled people living in the North of England to purchase their tickets for the South to visit them for the festive season, to purchase the railway tickets in advance and present them as Christmas or New Year gifts

Romance Starts Panic

Flowers have caused a panic in the native quarter of Cairo. An aeroplane, flying very low, began dropping mysterious packets—which the natives took to be bombs. They rushed for safety: but the "bombs" were merely bouquets dropped by an abandoned suitor before his fiancee's house.

Aged Doctor Learns Braille

Favorite Pastime Will Remain With Him When Sight Fails

Anticipating complete blindness, Dr. John H. Lacy, 86-year-old colorful Artesian pioneer, is learning to read Braille so that when blindness comes he still will be able to enjoy his favorite amusement—reading.

Dr. Lacy, an Army and Indian Service physician for years, and a superior court bailiff for the past 10 years, began study of the Braille system four months ago when he began to have difficulty reading, even with a powerful reading glass. He still is able to walk about the streets alone, however.

The physician went to Arizona in 1886 from Virginia. He then was a physician in the army. He later practiced privately in Arizona town. He has been retired for 30 years.

As a boy, he learned to talk with his fingers by means of a method for the deaf and dumb near his home. Later, while in the army, he became an expert telegrapher.

He took his medical degree at the College of Hampton Sidney in Prince Edward County, Va., where his grandfather was president of the college 100 years ago.

Business In Vienna

Merchants In Austrian City Are Not Selling Farmers Free

Viennese businessmen aren't the world's most progressive. There's one big factory deserted department store in town. Many stores will sacrifice a considerable sale rather than go to the trouble of delivering. Before the custom of delivering goods was refused to let a Woolworth open, fearing it would be prejudical to established firms.

The Hapsburgs are drifting back: Archduke Anton, who married Ileana of Rumania; Archduke Eugen; and Archduke Karl, who is the only one to have his name in the phone book. Also in the phone book, however, is another Hapsburg, at present the one most conspicuous in the public eye—Otto von Hapsburg, the pretender. "Let Hapsburg do your washing" is a line seen on billboards and in newspapers everywhere.

Highway Safety

Plan Is Made To Eliminate Loss Of Life From Motor Accidents

Premier A. A. Dymnt, who has jurisdiction over New Brunswick's highways, thinks highway safety might be improved if motoring offenders when they come to court by showing them motion pictures of wrecked machines and injured people.

A plea to eliminate loss of life on the highways of Canada has been sent out to Canadians from Hon. C. D Howe, federal minister of railways, and ministers with jurisdiction over highways of four provinces

Impressed with the growing toll of highway fatalities, Premier Dysart of New Brunswick; Hon. T. B. McQuesten, highways minister for Ontario; Hon. C. H. Cahill, minister of public works and labor in Manitoba; and Hon. W. A. Fallow, Alberta minister of public works, joined with Mr. Howe in messages urging highway safety

Recalling the federal government, the railways and municipalities had in the past quarter of century spent a total of $36,000,000 for protecting level crossings, Mr. Howe said the work must be continued and extended as the public interest required "Year by year," he declared, "death and injury in motor accidents continued to mount it becomes increasingly evident that the only way to prohibit is not so much the level crossing but along the highways themselves."

Big Radium Shipment

Large Consignment Is Purchased By The Ontario Government

Thirty-five little wooden boxes each containing about $6,400 worth of radium from Great Bear lake were in Ontario department of health laboratories as delivery was made of the largest single shipment of radium ever produced in Canada. The boxes contained a total of 3.500 milligrams of radium which will cost the Ontario government approximately $153,000. The supply will go to the Toronto general hospital to replace 2½ grams which have been rented from a New York firm.

Europe In Arms

Nations Of The Continent Could Muster Millions Of Soldiers

The veteran Austrian military expert, General Alex. Alexin, estimated by the military attaches in the capitals most of Europe could muster 30,000,000 soldiers for instant service in case of an emergency.

In a statement published in the Vienna weekly Sunday and Monday Newspaper, General Alexin estimated forces subject to immediate call as follows: Russia 12,000,000, Italy 8,500,000, Germany 6,000,000, France 5,000,000, Poland, 3,500,000.

He said his country frankly took up rearmament in 1935 as the "only feasible policy for Austria," and that the nation could now muster 500,000 men if a sudden war developed.

BAD WEATHER DELAYS ITALY'S WAR IN ETHIOPIA

London.—The war is not going well for Italy. Despatches from Ethiopia report that the Italians are bogged down where churning up roads and creating new and unexpected difficulties for the invaders.

From Germany, the Austrian Tyrol and Yugoslavia come stories of the flight of Italian conscripts across the frontier.

The Berlin correspondent of the Evening Standard learns "on unimpeachable authority" that two internment camps sheltering more than 3,000 Italian deserters have been established during the last month in the Silvretan mountains.

Major Sheppard, the Evening Standard's military correspondent, comments: "That the Italians are becoming seriously disheartened about the course of events is shown by the change in tone of expert military comment in Rome. All that the most optimistic of the correspondents venture to forecast is a new and strictly limited offensive in the north before the end of the campaign season.

"Meanwhile," asserts Major Sheppard, "there are indications that all is not well with the Italian morale either in the theatre of war or among the non-combatants.

"Thus, if true, is a matter of the utmost seriousness."

Hain comes, he concludes, are not the only ones gathering in Ethiopia.

Democratic Convention

Washington After a spirited and almost unprecedented "poker game", with table stakes so high as to all but wipe out the party's deficit, the Democratic national committee pocketed Philadelphia for its 1936 national convention.

The Pennsylvania city, never before the scene of a Democratic convention, won over San Francisco, Washington and Chicago after a series of preliminaries and finally waved a certified cheque for $200,000. Then, to most highly delighted Philadelphia newcomers, entrusted to run the total to between $250,000 and $300,000, were offered

Party Chairman James R. Farley announced the national conclave, intended to renominate President Roosevelt, would open the 1936 Republican party will meet in Cleveland beginning June 9.

Mr. Farley started, Farley, in opening the national committee's meeting, predicted a "campaign of defamation" inspired by the "largest slush fund on record."

Area Recaptured

Ethiopians Claim To Have Recovered Area Taken by Italians

Addis Ababa. Ethiopia officially claimed recapture of all territory in the Tembien sector west of Makale on the northern front. The announcement, issued by the Ethiopian counter-offensive, directed by War Minister Ras Mulugheta, was a step nearer its avowed goal of driving the Italian invaders back into their own colony

At the same time the extreme southeastern front reported one of Ras Desta Demtu's three columns operating near Dolo had won a victory over natives in General Rodolfo Graziani's army

The "elite rains", which have rendered the enemy's tanks and trucks useless, contributed materially to both Ethiopian successes, officials declared

Level Crossings

Large Sum Is Set Aside To Eliminate Danger Spots Across Canada

Ottawa Waging war on railway level crossings which have been taking an increasing annual toll of human lives, a total of $1,400,000 appropriation bill was committed in 1933 for remedial works across Canada. It was estimated. The sum represents a total amount of about $500,000 over 1934 commitments.

Twenty-five per cent of the $1,400,000 has been actually expended. The balance will be spent in 1936 as work on the authorized projects is carried out.

Of the estimated $1,400,000 probably $1,100,000 has been earmarked out of Dominion treasury funds. The Canadian Pacific Railway, Canadian National Railways and the municipalities have undertaken to put up the difference.

Showing amounts of Dominion Commitments, ranging from '40 (a 100 per cent.) for total cost in different instances. Major works in the west authorized by the governor-in-council in the last five months alone included:

Near Bratsguard, Sask., on C.P.R., $24,750.

Cepoe, Sask., on C.N.R., $21,000.

Near Kinley, Sask., on C.N.R., $15,400.

West of Maunsell, Alta., on Crow's Nest subdivision of C.P.R., $14,000.

Treaty With Poland

Trade Agreement Is Expected To Be Ratified Soon

Ottawa. The first step of the Mackenzie King government to widen trade channels is expected to be taken when a trade agreement with Poland which was signed in Ottawa last summer but never ratified by the last parliament, comes before parliament for approval.

Signed in Ottawa July 3 last by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett and Hon. R. J. Manion, then Canadian prime minister and minister of trade and commerce, the treaty already has passed through all legislative stages in Poland. It was signed on behalf of Poland by Dr. Jerzy Adamkiewicz, Polish consul-general.

The agreement accords mutual most-favored-nation treatment and special tariffs on a list of commodities of Polish interest, as well as guarantees that the quotas and embargoes against agriculture and other products of Canada will be withdrawn.

Presentation To "Punch" Dichlm At Edmonton Banquet

Edmonton — Tangible recognition of his pioneering work in the development of northern aviation was made to C. H. "Punch" Dichins, newly appointed superintendent of northern aviation for Canadian Airways, Limited, at a banquet here by President J. W. Glenwright, of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce

Mr Glenwright, on behalf of the chamber members, presented a travelling case to the noted aviator who is leaving to reside in Winnipeg. Mr. Dichins flyers here superior to any in the world and that's not taking in too much territory either," said Mr Glenwright in making the presentation

The Press Spirit

Toronto. Lieut.-Col George A Drew, former Ontario securities commissioner addressing the Electric Club, said he "would like to see a rebirth of the British spirit that was alive in this country in 1914, not for war, but for peace". Mass demonstrations of faith on the part of Canada's young manhood, to be held yearly, were suggested by the speaker.

To Probe Mine Disaster

Alberta Government Will Conduct Inquiry Into Coalhurst Accident

Edmonton.—A judicial inquiry into the Coalhurst mining disaster will be held by Mr. Justice Lunney of the appellate division of Alberta Supreme Court. This decision was reached at a meeting of the executive council and announced by Premier Aberhart.

It is the intention of the government to have the inquiry get under way as soon as arrangements can be made by Mr. Justice Lunney. The government will be represented at the inquiry, the premier stated, by on of the solicitors of the attorney-general's department.

BRITISH AND FRENCH FLEETS TO GIBRALTAR AREA

London Great Britain and France moved to increase their naval strengths in and near the Mediterranean sea.

Measures arranged by the naval staffs of the two countries will result in a powerful concentration of fighting ships in that area when the League of Nations council meets again on Jan. 20. At that meeting a proposed oil embargo against Italy will be one of the matters under consideration.

The battleships Nelson and Rodney, the aircraft carrier Furious and the cruiser Cairo, along with the 21st destroyer flotilla, will leave home ports for a "spring cruise" starting about the middle of January. It will not take them into the Mediterranean but they will cruise in the Atlantic not far from Gibraltar.

Meanwhile the French first and second squadrons, with a total of the world's largest battleships, submarines, will be engaged in manoeuvres in the western Mediterranean. Some of the Atlantic fleet will be at or near Casablanca, 200 miles southwest of Gibraltar

Four British warships are now at Gibraltar. will be returned to the United Kingdom, the admiralty announced. They are the battle cruiser Hood, the battleship Hamilties, and the cruisers Orion and Neptune.

These manoeuvres revived speculation in London diplomatic quarters that oil sanctions might be imposed and that the powers were preparing for eventualities in case of an act of aggression on the part of Premier Mussolini. France and Great Britain already have vocal opposition to any plans for mutual aid if such an event arises out of sanctions applications.

In official British quarters it was declared that the manoeuvres by the two fleets were not jointly prearranged and that the movements had been made in the interests of "normal training."

Following grew in diplomatic circles that some of the small nations headed perhaps by Sweden, will go to Geneva demanding that the meeting be invoked. Sweden is aroused over the bombing of a Swedish Red Cross unit in Ethiopia by Italian planes.

Motor Regulations

Drivers' License Fee Of One Dollar Per Year In Alberta

Edmonton Premier Aberhart announces that 1936 motor licenses would be good for 15 months, but a drivers' license fee of $1 per year would be required At present drivers' licenses cost 50 cents and issued in perpetuity At the same time, the premier announced that a tax would be imposed on all grades of fuel oil, but that does not affect the lubricating oil used by motor cars.

Long urged by the Alberta Motor Association, Premier Aberhart announced that the motor license year would be changed to conform with the fiscal year ending March 31 Legislation for these changes will be introduced at the coming session of the legislature the premier said

Italian Deserters

Report That Nearly 2,000 Soldiers Cross Austrian Border

Vienna Reports that nearly 2,000 deserters from the Italian army had fled across the border into Austria circulated here, but there was no immediate verification of the rumors nor of reports that the Italian government was taking repressive measures

The newspaper Sonntrudler Heimat announced 1,650 South Tyroleans had deserted the Italian army, with most of them making their way to Germany

The publication is circulated secretly in Austria reaching here from Switzerland where it is printed

Reports from Munich place the number of deserters reaching Bavaria at 2'000

Short Of Objective

Plans For Canadian Women's Memorial Building Have Been Abandoned

Ottawa Due to existing economic circumstances the erection of the Canadian women's memorial building in Ottawa has been abandoned, it was announced by Alastair Macdonald, solicitor for the Canadian Women's Memorial Building Fund. The money contributed for that purpose will be distributed according to the direction of the courts, he said

The purpose of collection of funds throughout Canada when the federation was formed in November, 1928, was to erect a building to commemorate suitably the services rendered by Canadian women to humanity from pioneer days to the present time.

Mr Macdonald said approximately $25,000 had been contributed towards the building fund $10'000 short of the objective

U. S. PRESIDENT REFERS TO BASIC CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Washington President Roosevelt, clearly aiming across party lines formally opened the Democratic presidential campaign with an assertion that "the basic issue will be the relation of popular government to the United States electorate in November

Referring briefly to the clashing philosophy in the supreme court's opinions on the overthrow of the agricultural adjustment administration as likely to reverberate for years, and touching on the aims of his administration in general, the president declared:

We will not retreat "

He spoke directly to a Jackson Day gathering of nearly 2'000 Democratic leaders and achievers who paid $50 a plate for their dinners, and his words were broadcast to hundreds of other Democratic dinners throughout the country He urged all to get at the fundamentals in the smoke of charges and counter-charges of a national campaign"

Twice the president employed but sought to speak to citizens regardless of "political affiliations," and once urged the "essential" of non-partisanship among all those regardless of party, who believe in retaining progress and ideals "

Referring "to the supreme court's A A A decision the president declined to say what would be done if the court's newest that portion of the A A A was unconstitutional

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

A very enjoyable dance was held on Friday, Jan. 10. We had the pleasure of entertaining some 100 students as well as the staff of the V. S. A. The Orioles orchestra was in attendance. Heartiest thanks go to those who sent such generous provisions for lunch from their homes. At the close a vote of thanks was given by the V. S. A. president, which was responded to by our president Gwen Robinson.

The boys basketball team received a defeat from the College team on Tuesday, Jan. 7, final score being 5-3.

The girls basketball team played a good game against the College on Tuesday, Jan. 14, but ended up on the short end of a 16-11 score.

The boys hockey team was defeated by the public school 5-4 on Tuesday, Jan. 7. Bill Dwyer and George McCurdy shooting two goals apiece. The boys received another defeat this Tuesday, Jan. 14 with a final score 3-1 Percy Cooper kept goal for both games. The high school scored two goals, but because of the lack of a goal judge the other goal was not counted.

SCHOOL BOARD ESTIMATES $22,600.00 FOR 1936

Grants and Tuition Fees Will Reduce Amount by $4,400

If the requisition for estimated costs of running the Vermilion Centre it is struck by the board at a meeting last night, are accepted by the town council, it will be necessary to strike a mill rate which will raise the sum of $18,200, this amount is several hundred dollars below that requisitioned for in 1935, which was $19,000.

The salaries of all teachers, both high and public, remain at the same now level as that of the past two years. An appropriation of $200 is provided for repairs and decorating of the high school and a sum of $200 for grounds. Last year saw the completion of a two year programme of complete interior decoration of the said school building. Current year expenditures will complete the heavy outlay in these connections.

Death Stalks The Highway

A recent announcement of the intention of the Federal department of transportation to conduct a campaign to reduce the annual toll of life and limb taken by automobiles and trucks on the highways and roads of Canada should be welcome news to all who use motor-driven power for business or pleasure. The campaign comes none too soon.

Statistics, just published, reveal that in the United States last year over 36,000 lives were lost by accidents in which automobiles and their drivers were the agents of death, in addition to an appalling number who were injured in greater or lesser degree. This means that, roughly, one out of every 3,500 persons in the U.S.A. perished by the automobile in 1928.

No doubt when the figures are published it will be found that the accident death rate in Canada for 1933 was comparable to the American loss after allowing for the difference in population of the two countries and the lesser volume of traffic. In 1931 the Canadian figures showed 1,387 fatalities, 1,100 fatalities, 1,100 deaths and 17,000 injured some slightly

Half a dozen lives been snuffed out and hundreds of thousands injured in a single avoidable catastrophe in the United States last year, the nation would have gasped with horror. There would have been demands for investigation and the imposition of safeguards to prevent the possibility of the recurrence of such an appalling slaughter. But because these deaths and injuries represent death as many individual accidents distributed through out the year and scattered over a wide geographical area it has become easy to dismiss them with a shrug of the shoulder and a comment about some fool driver except by the bereaved relatives and friends.

However there are indications that citizens of the United States are becoming aroused at a condition of affairs which has become a national menace. This growing concern is largely due to efforts of government agencies, corporations, police officials and newspapers to acquaint the public with the facts and to drive home the risks which foolhardy and negligent motorists incur by their conduct on the roads.

Already, it is reported, these efforts supported by an aroused public, combined sense of individual responsibility in bringing results in several of the country where intensive campaigns have been staged

There is reason to assume that similar results will be achieved in Canada if organizations and individuals will rally to the support of the authorities who have decided that the time has come when an organized effort must be made to minimize the hazards created by recklessness and carelessness.

Recklessness and carelessness on the rural highways are the two factors responsible for the great majority of deaths and injuries on the highways on the continent on either side of the international boundary.

For many of the accidents that occur on country roads and city streets recklessness must be indicted and very often criminal recklessness. In this latter category falls the driver who travels at greater speed than is safe, having regard to the condition of the road, climatic or traffic conditions warrant the driver who passes other traffic near the crest of a hill or on a curve, the driver who cuts in front of another car too soon and the driver who overloads his car.

With respect to the last-mentioned hazard it is interesting to note that figures just secured from the records of the board of railway commissioners show that in 1931 there were 972 automobile smashes at railroad crossings in Canada resulting in the death of 114 and injuries to 304, an increase of 2% in the number of similar accidents in 1932, an increase of 23% in the number of deaths and 42 in the number of injured.

Carelessness too must be marked up as the contributing factor for a large number of these accidents. It may be carelessness while the wheel is in the hands of the driver who travels at too high a speed for the road, or carelessness in parking on a hill and in the dark with lights out. It may be negligence in failing to regularly and carefully inspect the brakes the tires and the lighting system or in remedying defects when discovered.

And last but not least there is alcohol. Tests by medical authorities and scientists have demonstrated conclusively that the man carrying only a single drink is not as alert as he is normally without it and the man with several drinks inside him is a positive menace to himself his passengers and those whom he meets or passes

Alcohol according to authorities plays a major part in the appalling list of accidents on this continent. That is recognized in the posters which are being prepared for distribution as part of the federal government's campaign to ensure greater safety to the users of Canadian highways, one of which reads "If you must drink don't drive. If you must drive don't drink."

A Young Man's Country

Sherwood Can Be Achieved in North Alaska, Colonel Cornwall

"The north is coming into its own at last," declared Col. James K. Cornwall, who was in Edmonton recently

"Peace River Jim" looked into the future and prophesied: "It's a young man's country, a big empire, and assuredly will prove the salvation of Alberta.

In eastern Canada, where the impetus for northern development has its principal momentum, they are alive to our mineral prospects. While the mineral country is mostly north and east of Alberta, transportation facilities and water routes give Edmonton a strategic advantage over other cities.

"Edmonton is in the same position as regards northern mineral development as Toronto was 25 or 30 years ago, and in my judgment, can expect a like measure of that city," he asserted.

"This northland of ours is a young man's proposition," he proceeded "It includes perhaps the greatest extent of virgin mineral country in the world. It's north will be developed. It will find success and its future there.

"Forget you have no job Perfect yourself in some particular specialty and mentality, and then go north There will you find your place."

French Query Service

Post Office Charges Different Prices For Different Questions

If you happen to be in France and want to make the America was discovered in the fifteenth century or obtain a quick divorce, just dial R.V.P on your telephone

You will be answered by one of the employes of the new "If you please" service just instituted by George Mandel Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. Every working hour of the day or night M Mandel's encyclopaedias will reply. Ordinary questions are answered for the modest sum of 15 cents Twenty to 30 cents are charged for more difficult queries and special terms are made for a rest poser

You can also have an errand run by a shopkeeper who will deliver you drinks, flowers and anything you like to buy address. This will cost you from 40 cents to 2.25 francs in the day and 70 cents at night

It is expected that plenty of business men will make favorable quotations to the new service But the better the joke, the higher the bill

Institution For Beggars

Salvation Temple The Correct Place And Manner To Beg

A "beggars academy" has been discovered by the police of Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, the famous beer city

An empty barn in the nearby village of Kozolupy was found to be the institution which had two adult instructors and twenty-six boy scholars.

The teachers told their pupils how to look miserable and "maimed," and how to behave as "blind" and "deaf and dumb." Practical exercises were held, and crutches, bandages and other beggar's appliances were purchased at pawnshops.

Lessons were also given for writing begging letters, and instructions were given where and how the individual boys had to beg

The booty was handed over to the teachers, who retained one-half and distributed the other half among the boys

Victoria May See Maureen

Captain Walters Considering Proposition To Visit Pacific Coast

Rhoneen, queen of the fishing fleets, may leave her Atlantic home at Lunenburg, N.S., next summer to visit Canada's Pacific coast for the first time.

Captain Angus Walters, skipper of the racing schooner, said he was thinking over a proposition from a Victoria sportsman for a Rhoneen visit to British Columbian waters, but he hasn't made up his mind yet.

If he takes it up, the Pacific coast will be Rhoneen's longest voyage in her 13 years of fishing, racing and harnstorming.

Two years ago Captain Walters took her to the Great Lakes for the summer—her first taste of fresh water and last year he went to England with her. That last voyage was the longest so far.

"Well, may be I'll go," he said. "I've been to Lunenburg, she is my home. On the way home she can ride a blow that almost sent her to the bottom and drove me scared back to England for repairs that took three weeks

But short sea Pacific jaunt. Well, may be," says Angus, "I don't know. They paint a pretty rosy picture, but we'd have to sail six or seven thousand miles to get there Anyhow, we'll see."

Rhoneen is ready for the trip After a thorough refit over on her return to Lunenburg, she is as seaworthy and fast as ever Captain Walters believes.

Pioneer Newspaper Woman

Faith Fenton, Who Wrote Of Yukon Gold Rush, Dies In Toronto

Faith Fenton, pioneer Canadian newspaperwoman whose vivid accounts of the 1898 gold rush in the Yukon thrilled readers a generation ago, died at her home in Toronto after a brief illness with pneumonia. In private life she was Mrs. John N E. Brown, wife of well known Highland clan of Toronto They were married in the little log church at Dawson on the New Year's Day of the 20th century

Dr Brown had gone in with the first civil commissioner of the Yukon and was the first secretary of that territory Faith Fenton was there as a dual capacity At the suggestion of Lady Aberdeen, wife of the governor-general, she joined the field force of the Victorian Order of Nurses, while she had been commissioned to write articles for a Toronto newspaper.

She obtained permission from the government to remain in the Yukon to write One of her most famous newspaper conservancy reporting It was scheduled for eight in the morning but the courier left for the south at seven and Miss Fenton wrote her story and sent it off.

Then it was remembered it was a saint's day, the sailing was postponed and finally called off With the help of police she got a half-breed runner who caught up with the courier several days later.

Terror Of The Air

New Torpedo Can Travel Four Times Farther Than Fastest Shell

An aerial torpedo, or flying projectile, which can travel four times the distance of the fastest shell ever known, is one of two inventions which may revolutionize warfare.

It is the invention of a young man who, working unobtrusively in a laboratory at Queen Mary's college, London, England, is fast becoming recognized as the Marconi of the aeronautical world.

He is Pherone P. Nazir, aeronautical research student for the Government of India, who although only his twenties, has already several astonishing inventions to his credit.

His researches make him a figure of extraordinary interest to the representatives of other governments, many of which would be glad to secure the use of the technical secrets which lie locked up in his brain

The German Big Bertha could send a shell only fifty miles.

Mr Nazir claims that his flying projectile, travelling on its own travel, without a pilot, could travel up to 200 miles at a speed of 300 miles an hour, and could be made to drop at any predetermined distance according to the amount of fuel placed inside

The weapon would enable an air attack to be staged without warning.

Another far-reaching invention is a system of secret guns concealed in the tail of an aeroplane

The guns are so arranged that immediately another plane passes behind within firing distance it is shot down before it has time to shoot.

A plane of this description, with Mr. Nazir, could attack a whole squadron and produce chaos among them.

Study Cosmic Ray

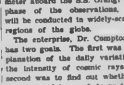
Scientific Effort To Be Made To Penetrate Mystery

Dr. Arthur Holly Compton, University of Chicago physicist, and Nobel prize winner, announced the inauguration of world-wide scientific effort to penetrate the mystery of the cosmic ray.

He said he would leave for Vancouver, B.C., to install a cosmic ray meter aboard the S.S. Orangi as one phase of the observations, which will be conducted in widely-scattered regions of the globe.

The enterprise, Dr. Compton said, has two goals. The first was an exploration of the daily variations in the intensity of cosmic rays. The second was to find out whether the rays, powerful penetrating through 292 feet of lead, had greater intensity in the northern than in the southern hemisphere.

DO YOU NEED A BUILDER?



WHEN you're miserable and perhaps in need of a new home, wife, weight below normal, and you feel tired-out and weak, follow the advice of Mrs. Francis Alcott, 142 Sackville St., Toronto. "I was in bed for three weeks. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was recommended to me. It helped me so much that I continued to use it, and now I am strong and well. I recommend it to all my friends. It is a wonderful tonic for the nerves." Get it in tablets or liquid, 50c. and $1.00 at druggists, or send 10c. to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N.Y., for trial package of tablets. Large size, liquid, $1.35.

Had Good Excuse

"Annie Mae," said the mistress of the house, "I really must speak to you seriously. "I notice you have been taking our empty grapefruit hulls home with you. What do you do with them "

The negro maid looked up at her mistress with a sheepish grin "Yes'm," she admitted, "I se been carryin' em home I se thinks they make my garbage look so stylish "

How To Become Efficient

To win fame and fortune in your business, says Prof Howard W Hingard, of Yale University, eat the right kind of food at any of two or three. He explained teats showed it

Patient the first three years after eating

ARE YOU NERVOUS, IRRITABLE, TIRED?

Do your friends secretly pity you, because you so-obviously haven't the energy to do the things they do? Are you nervous, irritable, a victim of sleeplessness?

Then the sooner you take PHOSFERINE the better PHOSFERINE, the great British tonic, is concentrated energy. You take only a few tiny, economical drops each day . . . but the effect is astonishing.

Almost from the first dose life looks brighter You gain new energy You sleep soundly You wake thoroughly refreshed. Indigestion, loss of appetite, pains and stiffness, and other worrisome ills . . . and nerve gone.

Start taking PHOSFERINE now. Remember, this same sufferer from general debility, rheumatic aches and pains, poor appetite and lack of pep and go can count the day they first took PHOSFERINE as the best day in their lives.

PHOSFERINE is splendidly effective at all ages for combatting fatigue, sleeplessness, general debility, retarded convalescence, nerves, anaemia, constipation, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, neuritis and loss of appetite. Get PHOSFERINE from your druggist now—in liquid or tablet form—at the following reduced prices: 3 days, 50c., $1.00, $1.50. The $1.00 size is nearly four times the 50c size, and the $1.50 size is more than $1.00 size.

BOARD CONCLUDES INVESTIGATION OF AUTO TARIFFS

Ottawa.—A complete picture of the Canadian automobile industry, its claims for protection and arguments against protection is now before the tariff board as a result of the automobile hearing, which ended Jan. 16.

In final submissions to the board representatives of the western provinces contended the tariff on automobiles should be reduced or removed and argued manufacturers had advanced no arguments to justify protection.

The last word at the hearing was from Wallace R. Campbell, president of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, who said the automobile industry needed protection to the same extent as other secondary industries in Canada and submitted that it was too late for Canada to turn back on industrialization after large manufacturing industries had been established here.

"Canada could have a healthy automobile industry without any duty protection. Dr. W. A. Carruthers, economic advisor to the British Columbia government, told the tariff board.

The automobile industry, Dr. Carruthers said, had never tried to get along without protection. It had developed out of the old carriage industry which enjoyed protection of 35 per cent. It naturally took full advantage of all the protection it received down through the years. With the automobile well established, staffed with clever executives, and enjoying the natural advantage of being on the spot, it believed it could go without protection. It would mean adjustments and some people would lose jobs and have to find new ones, but would help the country in the long run.

Canada's tariff structure placed British Columbia at a serious trading position, he said That province had to pay heavily for its automobiles made in Canada and received corresponding benefit from the industry

British Columbia did not wish to destroy the industries of the rest of Canada, but it wished the question of tariff protection to be viewed in a broad Canadian spirit. It thought that inasmuch as tariffs bore heavily on the outlying provinces they should be reduced and kept at the lowest possible level, and not at the level of absolute safety frequently urged by manufacturers in the east.

Wishart Robertson, representing Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, said that the time provinces desired merely a reduction in the price of automobiles.

The whole tenor of the automobile companies' submissions, with few exceptions said Mr. Robertson, ignored the real object of the inquiry, lower prices for consumers in Canada They made a plea for continued protection and continued higher prices.

Prices of cars in Canada were 30 to 50 per cent. higher than in the United States, Mr. Robertson said. Prices of parts showed an even greater spread and prices of used cars ranged as much as 100 per cent higher than in the United States

By regulating, drawbacks and sub-tariff valuations the real protection afforded Canadian automobile manufacturers was much greater than the customs tariff of 20 per cent he continued This enabled Canadian manufacturers to sell cars at prices higher than the duty-paid price of imported United States cars

I suggest methods of raising the tariff and increasing protection without letting the public know about it is unsound," said Mr Robertson "Our industry is built on an unsound basis when it is built on that basis"

Farmers' Let In Improved

Position Of Canadian Agriculture Better Than A Year Ago

Ottawa.—All factors considered, the position of Canadian agriculture is better now than a year ago and there is reason to hope one year from now the position will be further improved, according to the annual survey and outlook made public by the department of agriculture.

This annual survey serves to a considerable extent as a guide to farmers in their spring planting.

After a comprehensive review of the wheat situation the review said: "While the wheat situation in so far as Canada is concerned is involved at the moment, yet this country must and will continue to produce wheat on a substantial scale.

It should be noted, however, that in view of the greatly reduced world import demand the wheat produced by a normal yield on an acreage such as that sown in 1933 would be difficult of disposal.

"The quality of Canadian wheat has long been enjoyed an enviable reputation on the world's markets and this must be maintained. In certain sections of the west, but chiefly in the so-called 'park belt,' the quality is liable to be below the average and it is suggested it would seem desirable to adopt a system of farming that would involve a diversion of a portion of the wheat land to other crops. Fortunately, these sections are better adapted to coarse grains and there are many districts other areas that are restricted largely to wheat."

Bank Employees Shot

Two Members Of Bank Of Commerce Staff In Vancouver Shot In Holdup

Vancouver. Police arrested three known underworld characters and held them for investigation in the holdup of the Powell street branch of the Bank of Commerce in which two bank employees were shot, one probably fatally, by three men who escaped with $1,200.

Meanwhile chief of police W. W. Foster announced the Canadian Bankers' Association had offered $5,000 for information leading to the arrest of the gunmen involved in the holdup which may cost young William H. Hobbs, former Radiaset, Sask., bank clerk, his life and send Thomas Kelly, bank manager, to hospital with a bullet wound in his left arm.

Warnings also came from Saskatchewan where he was manager of several branches until transferred to the city staff.

Despite the three arrests officers continued to scour the city

Two bandits were robbed to hospital where it was found the bullet had pierced Hobbs' throat striking his spine and paralyzing his right arm permanently. An operation was performed and he was put under an oxygen tent.

Kelly, 26 years old, was formerly with the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Radisson, Sask. He came to Vancouver in 1933 and his parents were reported to be living in Edmonton

Civil Servants In Manitoba Drawing Pay From Federal Government, Are Liable

Ottawa The supreme court of Canada decided that Canadian soldiers and Dominion civil servants drawing pay from the federal government and living in Manitoba were liable for payment of the two per cent income tax imposed by the Manitoba legislature in 1932

The decision will affect more than 2,500 employees of the Dominion government and members of the permanent militia force.

Storage Of Gas

First Attempt In Canada To Store Gas Underground

Calgary. — Successful storage of gas in a depleted field—the first known attempt in Canada to store gas underground—has been accomplished according to an announcement by P. D. Mellon, general superintendent and chief engineer of the Canadian Western Natural Gas, Light, Heat and Power Company.

The company has impounded the Bow Island gas field, Mr. Mellon said, and 8,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas had been stored in the field up to Dec. 31 1933. Of 27 wells in the field, 18 were sealed and the nine others were reconditioned and made available for receiving and repressuring purposes.

Experiments were first carried out in the field, the engineer stated, and when these proved successful in raising the pressure by injecting 87,000,000 feet of gas into eight wells, raising the rock pressure 30 pounds per square inch, the Dominion government co-operated by passing an order-in-council withdrawing the rights to file or drill on approximately 20 square miles of territory.

OIL SANCTIONS PROPOSALS HELD IN ABEYANCE

London In a London thick with gloomy fog the cabinet met to discuss the Italo-Abyssinian crisis and posed oil sanctions against Italy. It was the first full cabinet meeting Anthony Eden has attended as foreign secretary.

Eden will attend the league council meeting at Geneva, it is expected, with a "waiting policy." The foreign secretary, it is predicted, will not propose that the league apply sanctions, and after the usual Geneva conversations state the British position and then postpone decisions pending indications, will be largely dependent on the situation as revealed at Geneva.

Factors entering into a move modified British attitude are Reports that the league sanctions now in force against Italy are working better than anyone anticipated, thus rendering further action less urgent Double further oil sanctions are expedient at present in view of the existing Italian stocks, the opening of the Suez Canal next January to Ethiopia and uncertainty about the attitude of oil-producing nations outside the league.

On the other hand, the wrees of Geneva which swept over Great Britain, Europe and the United States during the past week have rushed to hospital where it was found the bullet had pierced Hobbs' throat striking his spine and paralyzing his right arm permanently. An operation was performed and he was put under an oxygen tent.

Must Pay Tax

Civil Servants In Manitoba Drawing Pay From Federal Government, Are Liable

Ottawa The supreme court of Canada decided that Canadian soldiers and Dominion civil servants drawing pay from the federal government and living in Manitoba were liable for payment of the two per cent income tax imposed by the Manitoba legislature in 1932

The decision will affect more than 2,500 employees of the Dominion government and members of the permanent militia force.

Storage Of Gas

First Attempt In Canada To Store Gas Underground

Calgary. — Successful storage of gas in a depleted field—the first known attempt in Canada to store gas underground—has been accomplished according to an announcement by P. D. Mellon, general superintendent and chief engineer of the Canadian Western Natural Gas, Light, Heat and Power Company.

The company has impounded the Bow Island gas field, Mr. Mellon said, and 8,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas had been stored ill the field up to Dec. 31 1933. Of 27 wells in the field, 18 were sealed and the nine others were reconditioned and made available for receiving and repressuring purposes.

Experiments were first carried out in the field, the engineer stated, and when these proved successful in raising the pressure by injecting 87,000,000 feet of gas into eight wells, raising the rock pressure 30 pounds per square inch, the Dominion government co-operated by passing an order-in-council withdrawing the rights to file or drill on approximately 20 square miles of territory.

Army Budget Doubled

Soviet Will Spend Large Sum To Strengthen Forces

Moscow After repeated charges aggressive neighbors are threatening the Soviet Union with war both in the east and west, the government announced its military budget for 1936 will be more than double that of last year

During 1935 the standing army was brought to approximately 1 300 000 men.

Russia this year will spend 14 billion,000 rubles (12,960,000,000 under the new official exchange rate) on armed forces, Gregory Grinko commissar of finance, announced to the all-Union central executive committee The committee unanimously approved the proposal

Last year's budget was 6,500,000 rubles, but the expenditures actually reached more than 8,500 000,000 rubles.

Grinko also announced 24,700,000,000 rubles will be used this year for construction work, a large part of which will go for the reconstruction of Moscow and Leningrad

Heckler Asks Question

Bridgwill Scotland Canadian-born Entered The Question Regarding Canadian Oats

Bridgwill Scotland Canadian-born entered the political arena for the battle in the constituency of Ross and Cromarty

Winston Churchill, as dominions secretary, have already stopped excessive importation of Canadian oats

Mr. Bridgwill was speaking at a Labor Plan last month was a warning which no government, however strong, could afford to ignore.

As a shareholder in the Argentinean Oil Company which controlled extensive properties, with few exceptions said Mr. Robertson, ignored the real object of the inquiry, lower prices for consumers in Canada They made a plea for continued protection and continued higher prices.

Prices of cars in Canada were 30 to 50 per cent. higher than in the United States, Mr. Robertson said. Prices of parts showed an even greater spread and prices of used cars ranged as much as 100 per cent higher than in the United States

By regulating, drawbacks and sub-tariff valuations the real protection afforded Canadian automobile manufacturers was much greater than the customs tariff of 20 per cent he continued This enabled Canadian manufacturers to sell cars at prices higher than the duty-paid price of imported United States cars

I suggest methods of raising the tariff and increasing protection without letting the public know about it is unsound," said Mr Robertson "Our industry is built on an unsound basis when it is built on that basis"

Visits Mining Area

Lord Tweedsmuir Interested In Technical Process Of Mineral Extraction

Kirkland Lake, Ont.—After visiting the Noranda mine, interesting himself in the technical processes of mineral extraction, the governor-general came to Kirkland Lake during his first visit to northern Ontario.

Much of what Lord Tweedsmuir saw at Noranda was new to him, but some was not. As he was guided through the extensive workings by President J. T. Murdoch and General Manager H L. Rounce of the mine, His Excellency was informed on particular machines was something of an innovator in gold mining

Lord Tweedsmuir delivered. He had been the operation once in the Rand, 30 years ago, and to his interest he gave the place, the date and the name of the man in South Africa who had worked the machine.

May Protect Indians

Old Treaty Covering Hunting Privileges Is Outlined

Wallaceburg Ont A clause of what is believed to be the last treaty effected by Governor Simcoe was read and stating that Indians may hunt within 16 feet of the banks of any creek in Canada was produced in court here by R. H. Clarke, Indian lawyer defending two Indians on an illegal hunting charge The would that Magistrate F B Arnott reserved judgment in the case for a month while he investigates the authority of the Jay treaty in relation to present day conditions

NAVAL PARLEY IS NOW CLOUDED IN UNCERTAINTY

London Japan walked out of the international naval conference and the future of limitation of naval armaments as established for the last 17 years was hooked in grave tainty

All delegations including the Japanese made clear they wanted to avoid a naval building race Nevertheless in some quarters this was seen as an eventual possibility resulting from the breakdown of the five-power conversations

Japan's move was because the four other powers and with them the British dominions represented at the conference refused to grant her demands for naval parity with Great Britain and the United States

Abandonment of the treaty by the Japanese was quickly followed by a veritable rain of statements and expressions from all sides which suggested to shiver why the meeting broke up

Hints in the United States Fraser and the president intended to continue in an attempt to work out a limitation agreement without Japan

Lingering hopes were expressed in British and American quarters that the Japanese might return to the conference table before the treatment would not harm relations ships between them on other questions

GRANTS THIRTY DAY REPRIEVE TO HAUPTMANN

Trenton, N.J. — Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted Lindbergh baby killer, was saved temporarily from the electric chair by a 30-day reprieve from Governor Hoffman

It came only 29 hours before the hour of execution

"I am granting a reprieve," the governor said. "For divers reasons which I do not care to disclose at this time"

The reprieve though only for 30 days actually assures Hauptmann of at least eight more weeks of life and perhaps three months due to the fact it will be necessary to resentence him

Governor Hoffman acted soon after the United States supreme court in a one-sentence decision by Chief Justice Hughes had denied Hauptmann's appeal for a writ of habeas corpus and a stay of execution

There will be only the one reprieve unless the evidence should warrant another, Governor Hoffman said. If Hauptmann is finally to be saved it must be through the presentation of sufficient new evidence to warrant Justice Trenchard who sat at Flemington granting a request for a stay of trial or final appeal for clemency to the state pardons court

The governor announced his decision in a two-sentence statement after taking with Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, who presumably had sailed upon him to plead for her husband's life Previously he had issued a statement to the governor who spoke extemporaneously He said:

"I am a strong believer in capital punishment and I have been in conference on this matter, and I have decided to announce a reprieve of 30 days

"We have agreed that this will not be challenged

"I am giving this reprieve for divers reasons which I do not care to disclose at this time It is an act entirely within my discretion and there can be no extension of the reprieve unless the evidence should warrant it

"No formal request was made to me to take this action

"There is plenty of precedent for the action I am taking.

DANCE IN AID OF BOYS' BAND, JANUARY 31st.

A dance will be held in the Elks' hall on Friday, Jan. 31st, 1936, in aid of the Vermilion Citizens' Boys band. Admission is—Gents 50c ladies 25c, including supper. Watch for posters for door prizes.

We wish to announce to the citizens of Vermilion and district that on January 31 a dance will be held in the Elks' hall for the sole purposes of raising funds for the Boys band. At the present time there are 25 boy members under the age of 16 years. The instruments being used at the present time are as follows:—2 horns, 2 baritones, 2 tenors, 3 trombones, 2 clarinets, 6 cornets, 2 bases and drums. Four of these instruments are the property of Mr. Hobbis, one of Mr. Kalsen's, 1 of Mr. Norman Gierz, the balance are the town of Vermilion's.

In order to balance up the boys band 2 more clarinets are needed, 2 tenor and 1st clarinet.

The band at the present time is under the leadership of Harold Hobbis, who, after his services gratis, he is also the leader of Harold's Joymakers or hereby who will supply the music on the night of the dance at a cost of 25c on glasses of this will be donated to the fund and 25c will go to equip the original reference expenses.

The required stands are being made up by the boys of the band out of lumber but funds are needed to provide the material. During the dance a number or two will be played by the boys band. Much work and energy has been put into this band organization without cost and the hearty support of all is asked. The boys are ready to learn and very seldom does any member miss a practice.

The Jaymakers themselves are putting in extra time preparing for the big dance on Friday January 31 and guarantee first class music and a good one to all.

LONG LIVE THE KING

(Edmonton Bulletin)

The cable which carried the news of the death of King George V also announced the succession as the Prince of Wales, to be known hereafter as Edward VIII.

Kings die, but the sovereignty is continuous. The title passes automatically to the heir apparent on the death of a holder. The state lives on, and there is no interval during which it has no head. There are formalities to follow, but they are only in reaffirmation of the change of rulers that has already taken place

Hence "The King is dead, Long live the King." The same sentiment that announces the passing of one monarch proclaims the person and authority of his successor. In the same breath we farewell the one and hail the other

NEW SCHOOL PLAN

According to an announcement of the deputy minister of education, the adoption of a revolutionary new school plan in rural Alberta probably may be made compulsory next September and may be adopted wholly or in modified form in the cities at the same time

The plan calls for elimination of examinations up to grade nine; elimination of the grade system, establishment of an "intermediate" school between elementary school and high school and partial revision of school curricula. The tradition of 12 year course has been reorganized into four divisions. Divisions one and two, which include the present grades one to three and four to six, constitute the elementary school. Then comes the intermediate school of three years, then the high school of three years. Grade three will disappear entirely in the first division, be elevated finally in the second and shade off into a system of credits in the intermediate and high schools.

Courses of study have not been decided yet, but since last September conferences who took a special course on the new system during the summer have been practising it in their own classes, and will report their experience at sessions to the department of education at Easter and on these reports will be based details of study.

Local Fans Are Treated To Real Hockey Game

Vegreville Defeats Lloydminster Here 1-0

Playing just as hard and earnestly as it in the finals of the western Canada play-offs, Vegreville defeated Lloydminster 1-0 in a tightly contested game here on Monday night. Both teams had their strongest lineups on the ice and while the checking was too close to allow for much brilliant combination work, the crowd of 275 fans on hand were pleased with the exhibition and are hoping for more of it Consequently it is highly probable that another game between these two outstanding teams will be arranged for the near future. Watch for further information regarding this.

On last night's play, Lloydminster probably had a slight edge, as far as territorial advantage went, this was apparent in the first and the second periods altho the Vegreville sallies in the second were extremely dangerous as they worked in mighty close to Brown before shooting. The work however Vegreville boys applied the body freely, while the devastating poke check of Bob McIvor broke up a multitude of Ranger rushes before they got past centre ice.

The only counter of the game came after 11 minutes of the third period. Morel rounded the Lloyd defence for a clear chance at Brown, the latter rushed him and partially smothered the shot, but Pete Lemieki following up, picked up the loose disc and flipped it into the open net. The counter was scored while Lawrence of the Prairies was serving a penalty for grabbing the puck in mid air during a melee in front of the Lloyd net and hearing it out of the danger zone, a la basketball.

Stan Waldenberg and Mauson Barr lined up with the Vegreville Rangers and stepped with the best of them. Gaud, a former defence man of the R. A. C. team of Edmonton, made his first appearance here in a Ranger outfit, playing centre, he is an energetic and effective player, but lacks smoothness and polish in his play.

The crowd on hand was well pleased with the exhibition staged by the rival teams.

In between the first and second periods Referee Burt Williams called for a minute silence in respect to the late King.

Burt Williams reserved the game efficiently and impartially.

Line-Ups

Lloydminster Profiles—Brown, Nolt Kinney and Dempster, R. McIvor, Sabine, C. McIvor. Substitutes, Spencer Lawrence.

Vegreville Rangers Barney, Onufreychuk, Stan Kinson, Barr, Lemieki, Morel, Kolmatycki, Gaul, Waldenberg and Trace

Seven penalties were meted out, 4 going to Lloyd, and 3 to Vegreville

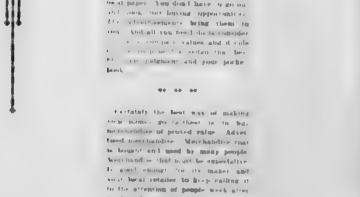
When the Easiest Way Is the Best Way . . .



THERE are no two ways about it. Certainly the easiest way to get to town is to pay dollar per spend is to buy, because that you know where to get the attention wants in your line of paper. You don't have to go all over town buying paper only to find advertisements being there to tell you that you need to remember the name and location and style of the paper you want. Just look in the telephone book and pick out the name of the paper you want and call it.

It's certainly the best way of making your money go the most in the buying of printed paper. Advertised merchandise must be bought and used by many people before it can be appreciated. It is only natural to do business with the merchant who tells you about his goods. Read the advertisements in this paper and you will realize to buy quality it is the attention of people who give work and your after you.

This is the section of merchants and goods that the advertisements offer you. It will pay you to read them regularly and take advantage of everything they can do for you.

Mrs. Adrian Fallow Passed Away Sunday

Word of the death of Willa Kathleen, beloved wife of Norman Adrian Fallow, east a pall of gloom over the town and district on Sunday, Mrs. Fallow was taken ill on Wednesday, and on being removed to hospital later in the week was found to be suffering from a ruptured appendix. Death occurred on Sunday Jan. 19 shortly before the noon hour, from general peritonitis.

The young woman was only 22 years, 7 months and 17 days of age and had been born on the family farm north of town, she had received her education and grown up in the immediate district. Before her marriage just two years and two months ago, she was Miss Willa Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. H. Wilson.

The blow is a particularly hard one to the younger folks of the town, a scene whom both Willa and her husband were well known and popular, and whose very apartment was always open to friends. Besides her husband the deceased leaves a young son just 11 months old, Arthur Adrian, her father and mother Mr. and Mrs. W. E. H Wilson of Vermilion, three sisters Mrs. Garth Roberts and Jessie and Shirley at home and one brother John, also at home.

The sympathy of the Standard, in common with that of hosts of friends is tendered to the sorrowing young husband and the family of the deceased.

The funeral service was held Tuesday afternoon, January 21st at 2 p.m. from the United church and was one of the most largely attended in the memory of the town. Rev. Mr Hoyt preached a kindly and comforting sermon while the choir sang the favorite old hymns, "Abide With Me", "Safe in the Arms of Jesus", and "Lead Kindly Light".

The pall-bearers were Owen Burns, Ed. Curley, Robert Davey, Roy Fraser, Frank Gaudet and Norman Lenz.

Interment took place in the family plot in the Vermilion cemetery. J Werling had charge of arrangements.

Numerous and beautiful floral offerings were received from:

Adrian and Baby, Dad Mother, Margaret, Jean, John and Shirley; Mother, Dad, Brothers and Sisters; Jack Edgar and Staff; Mr and Mrs Hinchey, Edmonton, J. H. Baker, Commissioner Mitchell, W. H. Ferguson and W. C. Brace, Stephens Limited and Staff; Staff and Students of the Y. F. A.; Vermilion Board of Trade; Players and Executive of Civic Hockey Club, Vermilion; Town of Vermilion and Council; Staff of Vermilion Municipal Office, Owen and Jessie and Children, Sidney Millward, Vermilion Curling Club, Carman and Muriel, Mr and Mrs H. Furey, Roy Fraser, Evelyn Maxwell, Lily Elliott, Alberta Pinder, Beryl Hughes, Marie Eyben, Addie Caldwell, Myrtle McDonald, Mr. and Mrs Allen, Mr. and Mrs J Banks, W J. Martin; Killien Family; The Mead Family; Mr. and Mrs. W. P Price; Billy and Bert; Mr and Mrs Amos, Mr. and Mrs A. E. Kalser; Mr. and Mrs W. E. CARD OF THANKS

Mr. Adrian Fallow wishes to thank his many friends for the kindness and sympathy extended during his recent bereavement, and also for the beautiful floral offerings

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson and family wish to thank their friends and neighbors for their sympathy and help extended during their bereavement in the loss of their daughter, and also for the many floral tributes

APPRECIATION

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. H. Wilson wish to express their sincere thanks to Rev. H. Wintere, the matron and staff of the Vermilion Municipal Hospital for their kindness and efficient attention to their daughter Willa.

High School Notes

The first literary meeting for the year 1936 was held on Fri. Jan. 17. The first part of the meeting was taken up with reports from the various members of the executive. No business was discussed.

Following the above a very enjoyable program was presented by Gr. 12's. A debate the program was comprised of a [illegible] Francis Amodio, a reading by Francis Amodio, a reading by Eleanore Dunsmore, a duet by Francis Amodio and Bill Bothwell and a short dialogue by Muriel Bird, Norma Welsh, Dorothy Williams, Kay Gordon and Bill Bothwell. The program lacked male support it was disappointing and well presented

The literary society would like to see more visitors at their meetings. The program of Friday last would in the opinion of many have been more interesting and enjoyable for all who attended.

The boys basketball team played a combination game of tag and basketball against the college staff aided by Mr. Brown and Mr. Urquhart, in the college gym on Tuesday evening. It seems that the students could not keep up to their opponents in tag or basketball as the score was four tears of at 12 (This is a very poor attempt to make this term humorous as was suggested by Miss Tapper if you want to, just put in the plain facts most likely it would be much better. As you know humorists are born not made.)

The boys did not play hockey against the public school as is usually done on Tuesday. Instead Stan Waldon boys began coaching a team for entry in the proposed Juvenile league

THE CIVIC LEAGUE

Last night's Civic league games resulted in two overtime ties, each team managing to score three goals. With the play-offs nearing, the games are being well contested and hard fought

WHY NOT BARGAIN NIGHT?

The attendance at the Elks' hall has been practically nil at the games to date. Why do not the Civic league people try a bargain night at, say, 10c each and see what the result is? For better the patrons at 10c than a dozen at 25c.

Another thing—Russell Carroll was called on to referee two exciting games last night. Besides doing all the work in connection with the game he has also been doing all the announcing. It's high time some men here on the coast did a little refereeing."

CANADIAN LEGION 5—V. B. A. 2

After having a comfortable 2-1 lead the Legion saw it vanish into thin air when the referee removed some two minutes [illegible] Vermilion [illegible] and each team gathered in one point. Legion goal-getters were Ivanovich and Burt and Reardon in front of the V. A. A. [illegible] Kallal Lutzu

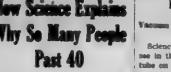
Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things



Many people 'round 40 think they're "growing old." They feel tired a lot of the time. Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this is a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize this excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and at bedtime. Soon you'll feel like going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Made in Canada.

Vacuum Tube Shows Scene As Sharp As Visible Light

Science has given man an eye to see in the dark—a foot-long vacuum tube on which the invisible infra-red and ultra-violet rays that fill the air form a visible, living, moving, continuous image.

The new tube was shown for the first time at a general meeting in St. Louis of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by its discoverers and inventors, Dr. V. K. Zworykin and Dr. George Morton of the Radio Corporation of America laboratories.

The scene revealed by the vacuum tube is greenish-black and white without other colors But it is as sharp and distinct as visible light

Many practical applications appear to be immediately realizable An airplane with such a telescope could guide itself into a secret landing field by an infra-red, or black light beacon so dark as to be invisible to persons near it on the field

Woman Receives $1,000 Legacy For Befriending Stranger

A few minutes' hospitality and a little kindness shown by a Prince Edward Island woman to a stranger 36 years ago has been remembered by a bequest of $1,000 specified in the will of the recipient of the kindness The legacy was bequeathed to Mrs Reuben Cate a native of Summerside, by Miss Grace Fletcher Kelly, 80-year-old eccentric Boston recluse who died in that city recently

In 1900, Miss Kelly was in East Cumberd attending the funeral of her sister, which was being held in a cemetery directly adjoining the lot on which stood Mrs. Cate's home After the service Mrs Cate noticed Miss Kelly standing, overcome with grief, beside the grave. Although she was a stranger, Mrs. Cate went to the graveyard and invited the Boston woman "to come in and rest and have a cup of tea."

Miss Kelly accepted the invitation and said on leaving: "I'll never forget you for this."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JANUARY 26

THE OUTLOOK IS HOPE

Lesson text

The spirit of the Lord is upon me, Because he anointed me to preach good tidings to the poor; He hath sent me to proclaim release to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind,

To set at liberty them that are bruised,

To proclaim the acceptance year of the Lord. Luke 4 16-19.

Lesson Luke 4 16-44.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 61 1-3, 10, 11.

Explanations And Comments

Jesus Declares His Purpose, Luke 4 16-21 Jesus came to Nazareth, where He had been brought up and where he had lived through his early manhood until the age of thirty, and on the Sabbath entered the synagogue as his custom was. From the age of four he had been trained by his parents to attend the synagogue services, and now that he had come back inspired for his great work he continued to frequent the place of worship.

In response to the presiding officer of the synagogue, or of his own accord as was frequently done, Jesus stood up to read the morning lesson. The attendant (verse 20) in whose charge were the rolls, handed him the roll of the prophet Isaiah, and he unrolled it at the sixty-first chapter and read the first two verses, adding thereto the clause from Isaiah 58 6, "to set at liberty them that are bruised." "He purposely inserted these other words in the passage read, in accordance with a common custom. The rabbis said "The reader of the Prophets may skip from one text to another, but he may not skip from one prophet to another, but in the twelve (minor) it is lawful." This passage, in which the prophet declares to the exiles their approaching deliverance, is now read in Jewish synagogues on the Day of Atonement, and may so have been read at the time" (Dummelow).

The Incredulity of the People, Luke 4 23-24. All his hearers were astonished at the words of grace which Jesus spoke but the effect of the words was neutralized by their long-like acquaintance with him, for they said, in a burst of talk as the discourse ended, "Is not this Joseph's Son?" And therefore not the Messiah, no one great, not the prophet, and certainly not the Messiah, they meant Seeing Jesus in the flesh prevented their seeing Jesus in Jesus

A One-Track Mind

Man With Single Purpose Does Not Accomplish Much

We have grown accustomed in these days to hearing "the man with one idea," lauded as a very practical person, the one who has but a single purpose and holds steadily to that, and so accomplishes the more. The truth is that one idea is usually of very little worth unless it is accompanied by two or three others to give it balance and direction, for nearly every manufactory and every business that employs help, the great mass of the employers are those who are fully occupied with doing the one thing they are engaged to do; the day's work for the day's wage is their limit, and beyond that the place holds for them neither interest nor care. But there are the few, the one or two, who are interested in the whole scheme in what becomes of their work after it leaves their hands, how it fits in with the parts that others are doing, how the whole is managed and carried on, and the knowledge they gain makes them able to do their own part better and to be ready for another part when it comes their way. They are the ones content with knowing only a fraction, they are intelligently eager to understand the whole, and it is these few, not the one-idea majority, who rise to positions of trust and power

No Such Thing As Gravity Claims Winnipeg Doctor

There is no such thing as magnetic or electric attraction and no pull of gravity, in the opinion of Dr. H. P. McPhail, Winnipeg physician.

He told the Royal Astronomical Society, Winnipeg Centre, these scientific facts were based on a speed of light of 186,000 miles per second, but, he claimed there was no normal or constant speed of light.

The essential difference between Dr. McPhail's theory and that of orthodox scientists was that he submitted no force except through motion, and no transference of energy except through direct contact.

In other words, the genial doctor said, there was no mysterious attraction or repulsion without an actual transference of motion through a medium of contact.

Thus, claimed Dr McPhail as the learned members sat up in their seats, there was no pull of gravity and no pull of magnetic attraction It was always a propulsive force of a rotating nature, he said.

This push of gravity is always due to indeterminally small rays moving in every direction with tremendous energy, penetrating all matter and acting upon all particles within the [illegible]

"People with little knowledge of astronomy often make curious mistakes which are sometimes hard to refute," Dr. J. S. Plaskett world-renowned scientist of Victoria, said

"No scientist believes that there is no force without contact" Dr. Plaskett said. "The force of gravity is a known fact and the amount can be measured, but why the force of gravity exists, we do not know."

Dr. Plaskett laughingly declined to comment on the suggestion of a fellow scientist that a simple demonstration of Dr. McPhail's theory would be for the Winnipeg medico to step off an aeroplane 5,000 feet in the air and see if he [illegible]

Forecasting Weather Far In Advance Is Often Misleading

The perils of weather forecasting for any long time in advance have been so often demonstrated that one must wonder at its being attempted so frequently Many will recall the prediction that on December 17, 1919, the thermometers in Alberta would go to 100 degrees below zero Winter had come unusually early and there had been an altogether abnormal stretch of severe cold This so affected a large number of Albertans that they were prepared to believe the worst and very real fears were entertained that the date in question would see the prophecy realized But it turned out to be about the mildest day of the winter

Emblem For Province Of Saskatchewan Hard To Find

The black-eyed susan and the tiger lily, the waxwing, the chickadee, the grouse and the wild goose, were all advocated before a meeting of the Regina Natural History Society as emblems and birds emblematic of Saskatchewan But the society left the matter over

Prof. W. H. Taylor, president, pointed out that the society wasn't trying to have the emblem adopted as its own suggestion but aimed to interest other organizations, the Horticultural Society and the Fish and Game Society. A Saskatchewan emblem would then be pressed for before the legislature

Prof H Schmidt representing the Regina Horticultural Society, stated that organization had adopted the prairie rose as its emblem until it was found that Alberta already had the flower

Mr Taylor noting that a newspaper correspondent had urged the grasshopper as a desirable be put in the emblem termed the pest a "clever cultivator of a bad situation"

TRY THESE RECIPES!

BRAN MUFFINS

2 cups bran
2 teaspoons baking powder
1½ cups milk
1 tablespoon Marola
¼ cup Crown Brand Syrup
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
2 well beaten eggs
¼ cup seeded raisins (not necessary)

Heat syrup and Marola until fairly hot and foamy, then add eggs and continue beating until the whipped cream stiff flour with baking powder and salt, sifting three times. Combine bran with syrup and egg mixture, then alternate the flour and milk into the batter. Bake at once in a moderate oven and unmould on cake rack as soon as baked Have pans, oven and flour all ready before beating eggs, otherwise the muffins will lose their lightness

JAM JAMS

4 tablespoons Crown Brand Syrup
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla or lemon extract
2 eggs 1 cup Marola
2 teaspoons soda flour.

Cream Marola and sugar and then add well beaten eggs, syrup and flavoring, mix soda with 1 cup flour and then add enough flour to make a stiff dough that may be rolled very thin. Cut into small shapes and put together with jam between them These make a very dainty dish when served with tea cake

PHOSPHATE REDUCES DAMAGE BY WIRE WORMS

It has been proved in the work carried out in the Prairie provinces by the Entomological Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, that any procedure which gives quicker germination and produces more rapid top growth of young plants will materially reduce the amount of damage by wireworms to wheat or other small grains. When sufficient moisture is present phosphate fertilizer produces these effects in a marked degree. Therefore, its regular use, drilled in with the seed, is strongly recommended for this purpose under the following conditions: (a) in fields where wireworms are known, or suspected, to be troublesome, (b) for the first crop after summerfallow, especially if wheat is used; and (c) in cold land. These are the cases in which moisture is usually sufficient to make the most pronounced and the best effect from the fertilizer used.

OBITUARY

DAVID GANTON

The Funeral of the late David Ganton took place Saturday afternoon from the Presbyterian church. There was a large concourse present to pay their last respects to one who had for a great many years resided in the town and district of Vermilion. The services were conducted by the Rev. A. Walker, who in his discourse referred to the many sterling qualities of the deceased. Also to the devotion to the church of which he had been a member for over 50 years or which he was an elder for upwards of 40 years. The interment was at the Vermilion cemetery. The pall bearers were W. H. Duncan, Harvey Ganton, Lee Wilkinson, Geo. Webb, A. P. Galloway and John White, all old time friends of the deceased. The cortege was covered with many beautiful wreaths. The deceased was born a Colonist in the province of Ontario on 22nd of August 1847 and came to Vermilion at the date of his death January 19, 1936 the attained age 88 years 4 months and 28 days. He was married to Elizabeth Graham on the 29th day of August 1871. Mrs. Ganton predeceased him on the 11th day of June 1932. In August 1931 Mr. and Mrs. Ganton celebrated the diamond anniversary of their wedding. The deceased leaves three sons, James Ganton, Stetler, Robert at Hanna, and James at Lindberg, Alberta, and two daughters, Mrs. Charles McGrath, Telland, Mrs. David Dryedale and Mrs. John Wyley, Islay, Mrs. Thomas Martin, Wyevale Ontario, Mrs George Kitchen, Watson Saskatchewan, Mrs. Hedstrom, Kenora, Lindberg and Mrs. Walter Hinchey, Vermilion, Alta. There are 41 grandchildren and 1 great grandchildren. The deceased resided in Elmvale, Ontario, Canada where with his family, farm, mill and settled in the district now known as Toland where the deceased built and lived his home. He retired from farming in 1917 and removed to Vermilion where he resided until last year he went back in the district of Toland to reside with his daughter, Mrs. McGrath. The passing of the deceased severs another link with the pioneers in the early settlement of the district. Rev. Mr. Hosie who preached in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening paid fitting tribute to the long period of service given by the deceased in the interests of the church.

The family of the deceased desire to express their appreciation of the many expressions of sympathy received them in their bereavement.

JOHN B HARDWICK

The funeral of the late John B. Hardwick, postmaster at Dewberry who passed away very suddenly in the post office on Monday Jan 13th was held in the Dewberry community cemetery on Wednesday, Jan 15th. The late Mr. Hardwick conducted the services.

Deceased had a highly successful career. The surviving family are Little Lou and Fred of the district of Dewberry, Dewberry and Carl of Mr and Mrs. Gardner Mr and Mrs V. Donnell; Mr. and Mrs. Turner Hazeldine

The deceased leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife, daughter Mrs. W. S. Porter, Dewberry, four sisters, Mrs. L. E. English, Edmonton, Mrs. V. E. Smith, Dewberry, Mrs. S. Calvert and Miss K. L. Hardwick of Bruderheim Australia and two brothers, Dr. Hardwick of Edmonton and Fred of Dewberry. There are two grandchildren namely and Phillip Porter of Dewberry.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. J. L. Hardwick and family desire to thank their many friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy extended during their recent bereavement in the loss of husband and father.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES
From the Neighborhood of the South-East

We take pleasure in extending to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Marshall (nee Mar garet Holmes) the most respectful and sincere congratulations of the Neighborhood on their recent nuptials. It was well known amongst their friends that Bert was going to claim one of Harry Young's daughters as his bride, but the identity of the fair one remained a matter of conjecture. Some of Walter's friends, while they are to all know him, have every reason to be proud of the fact that he proved a worthy match for the fair Miss Margaret Young on the 25th at the home of Mrs. Cox.

BUFFALO COULEE

Council meeting was held in Kellam school with Cr. Hetherington, Vicepres., Ratepayers Dew and Currie present and Reeve Pleasey presiding. The reeve reported having interviewed Mrs. Nicholpoint regarding moving to a better house and advised that the old Mayerly house could be procured. Also that he had interviewed the superintendent of Child welfare in the matter. It was then moved by Dew seconded by Currie that the Municipal Hospital and Relief Board be instructed to purchase the Mayerly house for the use of Mrs. Nicholpoint. Carried.

Mr. Currie reported that each councillor to give written order to them on his own division for the account as authorized by the council and that any merchant supplying goods to the recipient without this order does so at his own risk. Secretary was also instructed to send a list of those being given relief to the Manville Hotel and the Dunwoody and Vermilion Co-op in Vermilion.

Correspondence was read regarding [illegible] grain. Carried that the secretary be instructed to write the [illegible] that [illegible] supply seed grain to those [illegible] requirements. Carried that Seed buckwheat only be ordered, to be taken directly off cars without elevator storage if possible. Secretary to secure information re prices and regulations and have same printed with the annual statements.

It was therefore on motion of Dew seconded by Currie that the Municipal doctor agreement in connection with the official statement.

Mr. Chas Jackson attended, to apply for a Mother's Allowance for his mother. Letters were read regarding Geo. Lesage, Central Purchasing agency and housing NW. 20-49-6-5. No action taken.

Letter read from the Vermilion Mirror re printing of financial statement.

Report regarding the animal sold through the Frank Hill pound on Nov. 15th, 1935, that the animal was illegally impounded and had been claimed by its owner and that the purchaser wanted pay for maintenance while in his possession. Dew moved that [illegible] be taken [illegible] and that the price paid by the purchaser be refunded.

Cr. Hetherington advised that a letter again was to go to Edmonton to discuss matters relating to the Battle River bridge. Cr. Hetherington authorized to attend.

A number of accounts were passed and ordered paid. Meeting adjourns

The Man Who Knows

Whether the Remedy You're Using for Headaches, Neuralgia or Rheumatism Pains is SAFE is Your Doctor. Ask Him

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — he is competent with "Aspirin."

We say this because, before the discovery of "Aspirin," most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach, or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical opinion.

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin" year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember that "Aspirin" is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited. Each tablet contains what is in the form of a cross on every tablet.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

Here is an absorbing and exciting story of a fight against stubborn prejudice and a bitter personal campaign — of a girl and a man battling ridicule, sabotage, bullets, and the treachery that would turn them against each other.

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of the Stone Cannly cattlemen, called, together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roper Kilgo, the boss of the Rafter Bar, and nearby ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, had forced Bank Tom Fleming avoided her accusing eyes. Seemingly he had overstepped himself. The blistering sense of humor, brewing, with Roper as his chief antagonist had, perhaps, caused him to be indicted.

"Aw, Link, let's forget it. Come on, what do yuh say?" The other shuffled forward wearing a sheepish smile of friendliness. One hand was thrust out in the pretense of forgiveness, the other held an automatic. Then has lids lowered and his voice sounded cold and controlled.

Helen was a grandstand play, and you know it. There's no friendship between us!"

He leered on his heel and started off. But with a step Helen nursed after and seized his sleeve. "Link, you're not going to start a fight, are you won't," she hinted with color draining from her cheeks. "I'm afraid you will! You have made a fool of Roper in a good friend of Buzz, and he has known Buzz and me longer than anybody here. I mean, well — almost anyone who is a man is willing to forgive and forget. Are you trying to make trouble?"

He hesitated, unwilling to pretend comradeship for one who-se face and words were a mere mask of his true feelings. Then Helen's meaning was clear: she was insistent upon this handshake to restore peace. Perhaps she felt it her duty to bring them together on a new basis. Roper can-sidered himself practically engaged to her. What were her real feelings about that?

A partnership in irrigation could not be started unless there was perfect harmony between them. And Link's pulse sped faster—wasn't that genuine concern in the girl's eyes, concern for his well-being if he had an influential enemy in Kilgo?

He despised himself for doing it, yet felt he must. Sheriff Stephen watched the tableau in silence. Fleming grinned, pressed Roper's briefly, then turned away.

"Shall we start now?" he called in a low tone.

As they rode off Link had an uncomfortable suspicion that somehow Kilgo had bested him in the scene. He cast a sidelong glance at Helen and found her uncommunicative. When they reached Rawhide and were walking their horses down its main street Otto Pieper emerged from his bank. He sighted the girl and beckoned.

"I'm sorry, but I forgot I'd have to stop and talk to Mr. Pieper. You see, I want to find out just what the condition of the Triple 11 is, how much money we have and all that."

He considered offering to wait, but felt instinctively that she might prefer to go on alone—or to have Roper, who rode with several other men a half mile behind, escort her home.

"By the way," Link said, drawing his buckskin near as she dismounted before the bank. "I don't want to press you about this irrigation business, but I'm wondering if you really want to come in with me. Maybe you'd like to think it over real carefully, now Kil—er, folks are so set against it."

She tied her pony, then smiled at him from the sidewalk. "I've decided to go into it. And I never back out of a thing, Link."

His heart leaped. It was true that Triple 11 had adjoining his Star Loop spread would benefit the most, was the local outlet to club with him for the erection of a dam to back up Silver Creek.

"When can we get down to bed rock on this proposition?" he asked. "The thing should be started now so's we'd get an alfalfa crop early next summer. If we wait till spring it'll be too much hoopee and flurry."

She hesitated, then spoke what was on her mind. "Link, I didn't want to make any trouble with Roper—that's why I asked you to shake hands with him. I came with you just to say that I'm sorry you don't like him, but after all, he is a friend of mine."

Link nodded and made no reply. "But I'll tell him not to come to the ranch to-night. You come, Link, and we'll talk over the plans for irrigation. Why not come early, for supper?"

The Box 30 owner, Benson and Sheriff Stephen were dismounting a few yards away. Fleming felt certain that Kilgo had ordered Helen's invitation. He could not restrain a thrill of triumph. "Fine. I'll sure be there!" Turning, he mounted and started at a brisk run for the Star Loop.

Pieper, he knew, would attempt to talk her out of participating in what the conservative banker now regarded as a "wildcat" scheme. Otto's habit was to believe what the majority of local citizens believed; he had discovered long ago that such a policy kept him in the good graces of influential men who might otherwise have ousted him from the bank presidency. Link hoped that Helen would not take her intention to Otto. As for Kilgo, he felt certain now the man could not persuade her out of the partnership.

Smallest Coin in Panama

Medio Worth Two And Half Cents Used By Poor

Down in Panama the smallest coin is known as a "medio", worth about 2½ cents, there being no 1-cent pieces. The coin is used extensively by the poorer classes of the population. The United States supplies the greater portion of this trade, though the British colonies meet the demand for fancy or more expensive types of biscuits Canada supplies by individual bakers, more or less as a sideline. There is a steady and considerable consumption of Canada biscuits largely among the native population.

Hard Year For Trappers

Fur Catch Lower Than Last Season Which Was Poor

That some system of relief for Indians and trappers operating in northern Saskatchewan furlends will be essential unless trapping of beaver is made legal in the spring was the note sounded in reports of hardship brought to civilization with Pilot Angus Campbell of Lac La Ronge Aviation Company

With the fur catch estimated as below the third and one-quarter of last winter, in itself considered a poor year trappers are facing difficulties hitherto unencountered, he said

WESTERN CANADA FAIR CIRCUIT IS ARRANGED

S. C. Hackbert, representing the Alberta B Fairs Association and W. M. Steele, representing the Vermilion Agricultural Society have returned from Winnipeg where they attended the annual meeting of the Western Canada Fairs Association which was held at the Royal Alexandra hotel from January 20th to 24th.

The association arranges all dates, attractions etc. for the class B fairs in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and this year the attractions which have been secured are of an outstand character, coming to the Western Canada circuit from Chicago and Eastern United States. Representatives of attractions companies state that the western circuit is considered one of the most desirable on the continent as fair dates run consecutively, making it possible to maintain a free an able corps of day-to-day engage and for this reason the firms bidding for the supply of the attractions have offered unusual acts

The Vermilion Fair is to be held on July 23rd 24th and 25th this year and has booked up the attractions which will play all other B fairs in the west.

Mr. Geo. H. Bothwell, Dominion Live stock Commissioner was in Winnipeg from Ottawa for the purpose of discussing fair work with the associations members and expressed himself as well satisfied with the work being done by the B fairs, especially insofar as the work affects the young people of the districts served, he pointed out that the Boys' and Girls' camps, so held for the past few years, would again be carried on and urged that the two thousand the agricultural districts be encouraged to send their young people to the short courses so offered by the Administration centres.

The Vermilion Fair board is peculiarly well situated with respect to the work as it runs [illegible] available to the young people by reason of the existence of the splendid facilities at the School of Agriculture which is here [illegible] available to the society by the Provincial government

'SALADA' TEA is delicious

A Crime Invasion

Signs and portents are not lacking that Canada, including the prairie provinces, is to be favored during the coming summer with the presence of a horde of criminals from the United States bent on rapine and slaughter, with the peaceful citizens of this country as their victims.

Indeed a migratory movement of the dregs and sweepings of the underworld of our neighbor to the south has already commenced and their unlawful and ruthless activities are already being recorded on the police blotters in some of the cities across the continent north of the 49th parallel.

Recent newspaper reports have noted during bank holdups, safe-blowings and robberies, accompanied in some cases by particularly cold-blooded and unnecessary murders, unnecessary even for the successful prosecution of the lawful raids on property which are the primary aim of these crime perpetrators.

These undesirable visitors from across the line have made their presence felt in Vancouver Calgary, Regina, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Quebec and Toronto and have staged coups sometimes with the assistance of local craftsmen with whom they have established contact, and in some cases without such aid.

So far this winter these desperadoes have confined their attentions to the cities, principally because, in the western provinces at any rate, climatic conditions make criminal forays on the smaller towns and villages impracticable if not impossible. But with the advent of spring and after snow has disappeared and roads and highways become negotiable with ease it is reasonable to assume that some of them will divert their activities in the direction of the small town and rural districts, the village post office and perhaps even to an occasional farm, unless their nefarious deeds are strictly checked.

The reason for this trek of bandits and thugs armed with guns and sawed-off shot guns dynamite and other explosives, motor cars and pumas is easily explained They are being driven out like rats from the country which until recently has afforded them a fairly safe domicile and where they have been able to carry on their iniquitous trade with comparative immunity.

The Federal government of the United States is tightening up on the robber and gun toter. Substantial additions have been made to police and detective appropriations and forces and a campaign to suppress crimes and especially crimes of violence, is well under way and is being carried out with a grim determination of purpose which has therefore attended previous sporadic and isolated efforts in the land of the stars and stripes.

Many of the desperate criminals in the United States who have so far escaped the lightening meshes of the police nets in their own country are becoming fearful of their safety and are contemplating the erection of fences in their own land and are seeking pastures more green elsewhere For geographical reasons alone they are turning their eyes towards Canada and their footsteps in this country. The advance guard is already here and more may be expected to come when weather conditions facilitate mobile transit.

The United States authorities are taking this action because public opinion in that country has made its vote heard. The people have demanded that steps be taken, if not to rid the country of serious crime, at least to reduce it to reasonable proportions and to give the drive room in its progress. Unless, however, the people of this country are to inherit an unwanted legacy from the States they, too, must make it known to the authorities that they stand four square behind every effort that can be made to repel an undesirable invasion

The people and the federal authorities of the U.S.A. are to be commended for the effective campaign they are belatedly waging to rid themselves of a serious blotch on their social and economic life but the people and authorities of this country must co-operate to see to it that the discarded clothing is not grafted on to their own lives

The people of Canada do not want these visiting "gentlemen" They have no desire to afford them harborage They have no wish to permit them to live and slay innocent citizens. They do not want to allow these police established schools for crime with our own criminals and potentials as pupils For that will be the ultimate outcome if these people are treated with complacency and tolerance. Unfortunately this country has enough lawless without importing more from outside

Mayor G. G. McGeer of Vancouver, who visualizes this menace, declares emphatically that the police forces of this country are not adequately equipped to handle effectively such a dangerous invasion, stating in effect that it is hopeless to cope with 20th century criminals with 19th century equipment.

If Mayor McGeer's inference is well founded it is time to be strengthening the defences. The governments of the country and the provincial will be well advised to spend the necessary money to bring police equipment up to date and to modernize their methods of securing information and of tracking down those foes of society

Dangerous criminals, such as have infested Chicago and other American cities are not wanted in Canada. They should be caught as soon as they commence operations in this country. Once caught and the proper evidence produced to convict them, the Bench can be relied upon to deal with them effectively, in accord with the renowned tenets of British justice.

Dictionary Of Colors

Presents History Of Each And Gives Correct Name

A dictionary of colors to have been published by the British Color Council It consists of two volumes one containing 200 silk ribbons each distinctly colored, named and tabulated: and the other presenting a history of each color, including the names which have described it in the past, and giving the authority for the present standardization

While the primary purpose of the dictionary is to supply industry with a standard reference for colors, the work is expected to give valuable aid to artists and writers through an appropriate and accurate vocabulary for the description of shades and tints

Colors have been "scientifically measured and graded making possible the inclusion of new shades should they be developed in the future, into a definite and orderly system.

Imagery history and industry have combined to find names, some of the words having a fascination and delight of their own. Taken at random from the pages are Cyclamen pink, nettle grey, battleship grey, sea-water green, strawberry green buttercup and banana

First, they listed colors which could be matched with definitely existing standards, such as Wedgewood blue or post office red, second, those described by average of a number of samples whether animal, vegetable or mineral, such as squirrel grey or sapphire and finally those whose exact duplication is widely argued, according to individual opinion and feeling for color such as sky blue Bane blue or old rose

The third class was by far the most difficult to standardize, because many shades of the same color name were used hundreds of years ago were applied in time to many shades of lighter and darker hue These original significance entirely

For why blue, for instance, 90 different shades were found to have been in use while there were 60 different samples, and few black there were 60 It was found that there were 14 name variations that ingenuity had to be developed.

Misunderstandings and conflicts over many colors have now largely ceased. Any industrial products may be matched with specific ribbon, and no industry can claim possession of distinct shades

All Criminals Stored Chief-Inspector Ralph Rowe Says

After 36 years' service, the only man at Scotland Yard who knows the history from A to Z of the records of gruesome exhibits in the "Black Museum" is retiring from the London Metropolitan Police. He is Chief-Inspector Ralph Rowe, head of the Criminal Records Office the most crowded of all the Yard's departments by the habitual criminal. In that department are filed the photographs of all habitual criminals, and it is said at the "Yard" that Rowe knows them all by heart. Although by profession a "thief-taker", he is also the man who will be found on the right road after they have served their sentences.

First Annual Sale In Five Years Attracts Buyers

Fur trade going to Edmonton this year promises to equal that of 1928, both in volume and quality, according to dealers.

The first annual sale held for five years concluded with total sales of $100,000 worth of pelts of various kinds. Buyers were present from Milan, Italy; Vancouver, London, Montreal, Seattle, Toronto, New York and Winnipeg.

Auction offerings disposed of was a consignment of $16,000 of weasel pelts. A large shipment of mink was also snapped up by buyers. Prices prevailing at the auction compared favorably with those on the Winnipeg market.

The total value of furs bought in Alberta for shipment last year amounted to $2,000,000 and it is expected that this sum will be equalled this year by the end of the season.

Commendation of the quality of furs was expressed by Ricardo Bergmano and Joseph Milstein, of Milan, Italy, who represent one of the largest wholesale fur houses in southern Europe. The Italians made several large purchases, particularly of wolf pelts.

L. S. McLaine Elected President Of American Association Of Entomologists

At the recent annual meeting of the American Association of Economic Entomologists, held at St. Louis, December 30 to Jan. 3 y. In affiliation with the American Association for the Advancement of Science, L. S. McLaine, chief of the Division of Forage Pests Suppression, Dominion Entomological Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, was elected president for 1929.

Mr. McLaine has been associated with entomological and plant quarantine work in Canada since 1913. The crops protected in Canada by the Plant Inspection Service of Canada is regarded as one of the most valuable assets. The American Association of Economic Entomologists is the largest and most important organization of its kind in the world. The Canadian who was previously elected president of the association was the present Dominion entomologist, Dr. Arthur Gibson, who was elected in 1927.

Royal Bank Of Canada 67th Annual Meeting

Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director, Sees Upward Trend of Business Definitely Established

Sydney G. Dobson, General Manager, Reports $60,000,000 Increase in Deposits For Second Year in Succession

Basis for optimism for the immediate future is to be found in the accomplishments of the past two years, stated Mr. Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director, in the course of his address at the 67th Annual Meeting of the Royal Bank of Canada.

"In every province of Canada", said Mr. Wilson, "the foundations for conditions has reduced unemployment and created increased purchasing power. To the farmers of the west, there is an almost immeasurable difference between a price of 40c and 80c for wheat and there is every prospect that by the end of the crop year, the carryover will be materially reduced. In the cities, the burdens and distress due to unemployment have been reduced by an expansion in all lines of manufacturing. In fact, in recent months the volume of manufacturing has exceeded that in the corresponding months of the previous normal base year 1926.

Marked expansion in the automobile and allied industries, the chemical industry, in the demand for hydrocities and boats, were also noted by Mr. Wilson, who remarked that the sustained activity in the mining industry during the depression and its expansion in 1924-1925 were outstanding elements in Canadian recovery

Mining

"The payrolls of that industry", said Mr. Wilson, "provided generous wages at a time when many of those employed in other industries were out of work. Without the expenditures of the mining industry for machinery and other items, the depression in Canada would have been much more severe. In spite of low prices and the low level of demand for building materials, the 1928 volume of mineral production in 1928 will amounted to more than $300,000,000. The volume of gold production alone attained a new high record of $13,500,000. I am of the opinion that the great period in Canada's mineral production is in the future"

Unemployment

"While unemployment has shown some improvement during the past month, unemployment is still a major problem. Relief organizations are facing a threatening drain upon the resources of many local communities While recognizing fully our social obligations, I fear that these emergencies have not always been made with due regard to the public interest. The promised survey by the Dominion Government is awaited with great interest.

Sanctity of Contracts

Referring to the organization last year by one of the Provinces of important long-term agricultural contracts, Mr. Wilson said: "The alleged grounds that of illegality, but it is noteworthy that during the past year the canons of British justice, the aggrieved investors have been denied access to the courts to press their claims before the ordinary tribunals

"And these are not to be lightly disregarded. The sanctity of contracting contracts that may have become burdensome because of changed conditions strikes at the root of both our social and economic life Stated in its baldest terms, repudiation does not pay. In the past we have made many mistakes but to build up and maintain our credit structure, Canada must not be found to remove the stain, this incident will be a permanent but upon the fair name of our country

Provincial Finances

"The financial position of some of our provincial governments is the subject of frequent discussions during recent months Economic conditions in Western Canada, and abnormally large expenditures for railway building therefrom, have necessitated large advances from the Dominion Government. It was inevitable that pressure on the financial resources of the Federal Government over the finances of these provinces should be brought up, particularly in view of suggestions put forward that the Federal Government, by vending its credit, should assist in a further extension of provincial borrowing

JUSTIFIED FALSE FIRE ALARM SATURDAY P. M.

A false alarm was instrumental in bringing out the fire brigade at 5 p.m. yesterday. At one time smoke and flames were noticed issuing from the chimney on George Mix's residence in the east end. The fire alarm was sounded but the brigade on arriving at the house found that a coal fire in George had merely been made "over hot" on the fire causing the extra large smoke.

Our condolences are extended to Editor Herring of the Vegreville Observer, who suffered a $15,000 fire loss on Sunday morning. Fortunately this was fully covered by insurance. Taking up the grounds on the weekly printing business of city firms, municipalities and the prospect of losing only of the local weekly organs, the beer and wine advertising, a scratch $1500 loss would be the last straw necessary.

ANNUAL MEETING

Tomorrow evening, Friday Jan. 31, will be the date for the annual meeting of the Ratepayers of the town of Vermilion at the Municipal building room and a full attendance of ratepayers is desired as matters of importance will be dealt with. Also the election of public utilities calls for a large and efficiency time should be stressed by our ratepayers and that is the regular meeting hour of the council until the contrary. The time is none when it should be expected to pay regularly all taxes due, the burden imposed by non-payment is one which is unfair and just as a light or steam heat account. The same applies to taxes.

PLAY AT HAZELDINE COMMUNITY HALL FEB. 07H

A play, "Brown and Bones" will be staged at Hazeldine on Friday, February 7th. A dance will follow the play. The committee is putting on a play every year, and arrange for good talent and cast.

Pete Pinto, as Lovesick is a comedy character, and is certainly funny. Also some comedy relief characters that should be of interest to audience.

Have those old patterns in the antique business. You will be interested in John Attempt to carry out his policy of "The Real Thing or Nothing". His interest in the welfare of Bob, his office boy, results in both amusements and touching scenes and Bob turns out to be a real detective.

How one member of the firm nearly brings disgrace on the firm causes a tenseness until the mystery is cleared up and the firm although losing one member still remains "Brown Bones and Brown."

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

We quote with feeling this week from a famous writer who said "Flu is both affirmative and negative." Sometimes the eyes have it and sometimes the nose. Then we affirm too much in the affirmative and every thing has it.

Two meetings are scheduled for this week, but in the general indisposition materialize we look for small attendance. However as one lady remarked "She has seen more of time and human nature than we can ever hope to" so we be thankful it's nothing worse we've got.

The Neighborhood too, felt the sudden call by the death of Mrs. Adrian Fallon. With so many losses and sickness also the suffering of the time personnel, so the young woman also as regards the sincere sympathies of the whole of Neighborhood is to the bereaved husband and families.

Watson school was closed for a short period, the teacher, Mrs. W. E. Smith being absent part of the schedule on her visits.

The usual card parties and dances and dances in various localities will be held in Wilfred this week. Mr. and Mrs. J. Doyle are on Saturday, February 8th 15th.

The next dance of the Woodville club will take place Feb. 21st, and you can plenty of time to get over the ice and learn where the Music came.

The dramatics of the Isle Club are fleeting memories and was a decided pecuniary to putting on the show. Concert. We look for lots of work and good times. ... was handed that a log-outs play has been picked this year, which deserves all that can be put into it.

PATRONAGE TO BE ABOLISHED

Hon. W. A. Fallow Orders Unnecessary Employees Let Out of Service

(Edmonton Bulletin)

Aiming to wipe out suggestions of political patronage, Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, on Monday issued orders that all provincial government employees whose services are not required, whether they obtained posts through Social Credit patronage or not, are to be dismissed.

Speaking on this order, the Minister declared that, "I have told Mr. Rumpey, our buildings superintendent, that we must save money wherever possible and he is now making a survey to weed out unnecessary employees. I will check each recommendation for dismissal and if the employee is not required, his services will be dispensed with."

It was learned unofficially that about a dozen posts in the buildings' superintendent's branch are at present under review and it is believed that some of these may be retained until the coming session is ended and then will be let out.

"I don't care how employees got their jobs, whether it be patronage or otherwise. If they are not needed actually, they must go," declared the minister, who added that none had been dismissed within recent days.

WILDMERE WINKS

Everyone was deeply shocked to hear of the death of King George on Monday last. It can be truly said he was beloved by all.

Wildmere Telland Mutual Telephone to hold its annual meeting at Wildmere school on Sat. Jan 18th. There was a good attendance of the subscribers. Mr. H. Howard was re-elected secretary, J. M. Wilson, asst. treas. and Albert Hoile, Otto Wolters, James Washington, directors for 1936.

Mr. Wilson's assistant hoist meeting was held at Hazewood school on Sat 25th with a rather small attendance of the ratepayers. Mrs Bertha Hoile was re-elected trustee by acclamation.

We are very sorry to hear of little Jim Garnett having scarlet fever. In Knoll was out on Monday and as a precautionary measure for fear of it spreading, quarantined several families for ten days, who had been in contact with the disease. The very best of luck to you Jim for your recovery.

On Sunday Jan. 19th Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gow, Mr. and Mrs. R. Price, Mr. and Mrs. Wallington, Eds. Marlin, Ottie Sharpe and Fred Gullison were visitors at the Gibson home in Basement Corners. To Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Clark of Triangle on the birth of a son at the Vermilion Hospital on Jan. 20th. The new lady has the honor of being one day under King George's reign which is something to be proud of.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Steele and baby Ed Mullins and Jack Healy were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brandt, Triangle on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo Tebbon of Dauphin were the only ones the writer has heard of so far, who got up to hear the radio broadcast at the proclamation of King Edward VIII last Wednesday morning. They reported it to be well worth hearing. The writer had good intentions, but forgetting to bed till one a.m. was too sleepy to rise again at three.

One thing the writer is very proud to say is that she took a snapshot of King Edward VIII when he visited Canada in 1919 as Prince of Wales. Her hubby played football with the same day in the little village of Watford, that where he stopped off for two hours.

We noticed quite a number of sleighs going townward on Thursday, with hogs and cattle and some chickens aboard. Charlie Gaul, Hoile Hall from Triangle. A Hoile J. Wilson and Andy Carlson and his man were Wildmere. Andy is in for livestock on his farm.

Smith Bros and Cliff Struthers were town visitors on Friday. Cliff has a comfy pulled which was some job, he being unable to return home the next luck Cliff, that one was keen to run under supervision.

Then Best is wearing a broad smile these days, having finished spelling it Mangerial bonds on Thursday. Mr. Doris and Nellie Riley, Lisle Matthews, Graham, Eds Madill, Gordon Hall and Mr. and Mrs. J. Waldo, to all took in the dance at Two Hill Friday evening. Oh boy! Were the roads good and dark. Front was one too, but a good time was enjoyed by all when they arrived. Mrs. H. McFarlane held the lucky number in a quilt raffled off. Don't forget to come to Wildmere dance now folks on Feb. 7th. Nichols and Hindman orchestra.

British Columbia Salmon Aid In Struggle Against Diabetes

British Columbia salmon are aiding in the struggle against diabetes, Dr. Frederick Wilde of Boston, famous for his research in the fight against diabetes, told a distinguished gathering of scientists and doctors in Toronto.

His ingredient from salmon, combined with insulin, is used to produce the new protamine insulins, a compound developed by Dr. H. C. Hagedorn, of Copenhagen, and other Danish doctors, for the treatment of diabetes. The new compound was announced this week by the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Perils Of Antarctic Flying

Discover Great Ranges Of Lofty Mountains On Stupendous Journey

Lincoln Ellsworth, Antarctic explorer, in a copyright despatch from aboard the rescue ship Wyatt Earp to the New York Times and the Chicago Daily Tribune Newspaper Alliance, described the perils of the attempted flight across Antarctica by himself and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, of Winnipeg.

Of Hollick-Kenyon, the despatch said he skilfully piloted the explorers' aeroplane the Polar Star, across Antarctica. They gazed with awe at great mountain ranges rising to a height of 12,000 feet, across which they flew before they were forced down near Little America.

When they landed on the only unclaimed land in the world on Nov. 23 last, Ellsworth reported he raised the United States flag, with the permission of the United States state department, and named the area, between Hearst Land and Marie Byrd Land, James W. Ellsworth Land, after his father.

He added that he named the plateau on which they landed, about 6,000 feet above sea level, Hollick-Kenyon plateau.

King George Had Narrow Escape

Fell Into Halifax Harbor When He Was A Naval Midshipman

Death brushed closer more than once with the future King George V. on his younger days as a naval midshipman in Halifax.

Then midshipman plunged into the water to save him when he had fallen into Halifax harbor. Another time a young midshipman, then angling trip fished him out of Mill lake after he had found the lumberman's log-rolling stunt too tricky for the royal feet.

Again, while he was in Halifax in the 80's as a middy on H.M.S. Canada, he broke up a suspected attempt to blow up the ship. Two men involved in the alleged plot were arrested and sent to jail.

J. J. Mulrooney received an engraved watch for the harbor rescue from many years after the late King. Burns, Erie, and Ontario lie between Manitoba and the United States. Of the lakes lying wholly within Canada, Great Bear lake is the largest with an expanse of 11,650 square miles. Other large lakes over 1,000 square miles in area, include Great Slave, Winnipeg, Athabaska, Winnipegosis, Manitoba, Nipigon, Southern Indian, Reindeer, Dubawnt, Lake of the Woods and Lake of the Woods.

Canada has some great river systems, the Mackenzie being 2,525 miles in length from its mouth to its headwaters, and the Yukon 1,800 miles. Other great rivers over 1,000 miles in length include the Nelson, Saskatchewan, Peace, Columbia, Peace and Yukon.

Mount Logan is the highest mountain in Canada, with an altitude of 19,850 feet. In addition to it there are 16 peaks in the Canadian Rockies over 11,000 feet in height.

Spoons Older Than Forks

Were Carried In Roadside Cans During Middle Ages

In these civilized days it is difficult to realize that our first forks were our fingers and the earliest spoons the hollow of the hand.

The spoon is thought to be older than the knife and fork. According to Dr. Rudolf Meringer, spoons first it was carried in a case in the belt of the wearer, with other table tools. Its case was frequently as handsome as the tools.

From the sixteenth century more skilful workmen made spoons. Then as at times, they were offered as presentation sets. Many fine old silver spoons are still prized as family heirlooms. The seal-top, the rat-tail, and the fiddle were three popular designs and the fiddle pattern is used to-day.

Unlike knife blades, the bowls of spoons were seldom etched or engraved.

Early spoons were of bone, ivory, and wood. Visitors to Holland and Switzerland will sometimes bring back delicately carved spoons and salad servers which are made by the peasants.

New Map Of Canada

Department Of The Interior Issues Valuable Map Of Windy Size

The Topographical and Air Survey branches of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, has just issued a new map of Canada on the scale of 100 miles to one inch which will be found of interest to all those persons who have use for a small scale map of the Dominion.

The best map of Canada printed by the Department of the Interior is published on the scale of 32 miles to one inch in four separate sheets which, when joined together, cover a space about 4½ feet by 6½ feet, making an excellent wall map if one has such a space available. There is another map of intermediate size on the scale of 60 miles to one inch which is very convenient for desk use or as a small wall map.

The new map has been produced to meet the demand for a smaller map of handy size, useful for general reference purposes. It is 25 inches high by 34 inches wide and has large size drawer or a small space on the wall. It shows all parts of Canada south of latitude 75, thus including all but some of the northern islands. It has the physical features, such as lakes, rivers, bays, and islands, depicted in correct position. The boundaries of the provinces and territories are outlined. All cities and towns are shown and also all railways and roads, both with without the intermediate small stations being named. The latitude and longitude lines are printed and also them it may be seen that southern Canada lies in the same latitude as Boston, while the southernmost tip of Ontario is considerably further to the south as the northern end of the state of Maine.

Halfgedt is a valuable aid to territories, is given in the following table:

	Square Miles
Prince Edward Island	2,184
Nova Scotia	21,068
New Brunswick	27,985
Quebec	594,534
Ontario	407,262
Manitoba	246,512
Saskatchewan	251,700
Alberta	255,285
British Columbia	366,255
Yukon Territory	207,076
Northwest Territories	1,900,682
	3,694,563

Lake Superior is the largest lake wholly within Canada, but the Great Huron, Erie, and Ontario lie between Canada and the United States. Of the lakes lying wholly within Canada Great Bear lake is the largest with an expanse of 11,650 square miles. Other large lakes over 1,000 square miles in area, include Great Slave, Winnipeg, Athabaska, Winnipegosis, Manitoba, Nipigon, Southern Indian, Reindeer, Dubawnt, Lake of the Woods and Lake of the Woods.

Will Publish Periodical To Assist Writers

The Writers' Club, Toronto, has announced its decision to publish a periodical entitled "Fiction", as a non-commercial venture by which it hopes to discover writers and help the writers discover a market.

"The so-called formula type of story, for which there is already a commercial market, is not sought," says a statement from the club. "Fiction" will not be for sale, but will be sent out the copyright for each contribution in the author. It will be circulated largely among editors.

H. J. O'Brien, compiler of short story anthologies, is announced as advisory editor of the new publication.

Widow Of Chinese Market Gardener Gets $2,000 Estate

Picturesque details of a wedding performed 25 years ago in China—a wedding that lasted through four days of feasting, ancestor worship—and that pursued grim—were unfolded in district court chambers at Edmonton, before Judge Crawford. Proof of the wedding was required before an order could be made granting the widow of a Chinese market gardener, his estate valued at about $2,000. The order was granted.

The application on behalf of Wong Lee, 62-year-old widow of Charlie Mah Yee, who died in Edmonton in 1921 without a will, was presented by the Chinese consul-general for Canada, through J. T. J. Collison, K.C. Only two factors could nullify the marriage, the vows disclosed—death or leprosy.

By the court order the widow in China, 15 years after her husband died, will receive the money, held in trust by the provincial government during that time, which will pass her in the lap of luxury in her native village.

Need More Food

Five Meals A Day Increases Factory Output

Angel cake and five meals a day may increase the productivity of factory operatives as much as 10 per cent. That is the conclusion of two Yale University scientists, Dr. H. W. Haggard and L. A. Greenberg, in recording in a book, "Diet and Physical Efficiency."

They have studied a group of persons who work in a shoe factory. It is found that eating five times a day tends to reduce industrial fatigue. The angel cake is the ideal food because some of the subjects of the experiments might have declined the daily five had they been offered a less delicious delicacy. The scientific mind sees more value in a glass of milk and a vegetable salad.

FRUIT-A-TIVES GAVE QUICK RELIEF FROM SEVERE HEADACHES AND CONSTIPATION

Mrs. P. Longeway, Guelph, says, "For many years I suffered from severe headaches and constipation. They attacked Fruit-a-tives. They brought me quick relief and I found that they have lasted since."

Prepared by a prominent Canadian physician, Fruit-a-tives contain concentrated extracts of APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS, PRUNES AND HERBS. They do not contain harsh purgatives but, instead, act in a natural way. They tend to strengthen all organs of elimination. Thus, with their purgative tonic effects, Fruit-a-tives help bring lasting good health.

JESUS'S ASSISTANTS HELPERS

Golden text: They left all, and followed him. Luke 5:11.

Lesson: Luke 5:1-11.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 62:6-12.

Explanations And Comments

The Call of Peter. Luke 5:1-11. The western side of the Lake of Gennesaret, or the Sea of Galilee (5:1) is better known than the closely populated in the first century. One day Jesus stood on the shore near some fishermen who were washing their nets (5:1). They were mending mud, weeds and stone which they had brought from the bottom of the lake. To escape from the thronging crowd about him, Jesus entered Simon's boat, pushing it to Simon Peter and asked him to push off a little distance from the land. Then sitting down he taught the people standing on the shore. The clear, rippling water playing gently round the boat's sides seemed, Christ, "the fields and vineyards and olive groves behind; the eager listeners with their sun-burnt faces and Eastern dress; the wondrous preacher; the calmness and divine coolness of the morning, and, over all, the bright sunshine, may most have made a scene striking in the extreme."

When he had finished his talk, Jesus turned to Simon and bade him launch out into the deep and let down his nets for a draught. In amazement Simon answered, "Master, we have toiled all night and have taken nothing." Success was wholly unlikely at that time of day and in deep water, he thought, for fish were to be caught in mid near the shore.

"Nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net." Simon added "It was the beginning of prompt and full obedience. It showed that Simon's nature was responsive. He had learned to obey, which was the first lesson of discipleship; and, having learned to obey, he was therefore fit to rule, qualified for leadership" (Henry Burton).

The result of Simon's obedience was so great a catch that his partners, James and John (verse 10), had to be called to help. All for him net was in danger of breaking from the weight of fish within it. Then he (verse 8) fell down before Jesus, Simon fell at the feet of Jesus exclaiming, "Depart from me; for I am a sinful man, O Lord." "It was an act as true as Peter's faith that Peter saw, and seeing loathed himself. Have we not in it expressed that judgment the silent judgment of some noble act? Nothing was said, but something first was done, and seeing it so done, we were ashamed. In the face of that act, all of them acts of love and acts of prayer, there came the sudden unequalled measure, of touching men with a deep self-reproach" (G. H Morrison).

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Rawson County settlers called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roper Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide cattle ranch, is the only settler to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it. Indeed Soak Dunlap, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo keeps on the ranch mainly to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, is even his strict enforcement, and declares that irrigation in Rimon country will be a fiasco. The plan was concerned, was only a newfangled way to waste money.

The meeting terminates, but Russ Hamilton and Link Fleming, Kilgo and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. Then she tells Kilgo she accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister, Jean, to marry him. Kilgo is furious. Soak arrests. Fleming in an unconvincible fit of temper, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the shoulder and Fleming is uninjured. Soak is arrested. The doctor attends Townsend and pronounces his wound. Kilgo Roper suggests taking Fleming to jail, but the foreman and Fleming escorts her home instead. This incident causes Roper to declare his hostility to Fleming.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties. Link goes home, and is surprised to find Kilgo there ahead of him. Kilgo tries to induce Link to drop his scheme, and when Fleming refuses, gives a signal by taking off his hat. Link's life is in danger from outside the house.

Link kicks Kilgo out of the house. Russ Hamilton is sentenced to three years' imprisonment for shooting Ted Townsend.

(How Can He Win The Story)

As he rode down the Turkey road toward Iron Spring, Link gazed absently at the barren waste of blinding snow. The road was streaked with it but the trail was dry and light, because of the warm chinook wind. A sharp wind was blowing down from the mountains, and the lone horseman, bundled in his heavy corduroy jacket tighter over his chest. He was thinking of the dam and the plans he had drawn after a score of times with Soak Torney, the engineer. In his mind's eye he envisioned the thing completed, a shining white concrete structure blocking a narrow point in Silver Creek. It need not be a high dam, only a low, ditch water for twenty-six hundred acres, his own and Triple H land. But its cost would be a heavy burden on the two modest spreads.

He would have to get in touch with someone to arrange financing. Where had become of Soak anyhow? No one had seen him since the meeting; he seemed to have disappeared into thin air. Had he left the section?

Link remembered a man who might carry on in Soak's place. Tom Mills, Loudon, a young engineer he had done a favor in a cafe brawl on the Border. He determined to write to Tom and propose his coming here to direct the job.

He began to whistle. The ears of the cowhorse mount twitched back, and the rider chuckled. The picture of the dam persisted in fading into another scene, the water sluicing one of a young girl. She was dressed in riding trousers, a man's flannel shirt, Stetson, neckerchief and heavy buckskin jacket with a knit collar. He clucked to the horse. Somehow, he could not get Helen Hamilton out of mind.

"Hold on, Link, will you?"

Startled at the sudden call, he drew rein. He was at the edge of the road where it wound past Iron Spring, a brackish trickling water supply surrounded by cottonwoods and cedars. At first he could not see who had hailed him, for though it was early afternoon, the sky was lowering and dark.

Then his eyes focused on a ragged, bearded man afoot, standing a few yards away as if timidity kept him from coming closer. Fleming shoved back his sombrero, surprised.

"Why, howdy, Soak! Been wondering where you disappeared to."

Torney gulped and looked away. He shuffled forward, rubbing his hands as though cold. In nondescript garments and hatless, his appearance was one of utter misery.

"I—feel sort of bad about that meetin', Link."

Fleming dismounted. "Well, I do too. What made you go back on me, anyhow? All this time you've been away, I could have used a man without any trouble, and it would do wonders for the whole county. All you had to do was change your tune. How-come?"

After a slow, comprehensive glance around he answered in a guarded voice. "Link, I—I had to say what I did. Honest, I had to!"

"Why, Soak?" You mean someone made you?" I still don't get much courage any more, Link. Or I'd have told him to go plumb to Gunnder!" Torney's head shuddered again. "I didn't want to doublecross you like that, but I was—scared."

The bleary eyes sought Fleming's face but wavered quickly. It was plain the man was shaky for a drink and a square meal, but he was full of guilt. "There's something behind this, Soak. Why not tell me the truth?" Fleming's firmness reached you, talked you into telling the boys our scheme wasn't worth while. How did it happen?"

Torney appeared to be trying to summon his nerve. He cast anxious looks around as if fearful they might be seen, and kept blinking and rubbing his large nose. "He said if I didn't, he'd kill me. Honest, I did, Link, and he got me drunk and then made me do it. You won't say anything if I tell you? He's been hangin' around the place the last couple of days. Told me to git this mornin', or they'd plant me in Boot Hill. I—I couldn't let me you," he whined. "I'm leavin' right now, Link, but I wanted to tell you—"

Fleming raised the fellow's arms and shook him gently. "Come on, Soak, tell me who kept you prisoner. Who made you doublecross me there in the meeting?"

"Link, I—uh, tried to tell yuh that night, but I was so full I got mixed up. Ranch house somebody fired a shot. I ran and he ran, and we slammed together herphunk."

"Then you'll see him, Soak? Who was it?"

There was no answer as Torney moistened his lips and peered this way and that. "The guy grabbed me and kept me locked up. Dang it!" he exclaimed with a sudden courageous impulse. "I'm havin' here anymore, and I don't want you to get shot or something". You always been good to me, and—"

"Who was it?" His patience was wearing thin with the delay, so anxious was Link to reach the point: the man's name who had plotted all this!

Soak stepped back a pace. His eyes were steadier now, glowing with determination. "He's a snake, Link. You'll more be surprised! The guy that made me lie at that meetin', and—"

The crackle of a Winchester cut the crisp air. Fleming leaped back, plunging under his jacket for the Colt that hung there. Soak reeled, threw up his hands and uttered a cry of pain and fear. His face was paperwhite as he swayed, tripped, and pitched heavily full length in the road.

"It was . . . it was . . ."

The words died away in a thin whisper. Torney's slight frame twitched, then lay still. Link moved to investigate to tell him the man was dead.

CHAPTER VI.

Link whirled and plunged for the safety of the trees. He was in the midst of time, for the next instant the Winchester uttered its throaty roar again. The bullet gouged through the crown of his sombrero and tilted it, missing it from his head and carrying it some eight feet away. Another shot went wild.

With stagun ready and every sense keenly alert, he started a roundabout way forward the approximate source of the shooting. Twenty yards covered failed to locate anyone, and he paused to listen. But his ears could detect no footfalls, and certainly, he thought, sounds of a man moving would be hard-packed ground should carry to him.

After some reflection he continued the search always wary lest the unknown marksman get behind him. Time and again he stopped to listen, but the only sounds were the soft whisper of the wind and the faint rustle of dry grass. He shuffled forward, rubbing his hands as though cold. In nondescript garments and hatless, his appearance was one of utter misery.

"I—feel sort of bad about that meetin', Link."

Fleming dismounted. "Well, I do too. What made you go back on me, anyhow? All this time you've been away, I could have used a man without any trouble, and it would do wonders for the whole county. All you had to do was change your tune. How-come?"

Antique With A History

Old Golden Bucket Has Been Used For 150 Years

Many antiques have a history and here is one which has been in constant use for much more than 150 years. It is an old oaken bucket fished out of the Chipawa Creek at Chalotor Centre, Ontario, by a pipe pole in the days when it was the custom for people to fish out logs and timber during the spring freshets. This little barrel which is eight inches high and five inches across, has been used as a drinking cup for cattle for some 90 years. Later, when it fell into the hands of its present owner, Judson Waterford, Ontario, it was taken to the house and better care taken of it but still is used as a salt container. It has been idle since landing in this family some 15 years ago. Its original use was as a water barrel built for drawing oysters. It has been promised to be handed down to a niece, who lives in Ottawa, when she is old enough at the passing of its present owner.

How Name Originated

Did you ever hear how acorn stock got its name? Well, it seems that King James I. of England had enjoyed a fine meal which had for its chief feature a rare piece of loin steak. As he finished eating, the king threw the meat well-picking bone on the floor. His word said, "Let the meat well cook." Ever since, the name has been used to describe the meat.

Blood Gardener At Empress Hotel Has Ripe Tangerines

At the Empress Hotel recently, says the Victoria, B.C., Colonist, visitors wandered about and to and from the ballroom, a small tree laden with full-sized tangerines, ripe and temptingly ready for picking. F. A. Saunders, head gardener at the Empress, has been nursing the tree along for about sixteen years, and was exceedingly proud to be able at last to show his crop of 25 "juices."

... The fruit is of the "Mandarin", and glows variety, imported from Japan in such quantities about this time of the year. The hotel management reports that large lemons are now grown in the hothouses.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT "Acid Indigestion"

A WAY THAT RELIEVES THE CAUSE IN A FEW MINUTES

Many people who think they have "stomach" or "indigestion" actually suffer only from nothing more serious than acidity. And this comes from eating too much, too fast or too rich food. Among good home remedies Phillips' Milk of Magnesia offers many people a quick, delightful way to relieve the distress of acidity. Just take a little Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals—it helps to neutralize many times its own volume of acid stomach juices. Thus it brings welcome relief to many persons.

And the band he was handed field orders, giving the place for his parachute jump. The coal was not to be broken until he was in the air. Up went the machine—and Ivanovich tore open the official envelope. He could hardly believe his eyes—the place given for his descent was the village where he was to have been married. No parachutist could have been more eager to obey his orders than Ivanovich. He landed safely from the skies at the feet of his bride who had run from her house to watch the air manoeuvres. Before evening they were married.

Preserving Wild Life

The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Inc.

Looking into the future naturally every interested person wonders what will happen to the Jack Miner bird sanctuary. To be brief several foresighted Canadians and Americans have been the cause of incorporating what is known as The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation Inc, with the hope that men and women who are not able now to contribute several thousand dollars to some will remember this mid boundaries of their wills and make a bequest to this said Jack Miner Foundation to endow or perpetuate the sanctuary.

Some men rightly leave millions to museums to care for dead and extinct specimens; it is far more humane to leave money to perpetuate a living institution like Jack Miner's where bird life can be seen in its natural haunts.

To give a better explanation of the idea of the Jack Miner Foundation Mr. Roberts wrote an article which appeared recently in a Canadian publication:

Every person who has visited the Jack Miner bird sanctuary, or read of it, and become interested in what has been accomplished there, naturally asks: "What will become of the place when Jack Miner is no more?" This question arises, whether in Canada or the United States, the question is answered. There has sprung into existence an organization that will try and raise money to perpetuate the work begun by Jack Miner personally. This organization is known as The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Incorporated, and has entered into an agreement with the Toronto General Trusts Company, or any other trust company the contributor wishes to name, to accept contributions and bequests made for that purpose, so that moneys from the said trust or endowment fund will always be available, thus saving the balance of Jack Miner's lifetime and afterwards, to feed and care for birds in the Jack Miner sanctuary.

It is the plan of the foundation that as soon as sufficient money has been contributed to finance the upkeep of the property in perpetuity, that Jack Miner will, on his part turn over the sanctuary to the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Inc. And it is further provided that upon the death of the present trustees, their successors shall be named by a committee of two composed of the premier of Canada and the president of the United States at that time.

To the persons of means interested in God's great out of doors, let us say: Where could you place some proportion of your wealth so that it would do more good than in the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation? If you have been interested in the work that Jack Miner has been carrying on for years, practically at his own expense; or what better purpose do you think your money could be devoted than that of the foundation? For many years Jack Miner's sacrifices he has made, and the things he has accomplished in the conservation of the wild life of this continent would be a lasting remembrance and most of the people who knew him do not live to see what other monument do you think could be erected to him half so fitting as the Foundation. And the work of his son, now, while he still lives, that the glory of God may be manifested in his efforts?

Provision have been made whereby the Foundation can accept gifts in any form—cash, bonds, real estate bonds, buildings or real estate, or the income from the same, to be used for the upkeep of the sanctuary and to feed and otherwise care for the birds that seek the sanctuary.

It has also been arranged that a gift may be made by a person during his own farm or country estate and the donor still have possession, but it will be turned into a bird sanctuary after his death, and provision for the extent to which it has been endowed by the donor

It will be seen that there is no limit to the good work that the Foundation can do, for the protection of the monies that it could use judiciously since these times, not only the interest from the trust estate can be used, but the present subject to is that the principal, or corpus, thereof will soon reach one million dollars.

The trustees of the Foundation not only invite and seek contributions to investigation by any interested person, particularly by any solicitor or attorney-at-law. Full information concerning it for this purpose can be obtained by writing The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Kingsville, Ontario, Canada. It will be readily understood that with the Miner family pleasing to have the Jack Miner Sanctuary over to the Foundation, it has been seen to it there are, so far as known, no weak spots in the legal set-up of the corporation. If any attorney or lodge interested enough to make an investigation, finds a weakness in the proposition as now outlined, he will be doing a service to bring it to light now, while Jack Miner himself is living and in a position to have such flaw rectified.

Jack Miner says, "the hope of the world is more love and education, and less barbaric, pagan compulsion." And, true to this doctrine, for a number of years he has concentrated on getting children to build and erect bird-houses. In this connection, if there are those who would like to contribute for the purpose of education only along these lines, it has been made possible for such a person to leave money to the Foundation to be used solely along educational lines in schools, in educating youth in the value of bird life in this country. All that is necessary is that it be specifically stated, in writing, that the donation or legacy must be used for purpose of education, exclusive. Otherwise, moneys it will be devoted to the maintenance of the Jack Miner Sanctuary, which is the primary object of the Foundation.

A 16-page booklet has been issued in regards to the Foundation, well illustrated, and containing full explanation, which can be had free of charge by writing Hebb Jake Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation, Inc. Kingsville, Ontario, Canada.

Chinese Woman Claims To Be 110 Years Old

The Lester Chinese hospital has been the most interesting patient ever treated in Shanghai in the person of a Chinese woman, 110 years old. This woman, Chang Lee, has lived whole life in the village of Kingningchow, in the southwestern Shantung province, until the recent removal by the Yellow river made her a refugee.

Accompanied by her 58-year-old great-great-grandson, Mrs. Chang made her way to the railway and for the first time in her life boarded a train. She had only living relatives, a daughter-in-law and the servant who carried her bedding, her one extra gown and the savings of a life time, $28, which she carried in her sleeve.

En route to Shanghai she and her great-great-grandson lost the odd dozen of their comfy living relatives who was a policeman there four years ago but has now disappeared.

Mrs. Chang, a widow for 70 years, has lived through the reigns of five emperors.

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Bonne County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roger Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide and nearby ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, had forced Buck Torney, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo had once called upon for help,

ESTABLISHED 1909
VERMILION ALBERTA
Published every Thursday Afternoon at the Office, Main St.
S. B. P. COOPER — EDITOR
Vermilion, Alta., Feb. 6, 1936.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics announces the publication of the 1936 edition of the official Handbook of Canada.

The handbook describes the present economic condition of the Dominion in numerous chapters dealing with all phases of the country's economic organization and statistics are brought up to the latest possible moment. The text is accompanied by a wealth of pertinent illustrative matter, which adds to the interest of the subjects treated. Preceding the frontispiece are the pages of matter, in photo engraving bearing on the Vimy Memorial which is to be officially unveiled on July 26th, 1936; the frontispiece itself is a reproduction of an excellent painting of the Governor General, Lord Tweedsmuir, and carries a message from His Excellency to the people of Canada. In an appendix are given the recently published statistics of the voters on the lists and the votes polled, along with the names and addresses of all Members of the House of Commons elected at the eighteenth general election, October 14, 1935.

Text and page illustrations are printed in one and there is a folded coloured insert showing the "Ten Provinces of Canada" and their satellite communities.

The price of the publication is 25 cents per copy, which charges cover merely the cost of paper and actual cost work. A special price reduction has been authorized in the case of bona fide students, and in quantities of ten or more, when purchased in the aggregate for educational purposes, and it is the policy of the Minister to encourage such use. To such individuals, therefore, the price is not at 10 cents for one copy. Postage stamps are not acceptable, and postal notes must be accompanied by a postal note or by the appropriate coin enclosed between two squares of thick cardboard gummed together at the edges. Applicants should be advised to the King's Printer, General Printing Bureau, Ottawa, Canada, and since the supply is strictly limited for both the 25-cent and the free classes, early application is suggested.

GIRL GUIDE NOTES

At our regular meeting held at the Memorial hall on Monday, February 3, the roll call showed only nine members present. Our company is now under the leadership of Marjorie Dunmore assisted by Mrs. Kirby. We wish to take this opportunity of thanking Mrs Lomas for all her services to us when she was our leader. We appointed Mary Louise Knoll as secretary and Mabel Kirby as treasurer for this coming term. We decided to start work right away on our second class and some other badges. The meeting closed by singing Taps. The next meeting is on Monday February 10 so all try and be present

LUNCHES FOR COACH PASSENGERS ON C.N.R.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 5—Commencing February 1st lunches from the dining cars are now available for coach passengers on trains embodied in trains of the Canadian National System, it is announced by W. W. Stinson, general superintendent of dining and dining car services. The new plan will be effective on trains No 1, 2, 3 and 4 operating between Halifax, Montreal, Capreol, Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton-Vancouver.

Meals available will include sausage rolls, meat pies, sandwiches, hard boiled eggs, bread and butter, pie cut and tea and milk which may be prepared in the regular dining cars and will be of Canadian National dining car quality. The service in the coaches will be handled under the supervision of the dining car stewards. Food and beverages will be served at reasonable prices and will be served at times not to conflict with the rush periods in dining car service.

In announcing this innovation Mr. Stinson stated that its purpose was to provide an economical lunch service for passengers on the coaches of the train, many of whom perhaps hesitate to patronize the dining cars but who feel the need of a tasty lunch well prepared and steadily served while on their trips. The new service is expected to prove popular with coach passengers whose suggestions as to extensions and improvement to the service will be given every consideration

DEATH OF A. C. McPHAIL

Mr. Archie McPhail of 10160 94 st Edmonton passed away on Monday evening, January 20, at the age of 48 years. He leaves to mourn his loss one sister, Mrs. M Partridge of Westlorne, Ontario. Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock from Andrews Bros.' funeral chapel. Interment took place in the Beechmount cemetery. Rev. S. H. Irving of Norwood United church officiated.

The deceased was well known in the old-timers of Vermilion, having been stationed here for several years as a Constable as R. C. M. Police. It will be remembered that it was MacPhail who captured Lassen the Chipman murderer who for some days eluded police and peppered them with shot from his shack south of that town. MacPhail had gone there to assist in the case that was being laid to the man's house. Lassen somehow eluded the police during the night and in the early morning was making his way towards Chipman. MacPhail was going out to the scene, met Lassen and recognizing him from a picture, arrested the man and brought him back to town. It is about 15 years since he left the force and after retiring in the district moved to Edmonton several years ago, where he has since resided. The deceased has been in ailing health for the past two or three years.

JUNIORS TRIM MANVILLE

The local Junior team proved too good for Manville on Monday night and administered an athletic drubbing to the western boys. Owing to the extremely cold night the attendance was not as large as usual, but in spite of the scoring being a little one sided the game was a spirited contest with lots of fast skating, body checking etc. thrown in King George V to whom millions owed allegiance has gone to join his Ancestors. Millions mourn the passing of a King of whom it was often said was a good Christian and a good family man. Could anything better be said of any man." And now Al has come into his portion. In the Beechmount cemetery, Rev. S. H. Irving of Norwood United church officiated.

Alberta is a good and progressive province only but year she called from the Hall of Learning a brilliant man to rule over her destinies and men a man who was proud to be a rancher within her borders is called upon to rule over the great British Empire.

Miss Muir who has been ill for some time has resumed her duties here as teacher looking in the best of health she is a great favorite with her pupils and the latter received her Monday lessons with open arms.

When you find the teacher possess the confidence and goodwill of the children one will find as a rule the school a great success and Miss Muir possesses in a marked degree the personality which enables her to be a successful teacher.

Mr. Harold Webber a young teacher of great promise who departed during Miss Muir's absence has not returned home.

At home one young lady remembered on Leap Year and a young bachelor on our acquaintance has received two less the inducing proposal at Vermilion.

My dear and most respected sir I send you this your love to all Tom your I've chosen first of all In the world as Leap Year call on send me back without delay Yet I remain the in Yes or Nay. Don't hope for will I'll be true

The dance held here Friday night in honor of Mr. Mayne Bailey's engagement was a most successful affair. The music was supplied by the Hurl orchestra and the supper was served by the Ladies Aid. Lake Vermilion supplied the ingredients for the delicious supper and Mr. Mayne Bailey by a willing hand to serve.

The Farm Problem For 1936

At the time of the year farm owners farm operators and others interested in agricultural production are necessarily giving a great deal of thought and attention to the all-important problem of what to raise and how much to produce during the 1936 season.

Time was when the problem of what was a problem at all was a comparatively simple one. All that was necessary to do was to divide the land acreage proposition into the additional acreage to be prepared in the spring into two portions one area to be seeded to wheat and the other to oats with some provision for a small plot for vegetables for household use. In those days there were only two standard varieties of wheat and oats and all the farmer had to plan in advance was which of these he would seed and when the spring came to go ahead and seed it. Having done this he chances of reaping a fair crop providing him a reasonable return for his labor were pretty good.

But those days are gone and probably gone forever. Down the corridor of the past two decades the problem of what to raise and how much of it has become more complex with each succeeding year and to-day the question bristles with so many complications and ramifications as to require the wisdom of a Solomon and the acumen of the proverbial Philadelphia lawyer plus the insight of a skilful prognosticator if a reasonably satisfactory answer is to be the outcome.

If the farm operator in the prairie provinces wants to eliminate the gamble from his farming operations he must not only be an experienced tiller of the soil and husbandman but he also needs to be a student, a scientist an economist and a meteorological expert. In other words he must achieve the unattainable.

Those preparing his plans for the year's work the farmer not only has to take into consideration the condition of the land the state of its suitability and preparedness for various types of crops the probable availability of seed and the varieties best suited to the nature and extent of the hazard to which various crops and varieties may be subjected to deterioration and loss by insects pests and diseases the probable effect of prospective weather conditions in the matter of moisture the availability of nutriment in the soil required by different types of crops the probable demand for the resultant yield in the local and world markets but many other factors which for lack of space must be dismissed in the aggregate with the observation too numerous to mention."

Many of these questions the farmer because of his own circumstances and local conditions must himself determine in very little assistance from outside sources but fortunately there is and available for him in his efforts to weigh probabilities and prospects of the effect of market trends, market conditions national policies and to a some extent even of international situations and relations on his intended activities but even the information available on these factors can only be a guide subject as they are and more particularly in recent years, to great and rapid flux.

One of the most valuable of these guides entitled The Agricultural Situation and Outlook 1936 has just been issued by the Dominion department of agriculture with the co-operation of the department of trade and commerce. The information contained is compiled by the sub-committee on the agricultural situation of the National Advisory Committee on Agricultural Services.

The government pamphlet contains a careful and concise survey of agricultural conditions as they existed in Canada in 1935 together with a detailed statement of the policies and activities heretofore and adversely, and the prospective position of agriculture for 1936, including some specific conclusions which cannot fail to be of material aid to every farmer who reads them.

As the foreword to this 92-page bulletin says This annual review of the position of Canadian agriculture contains basic information which will assist farmers in planning their business operations in 1936 It is of course impossible to take into consideration drastic changes in international affairs which might develop before the close of the year The report, however presents an analysis of the factors most likely to affect farm income in the coming year

A particularly valuable feature of the report is the summarized conclusions published by the sub-committee with respect to each of the important cereal grains and the several divisions of livestock together with the reasons which lead up to these conclusions

One who reads the bulletin cannot fail to be impressed with the fact that, generally speaking, the position of agriculture has shown improvement in the past year and that the factors in support of further improvement in 1936 are material but it should be pointed out that the farmer who is carefully and intelligently studying the situation in the farmer who is in the best position to take advantage of the prospective continuing upward trend.

The pamphlet should be in the hands of every farmer in the prairie provinces and is worthy of study by all who are interested in the welfare of agriculture in the west and that means every citizen of the three provinces.

Missionary Will Be Honored

Carried Out Pioneering Work Among Indians At Coast

One of British Columbia's outstanding pioneer Indian missionaries, Rev Charles Montgomery Tate, will be honored in June this year with the unveiling of a bronze memorial plaque in St Andrew's-Wesley United church in connection with the observance a golden jubilee celebrations

Born in England, he worked there in the printing and a bookseller's trade came to British Columbia at the age of 17 to make his fortune in the Cariboo gold mining fields, but was told by Miners in Victoria that the Cariboo Eldorado had been dumpopulating

He then went to Nanaimo to work in the coal mines. Soon a strike of the miners threw him out of work and he began to visit with the Indians and to teach them the English language

Mr Tate was given a position teaching the Indians and was paid $25 per month In 1873 he was ordained at the first Methodist conference in Victoria.

Mr Tate translated portions of the scripture into the Chinook language established a boarding school for Indian children at Sardis B C which later was called Tate's Coquitlam Institute, and did a great deal of other pioneering work amongst the Indians.

He died in Vancouver in February, 1933, at the age of 86

The Vimy Pilgrimage

Some Employers Granted Leave Of Absence With Pay

One event presently warming the hearts of Canadians and exciting much is the "pilgrimage to Vimy organized by the Canadian Legion for July, 1936 to enable 6,000 ex-servicemen to participate and the mission in France will conclude with the unveiling of the great memorial on July 26 Many have already shown their desire to cooperate with the Legion in this project "We're going there" by enabling them to take advantage of this opportunity In some cases four or six weeks leave of absence with pay has been granted to ex-soldier employees

In their brief day they caught the world's held it high We in our small way should help perpetuate the memory of those who passed it on Canadian Business

Different From Old Days

Passengers On S.S. Queen Mary Will Enjoy Perfumed Air

Anyone who has crossed to North America in an ordinary common or garden steamship when the Atlantic was in one of its tantrums will be amused or shocked, according to temperament, by the description of what is to be done for the comfort of passengers in the Queen Mary. Perfumed air will be available for the ladies, who can also, by a flick of the controlling lever, rid their rooms of cigarette smoke . . . The and the cinemas and kitchens will be purified every three minutes, while in the 25 public rooms the atmosphere will be continually changed

The screws to mark the tremendous change that has taken place since the coming of the "luxury liners" on the Atlantic ferry

What early cross-Atlantic travel was like may be gathered from Charles Dickens' account of his first trip to the United States. That was in 1842, and the vessel was the tiny Cunarder, the British Queen, a three-masted one-funnel paddle steamer of 1,500 tons burthen.

The Britain had a rough voyage and Dickens, in a passage of a letter to John Forster, which was suppressed from "American Notes", says: I have been in the saloon since the first day, the noise, the smell and the closeness being quite intolerable" That was written six days out from Liverpool

In the "Notes" the novelist says: "It was not exactly comfortable below. It was decidedly close, and it was impossible to be unconscious of the presence of the whole vast compound of strange smells, which is to be found nowhere else but on board ship, and which in such a outlet's perfume that it seems to enter at every pore of the skin, and taint the very liver."

Rather different, this, from the no-doubt still "outlet" but more identifying powers of the Queen Mary's passengers are to enjoy Manchester Guardian

Many Years Died Last Year

Debrett Shows Heavier List Than For Half Century

One of the odd facts I have dug at random from the new volume of Debrett is that the mortality among peers has been heavier last year than for half a century

There are 42 names in the obituary list, eight more than last year. You must go back to 1929, when 41 peers died, to find a comparable figure

If you are interested in statistical curiosities, you may like to know that the lightest death-rate in the peerage for 50 years was in 1902, when only 17 died.

Those who have died during the past twelve months include two great war leaders, Lord Jellicoe and Lord Plumer, a famous courier Lord Byron; two well-known politicians, Lord Bridgeman and Lord Glad Lord Peel, Lord Lansdowne, Lord Carson and Lord Tomlin; and two press magnates, Lord Riddell and Lord Dalziel.

Sport has lost the Duke of Richmond, owner of Goodwood race course, Lord Londonderry, polo-ian race horse owner, and Lord Tweedmouth, pillar of boxing London Daily Sketch

An Interesting Fact

Only One King Alive Out Of Eight Who Attended Funeral Of Edward VII

It is interesting to note that only one of the eight kings who were present at the funeral of King Edward the Seventh now is a king, and he is King Haakon of Norway King George of Greece was assassinated in 1913 Alfonso of Spain and the former German Kaiser are in exile Ferdinand of Bulgaria abdicated in 1918, while King Frederick of Denmark died in 1912 Manuel of Portugal fled his country following a revolution and died in England where he had taken refuge Among those at the funeral were Archduke Ferdinand of Austria, whose assassination was the spark which set off the fire which threw almost the whole world into the greatest war in history.

Many People Quote From Hapsburg's Works Without Knowing It

Familiar quotations from the works of Rudyard Kipling are legion, often tripping from the tongue without realization by their users, of their origin Here are a few of them:

"The Colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady are sisters under the skin."

"East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet."

"A rag a bone and a bank of hair

"You're a better man than I am, Gunga Din"

"So I learned about women from her."

"You're a pore benighted heathen, but a first-class fightin' man."

"Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, lest we forget lest we forget"

"Without benefit of clergy."

"I've taken my fun where I've found it

"A woman is only a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke"

"The white man's burden"

"It's clever but is it art?"

"A fool there was"

"We-tward the course of Empire goes."

Among Kipling's poems familiar as songs are

"On the Road to Mandalay"

"Danny Deever," "Rolling Down To Rio," "Fuzzy-Wuzzy and the Ladies' "I levered a'way women from my throat" Some most familiar recitations in the world are Kipling's "Gunga Din" and "If" . . .

Board Grant Protection

More Necessary In Morocco Than Night Fires Or Rifles

Flowing beards were more protective than rifles and night fires in Morocco for Kenneth Chapman and A. B. Cozens, who returned to Cambridge, England, after an adventurous trip in the lonely heights of the Middle Atlas Mountains. They gathered 3,000 strange insects, including many hitherto unknown species Wild animals prowled near their little tent at night, swarms of enormous Mist insects invaded them; hostile tribes hovered menacingly around them 7,000 feet up. But their beards saved them. "With the natives of Morocco it pays to grow a beard, which gives you status," said Chapman "They have no respect for a beardless man One was on the verge of trying to protect our faces from the giant stinging gnats; hopes crawl onto your face and chew it . . .

LONDON PEACE TALKS HAVE HAD A GOOD EFFECT

London.- A general bolstering of the shaky peace of Europe was seen in authoritative British quarters as a result of the week's almost unprecedented assemblages of rulers and foreign ministers in London.

Italian tension, these sources said, was the sole exception to the general improvement in international problems reported growing out of the conferences. Premier Mussolini, statesmen, gathered here for the funeral of King George V.

Britain's foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, taxed his energy and diplomatic persuasion to the limit to emerge as the chief conciliator, and the developments, informed observers believed, may have far-reaching effects

Chief of these was an easing of Franco-German tenseness, accomplished by Eden, acting as a go-between for Pierre-Etienne Flandin, the French foreign minister, and Baron Von Konstantin Neurath, envoy of the third reich.

Other conversations, it was learned, had an important bearing on the Austrian situation and on the Balkans.

Little light was shed on these latter talks, except for an indication that restoration of the Hapsburg throne in Austria is not to be expected in the near future

Observers were interested keenly in the repeated talks which Eden had with Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs. The British foreign secretary had three conversations with Litvinoff. The result was not stated, except for a denial that revision of the Anglo-Soviet trade pact is under discussion.

In view of Eden's discussions of the Locarno treaty with the Belgian, Dutch and Flandin, there was widespread speculation as to whether the French premier's foreign assistance pacts had entered the scope of the Eden-Litvinoff talks

First Von Neurath saw Eden in a conference which resulted in the German's reaffirmation of the Locarno mutual security agreements between Britain, Germany, France, Belgium, Italy, Poland and Czechoslovakia

That was taken to imply that Germany is planning no aggressive move in the demilitarized Rhineland

In turn Great Britain confirmed Von Neurath no bilateral arrangements had been considered with France which would not be available in the same form for Germany.

Revenues Will Accumulate

Duchy Of Cornwall Will Not Go To Duke Of Windsor

London There is no ground for the current rumors King Edward intends to give the revenues from the Duchy of Cornwall to his brother the Duke of York, who would become the Duke of Cornwall and York

It is learned by the Canadian Press the decision will take considerable time and will depend somewhat upon parliament's action with the civil list The latter will have to be changed in view of their being a bachelor king

The Duchy of Cornwall is customarily given the Prince of Wales but there is no Prince of Wales now But it is pointed out that during the minority of Edward VII, for example the revenues were accumulated and eventually partly used in the purchase of Sandringham estate It is quite possible King Edward VIII will allow the duchy revenues to accumulate again

Butter Import Control

Urged By Manitoba Dairy Association At Annual Meeting

Winnipeg Those control by the Dominion government of the importations of butter imported from New Zealand and Australia was recommended by the Manitoba Dairy Association in annual convention here

Unqualified admission of butter from the outer dominions would be costly to Canadian producers who required protection declared the resolution passed by the delegates

Joseph Burgess chief of the division of dairy produce Ottawa, told the delegates several importers of butter in the United Kingdom were favorable to Canadian butter, but the port content must be reduced to the point where it does not destroy or have a bad effect on flavor.

Commission On Unemployment To Be Set Up Later

Ottawa. Establishment of the national commission on unemployment and relief will be delayed until parliament has had an opportunity to pass the necessary legislation and appropriations, Prime Minister Mackenzie King has announced.

It had been the intention earlier to set up the commission the first of the year, but it was decided to give an opportunity for parliament to deal with the legislation first. This will be introduced as one of the government's first measures to be laid before the house.

KING EDWARD MAY MAKE AN EMPIRE TOUR

London. — The diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Herald predicted that the king would tour the Empire following his coronation next year

The Herald's story said during King Edward's absence his duties would be performed by a council of state composed of Queen Mary and three brothers, the Dukes of York, Gloucester and Kent

The newspaper's correspondent said it was then thought he might be some kind of accession ceremony in all the Dominions, with the king present. He said it was possible there would be an actual coronation ceremony in each Dominion capital. Included in the tour would be an Imperial durbar at Delhi, India, during the autumn of 1937.

The story said the proposed tour would last nine or ten months and that His Majesty would visit some of the chief colonies as well as the Dominions.

King Edward devoted himself to a series of diplomatic conferences at Buckingham Palace with important European figures.

Prime Minister Baldwin and Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, also conferred with many of the statesmen and diplomats here for the funeral of King George.

Turning aside from the solemn ceremonies in London and Windsor at which he was host, King Edward received Baron Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister; Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign commissar, and other European notables.

It was the first time since the revolution that a Russian government representative had been received at Buckingham Palace

The king received successively the Earl of Shaftesbury, lord high steward; Prince Ernest Duedigo von Starhemberg, Austrian vice-chancellor, Baron von Neurath, Litvinoff and Nicolas Titulescu, Rumanian foreign minister and head of the little entente His Majesty previously had met President Lebrun of France and Premier Paul van Zeeland of Belgium.

Prime Minister Baldwin conferred with Prince Starhemberg, Litvinoff and Titulescu and was received by Prince Paul, regent of Yugoslavia

Eden had luncheon with Litvinoff preparatory to the Soviet commissar's first audience at Buckingham Palace The foreign secretary then received Prince von Starhemberg Mussolini's foreign minister Count Mestiero, Hungarian Foreign Minister Koloman Kanya and Afghanistan's Foreign Minister Pale Mohammed Kahn Kanya later conferred with Baron von Neurath

Eden was received by King Boris of Bulgaria and was host at a dinner to King Carol II of Roumania Early in the day he had been given an audience by King Edward at Buckingham Palace

Seven circles here were jubilant over the events of the day Anglo-Soviet understanding was seen as strengthened further by a conference between Litvinoff and Alfred Duff Cooper secretary for war, which was attended also by the Soviet ambassador, Ivan Maisky Marshal Tuchachevski, chief of staff of the Soviet Red army also conferred with Duff Cooper and Lord Swinton secretary for air.

Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark and the Crown Princess left for Bath to visit their aged relative, Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught, uncle of King George, whose health prevented him attending the funeral

U.S. Soldier Bonus

President Roosevelt Has To Find Huge Sum To Meet Outlay

Washington President Roosevelt asked the United States congress for a $2,249,178,375 appropriation to meet the soldiers' bonus bill

Without mentioning the subject a possible tax increase to provide funds, Mr Roosevelt wrote Speaker Byrns that the veterans' bureau had estimated $2 237 000 000 would be needed for actually cashing the bonus, with the remainder for administrative expenses

Meanwhile veterans reported commercial interests were already cutting for a share of the money to be distributed. The American Legion warned its members against pledging their bonus in advance to New York brokers offered $40 immediate cash for each $50 bond Some business men, too, were seeking lists of veterans and their addresses

Washington wondered whether congress could be attached in the absence of any recommendation by the executive. Speaker Byrns told reporters he was confident the house would pass the measure by a substantial majority.

Power Firms Take Action

Federal Government Asked To Disallow Ontario Legislation

Montreal The Dominion government has been asked to disallow Ontario legislation recently proclaimed which provided contracts between the Ontario hydro commission and Quebec hydro-electric companies it was learned here

George H Montgomery, K.C., stated an appeal to that effect has been filed to Montreal Light Heat and Power Consolidated, on behalf of the Beauharnois Power Corporation a recent subsidiary of the former holding company, was also affected by the legislation.

The application was filed with the deputy minister of justice W Stuart Edwards at ottawa some days ago.

The action was the first step by Beauharnois in fighting the recent legislation. It was stated Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario is about to enter into negotiations with the Beauharnois company for the purchase of power.

Under the terms of the contract between the Ontario hydro and the Beauharnois company, it was stated, the latter would be entitled to sell power to Ontario municipalities at a price 10 per cent lower than the Ontario hydro charges.

BROCKVILLE SCHOOL BURNS

Night Fire Passes Unnoticed

The new Brockville rural school, which was opened on Jan 18, 1935, is completely destroyed by fire sometime Monday night or early Tuesday morning. The school is located 11 miles straight south of Vermilion. The district trustee was formed late in the year of 1931.

No cleaning are advanced as to the cause of the fire. The building was heated by a furnace in the cement basement on Monday evening the fire was banked, the usual precautions taken because the school was new. Caretaking at the school on Tuesday morning the teacher Mr. A. C. Mallory and the pupils found only the chimney standing amidst the smoldering embers.

A resident across stated that at 11:30 he drove past the school on his way home from a card party, and that the building was as usual then. The school was not fully insured, only $2000.00 being carried, as it was regarded as being nearly fireproof.

The school board met later in the day and selected a building near the school site where it is hoped to reopen school on Monday morning. The furniture has already been ordered from Edmonton. It is the boards intention to rebuild immediately.

Get complete relief from pains and gas

Fruit-a-tives brought quick relief from indigestion.

Mrs. S. Fraser, St. Catharines, says, "Indigestion bothered me severely. I was always uncomfortable after meals and troubled with gas. I tried Fruit-a-tives. They soon brought me complete relief and tested me up generally." Fruit-a-tives are really different! They contain extracts of APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS, PRUNES and HERBS. A sport of nature they act naturally to help all organs function in a normal healthy fashion. Their tonic effect have brought lasting good health to many.

FRUIT-A-TIVES
A FAMOUS DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Dr. P. J. Kelly, of the University of Glasgow, announced that he would leave to take charge of a British ambulance unit in Ethiopia.

The late Lord Dalziel prominent British newspaper publisher, left nearly £400,000 (about $2,000,000) in the government to apply against its public debt.

The house of assembly rejected by a large majority a suggestion the Union of South Africa should remain neutral in any war not concerning her. The vote was 94-14.

Laws to strengthen Belgium's national defences soon will be introduced in parliament, Premier and Foreign Minister Paul Van Zeeland announced in a speech on the international situation.

President rumors Prime Minister Mackenzie King would visit England in the immediate or near future were set at rest by his statement he did not leave Canada while parliament was in session.

Members of the Flying Clubs of Canada Association spent 13,907 hours in the air during 1935, compared to 10,981 in 1934, the association was told at the opening of its convention at Hamilton, Ont. by Secretary George M. Ross.

Air-conditioning equipment will be in operation on a number of the more heavily traveled lines of both railway companies during the coming summer, a joint statement issued by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways stated.

Building permits issued in Greater Vancouver during January this year totalled $377,395, more than 3½ times greater than the total for the corresponding month of 1935 when permits were issued for buildings valued at $97,055.

New World Record

Hank Croman, Of Toronto, Sets New Mark For Nine Walk

Hank Croman Toronto's renowned pedestrian, is the new world record-holder for the one mile walk. The Achilles club veteran stepped off the distance in six minutes 25.7 seconds at the Milrose track and field carnival in Madison Square Garden, New York, to surpass both his own marks.

He not only crashed the Indoor mark of 6:37.2, set by Mike Posen four years ago in the Garden, but surpassed the long standing world outdoor record of 6:32.3, made by the great Canadian, George Goulding, at Montreal, in 1910.

Dominion Drama Festival

Vancouver Club Chosen To Represent British Columbia

The Progressive Arts Club of Vancouver will represent British Columbia at the Dominion Drama festival in Ottawa in April.

The local players were chosen as the coast's representative when adjudicator Allan Wade awarded them first place in the British Columbia competition for their presentation of the social drama Waiting for Lefty.

Laurence Laughed two scenes from the play by Eugene O'Neill, presented by the Vancouver Little Theatre Association was second choice.

Another Smuggling Trick

When a solitary barrel of olive oil arrived at Cairo Egypt from Rome, the native browning suspicions and opened it. Inside they found a little water-proof package floating in the oil. It contained nearly a pound of opium. The person who came to collect the oil has been arrested.

Secret Documents

Papers Show How Woodrow Wilson Guided U.S. Neutrality Policy

Secret documents of the U.S. state department disclosed how Woodrow Wilson personally charted the government's neutrality policy in the stirring days prior to United States' entrance into the Great War.

Page proofs of notes, letters, memoranda and other official documents which the department will publish soon include the rough outline of an early note to Germany protesting unrestricted submarine warfare, drafted by the wartime president himself.

The draft was submitted to William Jennings Bryan, then secretary of state, April 22, 1915, as a result of the death of Leon Chester Thrasher, an American citizen, in the sinking of the British vessel Falaba March 28 in the Irish sea by German submarine.

Wilson proposed the protest should be placed "on very high grounds," and not be limited to the loss of one citizen's life.

His decision determining United States' policy was made soon after the first submarine sinkings long before the destruction of the Lusitania and other ships inflamed American public opinion against ruthless undersea warfare.

Movable Sidewalk

Will Carry Passengers A Mile In Four Minutes

The "hi-way" sidewalk, a substitute for railways, which will carry its passengers a mile in a little more than four minutes, was described in New York by Leo Tavis, to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at New York.

The hi-way is a double sidewalk, one beside the other, one which starts and stops, while its companion moves steadily, but loads from the intermittent companion. Norman W. Storer, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company of East Pittsburg, said hi-ways would cost less to construct and instal than subways and run less power.

Storer credited Ebenezer Hawkins, of Islip, L.I., with originating the hi-way idea in 1874.

In the latest plan the never-stop, or express sidewalk, moves at an average speed of 15 miles an hour, or 22 feet a second, while its speed ranges from 13½ miles an hour to 16½.

With the slower speed of the express, the start-stop sidewalk gyrachronises every 45 seconds, to enable passengers to get on or off the express. The express sidewalk is fitted with chairs. The local sidewalk has no seats, but is fitted with handrails.

Lived Century in Caravan

Woman 108 Had Never Spent Day In A House

Old Mrs. Homer Matthews was born in a caravan. It was her cradle, her permanishner, her carriage for 108 years, and in a caravan she died.

Never in all her life did this wonderful old lady spend a day in a house. Throughout a life which began when William the Fourth was king she travelled, first with her parents and then with her shoemaker husband, through the length and breadth of England.

Almost to her last day she could thread a needle without glasses, and when for her cause the day when her eyes closed for ever, her sons and daughters were about her in the caravan.

Naval Construction

Peace Powers Agree To Plan To Announce Progress Each Year

The international naval conference agreed to a plan by which Great Britain, the United States, France and Italy will announce at the first of each year what their naval construction will be during the following 12 months

The plan, offered as a compromise in an effort to limit the possibilities of a naval construction race, was the first major agreement reached by the conference in nearly three months of work.

Advertising Brings Results

Tourist advertising pays Mr. J. D. Burton, chairman of the tourist committee, Yarmouth Nova Scotia, says his advertisement in a New York paper brought 200 direct queries and one tourist family paid for the whole season's advertising in good purchases at Yarmouth stores. Direct evidence of that sort cannot be thrown lightly aside

Why at 40 You Think You're "Growing Old"

It's Frequently Just an "Idea." Not "Old Age." And Something To Relentlessly Mar Health and Happiness. No More Alarming Than A Slow Form of Auto-Poisoning.

At about 40, many people think they're "growing old." They're tired a lot. Have headaches. Stomach upsets. Dizziness. Nausea.

Well, scientists say the cause, in a great many cases, is merely an acid condition of the stomach. The thing to do is correct that. Then see if your stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, all you do is take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia before meals and before going to bed.

Try this. You'll feel like another person! Take either of the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS" or the convenient new Phillips' Tablets of Magnesia.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at 25c and 50c prices everywhere. Each tablet has the same antacid action as a teaspoonful of Liquid Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Grain Elevators For Argentina

Wage Bum Is To Be Spent On Elevators

Approximately $22,000,000 is to be spent on the construction of grain elevators in Argentina, according to a decree issued by President Justo which is expected to receive the concurrence of the senate and the national committee on elevators.

The decree authorizes the ministry of agriculture to call for public bids to carry out the construction of the elevators and will go to negotiate the purchase of the Transandino Railways system.

Building permits issued in Greater Vancouver during January this year totalled $377,395, more than 3½ times greater than the total for the corresponding month of 1935 when permits were issued for buildings valued at $97,055.

Palestine Regulations

Sale Of Land Must Be Made Under Certain Conditions

The Palestine government will prohibit the sale of land by owners unless they retain a reasonable minimum considered indispensable for livelihood, it was announced by J. H. Thomas, British secretary of state for the colonies, in a message transmitted to Arab political leaders by Sir Arthur Wauchope, Palestine high commissioner.

On the question of barring Jewish immigration, which the colonial secretary declared there could be no question of the stoppage of immigration, the British government does not contemplate any departure from the principle of the absorptive capacity of the country in fixing the immigration schedules."

Rubber Glider When Defiated Will Pack Into Suitcase

The latest Russian invention to advance interest in the sport of gliding is a rubber glider which, when deflated, will go into an ordinary suitcase.

The glider is a shapeless bag of rubber when removed from its case but it is spread on the ground, a hard rubber tail piece and certain stiffening parts inserted and then inflated with air through supplied gas valves. Tests in the air show the device does not collapse and will obey the controls of flight.

Its weight is 90 pounds. He length 20 feet and its wingspread 30 feet Science Service.

JESUS HELPS A DOUBTER

Golden text: I believe; help thou mine unbelief. Mark 9:24.

Lesson: Luke 7.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 35:5-10.

Explanations And Comments

The Doubt of John the Baptist. Luke 7:18-23. Some of John the Baptist's disciples had remained loyal to him, and they visited him in his gloomy dungeon in the Castle of Machaerus. They brought John tidings of what Jesus was doing, especially of the deeds of mercy which they either saw Jesus perform or about which they heard. John, the desert dweller, the man of out-door life, must have been in his dungeon like a caged lion. Filled with gloomy thoughts about the sudden ending of his own career, hopeless of ever regaining his freedom, John was assailed by black thoughts. John was not proving the kind of Messiah he had expected. John had looked for severity and Jesus had shown gentleness; for ruthlessness there had been mercifulness. Probably, too, John's loyal disciples expressed their doubts about the Prophet whose ways were so different from their masters'.

Jesus distinguished John because he was no fickle reed shaken by every breeze. Jesus was the stern prophet of righteousness who would speak plainly to the axe being laid to the root of the tree and talked in stern tones about judgment to come. Finally, John knew that Jesus, with his ministry of sympathy and helpfulness, and his eagerness to bring forgiveness and service, left John wondering.

John sent two of his disciples to Jesus with the question, "Art thou he that cometh, or look we for another?"

Jesus' Message to John, Luke 7: 21-23. Jesus did not then answer the question directly, but bade John's two disciples with him be let them watch him for a time. Then they could go back and report to John the things they had seen and heard about Jesus' cures and the marvelous words. In the wilderness Jesus refused to perform a miracle for his own sake, but throughout his ministry he healed the sick, fed the hungry, gave to the blind, gave strength to palsied limbs, and cleansed lepers. He would not tempt the Lord his God by doing a mere work of wonder, but by doing his own comfort or to gratify the curious crowds, but good deeds always put forth his boundless sympathy. The power he ascribed to God: "The Father that dwelleth in me he doeth the works." By these deeds and by his words, even possibly "the good deeds and good news, he was authenticated.

In Command Of Forces

The King Has Assumed Ranks Of Admiral Of The Fleet, Marshal Of The Army And Air Force

The King has been pleased to assume the ranks of admiral of the fleet, field marshal of the army and marshal of the Royal Air Force, the posts, announcement of which was made recently, were assumed at the time of his accession to the throne.

These ranks, formally placing the king in command of the kingdom's three defence forces, are the same as those held by the late King George.

Another formal announcement was of an order-in-council directing certain alterations in the prayer book for the Church of England.

In the prayer for the king, "Edward" is substituted for "George", and the words "Prince of Wales" by will read "Our Gracious Queen Mary, Albert Duke of York, the Royal Family."

The Duke of York is included in the petition as being heir presumptive to the throne.

This order also establishes the future position of Queen Mary. It had been thought her majesty would be called "Mary, the Queen Mother", even possibly "The Dowager Queen Mary."

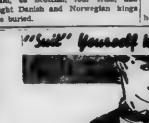
"Suit" Yourself With A New Knit



PATTERN 2234

Come Spring what's to succeed the top-coat? A knitted suit, of course, and many smart-minded women have this softly tailored style whose neatly belted jacket is just plain knitting, with stripes in an easily memorized contrasting stitch. Note the linked closing and crisp revers. The jacket would be smart too with a cloth skirt.

To obtain this pattern and complete instructions for making the suit shown in sizes 16-18 and 38-40; an illustration of it, and of all the stitches needed; material requirements.

To Make Island Sea

Italian Engineers Are Starting Big Project In Ethiopia

An Italian engineering commission is in Assab, Eritrea, to complete plans for creation of a "new sea."

The new sea will extend inland directly to the eastern Azasa region of Ethiopia where Francis M. Richett and other promoters say there is oil.

The engineers expect to let the Indian Ocean flow into Danakil's sunken "Death Valley," which in some places lies 500 feet below sea level.

Then they would bring Eritrea ports 100 miles nearer the interior than this southern port of Eritrea, for completion of the thousands of tons of materials being brought from Italy to occupied Ethiopian territory.

The engineers, surveying between Massaua and Assab, plan to dig one canal to the north and one to the south, to maintain the level of the "new sea."

They estimate two years and 1,500,000,000 lire will be required for the job, hoping the Indian Ocean's tides will carry the small, man-made canals sufficiently to admit ships to the interior waters

The engineers expect to inundate a new waterless territory 100 miles wide and 300 miles long, transforming a large desert area into fertile region and lowering the temperature which is now often 145 degrees Fahrenheit.

New Assault On Everest

Leader Of Party Confident Peak Will Be Reached

Bound for the last great adventure on earth," the first members of the 1936 Mt. Everest expedition sailed London, en route to Darjeeling, India, for a new assault on the world's highest mountain.

Three men and one woman departed first, and the nine other members of the party followed later. The woman, Mrs. Noel Humphreys, accompanied her husband, Dr. Humphreys, only as far as Paris.

Hugh Ruttledge, veteran leader of the 1933 expedition, again will lead the detail of the perilous snow-bound heights toward the 29,000-foot pinnacle which has defied four previous attempts and has taken nine lives.

"I believe we'll make it this time," he said quietly, standing on the crowded boat train station. "With any reasonable weather, I'm confident of success."

In the 1933 attempt Ruttledge's party fought its way to within 1,000 feet of the [illegible] by driven back by a [illegible] nearly a month ahead of schedule.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. HEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roper Kligo, the boss of the Rawhide and range land, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, and Steve Byrne, a surveyor, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kligo knew would be called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to reverse his earlier endorsement before Chairman Fleming. Boone county so far as Hamilton's plan was concerned, was only a semi-tangled way to waste money.

The meeting terminates, but Russ Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kligo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Russ, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread". Russ shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the scuffle, and Fleming is uninjured. Russ is arrested. The doctor tells Townsend and dresses his wound. Kligo Roper suggests taking Helen to her home, but she refuses and Fleming escorts her home instead. This incident causes Roper to declare open hostility to Fleming.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties. Link goes home, and he surprised to find Riley there ahead of him. Kligo tries to induce Link to drop his scheme, and when Fleming refuses, gives a signal by taking off his hat, and Link is thrown out of doors.

Link kicks Riley out of the house. Buzz Hamilton is sentenced to three years imprisonment and the court adjourns.

On his way home after the trial of Buzz was over, Link meets Sonk Torney, who starts telling Fleming why he withdrew his approval of the water scheme. Before he was allowed to tell the name of the man who had forced him to do so, Torney was shot and killed by a rifle bullet. Link hunts around for the killer, but finds nothing. He comes across Jackpot Mell watering his horse, and

Fewer, Shorter Colds for Those Trying Vicks Plan

Worth of Plan for Better Home-Control of Colds Shown in Tests Among 14,703 People

FURTHER PROVED IN HOME USE

Convincing results in fewer, milder and shorter colds for those following this home guide have been obtained from clinical tests of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. These tests in volving 14,703 people in 5 cities have been further proved in everyday home use throughout the country.

Vicks Plan is the practical result of 20 years' specialized study of colds by Vicks Chemical Laboratories. Its elements it is based on just three simple steps:

1. To Help Build Resistance to Colds Live regularly. Get plenty of sleep; simple food and keep elimination regular. Drink plenty of water. Get some exercise daily outdoors preferable. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

2. To Prevent Many Colds Sniff-nose at once, use Vicks Va-tro-nol. At the first warning nasal irritation, just a few drops up each nostril. Vicks is especially designed for the nose and upper throat - where most colds start. Used at first sign, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to shorten off most colds in the early stages.

3. To Help End a Cold Sooner If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning rub throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub. Its unique VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) It stimulates surface blood supply like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its medicated vapors direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

What this commonsense, medically sound Plan can do for you and your family can be proved only by trying it. You'll find full directions for following Vicks Plan in big packages of Vicks Va-tro-nol or Vicks VapoRub.

Jackpot warns Fleming that if he failed to live he had better leave the country.

(How He Got With The Story)

Fleming's Folly is the result of a bet between Link and Hamilton.

"You bet!" Sunk warned earnestly. "From now till I see wisher hacked up in that bam—if you build one and if it really works—I wouldn't trust a soul if I was in your boots, Link. But you're no soddy, as both men swerved their horses to depart. "If things get real tough, we have a couple more days to really work when we pull the trigger. We think you're all wrong and foolhardy but remember that anyhow. So long, Link!"

He watched them out of sight in the darkness. Then shrugging his shoulders, he rode for the ranch house. Mention of the dam had reminded him of the plans drawn by Steve Byrne for the country's irrigation. He wanted to re-examine them to learn whether they could be modified to suit his altered purpose.

When he entered the ranch house it was to find the place cold and lonely. Let to work in the dark, a fire in the squat, long-unused iron stove. He fumbled for a match but found none. Going to the open kitchen, he spied the roll of thermopenia, and at once his attention became engrossed. He opened them out on the cook table, holding them down with his hands while he began to study them.

Turney had planned a large dam to be built where Link's property adjoined that of Benson, the small rancher from Kligo. In a wedge shape the Hamilton Triple H came in just at this point. Would it be possible to build the dam across Turney's to a smaller dam upstream that would suffice for their two spreads?

Link knew the prints, but became convinced that such a change could be made That chap, Tom McLean, if he could be lured to Rawhide, could revise these drawings. And if they could complete a cut-off for Silver Creek before heavy rains came, it might be possible also to get in the foundations before winter set in. This cold spell, he knew, was but temporary. If the project could be hurried there was promise of a full summer crop of alfalfa to sell their skeptical neighbors!

The Star Loop owner roused from his hallucination in thought of the scheme to ruin that he had set afoot started a fire in the stove. Going again to the kitchen, he returned with several cans of food. As he approached the open stove and struck one on his boot, then tossed it in.

The thin pine shavings took eager light. Link closed the door and turned back to the plans.

That was the last he knew. For with the suddenness of a thunderclap in the mountain hills, the entire ranch house seemed to burst into flame There was a terrific roar. The whole room seemed to crash outward, and with force and concussion that hurled him against the far wall, the iron stove burst into bits as an explosion rocked the room

CHAPTER VII.

The red glow of the burning ranch house was visible several miles over the prairie. Like a shaft of crimson the fire rose higher and higher, reaching in malicious glee as it devoured tinder-dry timber. Startled Horses trotted whinnying their alarm to the far end of the corral, while with cheers with ears laid back, their lawny bodies reddened against the bars.

The shock had awakened Sunk Haltby, by chance the only Star Loop hand in the bunkhouse. Soon, as it developed later, should not have been asleep at this time, but out with the rounds.

Shaken from his bunk by the terrific jar, he landed on his feet, dazed and startled. Seizing a gun, he rushed from the low bunkhouse to stop aghast. His watery grey eyes went round. His cavernous jaw slackened, and for once Haltby forgot to tug at his ear. Veteran of many a cowland accident, he reasoned instantly that someone must be inside the ranch house, hence the explosion.

Already the fire groped hungrily toward the roof. Since dashed to the rain barrel, found a thin skimming of ice on it, and broke it with a hard fist. He splashed the chill water over his clothing in a swift effort to soak himself. Then, without hesitation he rushed to the front door of the house, and shading his eyes from the fearful heat, peered inside for sign of his employer.

Face-down and utterly unconscious, Link Fleming lay in the path of the fire that gnawed into dry flooring. Haltby sprang to his side. Kneeling, he pulled the rancher's arm around his neck. Then he grasped Fleming's knees and started outside with his burden.

Once he stumbled and all-but dropped his employer. Somehow he kept on through licking tongues of fire that made the cinders of the men smoke as though any instant they would burst alive with flame. Link's head might well have been like a blow, its smart and sting painful to their scorched faces.

"Take it easy, Link," Haltby mumbled, coughing from the heavy smoke.

As he reached the corral and mad exhausted beside the juniper rails, hoofbeats sounded nearer. A man was coming. Haltby could do it, he knew, but remember that anyhow. So long, Link!"

He watched them out of sight in the darkness. Then shrugging his shoulders, he rode for the ranch house. Mention of the dam had reminded him of the plans drawn by Steve Byrne for the country's irrigation. He wanted to re-examine them to learn whether they could be modified to suit his altered purpose.

Mechanical Ears

New Method Of Piloting A Plane By Sound Alone

Mechanical ears for piloting a plane by sound alone, an entirely new principle in aviation, were described to the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences Lois De Florez, of the De Florez Engineering Company, of New York, who has spent three years developing them and forms many hours blindfolded give a "ground demonstration" with the instruments.

"It is possible" Florez said, "that a blind man with his more accurately timed hearing, might become a better pilot than one who can see."

All "blind" flying heretofore has been done with the eyes, watching instrument boards. But with "mechanical ears" the pilot flies wholly by listening to a pair of ear phones He can use them in fog, clouds, darkness, on any kind of plane.

The phones are connected with a tiny propeller, set far out on the leading edge of one wing. The propeller is the size of a toy pin wheel. Like the toy, it changes speed with acceleration of the plane it turns faster if the plane dips slower if it ascends. steady if level The propeller drives a little generator. This generator hums in the pilot's ears.

Its tone grows shriller for dip lower for ascent, tells him whether the plane be level. It tells him whether or not the eye could see the same thing. For the electric current is amplified, so that a slight deviation shrieks in warning.

In the phone circuit there is a small gyroscope, set to indicate the slightest turn of the ship to left or right. If the plane turns this gyro cuts off one ear phone.

The pilot then knows he is starting to turn toward the side on which he still hears the hum Here, too the sound warning can be quicker than the eye

The little accident at the Electric Light and Power plant which occurred last Thursday afternoon when a pipe split in the big boiler, necessitating the use of the inadequate smaller boiler during a time of the day when a peak load is being carried, emphasizes the fact that a new boiler, equal to the large one now at the plant will have to be installed very shortly. The small boiler, as an auxiliary unit is practically useless and by one last Thursday handicapped many customers of power just when they needed it most, though heated buildings gave the temperature sink to a have 40 above. Another 10 pound unit would solve the problem quite nicely and would also provide auxiliary power when an overload is being carried by the boiler. Owing to a different rating the small boiler is not the right size and cannot be used for that purpose. The Standard understands that the engineer-in-charge would amount to some $1500 if a new boiler were installed.

FEAR $1,000,000,000 INCREASE IN DEBT

Says Cannot Be Avoided Unless Governments Economize

TORONTO, Feb. 7 — Present burden of governmental debts throughout Canada constitutes a problem the seriousness of which must be so evident that I cannot help wondering if a democracy such as ours can produce governments with sufficient courage to save it," R. H. Pollett of Montreal told the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce here Thursday.

Mr. Pollett was one of several speakers who addressed the notable gathering of industrial executives on the subject "Canada Looks Ahead." Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, was chairman.

"Over the years the dominion debt has increased by approximately $400 Mr. Pollett said. "Unless the government decides to retrench and relief from the burden of advances to provincial and municipal governments is forthcoming, he feared the debt will be increased now at the rate of $1,000,000,000

Making And Unmaking Deserts

The area known to-day as the prairie provinces of Western Canada appeared on the maps a few decades back under the designation "Great American Desert".

That was a misnomer, known only to a handful of people who wanted to maintain the area as a preserve for fur-bearing animals. The truth was that the great bulk of this large territory was not only not a desert but was covered with a luxuriant turf and a substantial portion of it was the habitat of trees and shrubs.

Like most truths that verity came to light and thousands of people flocked in, converted millions of acres into farmsteads and proved that the land was good and capable of producing quality grains, grasses, vegetables and stock in abundance.

After taking possession of this newly-discovered heritage the settlers proceeded to develop it. The sod was turned over, at first a few acres at the time but later, with modern equipment more accessible, they plowed up by the square mile and grew grain in huge fields. Trees were cut down and every shrub torn out by the roots. Mile long furrows without an undefined weed the objective. Prairie sod, except for small reserves for pasture disappeared. Trees and shrubs vanished.

Then came the summer-fallow method of cultivation to give the land a rest from cropping and permit it to store up a reservoir of moisture for growing crop. In this process the land was worked up into a fine tilth turned into dust the finer the better, it was thought.

By the time this system had been well established, the humus and root fiber of the original prairie sod was well worked out and the soil became finer texture each succeeding year. Then came the drought, several years of it for some sections, and during this period the high prairie winds whipped the fine dusty soil into the air, drove it hither and yon, piling it up against fences and buildings and covering it always and what pasturage remained.

In some districts the fine soil was swept off down to hardpan and that is the plight of these districts to-day. If these reckless methods are continued the denuded area will increase in size and unless an extensive program of rehabilitation is followed in time may come when the "Great American Desert" will be a reality instead of the misnomer it once was.

There is abundance of evidence that man can and does make deserts, as written W. L. Lewdermilk assistant chief of the Soil Conservation Service, United States department of agriculture who declared in a recent magazine article that the history of civilization "may be interpreted in terms of soil erosion, as direct is the relation between the productive condition of soils and the prosperity of the people."

Mr. Lowdermilk refers to archaeological discoveries demonstrating that the Sahara and Arabian deserts, arid parts of Palestine Mesopotamia and the Gobi and North China deserts were once teeming with human life and outlines the process which eventually converts fertile lands into areas of aridity and sterility.

Many students have attributed deforestation and the consequent drying up of streams to the removal of forests. That is only part of the story. The great enemy of the human race is soil erosion which has been associated with the habitations of man since before the dawn of history. The removal of vegetation, whether grass, brush or forest, exposes soils to the dash of rain or the blast of wind, against which they have been protected for thousands of years

Topsoils blow away or wash away or both. Unprotected sloping lands are usually bared to hard and tight subsoils which drain off the water as from a tiled roof. The protective streams, deprived of their reservoirs of supply, dry up except in rainy seasons, when they become torrential floods and sweep boulders and debris down the slope to deposit them on otherwise fertile lands. Then stories of dramatic floods claim the devastated areas of all palatable vegetation, only to reduce the effectiveness of beneficial rains and accentuate aridity

Truly, in dismal outlook, but fortunately residents of the western provinces and their governments are becoming aware of the danger and, for the first time serious efforts are being made to stem this waste and prevent ultimate disaster Reference to the work and program of the Federal conservation committee in this connection was made in this column recently Provided there is wide-spread knowledge of the causes of soil erosion and a lively appreciation of the rights by which it may ultimately land there need be no fears that plans will be rendered abortive for lack of co-operation on the part of the general public. For, if deserts can be made by man they can also be reclaimed by him. Governments agencies working co-operatively but it is a slow process and an uphill job.

Included in the several recuperative agencies which the committee hopes to press into service to repair the damage already done and prevent further serious loss is a tree planting program. This year five million trees are to be distributed free to farmers in the three provinces from the Indian Head experimental farm. While five millions seems a large number it is a drop in the bucket as compared with the millions of trees which will have to be planted to be effective on a scale proportionate to the problem to be solved

Great French Flying Boat

Thirty-Ton Craft May Be Used For Ocean Service

Residents of the British West Indies are hoping for a sight of the giant new French flying boat, Lieutenant de Vaisneau Paris, when it visits France's colonies.

The 73-passenger ship, built for experiments in trans-Atlantic mail and passenger flying, will span over the Leeward and Windward Islands in its trip, celebrating the 300th year of French rule in Guiana and the Indies It will call at French Guiana, Martinique, Guadaloupe and French-speaking Haiti.

The trip, part of the anniversary trip also will be five other seaplanes with the Emil Bertin, France's largest cruiser-minelayer, and the Surcouf, world's biggest submarine They will be on hand for the inauguration of naval bases at Martinique and Guadeloupe.

Chief interest centres in the great flying boat. Powered with six motors, the huge craft has a wing spread of 160 feet and is 103 feet long. She has a cruising speed of 155 miles an hour Its luxurious interior includes a large lounge, eight double cabins, a dining compartment with commodations, a kitchen, bathrooms and even a bar. Most of these fittings have been taken out for the present trip, but they are being shipped across the sea to be reinstalled at Martinique

The 30-ton craft, manned by eight officers and several mechanics, has been designed for cross-ocean flying by way of the southern route. Experiments prove successful. France hopes to make her the first unit in service between that country and the United States

The Largest Exhibitor

Irish Free State Heads List At British Industries Fair

The British Industries Fair, the great "shop window" of the British Empire is being held in two sections this year as usual, in London and Birmingham simultaneously. A dispatch from London to the Canadian Press correspondent sending the largest number of exhibitors is the Irish Free State, Canada ranking first.

And the Irish Free State has refused to proclaim King Edward VIII. Although President De Valera did it in a message of sympathy.

The Irish Free State does not want to swear allegiance to the British throne. It does not like all the advantages of belonging to the British Empire.

But the British bore grudges they would say that until King Edward is proclaimed at Dublin Castle, no Irish Free State exhibitor will be admitted to the British Empire Fair. But they will not do that, and the Irish Free State will do more business at London and Birmingham.

Conservationists Meet

Says Sanctuary Idea Originated In Saskatchewan

A plan that conservationists may their voting strength in additional elections was made to the North American Wild Life conference at Washington by Jay N. "Ding" Darling, former chief of the biological survey.

More than 1,500 games and fish authorities heard Darling's address at the conference a opening session After greetings were read by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada and the president of Mexico.

Mr. King's message, read by L. B. Harkin, Canada's commissioner of national parks, said:

"The treaty between the United States and Canada for the protection of migratory birds indicates the inter-relation of interests between our countries in that phase of wild life conservation.

Following the policy established by the treaty, Canada is pleased to join with the United States of America and the republic of Mexico in the present effort to advance the cause of conservation of North American wild life by securing the full economic and esthetic possibilities of this great and distinctive resource may not only be enjoyed by the present generation but be handed down unimpaired for the future citizens of this continent."

Mr. Harkin and Hoyes Lloyd represented the Canadian government and Senor Juan Elmer spoke for Mexico.

Lloyd, who is secretary of Canada's advisory board on wild-life protection, said the investigation Dominion was making great progress in conservation.

"The sanctuary idea in North America," he said, "originated in Canada with the establishment in 1887 of Lake Scott bird sanctuary In what is now the province of Saskatchewan, because it was recognized the invasion of agriculture would replace much of the interesting and valuable waterfowl life of the prairies, a number of such bird safety zones were established."

Death Ray Harnessed

Will Now Be Assigned To The Task Of Saving Human Lives

The most potent death ray yet devised by man has been assigned to the task of saving human lives.

Tests of Ke power in the respect were announced in the physics laboratory of the University of Illinois.

The ray, a beam of vibrations 14 times more deadly than X-rays, used to be shot from a scientific "gun" now being assembled under the direction of P. G. Kruger.

Human approach within 50 feet of the "gun" was made because of the speed with which the ray destroys the white corpuscles of the blood. All shields, including those normally used for protection against X-rays and radium, are powerless to stop the deadly beams. The "gun" must be operated by remote control from a distant switchboard.

Experiments have shown Dr Krugers said, that the rays reduce the white blood count from 8,000 to 300 or 400.

Although this means almost certain death to normal human, the physicist asserted, it may mean just the opposite to victims of tuberculosis, the disease in which white corpuscles grow so fast they kill off the life bearing red ones.

Another possibility, he said, was use of the ray to kill the wild growing cells of cancer and Hodgkin's disease

SELECTION OF THE NEW SPEAKER MEETS CRITICISM

Ottawa.—Conservative Leader Bennett made Canadian political history when he shattered the traditional peaceful formality of the opening of parliament by criticizing the selection of Pierre Casgrain as speaker of the House of Commons.

The pomp and ceremony, subdued this year because of the death of King George, was eclipsed by the scene in the House of Commons. The Conservative leader accused the new speaker of attempting to dismiss more than 120 employees of the house summarily and without cause. He said Casgrain's conduct could not be condoned and would serve as a warning to opposition members of his political partiality and unfairness.

The former Liberal whip was elected speaker without a recorded vote, after Prime Minister King's gave notice he would seek investigation of the dismissal episode, including the part played by Arthur Beauchemie, clerk of the house.

Lord Tweedsmuir officiated for the first time as governor-general, making the speech from the throne, which forecast important bills to be presented this session.

At 2 o'clock the formal ceremonies were held. The governor-general arrived with a guard of honor and was saluted by an artillery blast. In keeping with the simple ceremony of the death of King George, the scene in the red-walled senate chamber was drab in contrast to the usual.

It marked the return to power of the Liberal leader and his followers who had been in opposition nearly six years. There are the usual Liberal members in the new house they overflow into seats normally occupied by the opposition members, the servatives, members of the Social Credit group and the Co-operative Commonwealth federation into a relatively small corner.

Premier Mackenzie King appeared on the motion to elect Speaker Casgrain after receiving his long association with the house and stressing his qualifications for the position.

It was not usual for speakers to be opposed upon their nomination, Mr. Bennett said. As a rule they were elected unanimously but there were precedents for their opposition. It had been said a former chief whip made a good speaker because he was familiar with the rules. That in general way he agreed with that statement but there were arguments to the contrary.

"I regret," Mr. Bennett said, "to have to say I am opposed to the election of Mr. Casgrain as speaker." It had been for some months known Mr. Casgrain was to be speaker. Mr. Bennett said. With that knowledge going out unofficially to the public I have not refrained from making any comment on the opposition side

In the pressure of party politics governments often had to do things they did not like. He was sorry Mr. Casgrain had to be the nominee and to be fair to the prime minister and to the government. Mr. King deserved the gratitude of all members

The clerk of the house was reported as having made statements which demanded an inquiry The whole matter would have to be investigated by a committee of privilege

If Mr Casgrain were elected, said Mr. Bennett, he would be in a peculiar position when he had to put to the house a motion to refer his own conduct to a committee

"Can we condone the action of Mr. Casgrain?" asked Mr. Bennett. "I cannot although I am asked to do it. I cannot condone a clear violation of the law."

A Balanced Budget

Speaker Tells Of Factors In Britain's Economic Recovery

Toronto.—A balanced budget, a "trading tariff," and "a housing program that builds houses," were named by Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, as chief factors in Great Britain's recovery from economic depression.

Speaking to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Allen compared the Britain he found four years ago with the country from which he has just returned after another visit. "Four years ago we were feeling sorry about Britain- to-day it is a far different story, a story of prosperity based on common sense."

Mr. Allen went to England in the first place "to write about the dole." The first-class unemployment law which from 1911 to 1920 had "built up a great fund of $700,000,000" had been so decimated by "post-war relief and socialist victories" that its deficit stood at $675,000,000. One-third of the country's manpower on the dole.

When he went back last year the Kansan found prosperity. What happened in the meantime, he said, was that after the nationalist victory in 1931 the decision to balance the budget was made. "The Englishman is old-fashioned; he decided the only way to do that was to take in as much or more than was paid out, so taxes were raised a shilling in the pound and expenses cut by $1,500,000,000. By 1933 the miracle had been accomplished."

Japan Adding To Navy

Planning Biggest Warships In World In Report

London. The Daily Express features a sensational story that Japan is building the biggest warships in the world.

The paper, publishing information which it says has been received by a European country not a member of the naval conference at the London Admiralty, and from Tokyo, alleged Japan is preparing secretly to lay down battleships of 45,000 tons, with 16- or 18-inch guns, when the Washington naval treaty expires.

Eight units of the reported Japanese navy would be battleships of 15,000 tons, a powerful flotilla of 8,000-ton destroyers, and 3,600-ton submarine cruisers armed with two eight-inch guns.

The British battle cruiser Hood, 42,100 tons, is at present the largest warship in the world.

Fear Anti-Semitic Riots

Assassination Of Nazi Leader In Switzerland May Cause Trouble

Berlin The German government acted to forestall anti-Semitic riots after demanding the Swiss government "discover and prosecute those behind the murder" of Wilhelm Gustloff, Nazi leader in Switzerland.

Gustloff was assassinated in Davos by David Frankfurter, a Jew.

Dr. Goebbels, minister of propaganda, forbade all Jewish cultural organizations, such as theatre groups, to meet until further notice.

In an official communication through its minister to Berne, the Nazi government called the slaying "a serious affair, which, without a doubt, was a political murder."

Jewish circles here expressed fear the killing would spur the anti-Semitic campaign.

RESERVE OPINION ON VALIDITY OF FEDERAL LAWS

Ottawa.—The supreme court of Canada has reached the end of the long constitutional reference, reserving judgment on the validity of the last of the eight federal statutes which have been under legal fire for two solid weeks.

It will be a month or six weeks before judgments are delivered and in any event there will be appeals to the privy council in England, either by the Dominion or provinces, depending upon the supreme court's decisions.

It will be necessary for the six judges to study 500,000 words of legal argument before handing down judgment and reading scores of case precedents cited by the opposing counsel. From the beginning to the end of the reference the cost of duty law books read in part.

The eight laws were as follows: Section 498 of the Criminal code; Dominion Trade and Industry Commission Act, Employment and Social Insurance Act, Weekly Rest in Industrial Undertakings Act, Minimum wages Act, Limitation of Hours of Work Act, Natural Products Marketing Act, Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act.

In a general way, the provinces attack validity of each of the eight laws but sometimes not from the same angle or to the same extent. The Ontario argument each statute was constitutional as a whole

Quebec and New Brunswick attacked every law as an infringement of provincial legislative fields as established by the British North America Act. Manitoba and British Columbia attacked only clauses section 498a and the Trade and Industry Act

All provinces, including Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta attacked the section establishing minimum wages as a constitutional and more powerful in the world's seas than it was with more, who have also in the past years

PROPOSAL FOR A PEACE PARLEY PLAN DEFEATED

London The House of Commons turned down a proposal to sponsor a new international peace conference but affirmed its confidence that government will "take all practicable steps to promote international prosperity."

The suggestion for a peace round table came on the motion of George Lansbury, 77-year-old Socialist ex-leader and was defeated 228 to 137

An amendment which eliminated the conference proposal but kept the language of the original resolution on the futility of war" and "grave concern of world-wide preparations for war" was offered by Percy C. Emrys-Evans, Conservative. It passed 307 to 125.

Viscount Cranborne, parliamentary under-secretary for foreign affairs said preliminary examination of the terms of an international conference has already been started "but we cannot fix a date until circumstances favor further progress in this matter."

The last world economic conference he said was a failure because the world was not prepared for it. If another were called it would be not only unfortunate but disastrous, he declared.

Lord Cranborne assured the government had no intention of hanging up the door on the peace efforts Sir Samuel Hoare former foreign minister at Geneva regarding collective measures of economic problems. The general aim was international agreement which will remove from nations the incentive to enlarge armaments and establish the peace of the world on a sure foundation

Commons heard the house that the League of Nations Union at any time could not be a decisive factor in the world's affairs. It had never been anything but a voice crying in the wilderness. Such a decision, he said, was for when nations and governments were ready to make agreements and pacts for safeguarding their interests in Europe.

It was the government's intention, after all, to go more slowly in the matter of arming itself.

Thousands of people in every part of Britain and elsewhere, Lansbury said, looked to Labrador. Labrador has not triumphed throughout the world In central Europe it has been defeated in the short run.

Mr Lansbury's resolution invited the house to affirm its profound belief that the futility of war and its horrors with grave concern would make preparations for war and in of the world, through the League of Nations, a genuine effort to make an immediate effort for the reduction of armaments and a conference to deal with economic factors which are responsible ...

RAILWAYS AND MOTOR TRUCKS IN COMPETITION

Hamilton, Ont. — Competition between railways and motor trucks is still far from established on a proven economic basis, Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, said in an address before the Engineering Institute of Canada annual convention

He defended the railways against a charge they had not adequately attempted to meet the competition of road-borne traffic. Conditions in the highway transportation business were unsatisfactory even to those engaged in it, Sir Edward suggested.

Because of this, resulting in acute internal competition among the highway carriers themselves, they now were disposed to welcome regulation of rates and services, whereas they had been bitterly opposed to it

Sir Edward said there had been considerable confusion as to the exact of damage done to railways by highway competition While Canada's total volume of business increased since 1926 construction and the marketing of agricultural export commodities totalled only 30 to 50 per cent of the 1926 figures.

There was no reason to be surprised that earnings during the period were only about 64 8 per cent. of the 1926 volume since three were industries which ordinarily contributed mostly to railway traffic. It was certain that motor truck competition was not the chief factor in delaying recovery of freight movement by rail.

The public's general opinion, he said, that railways were asleep at the switch is not intelligently combatting highway transportation was wholly baseless.

Railways would not hope to meet at a profit the major part of the competition of private motor cars. Expansion of general motor and increased importance of tourist business led to improvement in existing highways and construction of a great mileage of new roads It would have been bad policy for the railways to oppose "this natural development of social economic life

Important Engine Tests

Cunard White Star Superliner "Queen Mary" Subjected To Rigid Inspection

Preparations are being completed for the important engine tests to which the new Cunard White Star superliner Queen Mary" will be subjected before she leaves the basin of John Browns shipyard, Clydebank, Scotland.

The rigid "bank of inspection, under the joint supervision of company and shipyard experts, is expected to occupy several weeks, although preliminary surveys have already been carried out. The four 35-ton propellers have already been temporarily disconnected from their 227 foot long shaftings, and furnaces and boilers lighted, but every particle of the ship's machinery will undergo minute and severe tests in the yards before the actual speed trials, which will take place beyond the Heads of Arran, in the Firth of Clyde Prior to proceeding on her speed trials the Queen Mary" will leave Clydebank about March 24 next and proceed to Southampton where she will enter the new Southampton dry-dock to be prepared for the trials

The speed trials of the "Queen Mary" will be conducted with the utmost secrecy. Not a single soul of the 500 men aboard except Sir Edgar Britten, the commander will know just when the tests have actually begun or ended

During the speed trials messages will be exchanged between the commander and the engine room in code instead of by telephone, giving details of the vessel's speed and behavio These messages will be recorded in cipher on perforated tape, similar to quotations on a stock ti ker.

For fear that the superliner may swamp yachts and houses on shore during these special manoeuvres, the speed trials of the "Queen Mary" will be carried out beyond the Heads of Arran in the Firth of the Clyde Instead of over the usual measured mile at Skelmorlie off the Ayrshire coast in Wemyss Bay The Queen Mary" will speed over her actual course 25 times, anchoring at night off the Tail of the Bank Later in leaving the Clyde, three further tests will be carried out. Stern tests to ascertain jhe ship's speed when going hard astern will be made off Lands' End when sailing to Southampton. Manoeuvring trials will then be carried out to find the area required and the time the liner will take to turn completely around. Later there will be consumption trials in the Atlantic to discover the oil fuel consumption per 24-hour period.

Senate To Co-operate

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen Says Both Parties Will Work For The Good Of Canada

Conservative members of the senate, now in a majority in the upper house, will not employ their numerical strength in harassment of the governmental minority, but will co-operate sincerely, diligently and without prejudice in reviewing legislation This was the assurance given to Senator Raoul Dandurand, government house leader, by Rt. Hon Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader in the senate

In the past five years the Liberal senators had worked unstintingly and helpfully with their Conservative colleagues. The latter were now in a position where they could reciprocate and Senator Meighen assured Senator Dandurand that this assistance would be forthcoming

He believed all members of the upper house appreciated the necessity of co-operating for the good of Canada and was confident the senate's deliberations would redound to the credit of parliament and the country

Mr Meighen's observations came at the close of a brief speech he delivered in the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne

PEOPLE BEFORE PROPERTY

Golden text No servant can serve two masters for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon. Luke 16 13.

Lesson: Luke 8.

Devotional reading: Colossians 1: 9-18.

Explanations And Comments

The Gerasene Demoniac, Luke 8: 26-39. A boat with Jesus and his disciples was beached one day on the eastern shore of the lake, which belonged to the Gerasenes, facing Galilee. Jesus was at once met by a naked demoniac whose abode was in the tombs. Such tombs were caves, either natural or hewn out of the rock, which were used as burial places. They were always outside the cities, usually in lonely regions, and because they contained the bones of the dead were regarded as "unclean". Syrians to-day believe that evil spirits haunt such places.

The man fell down before Jesus, crying, "What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of the Most High God?" "The Most High God" is a heathen term for God found several times in the Old Testament and in the Pseudepigrapha. That it was acute mania which the man was suffering is possible from his violent paroxysms, indicated by his having been bound with chains which he had broken to make his escape into the wilderness.

"I beseech thee, torment me not," the man cried as Jesus bade "the unclean spirit" leave him. "What is they name?" Jesus asked. He sought to calm the man and gain his confidence, and by asking for his name to make him realize his own identity. "Legion," the man answered; "for many demons were entered into him." Luke adds, "Under the demons, so Luke's account states, entreated Jesus not to command them to depart into Hades (the abyss), but to let them enter the herd of swine "ing on the mountain and Jesus "let them leave." Jesus uttered the word "Go!" or "Depart!" according to Matthew's account.

The result that happened was that the swine, perhaps frightened by the loud shrieks and the gestures of the maniac, rushed down the steep incline into the lake and were drowned. This may not have been the first herd of swine driven into the lake by his frantic cries. Many persons, rightly believing with Whittier that "nothing is to be greed in him which evil is in me," are troubled by this loss to the owners of the herd. The answer is that the good wrought upon the man and upon the whole country side by the cure of one so dangerous far away outweighed the loss to the owners

The keepers of the swine fled to report their loss, in the city and the country round about, whereupon the people flocked to the scene. They found the man sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in his right mind. Seized with fear lest Jesus might destroy other property, they at once sought him to depart from them.

Jesus left in a boat for Capernaum. The man begged to go with him, but Jesus told him to return to his own home and there declare what things God had done for him. The man obeyed and published the news everywhere.

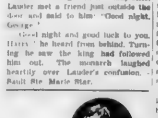
Famous Scottish Entertainer Confused By Rework Of The Ring

Sir Harry Lauder, the famous Scottish entertainer, and his wife, Lady Lauder, are guests at the Palace theatre in London one night and later visitors there in the royal box.

After leaving their majesties, Lauder met a friend just outside the door and said to him: "Good night, George."

"Good night and good luck to you, Harry," he heard from behind. Turning he saw the king had followed him out. The monarch laughed heartily over Lauder's confusion. — Sault Ste Marie Star.



FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. KEATING

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roper Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide and railway magnate, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, had forced Hoak Tenney, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo knew would be called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to reverse his earlier endorsement, and declare that irrigation in Boone county so far as Fleming's plan was concerned was only a newfangled way to waste money.

The meeting terminates, but Bunn Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Bunn, who accuses Fleming of trying to force his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "property." Bunn shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is unhurt. Bunn is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties.

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Tenney to see whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there he has an epiphany. He wrecks the house, burns it and the plans and starts Tenney's scheme. He is rescued from the blaze by an employee.

(Now Go On With The Story.)

They turned to see a short man in a fur-collared overcoat pausing in the doorway. At recognition that was a gay lie he quickly doffed his derby hat. The man was apple-faced with a long pointed nose and a sharp chin. He bowed gravely and came forward.

"You're Mr. Fleming, I guess? My name's G. I. V. Berrens. Traveling representative of the Western Improvement Company of Denver. I er, heard about a project Mr. Kilgo is interested in, and decided to come out to speak to him. I must have been on the way when this er, regrettable incident occurred.' He stood beside the recumbent rancher. "Mighty sorry, might sorry," he stated in a low, peculiarly husky voice. "Mighty sorry indeed."

Link could not recall having seen the man before. Berrens drug up a stool and offered it to Helen Then tossing his derby on the stand where Bunn had sat, he thawed out his long overcoat, apparently joining his fat little hands behind him. Rocking back and forth on his heels and toes he smiled again and shook his head.

"Er I am not selling anything but looking for a chance to sell ideas, Mr. Fleming. So don't worry about that. Fact is, in your—ah, unfortunate condition the information you may, perchance be particularly amenable to my proposition."

Link's glance showed plain loughter. He did follow to be going, but had no visible effect on Mr. Berrens, however. Nodding and smiling from one to the other of them, and back again, he continued what sounded like a prepared speech.

"You see, I believe, interested in irrigation?"

"I reckon so."

"Right! At the Trailend Hotel in Rawhide I chanced to fall into conversation with one or two townspeople. Mr. Otto Pieper, president of the bank, for one. Ah I gather that you and that young lady have been discussing some irrigation project in common — together — which, one might say, is not brought highly of by cattle ranchers?"

"That's true, Mr Berrens

The fussy little man exhibited a row of good teeth. "Sir, the company I represent, the Western Improvement Company, is a powerful, well-financed concern. We are, as a matter of fact, interested in securing small, interesting place where we can experiment. I am not trying to sell anything, sir, except possibly an idea."

Don't think I ran afford even an idea now, Mr Berrens My ranch house

Exactly" Mr Berrens brushed his gold teeth gleamed "Quite so. Abandoning of your ranch house is, I assume, a severe blow to a man of your apparent financial standing Nothing saved, eh? Mr. Fleming, you are a sick man, sir. Yrhh! That such a thing should happen in this day and age!

A gentleman named Hoak Torney was stein, I am told. Also, unmarried at the same time tried to kill you. This er, fire seems to be of incendiary origin, do you think? At least, some miscreant seems to have placed dynamite in your stove.

"What I am getting at," he ended with dramatic suddenness and appropriate gestures, "is this: my company will purchase your ranch, sir. We don't want it for the cattle. We want it because Silver Creek provides an interesting opportunity to try irrigation and to study the results."

"But we intend — " Helen began.

"With men trying to kill you at every turn? Mr. Fleming, why not accept a fair price and leave the country?"

The bunkhouse became silent save for the muttering outside and the impatient stamp of horses' hoofs. Link scowled as he looked from Berrens to the girl, then back again. Discouragement welled in him at realization that all Boone County wanted to see the irrigation scheme fail actually hoped it would fail. Someone wanted it to the extent of attempting to kill him. The ill-will of the plans, the destruction of his ranch house all this was warning enough. Bunn almost as if Fleming were responsible for the

Fire-Retarding Wood

Chemically Treated With Compound Wood Will Not Burn

Connecting with the statement of United States builders and investment that the United States forest fire loss for 1935 amounted to more human lives and cost $225 000,000 comes a report from the Bell Telephone of Fire Underwriters containing an announcement that there is such a thing as fire-retardant wood.

The wood tested by the Board was red oak and maple which had been thoroughly and uniformly impregnated in pressure tanks containing ammonium salts, a fire-proofing compound which, it is not perhaps generally known, has actually been employed in Canada for at least two years The treated wood is at most the same in appearance as ordinary wood but is a little heavier because of the salt content It is easily loaded and takes varnish well It is claimed that tests of the kind tested the treated wood under conditions that nest untreated walls or floors burning up in flames and that the treated wood did not burn at all for after a long period of exposure to the fierce heat was despite burned Not once, however, did the treated wood flame or add the spread of combustion. The National Board of Fire Underwriters' final verdict was that the wood was a non-flammable

SUN LIFE REPORTS BETTER BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Definite signs of an improvement in general business conditions can be gathered from the 65th Annual Report of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada just released for publication by Arthur B. Wood, President and Managing Director. The statement reflects the strength and stability of this pre-eminent Canadian institution. Surrenders, lapses and withdrawals were at the lowest level in the Company's history, while the volume of new assurance written showed a substantial increase over 1934. The total Assurances in Force now amount to $1,000,000,000, and during 1935 payments to policyholders totalled nearly $20,000,000.

Net business paid for during the year was one hundred and seventeen million dollars and the assets now exceed the three hundred million dollar mark.

The Insurance Company's investments are largely in bonds and mortgages. Real estate holdings, the financial statement points out, do not constitute a heavy item, and the Company's investments in stocks are well within safe limits. The Company's capital and surplus funds are also in a very strong position.

Commenting on the business outlook, Mr. Wood said: "Canada's economic position is fundamentally sound. Industrial activity has been increasing and the outlook for business is encouraging. Agricultural conditions have improved and the prospects for the coming year are favourable. Employment has been increasing and the purchasing power of the people has been augmented. Retail trade has been active and the heavy industries have been busy. Building construction has been increasing and there is a definite demand for capital for new industrial plants.

"Payments to policyholders and beneficiaries, which have increased steadily since the Company was organized, reached a total of $19,000,000 in 1935 and during the past five years have amounted to $85,000,000. Dividends and bonuses paid to policyholders during the same period have totalled $47,000,000."

HOWARD MUCKLE

The cold snap must be nearly a record, as the old-timers have ceased saying to each other, "Do you remember the winter of so and so?" This was the cold times!

The Hospitalite Dramatic club presented their play, Down in the Mud House in Dewberry last Friday night. In spite of the cold a fair crowd attended to see the performance and to enjoy the dance which followed.

The Vale local Softball girls club held a meeting last Saturday and decided to start having a dance in the Dewberry Hall March 1st. Proceeds to go to the ball grounds.

Among the visitors in Vermilion on Monday were Mr. and Mrs. Mc-Cune, who were guests for the day at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hall entertained a number of friends at their home on Tuesday evening, the occasion being the birthday of their daughter Ruth.

The Dewberry school district is one of the few in the province to have the full number of trustees, and even then the budget is kept down to a few hundred dollars. It is a unique district in many respects.

Another of the many instances of business men's meetings is seen in the local Kiwanis Club, which has undertaken to help the unemployed by furnishing designs and patterns for commercial and industrial plants.

Farmers in potential areas of Northern Alberta are being urged to get organized so as to be entitled to loans from the Provincial Government and during 1935 payments of nine hundred and eighty-eight dollars were made.

New business paid for during the year was one hundred and seventeen million dollars and the assets now exceed the three hundred million dollar mark. Lapses and withdrawals were at the lowest level in the Company's history, while the volume of new assurance written showed a substantial increase over 1934. The total Assurances in Force now amount to $1,000,000,000, and during 1935 payments to policyholders and beneficiaries, which have increased steadily since the Company was organized, reached a total of $19,000,000 in 1935 and during the past five years have amounted to $85,000,000. Dividends and bonuses paid to policyholders during the same period have totalled $47,000,000.

STATES WRITER LAUDS PREMIER FOR SINCERITY

(Bulletin)

Forest Davis, feature writer of the Scripps Howard newspapers of the U. S. interviewed Premier William Aberhart on Wednesday and came away greatly impressed with the sincerity of the province's leader.

Mr. Davis, who is here to witness the opening of the first legislature in the world where a Social Credit government has held office, spent a few moments chatting with the Premier at the Macdonald hotel on Tuesday evening and then spent nearly an hour in his office at his office on Wednesday afternoon.

In coming away Mr. Davis, asked for a comment on his impressions of the Premier and the conversation, said: "I never met Aberhart on several occasions and have been impressed with him as a theorist and capable leader. Also I have been impressed with the evident sincerity. He is a thinker of much who has some ideas worth while and will benefit Alberta people and which he feels confident he can carry out."

Mr. Davis expects to spend several days here prior to returning east, he will sit in on several sittings of the house and will study the Social Credit act often on that he can apply it properly to a study of the Townsend plan which will loom large in the next U. S. election.

OBITUARY

ALFRED ERNEST MAGGS
(From the Victoria Colonist)

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 29 for the late Alfred Ernest Maggs. A large number of friends attended, among whom were many pioneers from the Vermilion Alberta district. Many beautiful floral offering were received, giving testimony to the esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends. Rev. W. G. Wilson, D. D. pastor of the First United church, conducted the service in the mortuary chapel of the Sands Royal Oak Burial Park, the body being laid to rest near that of his father, who pre-deceased him in 1929. Besides his widow and three children, he leaves to mourn his loss, his mother, Mrs. Maggs, of Vermilion, and his sisters, Mrs H. J. Pays, Vermilion, Mrs. C. H. Wilson, Victoria B. C., Mrs. J. C. Sinclgrove, Vermilion, Mrs. J. H. Hope, Edmonton, Mrs. C. F. Hicks and Mrs. F. M. Reed of Vermilion and three brothers, George and William, Vermilion and Stewart E. of Pearl River. The Veterans had an fine charge of the funeral arrangements.

AUBURNDALE

Bookskille school, a few miles north of here was burned to the ground on Monday night the 10th. This school was built in 1921 at a cost of about twenty thousand dollars, and was a modern school in every respect with furnace and brick chimney. No one knows how the fire started. The building was insured, Cornell Bayle was hauling a load of wheat to Vermilion on Monday the 10th and found that the roads were so bad that he could not make the trip that day. He left his load in the Brucktille school yard intending to return later. The sleighs and load of wheat were soon what scorched in the fire, but not completely destroyed.

A number of activities were postponed here on account of the very cold weather, those included a Welfare tea at the Lake 26 skating rink scheduled for February 5th, a dance at Carson's hall and the U.F.W.A. monthly meeting, the latter being postponed until second Thursday in March.

Everybody has been enjoying the card parties every Tuesday evening at the different homes here. The next card party will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cleland on Tuesday evening February 25th

Mr. George Cox, on the advice of his Vermilion physicians, went to Edmonton to see a specialist about his health. Mr. Gordon Matthews came down during the week of Mr. Cox's farm as well as winter, while Mrs. Lar.ows is keeping house.

A social Credit meeting was held in the Auburn Leaf school on Thursday evening the 13th. The subject discussed was the new school act. No decisions were arrived at. The next social Credit meeting will be held on Monday evening, March 9th.

The Lathyrus East Co-Operative society held a directors meeting at the Auburndale store on Thursday after noon February 13th. It was decided to pay a patronage dividend to all its patrons.

Little Harold Cleland is still at home. Dr. Knell advised that he remain away from school for awhile to build up his health and strength. He will return to school just as soon as the weather warms up and he can get out to play at noontime.

The young people have been enjoying Sunday skating around here despite the cold weather. The rink on Lake 26 and the one down the ravine have had big crowds or happy shakers every week-end

SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA

Reflects the Strength and Stability of Life Assurance

A voluntary co-operative enterprise which for generations has stood every test

HIGHLIGHTS OF 1935

ASSURANCES IN FORCE ... Exceed Two Billion Seven Hundred Million Dollars. This is the amount which will be paid by the Sun Life as the policies now in force reach maturity. By thrift and foresight more than a million policyholders have provided, through Sun Life assurance, for the support of their families in case of premature death and their own independence should they live to old age.

NEW ASSURANCES PAID FOR ... Exceed Two Hundred Million Dollars for the year. During 1935 more than seventy thousand persons established estates by purchasing Sun Life policies, thus providing security for many thousands of families.

POLICYHOLDERS AND BENEFICIARIES ... Benefits amounting to Eighty Million Dollars were paid out—over Two Hundred and Eighty-two Thousand Dollars for each working day. Policyholders who have been members 65 years ago it has paid out to policyholders and beneficiaries well over Nine Hundred Million Dollars.

ASSETS ... Of over Three Hundred Million Dollars means that every Sun Life policy will be settled promptly when the time for payment arrives. In the meantime, this fund invested on behalf of policyholders, contributes notably to national and industrial progress.

FIRE FIGHTERS HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET, FROLIC

The Boys of the Fire Brigade, together with several invited guests in replies the Mayor and members of the town council, the town secretary, the press, ex-members of the brigade and various other guests, enjoyed a sumptuous banquet at the Dunsmuir hotel last Thursday evening. The banquet was followed by a social evening at several hours duration, during which the boys and their guests enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

Quite in keeping with the brigade's annual frolic as most of their activity is confined to putting out fires.

Fire chief Hill was in charge of the ceremonies and after a few remarks from the mayor and guests, some community singing was indulged in. Fr's community singing was put over in a fine way, due to the ability of the leader, Mr. Eric Cormack of the X-ray. Gus Law entertained with some well thought out and equally well executed caricatures, while both Mr. Fryers and Mr. Cormack favored with solos. Mr. Frank Manners was accompanist for the evening.

Jimmie Swanson gave a rendition of his own composition which he called before the reproduce next week.

While the above is merely a brief line of the activities at the banquet, the most important part cannot be reproduced, that is the good will, friendship, sparkling sallies, wisecracks that ran like lark and forth all evening and which could only be appreciated by being present. As it was the boys including the writer, were sorry when the evening was brought to a close.

What's Wrong With Radio?

What is wrong with the Canadian Radio Commission, and its programs? There is abundant evidence that the governing body of radio broadcasting in this country is not doing the best by the taste of Western Canadian radio fans. Discontent is heard on all hands when the subject is under discussion among users of radio in the three prairie provinces and press commentators among those inclined to be more watchful of the authorities are constantly poking [illegible] commission.

Dissatisfaction is not a rife [illegible] Eastern Canada because it is said the residents of that [illegible] the benefit of the CBC's [illegible] they get quite a strong signal over the air at the moment can with an easy twist of the set, turn it something more to their taste and bring in a wide variety from the best Eastern stations to the other side of the international border with entertainers of [illegible] standing.

In Western Canada radio fans are largely precluded from this consolation. Due to the fact that the distance between [illegible] is the west as such as it inevitably is not receptions [illegible] as the more popular ensemble stations on the American side of the line and particularly at those hours when parties are on [illegible] are not for the few who are able to afford the most up-to-date models.

Unfortunate [illegible] strategic position from a combined agricultural depression and [illegible] winter of the past few years the great majority of prairie [illegible] are forced to [illegible] entertainment from radio is not [illegible] quoted receiving sets. Modern [illegible] are the finest [illegible] the most modern sets equipped with the latest refinements are [illegible] are unable for the present at least [illegible] at the other side of the line in some instances [illegible] the latest [illegible].

This is undoubtedly one of the [illegible] dissatisfaction and is one which should be [illegible] if possible rectified in the minimum.

Another oft-heard complaint is that in the choice of the [illegible] programs the Commission devotes too much time to highly classical music and too little to the type of entertainment which is the greater majority of Western Canadians would prefer to hear. It is stated that the programs are not well balanced. That great majority would prefer to hear a little more of the [illegible] talking, jazz, dance type of music and more entertainment of a humorous character. The Commission appears able or willing to provide, but at the same time they want that entertainment furnished by what may be termed "top [illegible] and not by modern amateur.

It is true perhaps that the Commission has already perceived its shortcomings in this respect and has made some effort more recently to cater more to popular demand but in doing so has relied to a considerable extent on local talent of not very high rating, possibly due to a desire to placate local jealousies. In this connection it might be suggested that the commission might very well make more use of local commercial stations as an elimination school and select only those best qualified to appear on their chain programs with some provision for adequate remuneration.

It is generally conceded, too, that one of the factors responsible for the commission's seeming inability to cater to western requirements is the fact that too much of the revenue derived from radio license fees finds its way into the Dominion government's treasury and too little of it is allotted to the commission for its work. If the commission were allowed a greater proportion of the revenue it is possible that they might be able to find or develop sufficient talent to eliminate some of the criticisms to which it is exposed.

Then, too the commission has been subjected to criticism from time to time for lack of initiative. A case in point is its decision not to make a filmtherphone recording of the funeral service of the late King George for reproduction at an hour when the great majority of Western radio listeners could participate.

It is admitted that the problem is one which bristles with difficulties and that the commission has not been perfect in its efforts but it should attempt to satisfy everybody, but one instinctively feels that it has not succeeded as yet in going as far in this direction as it might

There is some talk just now of a new commission being set up consisting of only one paid member, the chairman, and an unsalaried advisory board. Whether such a change would result in a greater measure of satisfaction would depend largely on the personnel. The membership, if such a board is created, should certainly include one or more who are conversant with the western situation and it is essential that at least one or more of the members possess knowledge something about showmanship as well as the technical side of radio.

Trans-Atlantic Air Mail

Regular Service Between Britain And Canada To Come Soon

Regular trans-Atlantic air mail services by April or May of next year is considered likely by United States postal officials.

Harllee Branch, second assistant postmaster-general, said: "Undoubtedly the first route would be from the United States to Great Britain, probably through Ireland to London."

He expressed the belief the existing air line to China would be carrying passengers by early spring this year and reported a branch route from Honolulu to Australia and New Zealand was under consideration.

Keeps School Rich

Blue Castle Gained They Picture To Hold Legacy

A tiny portrait of a man, only two by three inches in size, keeps the Blue Coat School, Christ's hospital at Hertsham, Sussex richer by some $40,000 and keeps Oxford University poorer by a similar amount.

Over 150 years ago, James St. Amand made a will leaving his money to the Blue Coat School, and stipulated that the miniature picture of his father, done in gold, must always remain in possession of the school and be publicly produced at least once yearly. Otherwise the money would at once go to Oxford University.

First, the Bolshevist theory of man is believed by many authorities to have been in use at least 40 000 years.

Explorer Proves Neolithic Man Fished In Sahara Desert

Fishing in the Sahara was once a favourite pastime of man. This discovery was made by Henri Lhote, a Frenchman who unearthed the first skeletons of neolithic man found in Africa. These men lived 10,000 years ago he said, when swift streams now buried under sand ran through a fertile Sahara plain. The young explorer, who penned two years digging in prehistoric dumps in the southern part of the desert, analysed the bone structure of the old-time fisher, who belonged to the Negro race. Vertebrae of fresh water fish as well as harpoon heads made from bone, showed a dwelling river bed was nearby. This surmise was later proved correct.

There is some talk just now of a new commission being set up consisting of only one paid member, the chairman, and an unsalaried advisory board. Whether such a change would result in a greater measure of satisfaction would depend largely on the personnel. The membership, if such a board is created, should certainly include one or more who are conversant with the western situation and it is essential that at least one or more of the members possess knowledge something about showmanship as well as the technical side of radio.

The Real Issue

Can Any Nation Be Permitted To Break Treaties

The real issue between Italy and the League of Nations is not whether Abyssinia is uncivilized and blameworthy or not, but if she has grievances or not. The real issue, the real question, is can Italy or any nation be allowed to break its treaties and agreements and disregard all its obligations can every nation be allowed wherever it has or thinks it has a grievance against another to be the sole judge in its own case and enforce its claims by force of arms on any country and its people its men ,women and children—by machine guns, explosive bombs, poison aeroplanes and even by poisoned gas?

Ship Without Rivets

River Barge Of Russian Shipping Line Is Welded Throughout

An all-timber river barge that has been added to the Lower Volga Shipping Line is said to be a unique example of modern shipbuilding, as rivets whatsoever were used in its construction, the sections of the hull being welded together. The finished length of all the welded joints totalled 40 miles. The vessel has a length of 164 feet, a beam of 62 feet, a middle height of 11 feet, and a carrying capacity of 6,000 tons. By eliminating the rivets there is considerable economy in metal was effected. The weight of the hull is 1,100 tons, 70 tons less than that of a riveted barge of the same tonnage.

Device Gives Seven Hours Reading To Eighteen Persons

By means of the invention of a blinded World War veteran, a man may tell its story to eighteen persons, with scarcely an interruption, at one narration. The new device, called the "Librophone", was perfected by T. G. Leslie, of Birmingham, Eagle... The recording is on sound-track recording 20 sq sound tracks may be run to and fro along a 500-foot length of standard sound film, making 10,000 feet of recording possible in 300 feet. Projected at the customary rate of 22 feet a minute it will insure the listeners of a reading of just over seven hours

Manufactured Foods For Live Stock

According to a recent survey, ready-mixed foods for live stock and poultry to the extent of 190,000 tons with a value at the manufacturing point of $7,720,177 were purchased by Canadian farmers in 1934 Poultry feeds led all others in volume by a large margin and accounted for about 70 per cent of the total Chicken feeds, principally by dairy cattle, came next, with 37,130 tons, followed by swine feeds with 14,393 tons and horse feeds with 4,226 tons. Sales of only 14 tons of sheep feeds were reported.

To Conserve Wild Life

Seven-Point Programme Presented To Washington Conference

A seven-point programme for wild life conservation was presented to the North American wild-life conference at Washington, by Ira Gabrielson, chief of the bureau of biological survey

Officials of the general wild-life federation, from the conference, said the Gabrielson programme would be used as a basis for its efforts to build up the game population.

The objectives were:

1 More land for the restoration and use of wild life

2. Closer federal and state co-operation.

3. Recognition of wild life values in land planning.

4 Cessation of stream pollution.

5 More research into wild life problems

6. Closer co-ordination of federal and administrative agencies.

7. Basic protective legislation.

T. H. L. MacInnes, of the Canadian department of Indian affairs told what Canada was doing for the hunting Indians. He said 50 per cent or about 50,000 of the Canadian Indian population were dependent in whole or in part on hunting and fishing for a livelihood.

MacInnes said white trappers were encroaching on the hunting grounds in the northern part of the provinces formerly used only by Indians. He said hunting preserves had been set aside especially for Indians, and explained that the Indian problem of fishing and hunting had been handled by the various provinces.

Add more flour and liquid alternately until all are used up. Mix thoroughly. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased shallow pan and bake in moderate oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Big Mining Development

Over 400 Claims Staked In Great Slave Lake Mining Area

Over 400 claims have been staked in the Yellowknife district on the north in the Great Slave Lake mining field, according to A. L. Cumming, of Fort Smith, mining district agent and chief mining inspector for the Dominion government, who was in Edmonton recently on his way to Ottawa.

"We will see one of the biggest developments in years in the Great Slave region," said Mr. Cumming. "Just as soon as spring opens, extensive work will be under way. Several large concerns are located there and are going ahead with development just as soon as possible.

Quite A Difference

The rector had invited the village boys to the rectory for a strawberry and cream feed. After they had finished, he, seeking to point out the moral, said: "Now boys, wasn't that nicer than having to mow my garden and helping yourselves?"

"Oh, yes," chorused the boys.

"And may we have it?" he asked a chubby-faced boy

"Because, sir," was the reply, "we had sugar and cream with them."

Salt Highways

New Method May Solve The High Cost Of Building Roads

Common salt may solve the high cost of highways. In an interview in Winnipeg, R. M. Rowat, of Windsor, Ontario, well-known Canadian research chemist, reports the successful construction of test stretches of "salt highways" at more than 12 Ontario points. Over 200 miles of these roads have been built to date in the United States.

In his interview, Mr. Rowat emphasized the fact that the development was still in the experimental stage. The aim is to produce a hard, durable and dustless road surface, using cheap materials readily available locally in most sections of the Dominion. Highway engineers refer to it as a "salt-stabilized road" and the material because of its appearance and wearing qualities is sometimes known as soil concrete. The ingredients of a salt highway are gravel or crushed stone, clay and common salt, the last named in comparatively small quantities. He mentioned a test stretch in Ontario where 15 tons of salt per mile was sufficient for a successful road surface three inches thick and 20 feet wide.

The important factors in a salt-stabilized road, Mr Rowat indicated, were the coarse aggregate, (gravel or crushed stone) and the securing of proper proportions of the three ingredients. These proportions would be governed to a large degree by the quality and size of the gravel and would not only vary from district to district but might easily change in different sections of any one road being treated. Governing specifications could be drawn up to provide for the use of coarse aggregates and clay available locally in a given locality, the proportions of the mixture and the method of application were established by careful laboratory tests of the materials in advance and during construction

In Ontario, there are now test stretches of salt highways on a number of heavily-travelled routes including provincial roads near Turnstile and the highway route to Muskoka Lakes resorts. Credit for the original discovery is given, in large measure, to a Canadian engineer, A R. Chambers of New Glasgow, N.S. Seeking a solution to the dust nuisance, he remembered that the ceramic industry used salt with clay to improve its drying qualities, applied the same principle to a section of Nova Scotia road and produced the first stretch, on this continent at least, stabilized with salt.

Figures Of Insurance Company Show Heart Disease Is Increasing

A Minneapolis insurance company's figures earmarked 350,000 United States citizens for death of heart disease in 1936.

The company's statistician, blaming the strain of modern life for the increased deadliness of heart ailments, predicted the toll would be even greater in 1937. Their forecasts were based on their mortality records.

"Occult disease," they said, "kills ten people every time a motor car kills one," and during 1935 accounted for 29 per cent. of all deaths reported to the company's claim department.

"The effects of the disease are not confined to business men carrying heavy loads of responsibility," the report said. "This is demonstrated by the fact that the death rate from heart disease among holders of industrial policies, written largely among persons in manual day laborers, is almost exactly the same as for regular life insurance policyholders."

C. C. F. MOTION IS DEFEATED BY A LARGE MAJORITY

Ottawa. — The King government emerged from its first test of strength in the House of Commons with a majority of 200, recruited from Liberals, Conservatives and Social Creditors.

By a vote of 203-6 the house turned down an amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne and then passed the main motion without division. The amendment, proposed by J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, condemned the government for not presenting a legislative program designed to ameliorate distress conditions and distribute wealth among the people.

Each of the seven C.C.F. members voted for the Woodsworth amendment and they were joined by Agnes Macphail, who was elected to the house as a United Farmer of Ontario-Labor. Opposed to it were 17 Social Crednet, 31 Conservatives and 160 Liberals.

It has happened only half a dozen times in parliamentary history that an address motion has passed without division and it was believed the government's majority would be turning back the amendment was one of the largest in circumstances of that kind.

Liberals withdrew from the address debate, most of the time being taken by C.C.F. and Social Credit speakers.

Charges that wheat exporters in Winnipeg rushed to the telephone to secure advance information to take advantage of legislation of the wheat board will be investigated by the parliamentary committee that probes operations of the board.

E. E. Perley (Cons., Qu'Appelle) relayed the allegations in the house parliamentary investigation but added his opinion they were groundless.

According to the charges, telephone orders were presented the morning after Argentine boosted wheat prices from 87½ cents a bushel and before the Winnipeg exchange jumped its full limit of three cents. A suggestion that the wheat board enabled exporters to fill overnight orders from Europe at a quarter to half-cent above the closing price to prevent them from being placed in a tight corner to cover their short position, he claimed.

According to the charges, telephone wires between Winnipeg and Liverpool were kept hot between the time Argentine prices were posted and Winnipeg opened. Exporters, it was claimed, saw their opportunity to double their European orders which, because of the board's overnight regulation, could be filled below the market price.

The Saskatchewan Conservative said efforts would be made at the parliamentary session to set up machinery whereby the European orders were genuine and learn when they were contracted

Inquiry Into Dismissals

Premier Announces Probe In Connection With Regina Disorders

Ottawa.- An inquiry into the dismissal and employment of House of Commons staff will be made by a committee on privileges, Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced in the house.

The inquiry will take place later in the session after the committee has been set up and a deputy speaker has been appointed

Mr King made his announcement after Conservative Leader Bennett charged a number of employees had been dismissed in breach of the privileges of the house.

Mr Bennett agreed to the proposed investigation, providing Speaker Casgrain tabled all papers in connection with dismissals in the Regina regime. Mr King said Mr. Bennett would have to move for the papers in the regular way.

Grow Forage Crops

Change Needed To Place Agriculture On Sound Basis

Edmonton.—Sowing of earlier maturing grains and growing of more forage and grass crops are required to place agriculture in Alberta on a permanent and sound basis in the future, M. A. Craig, deputy minister of agriculture, told the Alberta Dairymen's Association on the second day of the annual convention here.

Address by E. A. Howes, dean of agriculture, University of Alberta, on "Young Men in Agriculture Today" and a review of the activities of the National Dairy Council during 1935, given by A. C. Fraser, manager-secretary, Ottawa, were heard.

A total of 25,000,000 acres were seeded to grass in the United States last year, an example Alberta farmers could well take notice of, Mr. Craig said.

A new grass, Creeping Red Fescue, successfully developed in experimental farms here, was found to have a high "carrying capacity" for grazing cattle but did not rank as high as timothy in palatability. It was a good turf grass. The speaker urged the growing of grass and forage crops to maintain the fertility of the soil and prevent soil drifting.

May Sell Phone System

Reported Alberta Has Received Offer From Financial Interests

Edmonton- An offer from New York or British financial interests to purchase $15,000,000 provincial telephone system is expected by the government, states Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of railways and telephones.

A survey of the system was made last month by engineers from the east and no decision has been reached pending their commendation, particularly of the Calgary exchange and the accounting system of this department.

"While I have not heard from them since they were here on January 15, I have every expectation of receiving an offer," said the minister.

"What price would likely be asked by the government?" he was asked.

"I don't see how the government could sell anything less than $15,000,000, though I am not saying that would be accepted. But I feel that an offer of anything less would be only wasting time," said the minister.

Abolish Slavery System

Conditions In Crown Colony Of Hongkong Not Satisfactory

London.— M. Thomas, secretary for colonies, renewed in the House of Commons Britain's promise to abolish the Mui Tsai, or slavery system in the crown colony of Hongkong.

Graham White, Labor, asked what the government intended to do about "the unsatisfactory condition disclosed by the report of the commission of investigation"

Mr. Thomas said he intended to await recommendations from the administration of the crown colony before taking action

No one could read the report without dismay, and I have no hesitation in saying that definite promises were made very many years ago that we would try to abolish it. I will try to accomplish that" said Mr. Thomas.

The Mui Tsai system permits the purchase of Chinese children, male or female, for use as domestic slaves.

Legion Pilgrimage

8,000 Have Already Registered To Make Trip

Ottawa. Registrations of ex-service men and dependents for the Canadian Legion's pilgrimage to Vimy Ridge in July number 3,500 with the deadline one month away. Brig.-Gen. Alex Ross, Dominion president of the organization, said here.

Due to the problem of assigning berths, the trans-Atlantic crossing no applications for inclusion in the pilgrimage will be considered after March 12, the date fixed following representations from companies concerned

Oil Sanctions

Would Be Effective If U.S. Would Limit Exports

Geneva. — An oil sanction against Italy a committee of experts reported to the League of Nations would be effective if the United States limits its exports to the warring nation to the normal level prior to 1935

In its official report after weeks of deliberation, the committee expressed the opinion that if the embargo were universally applied and under conditions prevailing now, it would become effective within about three and a half weeks.

But the experts reported, if the sanctions imposed by league states alone, the only effect it would have on Italy would be to render the purchase of petroleum more difficult and expensive

Germany's Secret Police

Decree Issued By Hitler Makes Force All-Powerful

Berlin — Chancellor Adolf Hitler's gestapo, or secret state police, was made all-powerful in the reich by a decree issued ordering all administrative officials, from government heads down, to obey gestapo orders and from giving information to the gestapo.

Enormous power was believed concentrated by this decree in the hands of Adolf Hitler, who himself is head of the gestapo, which controls the gestapo

Hitler has orders distributed secretly to take commands from secret police headquarters which will in turn supply the secret police departments with such directions as may be desirable

The effect of the decree is to make the secret police more comnpletely independent of the organization, and responsible only to the chancellor

Due to the problem of assigning berths, the trans-Atlantic crossing no applications for inclusion in the pilgrimage will be considered after March 12, the date fixed following representations from companies concerned

A Double Holiday

Edmonton.- Growing in popularity, Boxing Day, which is the day after Christmas, will be a public holiday for the future in Alberta, under the terms of an amending bill which is now before the legislature The measure which has received first reading, is an amendment to the Interpretation Act to provide for the double holiday at Christmas 2138

Remain British Territory

Argentina Warned Falkland Islands Are Not Their Property

London. — The Falkland Islands, off the South American continent, remain British territory. In a written answer to a House of Commons question, Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, said Great Britain had warned Argentina that the issuance of postage stamps showing the islands to be Argentine property "can only be detrimental to the good relations of the two countries."

SOME CHANGES MAY BE MADE IN RADIO CONTROL

Ottawa.- Not only will there be a parliamentary investigation into the operations of the radio broadcasting in last general election campaign, but the radio legislation now being drafted foreshadows a complete reconsideration of state policy with respect to broadcasting.

It is known that this legislation proposes to abolish the present three-man commission and put in its place a five-man board of governors, seven members. Under this new commission there will be a general manager who will be the real administrator of broadcasting.

Other considerations involved completely overshadow in importance these impending changes in personnel. Should the new commission be restricted in its activities to the operation of the national network? Should it confine itself to the development of programs? Should privately owned stations using more than 100 kilowatts of power be expropriated, giving the national commission a monopoly on all but purely local broadcasting? Ought the function of wave length control, the power of which has been retained by the new department of communications?

The old commission had complete charge of radio. It dealt with wave lengths, regulated stations, discharged practically to the full the government's functions in this field

There is in evidence here a strong body of opinion which believes that under the new deal, the wave length functions should be retained by the department and discharged by a minister. This group feels that the new commission should be concerned only with broadcasting and running of the national network. It is argued that the department should be the umpire in disputes between the commission and private radio operations, that it is unfair to subject privately owned stations to regulation by a competing European agency that the government will introduce legislation to establish whether the European orders were genuine and learn when they were contracted

Satisfied With Progress

Great Britain Prepared For Any Attacks From Air

London — The admiralty is alert to the question of defence against modern aerial attack

Viscount Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, told the house of lords that in the last few years combined air and naval manoeuvres have been held on a large scale as defensive preparations against possible attack upon the British isles.

The manoeuvres, he said, had revealed valuable information for new naval construction; both with regard to anti-aircraft guns and hull construction.

Regarding the problem of bombs versus battleships the first lord of the admiralty said that all countries shared the opinion that air attack had not rendered the battleship obsolete. No country was abolishing capital ships.

The immense offensive power of aircraft was not being underrated but Lord Monsell warned against exaggeration of its value The bomb was not really a new problem but imposed the necessity for more and better anti-aircraft guns and searchlights, he said.

Mr. Hore-Belisha, secretary for war, said he agreed with the first lord's remarks. He had recently attended a conference in Paris at which the question of anti-aircraft defence was discussed. In the Paris conference it was suggested the British Empire should be favored as we have improvements in the field of anti-aircraft guns and searchlights. It is expected this proposal will be given particular study

Will Retain Colonies

Britain Not Handing Over Any Part Of Empire To Foreign Powers

London Britain is not handing over any part of her empire to foreign powers Two questions on the point were put to L. H. Thomas, secretary of the colonies in the House of Commons one from a Conservative and one from a Liberal.

Mr Thomas, formerly Dominions secretary, declared that Britain stood together The British government, he said, has not considered any proposal for handing over any part of the colonies or territories under mandate." This statement provoked loud cheers from government benches

Census Of Three Western Provinces To Be Taken This Year

Ottawa A census of the three prairie provinces will be taken this year, the house of commons was told by D. L. Campbell, minister of trade and commerce announced that the census director, Mackenzie Chisholm, would co-operate together The British government, he said, has not considered any proposal for handing over any part of the colonies or territories under mandate." This statement provoked loud cheers from government benches

Negotiations were initiated by Mr. Euler with the three provincial governments this year in the hope the expense of a census, estimated at $700,000 could be avoided. The provinces were very fair in the matter, he said, but found that a close study of the constitution it was found the count must be taken.

Race For Air Routes

Competition For Control Of Trade Routes In The Air

Washington. Warning of an impending international race for control of the air was voiced by the national advisory committee for aeronautics in its annual report to President Roosevelt

The foundation may be being laid now for a world-wide struggle for the control of trade routes of the air, the report said, "and if world aeronautical markets' the committee's report said

It is becoming generally recognized that, other things being equal, a decisive advantage in the struggle for trade routes that countries that has the greatest vision and initiative in establishing research facilities and in training long-range research engineers

Ottawa.—The government is working on an extensive public works program as an unemployment relief measure, it was learned. The main estimates brought down were intended to provide for the cost of government under normal conditions and extraordinary expenditures due to existing circumstances will be met in other ways.

Consideration will be given to proposals for public works which would directly or indirectly produce revenue. The government is not expected to agree to any considerable public works which would not provide revenue such as public buildings.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The third meeting of the League for the new year was held on Friday, Feb. 14. Due to the absence of the president, Miss Gwen Robinson the meeting was conducted by our vice-president Alex Wiebe. The grand Valentine presented a short but well prepared program consisting of a humorous reading by Marion Pryce and a minstrel show. The latter was very amusing and contained several musical numbers that displayed real talent.

The school is the scene of lively chess days. From declarations have brought shouts of chagrin and other final chatting of "The flowers that bloom in the spring tra la" (in fairly below weather fun) These strange sounds merely indicate a preparation for the big concert that is to be presented on March 5 and 6. Keep this date free, everybody.

The door of the library is now open to all and students are allowed to frequent it whenever they wish

SEVEN CANDIDATES CONTEST MELBETA M. D. ELECTIONS

Prehistoric Dragon Fly

Wing Of Thirty-Inch Specimen Found In Kansas

A remnant of one of the world's largest insects, a prehistoric dragon fly seven feet long, was discovered in the museum here from Elmo, Kansas, by Dr. Frank M. Carpenter, of Harvard University museum of comparative zoology.

Only a part of one wing of the giant insect was found, but there was sufficient of that to accurately estimate the size of the entire specimen. Many other insects of this same family have been found previously in other parts of the world, so it was not difficult for Dr. Carpenter to estimate the size from the portion of the wing.

The giant insect was a member of a group known as Protodonata and lived in the Permian Age about [illegible] years ago. [illegible] that age swarming with insects and birds, were the most powerful that ever lived and masters of the air in their time, scientists agree.

They were among the swiftest of insects and because of their great strength could cover great distances in one flight. They lived off smaller insects as no birds or mammals lived in that age.

More than 8,000 prehistoric insects have been found by Harvard expedition in these same limestone beds in Kansas where they are unusually well preserved.

The only other insect ever found approaching the size of this specimen was uncovered in northern France about 50 years ago.

"Go West, Young Man"

Now Naved, Powerful Publication, Should Make Strong Appeal To Western Readers

There have been few good novels about the life of Canadians who comprise seventy per cent. of the population the farm and rural people and the mass of "shirtsleeve" city workers.

Such books as have been written have appealed to but few and while although real farmers often have some difficulty in recognizing themselves in the characters will give a warm welcome to "Go West Young Man" a new novel by Bernard J Farmer, which Thomas Nelson & Sons of Toronto have just published. For it shows accurately, rattlingly, and yet powerfully the experience of a young man fresh from the Old Country tossed into the whirlpool of western labour on which Canada's impressive cities float.

Western readers will find it enlightening at first hand encountered in a vividly written and exciting novel the shift by which unskilled workers from the East of Go West, Young Man, labours on railway section crews, sells silk stockings from door to door in Winnipeg works on construction gangs in Manitoba and mines in Northern Ontario, then starves but never begs. Scenes is often down but never out and in the end achieves contentment in a modest job with a modest contented wife beside him.

The fact that so many incidents come from the personal experience of the author adds immensely to the book's value.

Reflector Buttons Said To Define Boundary Of Road

Ever have trouble keeping an eye on the edge of the road when approaching automobile throws its headlights into your eyes? You wouldn't if driving along the Berlin turnpike alongside Mount Lamento-lee.

The Connecticut state highway department has granted permission for R. O. Smith New Haven insurance agent, to test his idea. It consists of small metallic posts set 120 feet apart, each with two reflector buttons which throw back the lights of an approaching car and clearly define the shoulder of the road.

Sergeant Of R.C.M.P. To Make Fellow Royal Canadian Society

Sergeant H. W. Stalworthy of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, now stationed at Regina, has been made a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society, it was learned at Ottawa.

Sgt. Stalworthy was attached to the Oxford University expedition which visited Ellesmere Land under E. A. Shackleton, son of the late Sir Edward Shackleton.

His signal honor conferred on the young officer was due to his general record.

Sergeant Stalworthy for three years was stationed at Bache peninsula, once the most northerly R.C.M.P. post, where he made ineffectual but brave efforts to discover the fate of Dr. H. E. Krueger, German scientist, thought to have perished in the vicinity of Axel Heiberg island.

Stalworthy is credited with having penetrated farther north than any member of the silent force. He returned from Bache peninsula in 1933 joined the Oxford Arctic expedition in 1934, and after returning with the exploration party to England came to Canada last autumn.

Before going to the eastern Arctic he saw service in the Mackenzie district. During the Great War Sgt. Stalworthy was in France and Belgium with the R.N.W.M.P. squadron attached to Canadian corps.

A Queer Wedding

Japanese Woman Vows To Marry Ashes Of Her Lover

To the strains of a funeral march Mme Tanaka Sugiashi will be married in Tokyo Japan to the ashes of her lover, who died more than a year ago in America. Thirty years ago Yasuki Oya, her lover, left for the United States to study at Yale. After waiting several years the girl went as a tutor to a Russian family in Japan. Oya died in September and his body was cremated. The bronze urn containing his ashes has reached Miss Sugiashi, and she made a vow "Though you are dead, I will be your wife to fulfill our pledge of 30 years ago."

Lesson: Luke 9.

Devotional reading: II. Peter 1:16-21.

Explanations And Comments

The Vision on the Mount, Luke 9: 28-36. Taking with him his three favored disciples, the three who had been with him at the raising of the daughter of Jairus, and later were with him at the grave of Lazarus and in the Garden of Gethsemane, Jesus went up into the mountain to pray.

And as Jesus was praying, the fashion of his countenance was altered (Matthew says, "His face did shine as the sun"), and his raiment became white and dazzling. Let us [illegible] of a supernatural [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

GOOD NEWS FOR VERMILION FARMERS

In response to a query from Gordon Ross Liberal member of parliament, Mr. Manion has announced to know what action the government proposed to take with regard to relief in the 1936 Peace River and an order in council passed in October last. Premier Mackenzie King stated that the government of Canada proposed to introduce legislation to equalize returns to the Peace River for the 1939 crop on the basis of the 3 bushel 1 Northern. Part William. The Premier said the government limited the producers wheat quota entitled to the equalization.

The amount to be so mentioned is not to be made. The Peace River Board of Trade was the first to ask for legislation to this end. The Board of Trade pointed out that the Peace River was handicapped by distance from markets and lack of railway facilities and

Safeguarding Democracy

"If our democracy is to survive the whole voting public must be educated so as to use the rational scientific mode of approach to all our problems, instead of the emotional superstitious and hunch mode of approach."

When Dr Robert Millikin eminent American physicist and scientist [illegible] recently in a letter read at a congress of the American Institute in New York he said a great deal in a few words and while no doubt, he had social and economic problems as they exist in the United States in mind nevertheless the principles he contained in his words is equally sound and applicable when considered in the light of the problems and conditions which confront the people of this country.

For no matter what political creed and what are any limitations of their geographic or ethnologic application, I do maintain that they cannot be solved satisfactorily unless the part of fear, name and logic is focused upon them rather than a diffused flood light of passion and emotion. In other words it is only after the problems which are about for solution have been placed under the scientific microscope and subjected to scientific analysis to determine what they are made of that it is possible to prescribe an effective cure.

If, on the other hand, people allow their emotions to run away with sober reflection and sound judgment no matter how laudable those emotions may be, no matter how fine ever the impelling motives it is a sure gun non. that the conclusions reached will not be timeresist of lee be wrong and the goal to be achieved further removed and subsequently more difficult to attain. For misdirected effort surely leads to more complicated and most undesirable consequences.

In their turn undesirable consequences can do nothing but promote unrest, dissatisfaction and despair, and when these moods have been induced people are apt to turn to anything that offers in the hope of finding relief, even to the extent of surrendering liberties which have been bought at great cost.

All this no doubt, Dr Millikin had back of his mind when he wrote his dictum that the existence of democracy is threatened for the peoples who fail to apply science and reason to the solution of their problems

This does not by any means contradict the assertion that sentiment and emotion have their part in determining the destinies of individuals and nations. Indeed, not only have they a part to play, but without these forces the world would be a sorry sphere but they require as a governor, rational thinking and logical decision, so that they may be directed along right [illegible]

Once rationalism has pointed the way to the solution of the problems which vex the soul, then is the time to call into play the finer emotions of burning zeal and enthusiasm to enkindle others, and it is a safe assumption that reasons lighted from the beacon of incontrovertible fact and entrenched wisdom are those which will ultimately prevail in the minds and hearts of the multitude.

The people of Western Canada have at times been accused being too easily swayed by popular and ephemeral concepts and of swinging to extremes. If there is any truth to the accusation, it is equally true that they are not more prone to do so than the peoples of other lands. For proof, it is only necessary to take note of what is happening in other countries.

Moreover, if at times, the citizens of this country, display an occasional tendency to cater to impractical heights, as they do in other countries it is noticeable that free ventilation and discussion eventually shows down the pendulum to a point where questions can be considered rationally, a tribute to the value of free thought and free speech, rightly regarded as the bulwarks of democracy.

And in this connection it is interesting to note that Dr Millikin also stated that he regarded the newspapers as "on the whole the most effective adult educational influence in the country", coupling this with his comment on the necessity of resorting to reason if democracy is to survive.

This statement needs very little amplification, for it is universally recognized that the newspapers of this country devote a great deal of space to the publication of discussions by authorities and others on important social and economic problems and also to announcements of discoveries of value to mankind generally.

Highway Crossing Accidents

Accidents at highway crossings in 1935 involving collision between motor vehicles and trains totalled 813 compared with 1932 for 1934, a report of the board of railway commissioners shows.

Of the 1935 figures 81 accidents were instances in which motor vehicles ran into sides of trains involving 13 persons killed and 80 injured, compared with 55 accidents of a like nature in 1934 in which seven were killed and 76 injured

Beloved Link With Hitlerites

Relic Found In 4,000-Year-Old Tomb In Iran Mine

What is believed to be the first step toward the discovery of the lost Hittites, who appear in the Bible as a great imperial power, has just been found in Asia Minor. In a 4,000-year-old tomb was discovered a Hittite statue of a bull, seven inches high and inlaid with gold. Sir Flinders Petrie, the British archaeologist, and indicates that the race was culturally related to the Minoans of ancient Crete.

The discovery has aroused great interest among European archaeologists because the Hittites have been known of only through the Hittites' work except rock carvings and a few potsherds. The relic was exhibited recently in London.

Of George V. it can be said that he died in peace, loved by his people. Tourists Are Collectors Hotels Lose Many Different Articles Ashtrays Are Favorite Souvenir-hunting, and not a desire to steal, is accountable for most of the odd thefts by hotel guests, Victoria B.C., hoteliers claim.

Many and varied are the things which disappear. Towels head the list. One hotel estimates out of 15 dozen towels purchased last summer five dozen already have been carried off. Thirty dozen towels is the average annual loss for a hotel.

Silverware and telephone cause a minor second. Salt shakers and sugar bowls are also popular collectors' pieces. Razor souvenirs are light bulbs, telephone books, lumbers and Gideon Bibles

Some hotels reported losses of sheets and blankets. One enterprising guest carried away the glass-headed screws which held the mirror to the bed board.

Finding soap in the bathroom after a guest has left is a pleasant surprise to hotel proprietors. Others with a penchant for room keys are the biggest trouble. Some men have gone to great pains and cost to display collections of several dozen keys picked up in hotels.

Victoria, the scale hotel operators, are more worry than men. They make-up causes losses which run into high figures. Lipstick say most forms of lipstick cannot be removed from towels without running the material.

Puzzle For Scientists

Vegetation Again Seen On Volcanic Island In Indian Ocean

Scientists are puzzled over the return of vegetable, animal, and insect life to Krakatoa Island, a barren lava stretch for many years following a volcanic eruption. Dr. Diamond Jenness, anthropologist of the Dominion museums, Ottawa, said at Victoria, B.C., on his return from a far eastern voyage.

Krakatoa's eruption occurred near the end of the last century and the island left above the Indian ocean was a smoking waste. The top was blown off the mountain, and the ensuing tidal wave which swept the Malay coast and East Indies caused more than 30,000 deaths.

"Trees and other vegetation now grow on the island," said Dr. Jenness, "and insects and animals have returned to the islands."

He said he was impressed by the progress in Java, which he also visited. It had become modernized under Dutch rule, with excellent railroads, air service, and roads.

Java produces 85 per cent. of the world's quinine supply, he said, its agriculture is its main industry. More than 500,000 Chinese are included in its 40,000,000 population.

Took Secrets With Him

Man Who Trapped Spies During War Is Dead

A man who was one of the masterminds behind Britain's anti-spy system during the War has died, carrying with him many of his secrets.

He was Hugh Clelland. Hoy, private secretary to Sir Reginald Hall, director of naval intelligence in the most fateful days of 1914-1918. He died in Charing Cross Hospital, London, and was followed to his grave by Mrs. Hoy and a few friends.

Working in 40 O.B., a room in the old Admiralty building whose existence was unknown to the outside world, Mr. Hoy and his colleagues gathered into their fingers all the webs of intrigue and espionage which Germany had spun across Britain gathered them and snapped them, one by one.

Not until years after the War was the veil partly lifted from that secret room. In the year '40 O.B." published in 1933, Mr. Hoy told for the first time some of the story of those days and nights of intrigue and counter-intrigue. But in this work he wrote: "I have been obliged to omit many startling and exciting matters . . . I have taken an oath never to be, and also to forget."—Overseas Daily Mail.

Italy's Hospital Fleet

Modern Ship Has Refrigerating And Ice-Making Plants On Board

Mussolini recently sent on its maiden trip the largest and most complete floating hospital on the seas, the S.S. Gradisca.

The S.S. Gradisca is the eighth of Italy's hospital ships. It will ply regularly between Italian ports and East Africa, taking back to the fatherland Italian workers and soldiers who have fallen ill while building Mussolini's African empire.

The ship has a displacement of 8,000 tons and a length of 460 feet. She has a normal capacity for 756 beds, but can be made to accommodate twice that number in an emergency.

Some of its modern equipment consists of two operating theatres, an X-ray room, and bacteriological, biological and chemical laboratories as well as a fully supplied pharmacy. There are also orchids' and dental laboratories aboard

Besides carrying a refrigerating plant for keeping the patients' food supplies constantly fresh, the Gradisca is also supplied with a huge ice-making plant which is sufficiently large capacity to enable her to supply ice to the various Italian ports in East Africa.

The Italian hospital fleet, officials claim, is used exclusively for sick workers and soldiers, the wounded being left at hospital ashore. Many of those who become ill, it was added, never reach Italy, but are returned immediately, because they recover while on board, due to the rest, the sea air and the care they receive on these ships.

The officials agreed that there must have been some error in their records, but insisted on proof that they were in no position to make the necessary correction unless Guenzl could produce some kind of evidence that he really was alive. The fact that the parish church at which Guenzl was baptized and married is now non-existent his death in its register was not accepted as proof that he was living

RHEUMATISM DRIVEN OUT!

It should be realized Rheumatism is not inevitable if the poisonous acid fluids of the system are kept on the move, thus preventing the formation and deposit of painful crystals in the joints.

The solvent stimulating action of Templetone has a marked effect. Digesting, dissolving and expelling these harmful acid crystals and it changes the tortured and aching joints centres with the energy to restore easy movement to the stiff tense joints, and suppleness to rigid muscles.

This reliable property of Templetone is supported by the recent experience of Mrs. E. Brewster, who writes: "Before using Templetone I was in terrible pain with Rheumatism in feet so much so that I could not be tried. Templetone and now all the Rheumatic pain has gone and to say it is wonderful is with a short stop pain as did my doctor."

The speedy expulsion of Rheumatism is something to be thankful for apart from the saving in time and money, for it means that Templetone has revitalized the body cells and tissues, and has thoroughly purified the stomach and intestines, and maintained perfect health of body. Motor Road Under Alps

Plans For Tunnel Have Been Submitted To Swiss Railway

It will be possible to motor underground between Switzerland and Italy through the famous Simplon tunnel if plans submitted to the Swiss railway authorities are carried out.

They provide for the establishment of a motor road through one of the two railway tunnels.

The work of conversion is expected to cost 2,000,000 francs.

It will be necessary to install a complicated ventilating system to dispel gasoline fumes. Sidings will have to be cut into the sides of the tunnel. The purpose of these is to enable cars which break down to be pushed out of the way of the main traffic stream.

The Simplon tunnel, which was built in 1906, connects Switzerland and Italy. It is the longest of the tunnels under the Alps, measuring 12½ miles.

SECRET FOREIGN OFFICE DOCUMENT CAUSES TROUBLE

London. — Questions rattled excitedly across the floor of the House of Commons about the secret British foreign office document published in Rome. The document concerned the report of a British interdepartmental committee's inquiry into the British interests in Ethiopia as threatened by a possible Italian invasion. The inquiry was conducted a year ago and the report kept secret.

A first class storm threatened. Winston Churchill, former secretary of state for war, raised the matter. Earlier W. M. Adamson, Labor, had questioned the prime minister on another alleged leakage to a Sheffield newspaper and also mentioned the Rome publication. And when Churchill stressed the point the speaker, Captain Fitzroy, ruled the question had been asked previously.

"May I ask the prime minister whether he is ready to deal with it?" asked Churchill.

The question brought renewed interruption as the buck benches. Mr. Baldwin said nothing.

George Lansbury, former Labor leader, asked whether in view of the scheduled debate on oil sanctions the prime minister would be prepared to take a vote after giving the actual text of the document published in Rome.

Mr. Baldwin replied that he had been very much engaged all morning and had not had an opportunity to consider the matter.

Mr. Lansbury guessed that unless the house was in full possession of the facts it could not properly discuss foreign affairs. "We have wanted to know, he continued, whether the statements published in Rome were accurate or not."

Mr. Baldwin: "I must consider the point. I cannot answer it now."

"I consider answer that now" repeated Mr. Baldwin.

But Prime Minister Baldwin was closely questioned on the Rome statement outlining the government's defence plans. He denied leakages had occurred and that the articles referred to had been based merely on intelligent anticipation and a knowledge of the available facts.

Kept Alive Three Years

Artificial Lung Used On Man With Atrophied Muscles

New York. — S. Crosby Halahan, 40, who had been kept alive for more than three years by artificial respiration, died Feb. 14 at Orangeburg, Surrey, says a special despatch from London to The New York Times. All the muscles of his body gradually had become atrophied and in 1932 he became unable to breathe without artificial respiration.

The following year, Sir William Bragg, scientist, devised an apparatus of football bladders connected by a wide rubber tube, says The Times story. One bladder was tightly bound to Halahan's chest and the other, between two hinged boards, was worked by the feet like a bellows. Later a more elaborate apparatus worked by water was designed and used until Halahan's death

Income Tax Bill

Ontario Taking From Municipalities Right To Levy Tax

Toronto. — Ontario's first income tax bill, taking from municipalities the right to tax incomes and placing the levy in the hands of the province, received second reading in the legislature after opposition speakers had tried unsuccessfully to have the government announce its financial position

The vote was 51 to 16 and the administration immediately moved for committee discussion of the measure. Premier Hepburn and Hon Earl Lednor, minister of mines, who is piloting the legislation through the house, stressed the urgent need of quick passage

Second reading followed defeat of an opposition amendment and an effort to censure Speaker N O Hipel for alleged partiality

Higher Relief Costs

Edmonton — Jobless relief in Alberta cost $1 624 760 for the year ended March 31, 1935, which was $441,791 more than the year previous according to the annual report of the provincial relief commission just tabled in the legislature Report of the relief and public welfare bureau also has been tabled.

Boost in Export Trade

Increased Exports To Britain And United States For January

Ottawa.—Citing figures of increased exports to the United Kingdom and the United States for January, compared with January, 1935, Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of trade and commerce, declared in a statement there had been a "sharp advance" in trade with these two countries.

"Exports to the United Kingdom in January amounted to $21,622,560 compared with $16,611,036 in Jan. 1935, the United States, the opening up of trade with that country has not affected adversely Canadian trade with the United Kingdom. On the other hand, exports to the United Kingdom had increased at an greater rate than the United States."

Cope With Difficulties

No Other Generation Better Equipped Than The Present, Says Hon. R. B. Bennett

Ottawa. No other generation than the present better equipped by the inventive genius of man and the recorded experiences of their predecessors to cope with the difficulties of mankind, former prime minister Bennett told a gathering organized by the Canadian Club of trade of Montreal, making their second annual pilgrimage to the capital.

Speaking at Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, recalled to the young men that in the pioneer days of Canada the policy was "paddle your own canoe" and "root hog or die rather," he said, and now it was a case of "we are all in the same boat and we must sink or swim together."

J. H. Blackmore, leader of the Social Credit group, Hon. H. H. Stevens, representative of the Reconstruction party, and Hon. C. H. Cahan, former secretary of state, also spoke briefly to the gathering.

Mr. Stevens urged that boards of trade revive their boards arbitration to settle local industrial disputes.

Addis Ababa.—Discovery of a plot to kill Emperor Haile Selassie by tampering with his personal servants and an energetic investigation and manhunt in Ethiopia a capital

Authorities said all clues pointed to an expert mechanic, or perhaps even an ace pilot, as the would-be assassin. Only a skilled hand could have damaged the imperial plane in a manner so certain to lead to disaster, but so difficult to discover, they declared.

Investigators found sand mixed with the plane's fuel, and the motor cylinders and controls had been impaired in a way almost impossible to detect.

The plane almost certainly would have spun into a nosedive on its next flight, officials asserted.

Six Killed In Snowslide

Survivors Of Accident At Gold Mine Had Terrible Experience

Mancos, Colo. —A story of horror and suspense was told on the first survivors were brought through a blinding blizzard from the Hesperus gold mine, where six were killed and three injured by a gigantic snowslide.

Rescue parties, struggling on skis and snowshoes through a blizzard to the demolished wreckage of the mine buildings, met two of the injured survivors at the Red Arrow mine, about midway.

"It was a terrible experience," said Alvin Fish, 30-year-old mine employee. He was buried under the slide amid the wreckage of a building at the mine, situated above timberline at an altitude of 11,000 feet.

Fifteen persons survived the thundering mass of ice and snow that slid several hundred feet down a cliff and nearly wiped out the tiny mine settlement.

ITALO-GERMAN ALLIANCE SAID TO BE IN PROSPECT

Rome. — An excellent authority said an understanding resembling the old triple alliance would be in the making shape, an eventuality which would place Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler on one side in a drastic revision of European alignments.

A possible Italo-German-Austrian agreement, this source said, was or is being discussed in both Florence and Berlin.

Following conversations in Florence between Austrian and Italian diplomats, Ulrich Von Hassell, Germany's ambassador to Italy, left by plane for Berlin.

Von Hassel held a long conference with Fulvio Suvich, Italian under secretary for foreign affairs, who talked later in Florence with Egon Berger-Waldenegg, foreign minister of Austria.

The old triple entente of Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy was shattered during the Great War when Italy refused to fight for the central powers and later joined the allies.

A possible agreement between Rome, Vienna and Berlin, it was hinted, contains three main points

1.- Germany and Austria would mutually lower tariffs considerably pursuant to the pact which would make a customs union

2.- Germany would guarantee Austria's independence as long as Italy hitherto has been the guardian

3.- Italy would admit the free development of pan-German ideas in Austria so long as it did not destroy Austrian independence.

Cheated Out Of Birthdays

Mayor Of Ottawa To Celebrate 11th Birthday On Feb. 29

Ottawa. Announcement of Mayor Stanley Lewis, of Ottawa, that he will celebrate his "11th" birthday on February 29, although he is 44 years old, has brought a sad truth to light, he is not alone in his plight. From Montreal Halifax and Winnipeg letters have arrived from persons of identically the same age sympathizing with a fellow birth day sinner

Mrs Rose Wanzbrough, of Winnipeg, explains some of the details in her letter to the mayor "In 1900 I as well remember the dignity of my twin-sister and myself upon being informed that we did not have a real birthday that year, as February 29 is eliminated at the new century. U. F. A. FEDERAL CONVENTION MAY BE HELD IN VERMILION

Three-Day Session Early in July Is Prospect

Providing that satisfactory arrangements can be made, the U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. of the Battle River federal constituency will hold their annual convention in Vermilion this summer. Mr. C. Enzel approached the U. of T. and the Agricultural society in regard to this matter last week. The proposal was enthusiastically accepted by local members at their luncheon on Monday. A resolution was passed referring the matter to the entertainment committee, consisting of Dr. Scott, E. Carley, C. L. Whitby and F. Stephens, with instructions to co-operate in every way possible with the U.F.A. executive. Everything within the power of the town to make the delegates' three days stay in Vermilion a pleasant one, will be done.

It is hoped to obtain the use of the Agricultural grounds for the convention. Last year between 500 and 600 delegates attended the sessions which were held at the farm of Mr. H. E. Spencer, south of Edgerton. Previous to that, the gathering had been held in the Wainwright Buffalo park.

There was some further discussion at the proposal to hold a house warming this spring and Mr. W. J. Cameron spoke on this matter. He stated that in his opinion it was now too late to do anything about a sale this spring, as the animals to be listed in such a sale must be properly conditioned and entered in time to be advertised. He suggested as an alternative that this year spring sentiment be left in a bunch at noon, which were ready for sale. He strongly recommended organizing a sale here, however as he was sure that in years to come this would prove a very much [illegible] sale.

Mr. H. G. Morrison brought up the matter of an additional officers being stationed here with the R.M.P. detachment. This is one of the [illegible] territories in Alberta and yet sub-office is expected to cover it efficiently, while Bonyo are stationed at Lloydminster, with a whole detachment at Kitscoty. A motion was passed that the matter be left in the hands of the executive and [illegible] instead of one carried unanimously.

Mr. H. P. Long was in the city of those were [illegible] members and guests of the annual [illegible] Messrs. Sparks and Hayes [illegible] Department Education, and [illegible] W. H. Cotton. Mr. Sparks spoke briefly concerning the finances for the entertainment and some assistance relative to conditions in the [illegible] house sale held at 11th River which in was a result of [illegible]

Mr. Pitman was appointed auditor.

The resignation of Mr. Justice W. R. Howson from the Alberta legislature was read by Mr Steeker Nation. E. Tanner at the opening of the Tuesday afternoon sitting of the legislature.

FARMERS ATTENTION

Seed Grain

Farmers Mines in Mt. of Mothers No 4[illegible] are urged to put in [illegible] for seed grain at once if they are not able to procure seed grain from their own resources. The next meeting of the council is on March 7 and all applications should be in before that time. After being passed in the Council the applications must be approved by the Provincial government so that it is very important that the matter be given early attention if those requiring seed through the Municipality are to have it in plenty of time

Application forms are on hand at the Municipal office Mannville and further, the undersigned will be at the Municipal Office, Vermilion, Wednesday, March 11th, for the convenience of farmers in the Vermilion district to receive applications.

Forms to be signed by the owner of the land may also be obtained from the undersigned by those applicants who are owners of other lands purchased on agreement for sale and have not yet had title to the land to which they are assessed

War Produces New Hat

Blushing Headgear Makes Its First Appearance in Paris

Paris has a new hat inspired by the war in Ethiopia. A three-quarter hat trimmed with the traditional ostrich feathers has made its appearance in the Rue Royale. It was worn by a tall, middle-aged woman who carried the dashing headgear with great dignity. It is predicted that Bernadette hats will be as popular as they were in 1918 when a regiment of Bernadettes was quartered in Paris.

A New Type Camera

Used For Early Detection Of Hardening Of Arteries

A camera which detects and records the first small "explosions" of arteries in the human body, which later may result in death, was announced by the Cleveland Clinic Foundation. Developed by Dr. A. D. Rackemann, of the department of ophthalmology, and V. B. Seitz, mechanical engineer, after three years of work, this camera is a new tool for the early detection of changes in the arteries, especially hardening, a condition common among old persons. The complex camera photographs the capillaries of the eye, and reveals hemorrhages and ruptures which are not visible otherwise.

Royal Approval Required

The king has seen his likeness as it will appear on new British coins. Sir Robert Johnson, deputy master of the Royal Mint, presented a plaster cast of the king's face which will be used to make dies for both coins and medals. Royal approval is required before a cast can be used.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people 'round 40 think they're "growing old." They feel tired a lot . . . "weak." Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the blood. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess acidity quickly.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before you go to bed. That's all.

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Just follow either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Made in Canada.

New Function Of Lungs

Rochester Scientist Discovers That They Create Platelet Cells

A new and apparently important function of the lungs in creating platelets, tiny cells numbering 1, 800,000 to a drop of blood in a normal person, was discovered before Rochester physicians by Dr. William H. Howell, former dean of Johns Hopkins Medical Faculty.

The 76-year-old physician and retired director of the university's school of hygiene and public health discussed the little-known third variety of corpuscles and their function in aiding the blood to clot.

Medical science has discovered that persons with a deficiency of platelets in their blood suffer thrombocytopenia or frequent hemorrhages of the skin, he said.

Dr. Howell announced he had discovered that blood leaving the lungs is richer in platelets than when it enters, pointing out that other organs, he explained, the blood loses some of the tiny cells.

The test would seem to indicate, he said, that there is another and entirely unknown function of the platelets themselves.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MARCH 8

JESUS TEACHES NEIGHBORLINESS

Golden text: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. Luke 10:27.

Lesson: Luke 10.

Devotional reading: Matthew 5:38-48.

Explanations And Comments . . .

The Question of a Lawyer About Securing Eternal Life, Luke 10:25-28. A certain lawyer tested Jesus, tried to trip him, with his question "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" His was the legalistic point of view, that eternal life would be the reward of special acts. What tasks and prayers and sacrifices, he meant, could he do to win life eternal. "What is the result of your poring over the Law?" Jesus questioned in his turn, and the lawyer quoted in answer Deuteronomy 6:5 and Leviticus 17:18. "Thou has answered right; this do, and thou shalt live," said Jesus. The man's priestcraft was not satisfied with that of his putting his knowledge into active practice.

The Parable of the Good Samaritan, Luke 10, 29-37. Desiring to justify himself, to show that he had not asked a question so simple that it could be quickly disposed of, the man asked "And who is my neighbor?" Jesus answered in a way that was through with him. the lawyer had little ground on which to "justify himself" in any respect.

The lawyer expected Jesus to answer that his neighbor was one heretical, hated Samaritan. Jesus turned around, and answered the much more important question, Whose neighbor am I? by telling the parable which we call the Parable of the Good Samaritan.

The priest and the Levite who came along after him (the man by the roadside whom the thieves had beaten and left there) probably would have gone to his aid had he been one of their own class, but he was only an unknown man who had no claim upon them. From priest and Levite, men who became of their office and position, were bound to show mercy to any of their own race in need, the wounded man must have expected help. But in all probability, as has been suggested, the priest had just come from ministering in the temple, and felt that it was enough to perform his official duties, those for which he was paid, and that no further obligation rested on him. Priest and Levite passed by on the other side.

Next Jesus states that way a certain Samaritan, one whom Jews despised, and he was moved with compassion for the wounded man. His compassion led him to bind up the man's wounds and to take the beast which he had been riding, and lead it to the inn where he cared for him that night.

Princess Elizabeth Cannot Lead Life Of Ordinary Child

People of the United Kingdom are talking seriously about the kind of queen little Elizabeth of York will be if, and when, she is called to reign as Elizabeth II.

Public concern is centred more than ever upon this nine-year-old girl who by the death of King George has been raised to a significant position in contemporary history.

With Edward as monarch, Elizabeth assumes second place in the line of succession. She ranks after her father, the Duke of York. But what is more important she represents the second and not the third generation as usually is the case of royal children in British history.

So concerned is the government over the future that the cabinet considered Elizabeth's education, it is understood. And so has the family of Windsor in royal conclave. King George when he was living and Queen Mary, the present King and the child's mother and father.

The Duchess of York at first advised that the little girl be sent to a private school where she might receive the well rounded training of an English girl of the upper classes. But the others persuaded her Elizabeth must be educated in manner the crown of Britain, and Queen Mary herself has undertaken to teach etiquette and diplomatic convention to Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary.

Grey Owl Gives It Full Credit For His Success

"My white blood only gave me the English language," Archie McNeil, noted beaver conservationist, named on the passenger list as "Grey Owl," said on his return from England where he has been lecturing for five months.

"Huh! Tried to kill yuh, didn't he? Buzz was always wild as scarcely ever without too many drinks under his belt."

"True But perhaps six months behind steve wills have taught him a lesson, anyhow." He reached over on as he glanced about for Helen. "don't mention that he's due on the 15th to-day. I want to keep it a surprise. Gosh, if you were a girl and your brother was in prison, I reckon you'd feel good to have him paroled, eh?"

Amos grunted, unable to picture himself as a girl. "Thank to no good even if he is her brother, even if Jim Hamilton was about as pleasure a guy as this county ever saw. Now, Buzz is just ruthlessly weak, always was and always will be!"

Fleming grinned indulgently and sighting his partner across the Silver Creek Dam project, started down the sidewalk toward her. Miles followed. From the general store carrying the girl's purchases.

"Slow them in my saddlebag, will you please, Buzz?" she asked over her shoulder. "Link and I have to see Otto Pieper."

Their eyes met and they smiled Fleming's look, however, changed to sober concern as they approached the door of the Stockmen's Bank. "If we don't talk Otto into this loan it's going to be hard to keep the boys from getting on the dam. We're behind with their wages now, but I'm afraid to ask more'n right hundred. Smile a few times extra, will you?" "If Otto says no, we're busted sky high and permanent!"

Dump and gloomy, the bank interior was in silence but for the deliberate ticking of a clock on the wall. No one was in the place save Jimmy Parlane, the clerk, head industriously over a huge ledger, and Pieper himself, seated at an oak desk in the rear. His head lifted in casual scrutiny lifted from a mass of papers as they approached, and his nod of welcome was curt and businesslike.

"It's you two, eh?"

Helens heart throbbed faster. "Mr Pieper," she announced, "we're here on a matter that means profits for your stockholders."

His small, deep-set eyes appraised her shrewdly. "I suppose that fool irrigation scheme o' yours is out of cash again. Well, I don't see how I can do anything about it."

Link loomed his nonhersre before the banker and leaned forward, hands on the desk. "Otto, we'll let you off easy to-day," he grinned. "All we need is eight hundred dollars."

The other stiffened. "Do you think this is the United States mint? Eight hundred dollars?" he repeated. "On what security, Fleming, tell me?"

Helen and Link exchanged looks. "Well," he answered, staring at the back of his head, "we thought may be second mortgage."

Pieper lifted an accusing forefinger. "You know very well I turned you down twice on a second mortgage on either your property or Helen's. Isn't worth enough. This bank has had quite too much risk with I'm president!"

"Don't get mad, Otto. I—"

"Let's waste no more time; I'm very busy to-day." And the wiry banker busied himself with papers in his desk.

Helen's heart sank. Firmly y look- ed at her, then moistened his lips. "If you will not accept a second mortgage, maybe we could fix up some kind of note I'd like to keep Fleming out of trouble. Unless I go over to that new bank at Atlas."

Pieper sighed like a man resigned to wasting a half hour. "What's the money for?" he demanded. "Anything else than the seed that isn't worth fifty cents! I've warned you, Fleming, time and again. You too, Helen Hamilton, and if your father were living he'd be ashamed to know. He'd paddle you where it'd have the worst effect. Mighty good horse, though."

Fleming, she shifted uneomfortably at knowledge that Link was listening.

"How about the eight hundred?"

"I can't tie up money in frozen assets!"

"Why, eight hundred's a trifle, and you know it, Otto," he added persuasively, "we might be here asking twice as much, but we decided to get along somehow. Trouble is, the Hamilton valley farms are so much easier, hire more men to get the dam completed.

"But, Link, you're to be wonderful!" he hurried on as the other partner put his lips to speak. "We'll raise four hundred alfalfa a year, think of it! Anything'll grow there, Otto small grains too!

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming soliciting a meeting of Elbow County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roger Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide and nearby ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, had forced Bonnie Kilgo, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo knew would be called upon to give his expert opinions in favor of the scheme, to reverse his earlier endorsement, and declare that irrigation in Bonnie county so far as Fleming's plan was concerned was only a newfangled way to waste money.

Link's young granddaughter, Inez Stanton and his sister, Helen, Link had slept behind and Helen asked Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. The angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "synod". Buzz shoots at Fleming to no unreputable ill. Angered, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is untouched by gunfire. Buzz is sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties.

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Tersey to learn whether they could be adopted to a smaller scheme suitable for Link's and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that wrecks the house, burns his desk and the plans and renders Link unconscious. He is rescued from the blaze by an employee.

(Now Go On With The Story)

He started after. "Aw, Helen! It's only that I feel bad about not going busted on Fleming's fool idea. I'll come along and carry your things. Say, I always had a weakness for yuh, and that's why I'm afraid about this crazy water scheme of his."

"I need salt," she mused, "and some canned goods. You may carry them if you really like to." And she tripped into the odorous general store with Roper at her heels.

Down the street Sheriff Stephen fingered greyish stubble on his chin. "If Buzz Hamilton turns over a new leaf, it'll show yuhre man. But I'm betting a big responsibility, Link, get- tin' him paroled to yuh."

"Maybe I am. But it's going to please Helen a lot. Always makes her feel bad to think of Buzz in prison."

"Huh! Tried to kill yuh, didn't he? Buzz was always wild as scarcely ever without too many drinks under his belt."

"True But perhaps six months behind steve wills have taught him a lesson, anyhow." He reached over on as he glanced about for Helen. "don't mention that he's due on the 15th to-day. I want to keep it a surprise. Gosh, if you were a girl and your brother was in prison, I reckon you'd feel good to have him paroled, eh?"

Amos grunted, unable to picture himself as a girl. "Thank to no good even if he is her brother, even if Jim Hamilton was about as pleasure a guy as this county ever saw. Now, Buzz is just ruthlessly weak, always was and always will be!"

Doctor Has His Troubles

Uses Only Automobile On Island Of Irish Coast

If present speed limits irk you, think of Dr. Francis Gallagher, who has just introduced an automobile on the lonely windswept isle of Arranmore, off the Donegal coast of Ireland. The doctor arranged with Dr Gallagher that he shall not drive in excess of five miles an hour, and that there shall be no driving at night," said a native The 600 islanders, the majority of whom have rarely left the island, are not pleased about this "new-fangled" invention. "The island is nine miles long and five broad," the doctor explained, "and the 200 donkeys seem more like 2,000 when you try to drive past. Surfacing is not terrible that my tires must only be semi-inflated."

Story Of Last Coronation

Rare Book Now Owned By United States Library

A truly royal description of the pattern to which the coming coronation of King Edward VIII. will hew lies locked in the barricaded storerooms for rare books in the United States congressional library at Washington.

Bound in fine leather and purple silk, pages edged in gold, bearing the royal monograms of King George V. and Queen Mary, it is the complete story of their coronation, done with their approval and presented by them to the Czar Nicholas II. of Russia.

The book was a part of the Czar's private library at his winter palace. After the upheaval of 1917, the library became state property

Claim Of Inventor

New Material To Make Wrinkles Immune To Shells

Lester Barlow, inventor of Stanford, Conn., says he has devised a material possessing shock absorbing characteristics which would make warships virtually immune to explosives.

Barlow inventor of a type of depth bomb used in the Great War, declined to disclose the nature of the material.

Barlow said he was ready to offer use of the material to the United States government as a "free gift" effecting world wide reduction in naval armaments.

Exchange Regulations In Russia Boost Price Of Food

New Soviet exchange regulations have gone into effect which indicate that the rush of bright young things to Moscow next summer may be somewhat abated; that is, if the B.Y.'s still remember that even in Russia it takes money to eat.

Under the new rules, here are some price equivalents at the leningrad restaurant in Moscow as reported by the New York Herald Tribune:

Smoked salmon (three slices)	$1 40
Boiled ham (three slices)	2 40
Vegetable salad	1 60
Pieces cheese (one slice)	1 10

In grocery stores white bread will be sold at 60 cents a loaf

Weigh Cosmic Rays

Photographic Scales Show Them Less Massive Than Supposed

A photographic scale which weighs cosmic rays was described to the American Physical Society at New York by Dr W F G Swann, director of the Bartol Institute Philadelphia

The scales showed the weights of the rays as only one eleven millionth as much as previously stated. Those which pierce the human body at the rate of dozens a minute are far less massive than has been supposed

The weighing process contradicts the evidence set up by Dr Arthur H Compton of the University of Chicago, that most of the rays at sea level are protons The scales show that instead they are nearly all electrons, less than 10 per cent being protons.

Drought-Resistant Tree

Nursery Officials Recommend Green Ash For Shelter Belts

In the experience of the officials of the Dominion Forest Nursery Station at Sutherland, Saskatchewan, green ash is the most drought-resistant tree in the planting of shelter belts on prairie farms, and it also stands excessive moisture well. Poplars and willows are among the least drought - resistant Maples when planted by themselves seldom do so account of lack of moisture. Seedlings, cuttings and trees are distributed each year from the station at Sutherland and from the Dominion Forest Nursery Station at Indian Head, Saskatchewan. Trees are not only those suitable to the soil, moisture supply and climatic conditions of the various districts

System Has Been Changed

Canada Makes Banknotes Into Pulp Instead Of Burning Them

The Canadian Government now melts its old banknotes instead of burning them. Last year 1,500 tons of notes in common bank notes were dumped into a huge vat set boiled in a pulp which was used in making papers. Burning of old bills was abandoned as wasteful, and because of the possibility a scrap of notes partially burned being carried through chimneys to the outside air.

"SALADA" TEA

A Pot Of Gold?

It is said that people learn by experience. True, undoubtedly, but one wonders sometimes just how much experience is needed for some people to learn some lessons.

In illustration one might cite the well established axiom that "there is no royal road to wealth." Experience reaching back for centuries has simply proved the truth of this assertion, but the lessons if the past do not appear to be very deeply engraved on a good many human minds, or if the truth of the statement is admitted and recognized it is quite frequently ignored or blithely waived aside.

Why is it that so many people are easy to convince against all the laws of sound economics, in defiance of recorded history and experience, in opposition to their own inherent common sense that there is a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow to be had merely for the gathering?

Why is it that people of fair education, people who are well read, people who usually apply good sense in the pursuit of their daily avocations will demonstrate shrewd ability in ordinary business transactions, fall an easy prey to the lure of financial fakirs, confidence tricksters and unscrupulous sharks?

There can be only one answer to these questions and that is that people of ordinary intelligence and common sense succumb to the wiles of the tricky financial gangster and invest hard earned savings in wild projects and doubtful schemes have permitted blind, unreasoning hope to supplant judgment and common sense. In other words, the desire to get something for nothing or to acquire a lot from a little is allowed to over-ride good sense. The inevitable result of such hopes is disastrous speculation in schemes in which every card is stacked against the player.

And once the victim has allowed himself to be lured into the net by promises of huge returns and great rewards it is astonishing how reluctant he is to admit even to himself that he has been cheated even after the truth is revealed in unpleasant form. The point in which he is caught is made of golden meshes and rather than credit anything else he is ready to believe the most impossible stories and back up his faith by sending good money after bad until he is ultimately stripped.

A remarkable illustration of the operation of this psychological trait was recently unfolded in the expose of the "Drake estate" frauds in the United States. It was revealed that 70 000 residents of mid-western States had contributed a total of $1,250,000 to a group who represented they held claims to the Sir Francis Drake estate, consisting of incredible wealth in Great Britain plus title to large areas in the state in 46 counties of the world with compound interest which had been piling up for 300 years. It was represented that those who would contribute funds to enable the group to settle up the estate would reap a thousandfold on their investment.

Even after the ringleader was sentenced to a ten-year term in jail money continued to roll in to his agents who collected on a commission basis to further their alleged efforts to "untie the estate", evidence in the trial of 41 of these collectors revealed.

Wild stories were told at campaign meetings and, judging from the resultant flow of money, believed. Prospects were told that all the silver and gold in the world really belonged to the estate, which was why the United States began calling in both and why England departed from the gold standard, that when Roosevelt was reported on a fishing trip he was actually in England settling the estate and that the ring leader was not in jail but was waiting to release a secret understanding with the Bank of England, which would start the ball rolling and pour the riches in the prairies. One of the prospects is reported to have written the Bank of England, and, when told the Drake estate had been settled long ago, "repented his plaintive query, "What steps do I take to get my money?"

It reads like a fairy tale, but it is opportune to point out that for this one scheme which received a great deal of publicity, there are hundreds of others in which the unsuspecting public is invited to subscribe, about which not much is heard.

Such appeals are invariably launched on the well-founded assumption that there are still plenty of people quite willing to part with their money in the hope of the bait is made sufficiently glittering in the form of handsome returns at short notice.

Those who are tempted by such blandishments would do well to hesitate before taking the plunge into dubious waters and particularly to be wary of glittering promises of speedy and handsome dividends. Money is not made that way, except by the few who are out to "take the suckers for a ride."

For the average man or woman there is just one reasonably safe way to ensure a competence for old age and that is by the slow and painful process of hard work, thrift and increased of savings in sound securities remembering that the sounder the security, the smaller will be the returns. Such method requires courage, persistence, self-denial, endurance and industry, but it is the only rational way, for there is no royal road to riches.

A few days after his christening the household moved to York Lodge, which was the birthplace of his brothers and sister.

In 1897, the year of his coronation, the railway was leased to the Canadian Pacific railway for 99 years, and rented from the C.P.R. by York Lodge, which was the only source of revenue for the purchasers for the next 69 years.

Robbed From Of Heather

Prince Of Wales Had Full Purpose Did Not Get

Rt. Hon. Raoul Dandurand, government leader in the Senate, told the Red Chamber how King Edward as Prince of Wales "got even" with newspapers for publishing pictures of him thrown by horses.

The Senator described a meeting with the Prince in 1907 and a discussion of horse racing in which the Prince said he had no more falls than the average rider, but that "terrible photographers had him in the press all the time."

I once met even with them," he quoted the Prince as having told him. "I robbed them of a big headline. On the polo grounds at the other end of the field, far away from the clubhouse, I was knocked down by a mallet stroke which grazed the eye and made a gash in the eyebrow. My shirt was covered with blood. I was picked up and driven to a nearby hospital, where I had to have five stitches. If reporters had been at hand the world would have been told I was dead."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour into the bowels about a pint of bile each year loosely daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gift For Noted Pianist

Wife's Smile Especially For Paderewski Has No Duplicate

Paderewski, the great pianist, is to be presented with a watch which he will know is his. It has just been completed in Warsaw. The timepiece has the hours represented by the letters I. J. Paderewski, a piano keyboard representing the minutes. The hour hand is in the form of a lyre, the minute hand like a conductor's baton, the second dial marked with the name of his district in which Paderewski was born, and round the dial are the notes of 12 Polish national compositions. It is said to keep perfect time.

Bone And Apple Sheep

So much more has fallen in the region of the Sugnito Mountain, in Upper Bavaria, that ski-ing has already become possible. And down in the valleys chestnuts and apple trees have just burst into bloom for the second time this year

One gratifying accompaniment of religious disputes in Germany is that the Prussian Bible Society sold last year nearly twice as many Bibles as in previous years.

There are more people to the acre in Barbadoes than on any other spot in the western hemisphere. 2146

May Build Salt Refinery

Test Drilling Will Start Soon At Salt Beds in Alberta

Erection of a $70,000 salt refinery at McMurray, Alberta, in the spring will be carried out by a new company, according to F. L. Batchelor of Cornwall, Ontario, head of the new firm, who recently returned from a week's inspection trip at the salt beds.

A diamond-drill crew will commence operations as soon as the cold snap breaks in the north and will continue test drilling until spring on the property leased from the provincial government, said the former Calgary bank manager.

If present indications of the extent of the salt bed are confirmed, the refinery will be constructed in the spring, Mr Batchelor said.

Plant will have a production of 30,000 tons of salt a year and will employ in the neighborhood of 60 men.

Questioned regarding a market for the product Mr. Batchelor stated Alberta alone consumes from 30,000 to 32,000 tons yearly.

Central western provinces use 70,000 to 80,000 tons a year. Plant is not confined to manufacturing table salt at the outset and will branch into various grades later. The salt is mined by drilling and pumping the brine, salt to be marketed in the form of brine. The brine is evaporated in the refinery.

Refinery will be connected with the railway at McMurray and if necessary the brine may be piped from the mine to the refinery.

Production is expected to commence by next September.

Taxed Captain's Skill

Locomotive Broke Moorings In Storm And Jumped About Deck

To have four 72-ton locomotives dance about the deck of a little tramp steamer is a monument to Indian Ocean, was the experience of Captain H. Nygaard master of the Norwegian steamer Ida Knudsen. Born in Russia, he went overseas with the 7th Canadian battalion from Ottawa. He was with Vic. at Hill 70 and Lens when he bayonetted 16 Germans, took three prisoners and a machine gun and destroyed two other machine guns.

King George told him when he presented him with his medal that he had one of the outstanding records in the army. Then Knudsen spent nine years in hospital. After that he did not seem able to find anyone who needed a V.C. to work for them, and eventually he was hired on the clearing staff at parliament buildings.

One of his duties was to mop up the floor of the hall of fame, where it had been suggested by patriotic citizens that busts of Canada's holders of the Victoria Cross should be placed.

Four days ago he was promoted, now responsible in a brand new green outfit with gilt buttons, he attends to members in their common room.

School Absences Due to Colds Cut Almost One-Half

Famous Colds-Control Plan Tested in Three Series of Class Among 5,116 School Children

FURTHER PROVED IN HOME USE

School absences due to colds have been reduced nearly one-half (48.3%), by following Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. This is proved by records of clinics among 5,116 school children.

Mothers and teachers alike welcomed Vicks Plan as practical guide to fewer and shorter colds. This combines, medically proved, time-tested on three simple steps:

1. To Stop Needless Exposure to Colds. Live normally, avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep elimination regular. Don't pamper yourself. Take some exercise daily; outdoors preferably. Get enough rest and sleep.

2. To Help Prevent Many Colds. At first sign of nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat where most colds first start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds. Va-tro-nol is especially helpful during the early stages.

3. To Help End a Cold Sooner. If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, rub throat and chest well with Vicks Vapo-Rub. Vapo-Rub acts two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster, (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, direct to inflamed air passages. Through the night this combined vapor-poultice action keeps on relieving, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

What Vicks Plan can do for others has been indicated not only in clinics, but also in the further proof of every-day home use by thousands. What it can do for you and your family can be proved only by trying it. Directions for following the Plan come in each package of Vicks Va-tro-nol and Vicks Vapo-Rub.

Had Varied Career

Canadian Holder Of Victoria Cross Became Pawnbroker

An old soldier is wearing his medals, or rather his ribbons, with great pride in the parliament buildings these days, for Corporal Filip Konowal, V.C., has been promoted from his position on the cleaning staff to that of a uniformed attendant in charge of room 16, the common room in the House of Commons. Konowal has had a varied career. Born in Russia, he went overseas with the 7th Canadian battalion from Ottawa. He was with Vic. at Hill 70 and Lens when he bayonetted 16 Germans, took three prisoners and a machine gun and destroyed two other machine guns.

King George told him when he presented him with his medal that he had one of the outstanding records in the army. Then Konowal spent nine years in hospital. Recalls Queen As Customer

Edmonton Man Sold Cot Outfit For Diamond Ring

The outfit of linen for the cot in which the present King spent some of his first years of his life in 1894, was sold to Queen Mary by Walter J. Price, now on the staff of a store in Edmonton.

He was a clerk in a drygoods shop in Malvern, Worcestershire, at the time, and to that town came Queen Mary in the summer of 1894 with the infant Prince of Wales. They were guests at one of the spas for some weeks.

One day the Queen came into the store where Mr. Price was employed and to the counter where he was on duty.

"She came in just like any ordinary customer" says Mr. Price, "told what she wanted, and was shown to my counter. As she sat down she asked if I knew who she was, and on my assuring her that I did, she smiled and went on at once with her shopping.

"I sold her a complete outfit of pillow cases, sheets, and spread for the baby prince's cot. She was not hard to serve, but of course I showed her the kind of goods I thought would please her. There was not the slightest question of 'side' or formality in her manner. On the other hand, she showed just the sort of motherly concern that one would expect."

Robot Narrowly Missed Killing Its Inventor With Gun

A new trick that he was adding to his mechanical man's repertoire at the Pacific International Exposition in San Diego, California, almost cost the life of Henry C. May, inventor.

Mays was trying to teach the robot to shoot a revolver. The mechanical man learned more quickly than he anticipated, and shot him in the hand.

BRITAIN WILL TRY ANOTHER PLAN TO LIMIT ARMS

London. — Great Britain indicated to naval conference quarters she intends to propose a new plan to obtain a world limitation treaty direct through bi-lateral negotiations with other powers.

The news followed an announcement that the Italians are not prepared to sign a four-power treaty at present. The Rome delegation received instructions to postpone the conference.

The additional railway maintenance work will be undertaken by the government and railways on a cooperative basis. An emergency supplementary estimate will be introduced in the house to cover the government's share.

While relief camps remain open, projects will be continued under the direction of the national defence, working in close co-operation with and carrying out the policy of the labor department.

Co-operation will be encouraged between provinces and Dominion in the matter of more intensive application of the farm placement schemes.

Allowance of 30 cents a day in addition to rations will be increased to $1.5 a month, as from March 1. All other allowances, such as food, clothing, bedding and medical care will remain the same.

The monthly allowance of $15 will be paid out as follows: $7.50 in cash, the other $7.50 being set aside until such time as the men leaves the camps when he will receive non-negotiable bonds payable at the rate of $4 a week at any post office, for the total balance standing to his credit. This means that if a man leaves a camp of his own free will, he will at least have some means of support while he is seeking industrial re-establishment.

Would Let League Decide

France Willing To Have Ruling On Fact With Soviet Union

Paris. France stands ready to go before the world court with Germany to decide whether the Franco-Soviet mutual assistance pact violates the Locarno treaties, Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin told the chamber of deputies.

M. Flandin made the offer in the course of his first important chamber speech, urging ratification of the pact with the Soviet Union as a necessary step in the creation of collective security.

He denied the pact could be interpreted as a military alliance, saying, however, that governments naturally discuss military conditions under which they would exchange assistance.

"We would be unjust to forget that Russian arms contributed to the victory of the Marne," he told the deputies

Edmonton Leads Province

Has Settled Most Families Under Farm Relief Scheme

Edmonton. — Edmonton led the way in number of families settled under the $600 farm relief settlement scheme, to which the city province and Dominion contribute, according to the annual report of the branch of the department of agriculture.

Since 1932, there have been 293 families sent out from Edmonton and 184 from Lethbridge, four from Wetaskiwin, besides the following from small villages, rural municipal districts, 52; local improvement districts, 16; Turner Valley district, 22

No Canadians Hurt

While Received In Odessa From Minister To Japan

Ottawa The department of external affairs disclosed it had received a cable from Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian minister to Japan, reporting no Canadian citizen was injured in fighting that occurred in Tokyo during a military coup there

The department said Sir Herbert had received information of developments in Tokyo but declined to make public further contents of his message

Wants Guarantee Renewed

London.—Usually reliable sources indicated the Belgian government was seeking renewal of British guarantees of the neutrality of that country similar to those existing when the Great War broke out in 1914

Treaty Has Been Ratified

France-Soviet Pact Confirmed By Large Majority

Paris.—The chamber of deputies, by an overwhelming majority, ratified the France-Soviet treaty of mutual assistance. The chamber had previously suspended in an uproar. Convening in an atmosphere charged with the new threats of conflict in the Far East, arising from the Tokyo coup, Rightist and Communist deputies clashed in an acrimonious debate that all but ended in fisticuffs on the floor of the house.

Berlin. — Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi party foreign policy chief, attacked the Franco-Soviet mutual aid pact as "a collective association to menace the peace of the world," in Chancellor Adolf Hitler's personal newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter.

JAPAN LEADERS KILLED IN REVOLT BY WAR PARTY

Tokyo.—Three of Japan's most distinguished leaders were assassinated in a more severe blow to the country's military clique than any that has been struck since the present cabinet was established. The new cabinet of Premier Hirohito and high Japanese officials conferred at the imperial palace in an endeavor to settle without further bloodshed the military uprising which took the lives of three government heads.

Military officers, political parties, members of the privy council and survivors of the former cabinet of assassinated Premier Okada attended the conference.

Meanwhile rebel soldiers were reported still holding public buildings. They refused orders to evacuate the buildings, indicating they would do so only after formation of a government acceptable to the militarists.

Efforts to form a stop-gap Japanese government in the wake of a bloody militarist purge of liberal elder statesmen.

While martial law was in force in Tokyo and troops guarded the imperial palace, Fumio Goto, communications minister, was called to form a cabinet, resigned within a few hours

Every major world power watched the developing situation with anxiety, as also did ancient China

The Japanese government claimed the situation was under control, but two fleets were called in from the high seas for duty in Tokyo and Osaka. Martial law was proclaimed many hours after the revolt broke out.

Relief Camp Policy Changed

Government Hopes To Have Them Closed By Dominion Day

Ottawa.—Closing of relief camps throughout Canada by Dominion Day is the objective of the government, Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, minister of labor, announced. Present strength of the camps will not be increased There will be no new admissions."

In a statement to the House of Commons the minister said: Arrangements have been made with the Canadian railways to employ 10,000 men on deferred maintenance work the coming summer.

Men taken from the relief camps by the railways will be on a basis of work and wages.

The additional railway maintenance work will be undertaken by the government and railways on a co-operative basis. An emergency supplementary estimate will be introduced in the house to cover the government's share.

While relief camps remain open, projects will be continued under the direction of the national defence, working in close co-operation with and carrying out the policy of the labor department.

Co-operation will be encouraged between provinces and Dominion in the matter of more intensive application of the farm placement schemes.

British Member Criticized

Labor Member Told Royal Family Was Never Photographed

London — David Kirkwood, Labor M.P., was sharply criticized in the House of Commons for citing the royal family as an example in supplementary estimate for the labor ministry.

Pleading that vacations be allowed to unemployed persons in training camps, Kirkwood referred to the travels of the royal family in Africa and Argentina of "a wealthy young man" who at that time was the Prince of Wales.

The deputy chairman of the house interrupted him with the remark, "the house is entitled to be aware that we never discuss the royal family in this house."

Protest Against Price Boosts

Manitoba Government Asked To Look Into Machinery Costs

Winnipeg The Manitoba government was charged to consult with the Dominion administration with a view to bringing the price of agricultural machinery down "to what they were under the Bennett regime."

Quoting from figures to show that the cost of farm implements was substantially increased this month, A. L. Mutch (Cons., Turtle Mountain) said in the provincial legislature it was the duty of Premier Bracken to press upon Ottawa the need of a 20 per cent. reduction in prices

Mr Mutch cited 11 instances of increased prices, ranging from $2 to $42 effective February 1 on binders, seed drills harrows and other implements.

Douglas Campbell, Progressive member for Lakeside also resented reports of higher prices for farm machinery He stated that the Canadian-American trade agreement had resulted in lower prices for livestock and higher prices for farm machinery.

Poverty Among Indians

Parliament Is Told One-Third Are On Relief

Ottawa. — Administration of the affairs of Canada's 112,000 Indians is causing some concern, the House of Commons learned when estimates for the Indian department aggregating $4,241,000 were under consideration.

Hon. T. A. Crerar, superintendent-general of Indian affairs, said the Indian population was increasing and that approximately one-third of it was now on relief.

The increasing expenditures on Indian administration demanded attention of public authorities, Crerar said. The superficial study he had been able to make since coming to the department he believed some improvements might be made If this proved to be the case he hoped to be able to make certain proposals before another session of parliament.

The great problems of the department were to improve the standard of the Indians to educate them to make them self-supporting and to bring them to a greater knowledge of the methods of the white man He thought the government had not been as wise as it might have been in the latter regard

Conservative leader Bennett said the fact the Indian population was increasing showed it was well cared for on the whole although acute distress was also reported in certain places

Answering questions from members, Mr Crerar said the problem of tuberculosis was a serious one. Departmental officers were to make every effort to prevent the spread of disease.

Cause Of Japanese Trouble

Hisano Age-Old Oriental Organization For Tokyo Revolt

Shanghai.—It was learned on reliable authority here that an age-old Oriental organization known as the Shoun was behind the coup in Tokyo. It said this organization had been revived a year as a fascist, militaristic body by Hosuke Matsuoka.

Matsuoka, president of the South Manchuria Railway and formerly Japan's delegate to the League of Nations, said at the time he was revived the Shoun as "a moral, not a political, movement."

One of its characteristics is extreme veneration of the emperor

The Shoun has appeared from time to time as a force in Japanese affairs. It held considerable political influence in the 18th century but went out of existence when occidental influence began to penetrate the country.

Matsuoka consistently has been a supporter of the militarist element and of the Outlining the policies of Cho Shoun, he said last year it would oppose capitalism and parliamentarianism and would favor a corporate state with imperialistic aims.

MEMBERS HAVE SUGGESTIONS TO PROVIDE WORK

Ottawa. Private members of the House of Commons bombarded the government with a variety of suggestions for ending unemployment

The discussion came up on a resolution proposed by Grant MacNeil (CCF Vancouver North) who proposed the Dominion should assume full responsibility for unemployment relief institute a large public works program increase the standard of direct relief and raise money by high taxes on incomes over $10000

An extensive back-to-the-land movement was the favorite cure of E. H. Brunelle (Liberal, Champlain). He proposed the government should spend money improving railway and put unemployed from the cities to work on the land by a system of farming They should be given unpurchased land and left to work out their own salvation without money or help

Reforestation and housing were activities favored by Hon H H Stevens (Reconstruction) who believed these were self-liquidating works which over a period of years would repay the money spent in order to provide employment

At the same time Mr Stevens added there was no room to deceive ourselves as to the seriousness of the situation in the social circle there. Ministers matters were to some extent responsible for unemployment.

PLAN TO RETIRE PUBLIC DEBTS IS URGED ON HOUSE

Ottawa. A debt retirement plan involving the Bank of Canada and public credit was outlined to the House of Commons by Hugh E. Tucker, Liberal member for Rosthern, Sask. It involved converting Dominion provincial municipal and public corporate debt into non-interest-bearing securities over a period of 94 years without cost to the treasury.

The Rosthern member, who has become one of the leading Social reformers of the house in his brief time here outlined his ideas during debate on a motion proposed by Major J. Coldwell (CCF, Rosetown-Biggar) to nationalize the Bank of Canada and all chartered banks considering ownership and control of the Bank of Canada. He did not believe it would be in the best interests of Canada to take over the chartered institutions, involving as it would a managing board and wide personnel bureaucracy.

The debt of parliament, Mr Dunning said was to control but not private business He was opposed to bureaucracy and insisted parliament could not manage a business as well as a board of business men.

The banking minister made no reference to the proposal that the bank of Canada should be wound up and a central bank established in its place.

Here's Real Help In Avoiding Many Miserable Colds

Unique Medication Designed to Aid Nature's Defenses in Nose and Throat, Where Most Colds Start.

PROVED IN USE BY MILLIONS

In the exclusive formula of Vicks Va-tro-nol has been found a unique and successful aid in preventing many colds — winter's threat to our comfort and health.

Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat — where most colds start. It aids and stimulates the functions provided by Nature — in the nose — to prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in the early stages. Used in time — at the first nasal irritation, colds, or sneezes — just a few drops in each nostril — Va-tro-nol helps to avoid many colds.

Where irritation has led to a clogged-up nose (a stuffy head cold or nasal catarrh) Va-tro-nol reduces swollen membranes — clears clogged sinuses — brings comforting relief.

For Fewer and Shorter Colds

Note to mothers — who guard the family's health: Vicks has developed, especially for you, a practical Plan for Better Home Control of Colds. This guide to fewer and shorter colds has been clinically tested by practicing physicians and further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full details of Vicks Plan in each Va-tro-nol package.

Conferred Decorations

First Investitures By King Edward's Brilliant Ceremony

The first investiture of King Edward's reign took place in Buckingham Palace, where he conferred honors and decorations awarded by his father, the late King George V., in the New Year's list, and decorating with the Royal Victorian Order the sailors and soldiers who participated in King George's funeral.

The brilliant ceremony took place in the white and gold Throne Room on the ground floor of the Palace, with the King in the blue and gold full-dress uniform of an Admiral of the Fleet, attended by the Acting Lord Chamberlain, the George Cricthton, and the great officers of the Royal Household.

Outside the Palace, the guard of honor of Coldstream Guards presented arms and the band played the National Anthem. Crowds saw the officers and men of the Navy and Army march to the Palace to be decorated by the King.

There was a battery of the Royal Horse Artillery who drew the gun carriage at Sandringham; then men of the King's Company of Grenadier Guards, who acted as bearers; followed by men of the Royal Horse Guards and Life Guards and 300 bluejackets of the gun-teams who drew the gun carriage in the funeral procession at London and Windsor.

The officers were invested with various grades of the Victorian Order and the men were decorated with the medal of the same order.

Toll Of Carelessness

Accidents Caused 90,000 Deaths In United States Last Year

Our own complete life, says the Kitchener, Ont., Record, accompanied by the hazards and health that the men s nerves, is beset with many dangers. Somehow it seems that the reckless ness of many persons in unlimely deaths are much more numerous than they were years ago before automobiles came. Perhaps a greater toll due to present-day contrivances designed to make life less a drudgery Therefore it is well worth while for us to pause at times and let us go about with our eyes open if we would avoid the pitfalls that so often bring death or serious injury.

A tragic story emanating from Chicago emphasizes in grim reality the appalling cost of carelessness in this day and age. The National Safety Council states that 90,000 persons died in accidents in the United States last year—one every six minutes. On top of that 265,000 persons were permanently injured and 9,100,000 temporarily disabled. The total financial damage attributable in one way or another to these accidents reached $3,000,000,000 in property loss, wage loss and medical expense.

Great Lakes Gold Million

Valuable Cargoes Went Down With Many Wrecked Ships

"That's gold in them there Great Lakes" and coal and whisky, too.

The treasure, estimated to be worth more than $20,000,000, is said to be lying in holes scattered on the floor of North America's great inland seaway. Nobody knows how many ships have been lost in the five lakes.

Storms cut in a row there would be a wreck every half mile in the 1,100 miles from Buffalo at the foot of Lake Erie to Duluth at the head. The gold is there but in meagre quantity. The real money lies in cargoes.

Three of the better known carriers of "fivewater" were the Lexington, the Atlantic with 1,000 barrels between Cleveland and Port Huron; the Anthony Wayne, lost in Lake Erie with 300 barrels of whisky and wine, and the Westmoreland, wrecked near Manitou Island with a similar cargo. Treasure-seeking daughters hold thousands of tons of coal.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MARCH 15

JESUS TEACHES HIS DISCIPLES TO PRAY

Golden text: If we ask anything according to his will, he heareth us. 1 John 5:14.

Lesson: Luke 11.

Devotional reading: Matthew 6: 6-15.

Explanations And Comments

A Disciple's Request, Luke 11:1-2. Matthew gives "The Lord's Prayer" in fuller form in "The Sermon on the Mount," and associates it with Jesus' warning against the insincere prayers of the Pharisees. Luke tells us nothing about the time or place "It came to pass" he says, "as Jesus was praying in a certain place, that one of his disciples desired him to teach Jesus to pray as John the Baptist had taught his disciples" Nothing is known about John's teaching upon prayer, but rabbis were in the habit of prescribing definite forms.

The Lord's Prayer, Luke 11:3-4. In response to the only request of the disciples, so far as the Gospel records go, for instruction, Jesus taught them the prayer of which Matthew's is the longer version. When you pray, say, Father, thy name be revered, thy reign begin; give us our bread for the morrow day by day; and forgive us our sins for we forgive everyone who has offended us; and lead us not into temptation" (Luke 11:2 Weymouth). The clause "Who art in heaven" expresses in a characteristically Jewish way, A. E. Garvie comments, the reverence for God which the address "Father" might seem to lack. Thy name, as we often have occasion to observe, stands in the Scriptures for thyself. Thy Kingdom come.

"Lord, when we pray, Thy Kingdom come!"
Then fold our hands without a sigh
For souls whom thou hast died to save,
We do but mock thee with our prayer!

The petition for "bread" implies that we may ask for daily bread. Yet we need to keep in mind the words of Canon Farrar that to ask daily for earthly blessings is a "dreadful cheating of the grandest words." Even though you should pray for a handful of grass when you might ask for a handful of emeralds.

"Give us this day our daily bread,"
Our daily bread
And give us likewise, Lord, our daily thanks
That our poor souls may be strengthened by the holds of the Dean Richard; $30,000 in steel billets in the Fay and $60,000 in copper in the City of Detroit.

Successful salvage jobs half-paid for the Atlantic, located 18 years after it sank, gave up $30,000; the Erie, brought up 14 days after foundering, had $100,000 in bonds, jewelry, money and Capt. Harris W. Baker, of Detroit, owned $50,000 by salvaging the William H. Stevens.

War In Ethiopia Is Costing Empire $150,000 A Day

The Ethiopian-Italian war is costing Great Britain something over $150,000 a day. This is because Britain has had to take certain emergency measures to free her mind more herself against aggression in the Mediterranean area. She has shifted the bulk of her fleet to these waters and strengthened her positions in Malta and Gibraltar. Nor is the end in sight. It has just been announced that Britain's biggest battleship, the Hood, will soon leave again for the fortress of Gibraltar, and when she has arrived, "the total of British ships in and near the Mediterranean will be 116, "compared with the 137 gathered there just a month ago. All of which ought to be a fairly apt illustration of the extravagant cost of fighting even to the nations that do not fight. —Baltimore Sun.

So the applications are being filed pending announcement of the arrangements.

Has Far-Reaching Effect

What happens on land may very often affect fishing in the water. For instance, removing forests and draining swamps tends to increase spring floods and brings about summer droughts in the streams, and both flood conditions and drought conditions may affect fishing.

New Mountain Playground

Alpine Club Aid In Establishing The Provincial Park

To the Alpine Club of Canada, Vancouver section, goes much of the credit for the recent establishment of Seymour Mountain as a provincial park. The government has set aside 667 acres of peak and valley where skier, hiker and mountaineer will find a playground unrivalled in the North Shore hills.

The lake-studded parkland, fronting on the lower peaks of the Seymour range, grown thinly with alpine hemlock and cypress, and pushing now many feet under snow, is approachable either from pipeline road or Seymour Creek or from Black Gold logging road in the vicinity of Deep Cove. One strenuous day's climb will take the hiker from Vancouver to James or Theta Lake, while to at the northeast boundary, while at a small expenditure the Deep Cove approach may be made passable for cars to within half an hour of the Alpine club cabin, almost at the edge of the park.

While no cabins will be built in the park, it is probable that a shelter or some kind will be raised for the convenience of hikers, who may be invited to visit the area on an inspection trip this summer, when the park is clear of snow.

FLEMING'S FOLLY — BY — LAWRENCE A. ERATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Northern County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Buzz Hogue, the boss of the Rawhide and nearby ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, but was secretly opposed to it, had forced Bank Tourney, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kligo Rawhide had called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to reverse his original statement, and declare that irrigation in Boone county as far as Fleming's plan was concerned was only a newfangled way to waste money.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Mary Ballard and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. The angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, run his "spread". Buzz shouts at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Link ride to Rawhide for supplies and to obtain funds to carry out the dam project. There they meet Roper, who greets Helen and offers to shop with her. Link goes to see the Sheriff, who tells him Buzz Hamilton has been paroled. And would arrive the incoming stage, but that he thinks Link has made a mistake in Buzz Hamilton.

CHAPTER VIII

Helen and Link ride to Rawhide for supplies and to obtain funds to carry out the dam project. There they meet Roper, who greets Helen and offers to shop with her. Link goes to see the Sheriff, who tells him Buzz Hamilton has been paroled. And would arrive the incoming stage, but that he thinks Link has made a mistake in Buzz Hamilton.

"You mentioned a hundred an acre?" Link tapped Pierre's bony knee. "I won't sell my share for less than two hundred an acre, two years from now. And my whole Star Loop'll go away up in value. Sell the Triple H. If irrigation works other places, it'll work here. Now Otto, you're a man of vision, of foresight. That's why I want you as one to-day, and we know it! Isn't that so, Helen?

She came promptly to the rescue. "I've heard Father say many times how shrewd you are, Mr. Pieper. That's why Link and I always come to you We could go to Sol Hastings over in Atlas, but he wouldn't grasp the situation as you do. We have confidence in the Stockmen's Bank. Why, everyone has!"

Instinctively Pieper thrust his thumbs into the armholes of his vest. He started to lean back but remembered a box of cigars, and bent to open a drawer for them. Link accepted one and struck a match while Otto puffed, thinking comfortable, he studied his visitors.

"How much is this thing to cost, did you say?"

"Oh, not much over twelve hundred."

The banker jerked forward in his chair, then settled back shaking his head "You two should've been married," he said. "But no, you had to plaster mortgages and notes over your sprenda tryin' to improve God's handiwork."

"Why not take a loan on your steers? Or have you done that elsewhere?" he demanded suspiciously.

Fleming smiled. "We trade here, Otto, unless you drive us away. Of course, I did hear Hastings has a lot of cash to lend, now he's increased his capitalization. But here's the thing: we need this small matter of eight hundred for our payroll. Got 37 men working on the dam, Otto, and she'll be finished in a couple of days. We don't want to encumber our steers; we want to get cash for them. It'll just about finish up things"

There was a moment's silence. "The pair of you owe me two thousand on a note now There's first mortgages besides. Link, I gave you five hundred last Tuesday —"

He broke off as the pair of them gave him blank looks, and Helen's surprised expression to a smile. "Then you'll give us the money, Mr. Pieper?"

His eyes seemed to bore through her. Of a sudden he scowled and swung away. "Can't see my way clear. Sorry. Call to-day."

Helen's heart seemed to fall to her breast. Fleming's countenance was a study as he and his pipe held apart as if he were utterly nonplussed. At last he sighed, flicked ashes from his cigar, and rose. He followed suit, her eyes hot, with the threat of mistiness welling to their deeps.

"We're sorry, Link, and I'll give part of that fifty acres when you sell your Triple H," he said, "but didn't mention that you borrowed five hundred dollars from him the day of the fight."

"Well," — guiltily — "that drain pipe for the ditches had to be paid for. Couldn't have irrigation without boilerin'. But shucks, I'll benefit more than you. We won't count that."

"Link, have we enough money to complete the dam?"

She was silent for a moment. "I don't know This eight hundred won't even square us with the boys on wages We hoping it'll keep them quiet for a spell, though. It's plain we can't get another penny from Otto, but it wouldn't be honest to let Sol Hastings at Atlas. All we can do," he said in a worried tone, "is hope for the best and try to sell our steers for enough to see us through. A little dam costs big money, doesn't it?" he added ruefully

Sheriff Ames Stephen across the street gestured as if to convey some information without Helen's knowledge. Link frowned and tried to make out the lawman's silent gibberish. Then his eyes travelled past Stephen and he saw the high figure of the Flagstaff-to-Rawhide stage as it stood in front of the Half Moon Cafe

At once he understood that Buzz Hamilton was home from the penitentiary. But the man certainly was nowhere in evidence along the street. Arriving while they were talking with Pieper, he had found no one to meet him, and more than likely he had drifted into the Half Moon for a drink

A troubled look entered Link's grey eyes. He blamed himself for not anticipating the starting time at once away from temptation. Was he to go back to drinking and gambling the moment he returned to Rawhide?

From inside his shirt he took the packet that was the eight hundred dollars of payroll money and proceeded it to Helen Would you mind very much if I stay while you start back to your spread with this? I'll be along after while and we'll send to payin' off the boys

Helen accepted the packet heedlessly "Why, no, I'll do that, Link What you want to stay about doesn't concern our dam does it?"

"No To tell the truth I es I'm goin' to have a surprise for you Yor, sir, a nasty little surprise," he chuckled "But I m not appearin' it now. You'll find out in good time."

Her oval face relaxed in a smile "Very well, Link" They moved to her pony at the hitch rack a few feet away and he held her stirrup while Helen mounted Once astride she looked down at him a little anxiously. "You aren't going —"

Home Guide Aids In Lifting Heavy Burden of Colds

Brings Better Control of Colds for the Family — Easy to Follow

A GREAT HELP TO MOTHERS

Much of the heavy burden that colds impose upon Canadian families can now be alleviated by the use of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. With Vicks Plan fewer colds — fewer and shorter colds for just three reasons:

1. To Help Build Resistance to Colds Live normally avoid exposure But take needful precautions. Follow regular Vicks plan of nose and throat hygiene. Use Va-tro-nol regularly. Get plenty of rest, eat nourishing food, avoid fatigue.

2. To Help Prevent Many Colds At the first sneeze, nasal irritation, sniffle or stuffy head Vicks Va-tro-nol is applied. Its medicated vapors Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat where most colds start. It aids and stimulates the functions provided by Nature — in the nose — to prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

3. To Help Bind a Cold Sooner If a cold has come on . . . we've a head . . . we're hoarse . . . we have a cough . . . we have a bad cold . . . we have a sore throat . . . we have a fever . . . we have a headache . . . we have a stomach ache . . . we have a backache . . . we have a leg ache . . . we have a foot ache . . . we have a toe ache . . . we have a finger ache . . . we have a nose ache . . . we have a throat ache . . . we have a chest ache . . . we have a back

MAKING UP A SHOPPING LIST

The hall needs a new rug. More towels are needed for the bathroom, and the kitchen floor could certainly stand a coat of paint. The children need shoes. The car will need new tires this spring. Well, we buy a hundred new things every year.

Scattered throughout Canada are manufacturers who make the very things we need. Their products are on sale in certain stores within easy reach. Certain of these products, and certain of these stores, are especially fitted to take care of our special need. But which products and which stores? Which can we afford, and which do we think is best? We must look to advertising for advice.

Advertising is the straight line between supply and demand. It saves time in haphazard shopping. It leads directly to your goal. By reading the advertisements, we can determine in advance where the best values are to be found. With the aid of advertising shopping becomes a simple and pleasant business, and budget figures bring more smiles than frowns.

From the pages of this paper you can make up a shopping list that will save you money.

"A SIMPLE little thing," declared Prof. W. B. Cartmel, of the University of Montreal, sitting in the book-strewn study of his Westmount home where, for some months past, since his retirement from the Northern Electric Company, as mathematical expert, he has worked out the highly complicated mathematical formulas by which he attempts to disprove the Einstein theory of the non-existence of ether and the constant speed of light. Addressing the American Physical Society in New York recently, he took his audience by surprise when he showed them that the slight difference observed between the velocity of light in the two beams reflected upon the interferometer in the original telescope experiment many years ago was not an error as Einstein maintains, but was just what should be expected, and indicates an "ether" wind, proves Newton's third law correct and logical. "In any case," says the genial professor with a merry twinkle in his eyes, "they have got to 'show me' by better proof than they have yet brought".

TREE SHELTERBELTS NEED ATTENTION

The main object of a shelterbelt of trees is to afford protection against wind. Therefore the closer the trees are together and the denser the growth, especially at the bottom, the more effective are the belts.

To secure this condition states R. J. Crossley of the Dominion Forest Nursery station, Indian Head, Saskatchewan, it is advisable to plant the trees close together and refrain from pruning of the lower branches, especially in the early stages of development. Belts should not contain more than 2 or 4 rows spaced 1 foot apart or three rows if spaced 8 feet apart. If 8 feet is left between the rows certainly the planting in the rows should not exceed 4 feet. A close dense growing variety, such as caragana, should be used for the outside row in order to keep the belt clear from the desiccating effects of the wind and sun.

Continuing from the time of establishment the most important feature is to keep the edges of the belt, to a width of at least 16 feet in a continued state of cultivation. This means that fences should not be placed closer than 12 to 16 feet to the trees at the time of planting.

As the shelterbelts grow older they require periodic attention to keep them in a healthy state of development. The tendency has been to leave the belts to move or less take care of themselves once they have become established. Consequently the grass works in among the trees along the edges of the belt, robbing them of much needed moisture; the amount of dead wood increases due to disease, insect injury, winter killing, etc. and generally speaking the belts become more or less unsightly. Attention should be given in the form of periodic thinnings and marginal cultivation.

In the natural forest, thinning is going on all the time. It is the survival of the fittest and if this did not take place the trees would soon become so dense that it would be impossible for them to survive. As each individual tree grows it requires more room for the development of its crown, more soil nutrients, light and moisture. As there is only a limited supply of these factors of growth some of the trees must fall by the wayside so that the healthier specimens can go on. This natural weeding-out process cannot take place so readily in an artificially established belt, because unlike a forest, it is composed of trees all of the same age each with the same opportunity for survival. This weeding-out does not start until much later in life. This difficulty can be easily overcome with a little help from man.

After the trees have been growing from 15 to 18 years an inspection will reveal the fact that some are doing much better than others. The poor growth among certain trees can be attributed to various causes, such as disease, mechanical injury or inherent side growth and these causes should be removed

First gopher noticed in our corner of the world was seen by Tom Best on Tuesday March 3rd at his feed corral.

On Sunday March 1st Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gow, Mr. and Mrs. R. Hetlinky, Doris and Nellie Riley, L. Graham and Bob Martin were visitors at the Wallington home.

Mr. and Mrs J. Watlington spent Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Steele, Basewood.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Steele visited on Sunday March 1st at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hibber, Basewood.

Ed Schroeder is busy grinding grain in the Basewood district for Gilholme, Batke and Gibson these days.

This warmer weather is surely appreciated after the intense cold of a few weeks ago.

Mrs. C. DeFord of Bowrell and her daughter Mrs. Henry Greig or Two Hills, drove down to visit her daughter Mrs Wm. Gow, for a few days last week. Mrs. Greig is on her way to join her husband at their new home in Trochu, Alta.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarine Sharp and children spent Sunday at the Batke home in Basewood

Yvonne and Irene Morand are staying with their grandmother while Mrs. Morand is at the hospital.

Victor Pilton stopped overnight at the writer's home on his way north again after selling a load of fish down Wainwright way.

The dance and shower held at Basewood school Friday evening for Mr and Mrs. Fete Madill was well attended. It brought folks from Thorncliffe, Tofield, Battleview, Triangle and Wildmere. At the first of the evening Fred Haines spoke on outline of a certain club they are trying to organize to follow the different doings at the provincial and dominion governments, then he read a pamphlet on the new school system. After this Mr. and Mrs. Madill were called on and the gifts were presented to them. We believe it was the best mixed array of presents any young couple could wish for, and all were very useful and immediate as well. Dancing was then enjoyed. Hardish brothers, Smith brothers and Elmer Isley taking turns at supplying the music and a good time was had by all. J. Batke managed the floor. Everyone wished the young couple many years of happiness and all sang "They are Jolly Good Fellows" at the close of the shower. A wedding dinner is being held at the bride's home in Basewood on Sunday evening when immediate relatives of the young couple will preside. After which Mr. and Mrs. Madill will reside on their farm in Wildmere district. What is Basewood's loss is Wildmere's gain. Welcome to Wildmere, Edith.

Miss Gilbert, Triangle teacher who visited her boarding place last week-end is now at Mr. and Mrs. Chas Morand's. Miss Young of Vermilion is working at the Morand home while Mrs. Morand is away.

Mrs Carlson and Mrs Helinsky, out walking for the good of their health, called and visited for a few hours with Mrs A Hehn on Friday afternoon last.

A stereopticon meeting will be held at Basewood on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, March 14th to talk over the proposed new school situation and bill.

Wildmere community club will meet on Saturday evening March 14th at the school. Everybody welcome.

Funniest thing heard this week was Charlie Morand wondering what he was going to find to do for his threshing family.

KOKNEE NEWS

The closing of the rink will have to be postponed for the present owing to the lack of ice. For the time being we have to be content with curling on the dry rink. Most people are getting tired of it with a team and hope for ice soon.

The dance at Kokni was well attended Friday evening and passed the school and went to the road they claimed there was more excitement and more girls there.

Neil Metiver Jr was a visitor to the district. All were glad to see him wearing his usual smile and as jolly as ever. He has now returned to La Pas.

TEXAS OILERS SWAMP LEGION; WIN WIEBE CUP

Won Second Straight Game on Monday Night

The Texas Oilers completing their first year in Civic league hockey, won the league championship and the Wiebe cup, as a result of taking two successive games from the Canadian Legion team. The result of the game Monday night was 8-1 while last Wednesday's encounter was 11 both in favor of the Oilers.

Last night's game was the most one-sided of the season and was totally unexpected as Manson Barr was away with Vegreville. However, in spite of the tough lee, Corson, Ledebourne and Bell had a gala night which resulted in a long parade of goals.

Summary—Texas goals: Stack Cor from Ledebourne, Corson from La Rocque, Howie Bell, (Legion) Gee Roebuck, Texas—Corson from Ledebourne Howie Bell; Ledebourne, Corson

Line ups: The Champs—
Powell, Tom Stack, Ken Corson Howie Bell, Preachy, Ledebourne, Pete Zaryanow, Mark Norton, Manson Barr, although an absentee last night was a member of the team. A. Fallon Manager.

Legion: Wilcox, George Roseberry, Will Fraser, Clarence Barr, Stan Deacon, Sandy Grey, Henry Cuelis, Wm Chappel, Cuelis Burns, Mendaree

SASK. IS BUDGETTING FOR MORE REVENUE

Increased Receipts from Gasoline Tax, Income Tax Expected

REGINA March 2.—Showing an increase of more than $1,000,000 in estimated expenditures in the current year that will end April 30, 1937, over the current year Premier Patterson as provincial treasurer, tabled his estimates in the legislature Monday afternoon. He estimated total expenditures, all accounts, at $20,150,823 as at this latest revision, all accounts at $19,815,256, or an estimated deficit of $171,077.

The new estimates show the government anticipates an increase in revenue of $250,000 from the gasoline tax, $400,000 more from income tax, $125,000 more from motor licences, $50,000 more from the sale of liquor and $50,000 more from the public utilities board, a total of $825,000 more.

DERWENT DRIBBLES

The weather is continuing warm and the snow is with certainty that spring is just around the corner. The roads are getting bad and it is impossible to get around by car. Sleighing and walking are the only means of travel.

Mrs Neary was ill for a short time last week but is now around again.

Mr. Hall of Vermilion was a business visitor in the district on Friday.

A dance was held at the home of Bill on Friday March 6. A good time was had by all. Music was supplied by the Derwent orchestra consisting of Will Fuller, and Sam all the way with possible times.

Curling is still continuing, although the rink is in bad shape. Rocks are pushed on Friday. Many of the Tigers are now employed in the district and will be unable to play for the rest of the season. Those who remain are getting ready for the game which is characterized by the fact that the losers must entertain the winners to a banquet. Both teams are full of enthusiasm and confidence.

It may be of interest to the people especially to social event organizers that our correspondent is planning Mr. Robert Fair, or holding a dance with eastern members. One eastern man he declared that the farmers in Canada had been absorbed to determine in addition, that the farmer should do his own thinking instead of the government spending thousands of dollars for experimental stations to think for the farmers. Mr Robert Fair personally shall regret the eastern member, to let any business man try to make a success of farming under the conditions of the past four years. J.W.

H. B. Rennie of Rumsey is planning on holding a clearing of auction sale on Friday March 27. Watch for bills later. Auctioneer W. J. Casterton is conducting the sale. Mr. and Mrs. Heath intend moving to Vancouver Island to live.

C.N.R. NEWSBOY MAKES MAKES GOOD AS SINGER

WINNIPEG Matt Cuddeford, railroad lad-turned-singer, known as Matthew A. Cuddeford, pauper-orphan to fame as "The Singing Newsboy," whose rise to fame has been meteoric in Montreal in less than six months, is back in Winnipeg to see his mother. He was given a royal welcome at the Canadian National station by a group of newsboy friends, among whom he was known as "Chicklets" in the days when he was selling newspapers, candy peanuts etc. Such a smiling personality had the lad that he was soon very popular with the commuters and he was nicknamed "Chicklets".

He used to go up and down the cars selling his peanuts, singing to himself, and the passengers quickly took an interest in him. The more he sang for them the more peanuts and candy they bought so he worked up a smart business.

He left home with the consent and good wishes of his parents, believing that he was going to get a job on the stage and write to his mother every week.

He had a hard time breaking in but appears to be headed for the big time now. His favorite song is "Wagon Wheels".

Education For Adults

To the testimony of others no less an authority than Dr. Walter C. Murray, president of the University of Saskatchewan recently added his opinion that there is a wide open field for educational facilities for adults and while he referred in conditions in the province in which he resides and teaches his assertion is equally applicable to the situation in the other prairie provinces.

While Dr. Murray pointed out that the development of his "unexplored field" is prevented at the present time for lack of finances he noted one very encouraging feature and that is that there was a growing feeling of the need of education for themselves among the adults themselves

The statement that this is an encouraging feature of the situation is no doubt inspired by the belief that if adults themselves realize the need the problem is already partially solved for the desire will presently be followed by a more or less insistent demand and one that demand becomes sufficiently strong some way will assuredly be found to enter to the need

This renaissance in embryo, this dawning desire on the part of adults for greater educational facilities may be ascribed to a number of causes. One of them is a growing fear lest in a world of rapidly changing conditions they may lag behind the growing consciousness of superior mentality on the part of the younger generation

During the depression period of the past few years the difficulty experienced by the rising generation of securing suitable employment, or even of any work at all, has resulted in a large number of the youth of both sexes remaining in school longer than for many of them, would ordinarily have been the case Many who would have gone out to work when they had completed a public school course or one or two years in high school, have completed high school training and gone on to University or taken post graduate courses in technical schools or other institutions, partly because they foresaw the increased and economic conditions that would improve they will be the better fitted for the keen struggle in competition for the work that then offers while it is bound to ensue and partly because parents realized that it is better for offspring to should spend this hiatus in improving their minds than in enforced idleness

As a result many parents have discovered that their children are better trained and better mentally equipped than they are themselves, despite the years of experience they have had in the school of hard knocks. They have discovered that their children are able to handle with ease problems which they can only deal with after much effort and then, perhaps with much inadequacy They have discovered that their children have learned to apply scientific methods with success in solving their problems and have had the chagrin to discover that their own "will to do," backed by years of experience has frequently failed to measure up in comparison with the more up-to-date methods of the juveniles

Another cause of this stirring of a latent desire for more education may also be attributed to a substantial increase in the practice of reading of books and magazine and newspaper articles and more particularly on more serious subjects. This increase in reading can be traced to a desire to better understand the difficulties with which the world in general had been confronted in recent years and a hope through these channels to find some practicable solutions.

Now it is a step upon this that the practice of reading inevitably brings about a revelation that the reader after all knows comparatively little and creates a thirst for more knowledge and more information. In this respect it is akin to the aversion to the use of habit forming drugs but lacks the adverse evil results of indulgence in narcotics. In fact, it has just the opposite effect that of permanent stimulation The natural sequence in a desire for the aid which the younger people are receiving in their institutions.

In schools and colleges and other educational institutions of the present day the whole aim of the courses is not to cram the students with a miscellany of facts, but instead to guide them in the selection of studies which may be of value to them and to train them to reach their own conclusions from the work they have undertaken. This is the true function of education. The more subtle population appreciate this fact in the light of the demonstration which is being given them by the younger generation and are becoming increasingly anxious for similar opportunities.

Twenty-Nine Now Under Construction For Imperial Airways

Twenty-nine seaplanes, destined for eventual use on the Canada-Great Britain and other Imperial air lines, are said to be under construction in aeroplane factories at Rochester and Hamble. The planes are being constructed as part of a comprehensive plan to establish a network of air routes throughout the entire British Empire Only British planes eventually would be permitted to fly over British territory. The new planes are described as capable of carrying three and one-half tons. With a somewhat reduced load, they have a cruising range of 1,500 miles.

Mind Should Be Exercised

Lady Tweedsmuir In Broadcast Urges People To Think

Lady Tweedsmuir speaking at the opening ceremonies of national education week, admitted that as a child she was poor at arithmetic, a "difficult and distressful problem."

In the modern world where conditions are changing with bewildering rapidity," she said, "it is vital that we all set our minds to devising a system of education of one elastic enough to meet our needs and strong enough to stand the strain of the ever-changing conditions of the 1930's."

After outlining her idea of education which included the three R's and A. G. geography, Lady Tweedsmuir mentioned mechanical advantages accorded the modern child over those of his predecessors, but added:

"To stare stupidly at the movies and listen unintelligently to the radio is not going to help people to have minds that work for themselves. One of the curses of modern life is a tendency to smaller and never go deeply into anything The mind may become boneless and flabby because it has never used its mental muscles and its sinews."

Maharajah Bought Four Carloads Of Souvenirs In London

When the Maharajah of Bhavnagar left London after his recent visit, the 24-year-old ruler of half a million people literally loaded four carloads of souvenirs. He went to England with his wife, their two little sons his two brothers, and a retinue of servants for a seven-weeks vacation. During that time he staggered shopkeepers by the magnificence of his purchases. He had a secretary three days to paint the addresses on the 150 crates containing the maharajah's shopping. Among sporting guns, furnishing fabrics, specially made cutlery, toys, clothing and a 6,000 automobile tires and tubes, incubators for rearing chickens, apparatus for taking and exhibiting talking motion pictures, kitchen utensils, and a complete soda fountain.

Letters Are Returned

Man Receives These Out Of Five Thrown Into Ocean

Leo Burney of Sydney, Australia, has just received the third letter of five he had "mailed" in bottles from ships in the Pacific Ocean years ago. One bottle, thrown overboard near the Tongan Isles was found, Burney learned, by a native who lives 3,000 miles away. Another floated 500 miles to the North Queensland coast. Three bottles were thrown overboard near Fagu Fagu. This drifted to the Gilbert Islands and was found by a native who kept it. He spent the six cents placed in the envelope for postage, on tobacco or matches, and sent the letter on when he could not read, in his bell. There it was noticed by the captain of a trading schooner, who sent it back to Burney.

Thought To Be Best Method Of Preserving Records

Cameras are making "page movies" of rare books and ancient newspapers in the New York public library.

Although the photostat division is handling an increasing number of orders annually, the page movies, by the compactness and comparative inexpensiveness, are regarded by librarians as the best method of preserving records of printed matter.

The page movies are recorded on neat little rolls of 35-millimetre film. They can be stored in about five per cent. of the space required for the original.

Tuberculosis Is Increasing Among Eskimos In Arctic Regions

It is reported from Montreal by way of London that two scientists of that city having spent some weeks in the study of health conditions among the Eskimos in the Eastern Arctic regions, discovered that tuberculosis is rapidly increasing among them, but that it is through contact with white men. The presence of common colds among the natives is "almost inevitable after the arrival of a ship." Infection from influenza is known to have wiped out small Eskimo communities.

On the other hand, it is stated that natives of these regions never succumb to cancer or diabetes, and when unable to resist infection from colds the Eskimos can stand extreme fatigue and extremely cold temperature. The healthiest groups were found where the inhabitants wore native clothes and were unable to obtain much of white man's food.

Extensive and protracted studies in that frigid area might be helpful to us in fighting diseases that are so prevalent in temperate regions. through the discovery of what possible inducing causes are prevalent here that are lacking there. The brief observation of these two scientists but calls attention to what should be further pursued.-New York Times.

ONLY FRUIT-A-TIVES GAVE LASTING RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Constipation and stomach trouble banished quickly.

After suffering months from constipation, Mrs. F. Hoddinott, Redcliff, got quick relief from Fruit-a-tives. He says, "I can't possibly be troubled too severely for months. Nothing did any good until I tried Fruit-a-tives. They brought me quick and complete relief."

A famous doctor made Fruit-a-tives by concentrating into convenient tablets extracts of APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS, PRUNES and HERBS. The result is a remedy as natural as it is effective. Fruit-a-tives bring, not just temporary relief, but relief that lasts because of their amazing tonic effect on the liver.

HOT CROSS BUNS

1 cake compressed yeast
½ cup boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup white sugar
2 eggs
½ cup currants
5½ to 6 cups sifted Purity Flour
2 cups scalded milk (cooled)
½ teaspoon cinnamon (if desired)

Method: Dissolve yeast in lukewarm milk in which 1 tablespoon sugar has been added. Add 3 cups flour, beat until smooth and let rise until light (about ½ hours). Cream butter and sugar and add to sponge. Add well-beaten eggs, salt, currants, cinnamon, and sufficient flour to make a dough soft enough to be handled conveniently. Mix, turn out on board and knead lightly; place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in bulk (about 1 to 1½ hours), then shape into round buns; place in greased shallow pans about 2 inches apart; cover and let rise until light. Glaze with egg and water; press cross on each bun with back of a knife. Bake for 15 to 20 minutes in hot oven of 400 degrees.

Choice Was Appropriate

Not many people watched the changing of the guard at St. James Palace one day recently. With visibility in Privacy Court practically nil, there was nothing to see. But the band, barely discernible in the fog, was apparently determined to make an appropriate choice of music. The last tune they played before marching back to barracks was "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes."

Another Victim Of X-Ray

Dr. Charles Harvey Archibald, of New York, a pioneer in the development of the X-ray, is dead at Asbury Park, N.J. In 1930 he lost the middle finger of his left hand because of X-ray burns and in 1934 the left arm was amputated. The operation which brought about his death was made in an attempt to check further infection from burns.

For Agricultural Research

University Of Saskatchewan Receives Gift Of $24,000

The Agricultural Research foundation of the University of Saskatchewan will receive a gift of approximately $24,000 for the advancement of agricultural experimental research. This gift will be made possible by enactment of the Saskatchewan legislature, whereby unclaimed assets of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company will be paid over to the fund. The existing research fund was set up from the balance in the credit of the wheat board which operated the crop year of 1919-20. This amounted to approximately $225,000. The interest from the fund is used to carry on agricultural research work in the province.

Coal Mined In January

Was 84,121 Tons More Than In January Last Year

Production of coal in Canada during January totalled 1,381,944 tons an increase of 94,121 over January, 1935, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported. The output consisted of 772,238 tons of bituminous coal, 68,16 sub-bituminous, and 541,190 lignite

Alberta led with an output of 625,-554 tons, with Nova Scotia next with 437,257. Saskatchewan produced 169,-697 tons and New Brunswick 55,677 tons

In this connection, league officials pointed out that the appeal specified negotiations were to be carried on "within the framework and in the spirit of the covenant."

The full text of the reply follows:

"We have taken note of the telegram which you communicated to our minister of foreign affairs on behalf of the committee of 18.

"All states who are members of the League of Nations are aware that even before the outbreak of the war we did our best to insure peace by equitable conciliation in conformity with the spirit of the covenant of the League of Nations.

"Italy, in violation of her international obligations and notwithstanding measures taken up to the present, is continuing her aggression.

"We agree to opening negotiations subject to provisions of the covenant being respected. We note that the committee of thirteen's proposal is made that the negotiation be conducted in the spirit of the covenant and the frame work of the league.

"Our detailed reply will be communicated to you through our minister to Paris."

Rome.— Diplomatic circles foresaw a qualified "yes" as Italy's most likely reply to the peace proposals put forward by the League of Nations committee of 13.

Meanwhile Premier Mussolini was knocking at the doors of progress to chart Italy's course in the complicated international scene. He conferred with Count Stephan Erust von Starhemberg of Austria.

The two statesmen were said to be considering an Italo-Austro-Hungarian political and economic pact to "preserve the equilibrium in the Danube area" and which might involve German participation. Tripower talks among Italy, Austria and Hungary will begin here March 11

Trade With Australia

Exports And Imports Showed Gain During Last Year

Ottawa. — Canada's trade with Australia during 1935 showed a gain of 35 per cent. in exports and 17 per cent. in imports over the previous year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

Total trade with Australia amounted to $20,516,000 during the year, $23,301,000 in 1934. Imports from Australia were worth $7,395,000 last year against $6,301,000 in 1934, and exports $22,600,000 compared with $16,570,000.

Among the principal items of export were nuts valued at $7,012,000; auto parts, $918,000; fish, $2,060,000; paper, $4,361,000; tools, $419,000; wood (unmanufactured), $2,306,000; planks and boards, $1,540,000.

Leading items imported were dried fruits valued at $3,472,000; preserved fruits, $363,000; wool and products, $1,638,000; grease for soaps and oils, $173,000; raw wool, $494,000, onions, $57,000; gelatine, $105,000; brandy, $53,000; sugar, $1,-803,000

Would Finish Without Pay

Architect Does Not Want Unemployed Project Spoiled

Banff, Alta.—Confronted with an order to discontinue operations on a public works landscaping project "Cascades of Time", now almost completed after two years' work Architect H. C. Beckett offered to finish the job without compensation rather than see it "spoiled."

His men, all unemployed relief workers, have promised to work on it till the project, described as a first rate tourist attraction, is finished providing they are given a guarantee their families will be fed.

About $7 700, mostly labor costs has been spent on the project and only one pool remains to be built Already $1,100 has been expended on the last, unfinished pool.

Traffic Nearly Doubled

Canada's Air Mail And Freight Heavy Last Year

Ottawa.—Canada's airways almost doubled their freight and mail traffic in 1935 and carried mail tonnage second only to that of the United States, according to a statement issued by Defence Minister Mackenzie.

Highlights contained in the statement tell this story:

Freight and express matter carried by air last year amounted to 36,438,256 pounds, compared with 14,441,179 in 1934 and 4,305,901 in 1933.

Aviation companies carried 177-472 passengers last year compared with 108,306 in 1934 and 85,906 in 1933. The number of "passengers-miles" increased correspondingly.

Vital statistics show four pilots were killed in 1935, the same number as in 1934. In 1933 eight were killed. Six flying men were injured last year, against seven in 1934 and seven in 1933.

Seven passengers were injured last year, three in 1934 and six in 1933. Last year's accidents totalled 15, an increase of one over 1934, but a decrease of four from 1933.

New Road Suggested

Hard Surfaced Highway From Edmonton To Athabasca Possibility

A road map built from Edmonton to Athabasca, in the North West Territories, then down to Alaska and Nome is being considered by United States capitalists.

This ambitious undertaking for the future which would ultimately cost $500,000,000 is the project of men of New York and Los Angeles capital, the Herald was informed. Huge tracts of land which would connect Alaska and Siberia via tunnel, would be made up from tolls charged on the highway.

Edmonton.—Proposing to build a hard-surfaced highway from Edmonton to Athabasca at a cost of the projected $500,000,000 highway system connecting with Siberia, agents of the government of Soviet Russia, bankers, recently interviewed Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, it was revealed by the minister. "I am satisfied they are in earnest and that the highway eventually will be built," Mr. Fallow said.

Prize List Issued

Sum Of $3,000 Offered Exhibitors At Saskatchewan Winter Fair

Regina.—A total of $3,000 is being offered as prize money at the Saskatchewan Winter Fair to be held in Regina from Nov. 24 to 29, inclusive. Three thousand dollars is offered in prize money for horses and the balance for cattle.

The cattle prize list has just been issued. Cattle entries have closed, and horse entries close Saturday, March 14. It is necessary to close the cattle entries early so that sufficient time might be given for the testing of cattle for tuberculosis. The latter service is given free by the Dominion Health of Animals branch.

All beef cattle exhibits may be entered in the Fat Cattle Auction Sale to be held on the afternoon of Wednesday, March 25.

Railway companies have announced reduced passenger rates.

Australia's Defence Plan

Expenditure For Arms Is Likely To Exceed $40,000,000

Melbourne, Australia.—Prime Minister J. A. Lyons indicated Australia's defence expenditures will be augmented following publication of the British government's white paper on expansion of Britain defences.

He told a deputation here it was impossible to promise cuts in taxation until a decision had been made on the defence question.

Official circles predicted the defence expenditure in the commonwealth was likely to exceed the estimated figure of £7,000,000 (about $35,000,000).

Dr. Lyons said the white paper would have "a very important effect" on Australia's policy.

Police Officers Dismissed

Nine Toronto Men Have Lost Positions On Force

Toronto.—The Toronto police commission carried out recommendations of the royal commission which probed Toronto police affairs for dismissal of nine police officers. Judgment on 15 others accused of rollicking was reserved pending receipt of a report by Chief D. C. Draper.

The commission will make its own decision as to whether the 15 men, suspended since November shall be restored to the force.

LARGER MARKET IN BRITAIN AIM OF POULTRYMEN

Ottawa.—The associate committee on market poultry which met at Ottawa decided to ask the government for "improved" poultry production for Canada. The purpose is to enlarge the output of high quality market poultry so that much greater advantage can be taken of the British market.

This was the first meeting of this committee. It was held under auspices of the department of agriculture and the national research council and embraced delegates from the provincial institutions such as agricultural departments, universities, etc., as well as from the trade. Upward of 40 papers dealing with problems confronting the poultry industry were read or filed.

Future activities in the fields of research and of government was discussed and a program which will avoid duplication of effort agreed to.

The most important decision, however, was that producers and producers was the decision to go after the British market. Emphasis was placed on the quality of poultry per year. Canada's share, while increasing, is only three or four million pounds. There is room, it was agreed, for tremendous expansion with good returns to producers.

Medical Service Planned

Revised Health Insurance Bill Coming Before B.C. House

Victoria, B.C.—A plan making available essential medical services for about 125,000 employees and their families, some 300,000 persons in all, is contained in the revised health insurance bill expected to be introduced in the British Columbia legislature shortly. Provisions of the revised bill were announced by Hon. G. M. Weir, provincial secretary. The average cost to the wage earner would be 50 cents a week.

Medical care by the physician or surgeon chosen by the insured person, free hospitalization, services of diagnostic laboratories, necessary drugs and medicines and a maternity cash benefit of $20, were "mandatory benefits." Various other medical services are "permissive benefits" which may be granted if sufficient funds are available after payments of mandatory benefits

Dental care for the family as a unit, including dependent wives and children with their wage-earner husbands, as insured persons.

Making Western Tour

Governor-General Plans To Start Trip In August

Ottawa, Ont.—Lord Tweedsmuir governor-general of Canada, will make his first tour of western Canada this summer. Tentative plans for this tour call for the vice-regal party to leave Ottawa late in July but it will probably be the first week of August before the tour begins Lord Tweedsmuir plans to spend as much time as possible in the pioneer districts of the west. His visits to the larger centres will be cut down to the minimum.

Preparing For Debate

Instructions Given To Draft Amendment To B.N.A. Act

Montreal Instructions have been given to prepare a draft bill providing for amendment of the British North America Act by Canadian authority alone and, when approved by the inter-provincial conference, to be sent to the various legislatures for discussion.

Premier L. A. Taschereau made the declaration after his return from Ottawa where he took part in a conference dealing with constitutional amendments. He said the draft bill would be laid before members of the Quebec legislature early in the session that opens March 24.

The various legislatures will be asked to return the draft to Ottawa with endorsation or with suggestions for changes and the next step will be for the Dominion parliament to take action, the Quebec premier said.

The opinion in Ottawa, said the premier, was that there would be no objection in Britain if it were found that the general Canadian will that change should be made

To Form New Cabinet

Japanese Emperor Has Chosen Foreign Minister As Premier

Tokyo. — Emperor Hirohito commanded Foreign Minister Koki Hirota to attempt to form a new cabinet to take the place of that of Premier Keisuke Okada, decimated by the recent military rebellion.

The veteran foreign minister was chosen for the premiership after Prince Konoye, originally chosen by the emperor upon the advice of Prince Saionji, senior elder statesman, declined the post on the grounds of ill health.

The military side of the liquidation of the Japanese mutiny advanced with establishment of a special tribunal to try for treason 22 persons who participated in last week's coup.

Kansas Hopes For Crop

Wheat Which Was Believed Dead Starting To Grow

Garden City, Kan.—Greening wheat fields in the southwest bread hopes have revived hopes of farmers for a 1936 wheat crop.

In southwestern Kansas, normally heart of the winter wheat belt but last year centre of the dust bowl, farmers reported wheat, earlier believed dead, was pushing its way the dust-covered fields.

The consensus was that the wheat had an excellent chance to survive and with timely spring rains would produce a beat half a crop. Tom Armstrong, Kansas state grain inspector, said after a trip over the state, that 75 per cent. of the wheat had survived the cold weather and 50 per cent. was in good condition

REDISTRIBUTION OF RIDINGS HAS BEEN SUGGESTED

Ottawa, Ont.—Behind the motion sponsored in the commons by Hon Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, to refer the problem of redistribution to the special committee on electoral reform from the house, the country's political strife may be removed.

It is learned the government proposes to suggest at committee that all political parties agree to remove redistribution from politics and make it a judicial function to be carried out by officials in which all political parties have confidence. It is thought there would be much better than the present system of having the matter settled by the house of commons where only parties are represented and each group tries to get the best deal it can. The next election will take on this.

The difficulty in the Lapointe proposal it is decided is to find the officials in which all parties have confidence. Until such a one is available in the person of Chief Justice Sir Lyman Duff, the chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting commission and the chairman of the Canadian National railways board have been suggested as possibilities but it is agreed that he act if an entirely nonpartisan manner

There is no intention it is learned to force this reform through the committee and the commons it will be presented as a suggestion and will not be gone on with unless the other parties consent

UNITED STATES WANTS CANADA'S SILVER OUTPUT

Washington. — Secretary of the United States treasury, Henry Morgenthau said his agreement to buy newly-mined Canadian silver through the Bank of Canada was expected to absorb the Dominion's entire output. The production was estimated by United States treasury officials at about 16,000,000 ounces per year.

Morgenthau said the treasury would fix the price to be paid for the metal rather than to be governed by the prevailing New York price. The treasury figure is about one-fourth cent an ounce higher than that quoted in New York

The secretary said it was "perfectly possible" that similar arrangements might be negotiated with American silver producing countries.

The buying is done in pursuance of the Silver Purchase Act requirement that treasury stocks of the metal be built up to one-third those of gold or until the price reaches $1.29 an ounce—the coinage value.

Ottawa. — Dominion government mint officials said they expected about 14,000,000 ounces of newly mined Canadian silver would be available for sale to the United States treasury this year through the Bank of Canada.

Believes War Just Started

Ethiopia Far From Being Beaten Says Emperor Selassie

Addis Ababa.—Far from regarding Ethiopia as a conquered nation, Emperor Haile Selassie feels the war has only begun, he said in a message despatched to this capital from somewhere on the northern front."

It was contrary to all the usages of war that the negus had left his imperial base at Desaye on Feb. 21, heading for the sector where fighting since has claimed decisive victories.

The war is only beginning," the emperor said in his declaration. "Ethiopians ought never to believe what the Italians say regarding victories and the number of dead and wounded."

Paris.—Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin has appealed to Premier Mussolini to accept quickly League of Nations peace negotiations, a well-informed source said.

Flandin instructed the French ambassador to Rome to tell il duce, this source said that France would be "unable to intercede for Italy again at Geneva without seriously compromising her political situation in Europe."

China Starts Conscription

Men 18 To 45 Have To Take Military Training

London.—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Nanking said the central Chinese government had announced military conscription throughout the country

The dispatch stated the measure provided for two years' military training for able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 45.

In unofficial London circles, the order was interpreted as the most daring attempt yet made by China's Nanking government to counter the Japanese policy in north China.

QUOTATION

We have called attention many times before, and we wish to emphasize here again, that there is a real danger in treating seed with formaldehyde the most commonly used material for treating cereal seeds. The danger is greatest with wheat and especially when the recommended proportions of 1 pint to 15 gallons of water or 1 part to 320 parts of water is exceeded. The danger applies not only to cereal wheat but in the light of our experiments as indicated in Table VI, to an even greater degree to rusted wheat. It is obviously unwise to use seed grain after the rust has killed it, as we have shown to result in such a poor stand as to make renewing necessary. Moreover experiments have also proved that seedlings from seed injured by formaldehyde or other fungicides are rendered more susceptible to disease and other destructive agencies.

Imports Not Heavy

Canada Manufactures Ninety-Two Per Cent. Of Soap Used

The cost to Canada is more than $9,000,000 a year to keep modernity clean and the women of the country pay two-thirds of that amount for ordinary household or laundry soap soap flakes, chips and powdered soap according to information received from the department of trade and commerce in Ottawa. The remainder of the amount is paid out for toilet and castile soap of which ninety two and a half pounds are used annually for every man, woman and child in the country.

Ninety-two per cent. of the soap that hides ingrain-only in bath water, that slips out of the soap dish, that is rubbed behind Johnny's ears and smarts in father's eye when he shaves, is made in the Dominion while local manufacturers contribute an even greater percentage of the huge bars that melt in the dishwater or disappear in the washing machine.

The United States is Canada's best customer for soap while it at the same time supplies Canada with most of its soap imports Exports to the United States last year totalled $206,926 while imports amounted to $364,980

Find Out

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well - Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headache; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with "Aspirin."

We say this because, before the discovery of "Aspirin," most so-called "pain" remedies were dictated against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin" year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: "Aspirin" is related among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer-Company Limited, Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

Snappy Clothes For Navy

British Admiralty Has Announced Some Radical Changes

Britain's navy is going all dinky. Not satisfied with attractive white shoes and new ties, in addition to the option of cocoa or chocolate instead of rum, Jolly Jack is now to be issued with a sports shirt of the most charming blue rayon. .

And this is not all. Pajamas in attractive colours are to be added to the canteen at $2.50 a pair, made of the best artificial silk. For an extra quarter, the initials of the wearer can be stitched on the jacket to be worn on the pocket of the pajamas.

Gone also are the official canvas kit bags and henceforth Jack will be issued with a smart imitation leather one.

When ashore, Jack may, if he wishes, discard his belt bottom pants for a more flowing and roomy serge, with white collar and black tie.

These innovations have just been announced from the Admiralty to a meeting of commanders of the fleet who are asked to co-operate in every possible way in 'helping seamen to adapt themselves to the new and more attractive clothing."

What Jack will have to say about these silk pajamas if he happens to be suddenly called from his bunk for extra duty on a stormy night in the North Sea remains to be heard, but will hardly be publishable.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS TEACHES TRUE VALUES

Golden text: Seek ye first his kingdom, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. Matthew 6:33.

Lesson: Luke 12.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 32.

Explanations And Comments

Warnings Against Worry, Luke 12:22-34. Turning to his disciples Jesus said, "Therefore I say unto you." He had just been telling the parable of "The Rich Fool," as we call it, which was about one who laid up treasures for himself, and was not rich toward God, verse 21. He followed this parable with the warning against covetousness, with his "Therefore I say unto you, be not anxious" for this and that. Matthew records in the Sermon on the Mount the words that follow.

Be not anxious for your life, what ye shall eat; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. For the life is more than food, and the body than the raiment. The argument is that since God has given us the life and the body, these greater things, we may trust him to give also the smaller things, the food to sustain life and the raiment with which to clothe the body.

"Here we have a principle capable of universal application, and every man manhood; live out your womanhood. Do the things you were made to do. Seek your self-realization on the highest level. You will not give up sowing and reaping you are not meant to be reapers only. Live the six days wisely and usefully, doing all your work. You will rest and rejoice one day in seven. And when you thus live, intelligently and conscientiously acquiring your living personally and socially into harmony with the purposes of God for them, you may live without fear or worry. You may live in the assurance that in the great abiding order which enfolds you, you, too, will be fed and clothed. You will indeed be fed with that bread which comes down from above, and you will be clothed in that righteousness which is the fine linen of the saints. Seek first the Kingdom of God and all things shall be added" (Charles R. Brown).

"Aspirin" Trade Mark Sustained

A warning is found in the judgment just given by the Exchequer Court of Canada at Ottawa, Ont., in action brought by The Bayer Company, Limited, owner of the trade mark "Aspirin," against Apirol.

A judgment of the court restraining the defendant from infringing the trade mark by selling tablets as "Aspirol" which infringed the product of The Bayer Company. The judgment restrains the defendant permanently from putting out any of his own tablets as "Aspirin" or under any name so similar to "Aspirin" as to be confusing, awards The Bayer Company damages and costs.

As To Sky's Light

The safe landing of a sub-stratosphere balloon which carried two Soviet scientists on a flight to determine whether the sky has its own light, independent of the sun, was reported in despatches from the Tass Russian district of Moscow province.

The scientists, who claimed to have reached an altitude of 10,000 metres (about 32,808 feet), were I. A. Khvostikoff, of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, and E. I. Savinkin, of the state optical institute. They obtained 15 spectograms.

The inscription on the American Liberty Bell may also be found in Leviticus 25:10 in the Bible

New York Enjoyed Exhibits

Canada's Outdoors Taken To National Sportsman's Show

Mid-town New Yorkers, used to the fumes of gasoline exhaust, and traditionally aghast whenever they realize pure air is about, paused recently amid the fragrant odor of cedar and balsam in the Grand Central mans.

Canada and the great outdoors had come to New York and settled in Grand Central Palace where, at the national sportsman's show, the conduct of The Bayer Company. The judgment restrains the defendant permanently from putting out any of his own tablets as "Aspirin" or under any name so similar to "Aspirin" as to be confusing, awards The Bayer Company damages and costs.

Man has less tendency to grow bald in hot climates.

Amused The Farmers

A story in the London Newschronicle says in a flight of rhetoric Randolph Churchill referred to a heifer as a "little brother." His audience of farmers in Dingwall market place rocked with laughter. It was not until it was explained to Mr. Churchill that a heifer could only be a "little sister" that he appreciated the "joke."

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Moose County outlaws, called together with the avowed object of forming an irrigation company.

Roper Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide and Sweetwater ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, had forced Soak Torrey, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo knew would be called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to reverse his earlier endorsement, and declare that irrigation in Moose county so far as Fleming's plan was concerned was only a newfangled way to waste money.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen who Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread". Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide for irrigation on their own properties.

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Torrey to learn whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that wrecks the house burns it and the plans and renders Link unconscious. He is rescued from the blaze by an employee.

Helen and Link ride to Rawhide for supplies and to obtain funds to carry out the dam project. They meet Roper, who greets Helen and offers to shop with her. Link goes to see the Sheriff, who tells him Buzz Hamilton has been paroled and would arrive on the incoming stage, but that he thinks Link has made a mistake in getting Buzz released.

(Now On With The Story)

"No, you bet not. Me and Marty Bush swore off a couple of years ago."

Slowly she wheeled her pinto. I thought perhaps you meant to try to win money to help us out. Because we are still in danger of being unable to finish the dam aren't we?"

Link avoided her look as he shrugged and blundered. "Some folks call playin' to win means you're sure to lose. No. Helen, I'm stayin' to fix it as I see it. I'm sure little you. Don't can't tell you now Wait an hour or two. So long."

He cried in the thick dust watching her ride away. Then with a look of fondness the nearer of which was unmistakably deeper than casual friendship, he started for the spot where Sheriff Stephen stood waiting.

"Buzz came on the stage while you were in the bank," the official notified. "I tried to stall but Jackpot Bell an' Kilgo came along an' made a fuss over Buzz an' insisted he have a drink with 'em The bull gang is on the Half Moon now

Furrows grooved Flemings dark forehead as he surveyed the two-story false front of the saloon across the street. he so inimed irritably

don't care what they do to a youngster Of course Buzz is only seven years younger n me but he's twenty-one But he seems like a kid, Sheriff, that's got to be watched all the time This'll be the first start for a chap just paroled from prison"

Helen's dont know he's here"

Link shook his head. "I sent her on home Now," he said reluctantly starting away, "I've got to separate Buzz from them vultures and get him out to the Triple H Ames, it might be better if you didn't come on account o' Buzz prob'ly was all the lawmen at pinon he cares to see for quite a spell

I'm set on stayin' so long's he don't go have another shoot-it match Tell Buzz I need so." And the bank officer moved off

Through a friend at the state capitol Link had managed to have Buzz paroled after serving six months of the three year sentence Fleming had gone to this trouble merely to please Helen, for with a sister's fondness for an errant brother she was unusually attached to Buzz. So much so in fact, that she never thought of him as a criminal and a wrecking, but as a youth who had been unfortunate in his choice of companions It was Helen's ambition, Link knew, to see Buzz make a man of himself so that she could one day yield him the Triple H to manage again, or divide their spread and surrender his share

Moodily reviewing these facts, he strode inside the Half Moon. As the swinging doors flapped behind him several loafers glanced up with idle interest Recognizing him, they exchanged significant looks and their eyes strayed to a large wall table where five men sat playing cards.

With something of a shock he identified the ex-convict for whose actions he was now responsible. Grey prison pallor had dissipated his former healthy tan and Buzz Hamilton's thin face was lined beyond his years. A furtive, hangdog expression persisted on his features and he had lost weight until he was almost scrawny. Loose, ill-made prison clothes hung in wrinkles about his sparsely fleshed body. The newcomer's whole appearance was little less than shocking.

Fleming's eyes caught those of the ex-convict and he forced a welcoming smile as he strode the few paces to the table. "Howdy, Buzz! Glad you're back. Say, you're looking good," he lied glibly. "Helen'll shore be glad reckon there's nothin' she's wanted more than to have your help on that old Triple H spread!"

The other's gaze fell. "I s'pose you an' Helen'll be sore me. God things fixed to suit yourself, Fleming, so why shouldn't yuh be?"

Utterly taken back by this reply, Link frowned. "What do you mean, Buzz? 'Course I'm glad to see you! I'm glad to see all the fellers arriving to win enthusiasm from those lackbusiness. "Helen doesn't know a thing about it. Bit how'd you tickled when you ride up! Shall we start now?" he suggested

Canada And Defence

Dominion Has Made No Commitments, House Of Commons Is Told

Canada has made no commitments whatever with regard to empire defence or any other military activities. Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons in answer to a question from J. S Woodsworth (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre).

Mr King said he received from Hon Vincent Massey, high commissioner in London the text of the statement made in the British House of Commons by Rt Hon. J H Thomas secretary for the colonies Mr Thomas dealt with the conference of Dominion premiers in London last May and the position of the Dominions in the league

Defence matters had been discussed when the premiers were in London for King George's jubilee. With respect to that, former Prime Minister Bennett had said no understandings had been asked or given. Mr K ng said he could say the same thing about communications passed between the governments of Canada and the United Kingdom since the Liberals came into office

Mr Bennett declared said Mr King that Canada as a member of the league took responsibility only for things done which had been taken by Canada on its own behalf

Mothers Aided by Guide to Better Control of Colds

Practical Plan is Helping Families Everywhere to Have Fewer, Milder and Shorter Colds.

SIMPLE AND EASY TO FOLLOW

Already thousands of alert mothers are benefiting by using Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Proving for themselves that it is a practical home plan of peace and shorter colds.

This commonsense method of sound Plan represents the combined experience of Vicks Chemists in studying colds. It has been tested in extensive clinical tests in physicians' offices, further proved in everyday home use throughout the country

Here briefly are the simple steps in Vicks Plan:

1. To Help Build Resistance to Colds Live normally, avoid excesses, eat simple food and keep regular, regular. Think positive. Make some exercise in the open air a daily pleasure.

2. To Help Prevent Many Colds At the first warning sneeze, sniffle or scratchy throat, use Vaporub just as you would a cold medical. Vicks Vaporub is especially designed for the nose and upper throat where most colds start. Its double action—direct to the seat of trouble and also stimulating chest and back surface skin—helps to prevent many colds developing in these early stages.

3. To Help End a Cold Sooner If a cold has developed you may be suffering with a cold in the head or bothered with a hacking cough. Vaporub is the choice of companions It was Helen's ambition, Link knew, to see Buzz make a man of himself so that she could one day yield him the Triple H to manage again, or divide their spread and surrender his share

Moodily reviewing these facts, he strode inside the Half Moon. As the swinging doors flapped behind him several loafers glanced up with idle interest Recognizing him, they exchanged significant looks and their eyes strayed to a large wall table

ADJUSTMENT TO 1930 WHEAT POOLERS

The government's action in providing an independent audit was a matter to be welcomed by the Pool people who were asking for only what they consider due them, and to the taxpayers of Canada from whose pocket the settlement must come. The government's adjustment as announced by the Prime Minister has been welcomed in the west as fair and equitable. Satisfaction will be increased if at an early date to authorize the payment of the adjustment moneys thereby settling finally an obligation and an unhappy situation.

PRICE OF AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS SURGE UPWARDS

Manufacturers of agricultural implements have announced prices increases for the spring. Investigation into the industry will be made by the Federal Government in order to discover the justification, if any, for the increases. There has been no general boom in prices and no wide increase has a movement has started upward. The new home going plough has come up about $3 and drills $26, binders $17 and cultivators $3 etc.

NEW ZEALAND PLANS FIXED PRICE

The new Labor Government of New Zealand has fixed prices for wheat, oats and bread. The wheat price is 4/9 d bushel The miller is to receive 15s 7d per sack of 280 lbs. for his flour and the baker the flat price of 10d The 4 lb loaf no its present

M. D. VERMILION VALLEY MUNICIPAL DISTRICT

The statutory meeting of the council was held in the municipal office on Saturday the 12th inst. with the following present: Councillors Geo. H. Wilson, N. McClellan, Wm. Reddels, David McPhee, Arthur Lord and W. Roy Kedd.

The meeting was called to order by the Sec.-Treas. at 2 p.m. who called for nominations for Reeve. Norman McClellan of Div. 2 was appointed. David McPhee of Div. 4 was appointed Deputy Reeve. The new areas was appointed assessor with no additional salary. The position of auditor was held over until the meeting for further consideration. The elected members took the oath of office. Minutes of the meeting on road and committee and financial statements for January and February accepted.

Councillors fees for attending meetings and for supervision of road work were continued at the same rates as last year. As there are no new members on the council, the salaries remain the same also.

Estimates were taken up and the municipal mill rate was set at 12 mills, this being the same as 1935. Hospital rates were set at 3½ mills for each hospital. A total of $15,000.00 was appropriated for emergency and public works. This is $2500.00 for each of the six divisions, less debits and plus credits.

Two cases of Mother's Allowance were considered and passed, and some adjustments in relief were made. Bills amounting to about $1000.00 were ordered paid.

Nothing of a definite nature could be done about seed grain as the act has not been passed and the council is obliged to wait until the terms of this act are known.

It was noted that the Triennial Assessment which was due this year, has been postponed for one year.

Several matters of medical aid were considered and referred to the department of health for advice. Meeting adjourned.

ALBERTA TO CALL BONDS, CUT RATES

Hope To Save $7,000 per Day in Interest by Percentage Slash

New Rate Under 3 P.C. Promised by Premier

Legislation to call in all present issues of Alberta bonds and to replace them by new issues bearing interest of 3.75 or 3 per cent, will be introduced within the next ten days in the Alberta legislature, it was announced Monday by Premier Aberhart.

By this means, he said, the government will bring about compulsory conversion of the $180,000,000 provincial debt, and so save over $7,000 each day in interest charges.

At the same time, the premier said, the government is studying the possibility of invoking legislation to cut present high rate of interest charges on mortgages for individuals. Powers of the provincial government to this end is being investigated, he indicated, "We can't let the refunding proposition run along for another year," said the premier, "We have come to the point where the people can no longer pay the province's burden of interest charges. Therefore we're going to continue with this session until we get everything cleaned up, and then we'll prorogue."

It was indicated in high quarters, meanwhile, that the refunding legislation has not yet been drafted but that the government's law officers are studying the proposal.

VEGREVILLE RANGERS NOW INTERMEDIATE CHAMPIONS OF WEST

Vegreville Rangers won the interprovincial intermediate championship in straight games in the final against Lloydminster, Saskatchewan champs, on Saturday and Monday nights The game scores were 5-2 overtimes and 3-2 This was the hardest fought series in which the Rangers took part all season as they really outclassed all opposition on their road to the Alberta championship. Lloydminster experienced every stalling until the finals with Swift Current, which series went the full three games with only a goal separating the teams at the end

HOCKEY FANS ATTEND INTER-PROVINCIAL FINALS

Some of hockey fans boarded the hockey special which ran on the C N R. from Vegreville to Lloydminster on Saturday evening. 32 Vegreville-ites left that town and large contingents were picked up all the way to Lloydminster many families even going the province's burden of interest charges. Therefore we're going to continue with this session until we get everything cleaned up, and then we'll prorogue."

It was indicated in high quarters, meanwhile, that the refunding legislation has not yet been drafted but that the government's law officers are studying the proposal.

What About State Medicine?

State medicine as a solution of the "cost of health" problem is a subject very much in the air in the Western Canadian provinces just now and judging from cumulative public demands it is only a question of time and probably a very short time before state medicine or public health insurance in whole or in part, will be in effect generally in the west.

It is perhaps not surprising that the public mind is rapidly crystallizing in that direction. A number of factors are responsible for this. One of them is the much publicized depression of the past few years. During this period local governments have found it necessary to provide medical and hospital care for a large number of relief recipients and, of course, the cost has had to be passed on to the taxpayers.

In addition to that, very many of these taxpayers have during the past few years found it increasingly difficult to keep pace with growing tax bills and at the same time stand the expense of hospital and medical bills for themselves and other members of their families, for they have found that medical and hospitalization expenses have not declined in proportion to their incomes.

Further than that all classes of the community are demanding a high standard of medical and hospital service. The hospitals that are best endeavoring to cater to this demand find that they cannot continue to operate at much less than pre-depression costs because of the difficulty of collecting accounts and the doctors declare that they cannot afford to reduce their fees to a scale commensurate to the pocketbooks of their clients because they, too, find the percentage of accounts they can collect from paying patients is diminishing.

With this situation staring them in the face people generally are turning in the direction of state medicine as a way around these difficulties and the move is receiving support from at least some of the members of the medical profession.

The question, however, is a big one and bristles with many features which deserve full consideration before the plunge is made. While state medicine undoubtedly offers advantages there are some phases which should be dissected with care.

Not the least of these is the question of cost and how it is to be distributed. In other words who is to provide the means and from what sources. It would also be the part of wisdom to ascertain with reasonable certainty that the advantages which the enthusiastic advocates of some state medicine claim for it can be realized in full degree before a complete break is made operative and before the public is committed to pay for improvements with the cost.

British Columbia and Alberta governments are both discussing health insurance schemes of more or less provincial scope and considerable progress is being brought on the floor of the Saskatchewan government to adopt a scheme with prospects that before the legislature rises in session adjourns, much consideration will be given to public demands.

The British Columbia plan provides for partial medical, hospital and dental services for certain specified classes of the community. Yet the total outlay is estimated at $7,287,500 a year or $13.56 per person. The amount to be contributed by the provincial government is limited, which may result in curtailment of the benefits and hospital service is limited to $1 days.

The Alberta Health Insurance Act passed by the former legislature, but not yet brought into operation by proclamation, is based on the local option principle. In other words it can be brought into effect in any district in which the majority of the electors so decree by vote.

The Alberta measure provides for full medical, dental, hospital and maternity services without scale of limitations provided in the B.C. plan, but the total estimated expenditure is $14.50 per person per annum which the district would contribute by local taxation $11.30 and the province $2.32.

Varying estimates have been made on the cost of a full scheme for Saskatchewan ranging from $6,305,000 to $8,786,000 for a service exclusively for farmers and members of their families, the latter figure being reached by the rural municipal organizations provided a similar plan to that proposed in Alberta were adopted.

Even on the basis of the latter total expenditure, the average annual cost per municipality, it was found, would be $23,472, involving a municipal tax levy for that purpose alone, above or below ten mills depending upon assessment and population.

With these figures in mind and remembering the depleted state of provincial and municipal treasuries and the difficulty of collecting taxes under conditions which have existed in recent years it would appear reasonable to suppose that no compulsory health scheme could be financially successful without some assistance from the Federal government or unless some other source of revenue than the land within the province adopting such measure can be found.

Taking all circumstances into consideration it might be wise, if the province is to be made, to try it out on an experimental basis, either by applying a complete scheme to a group of municipalities or district with the provincial government guaranteeing a deficit or by applying a partial service to an entire province. A test on some such basis would yield practical information as to when and how far further extensions could safely be made.

Would Scrap Auto Horns

Not Needed With Good Brakes Opinion Of Chevrolet Driver

I have been closely connected with the building of automobiles and everything that goes with them for more than 30 years. I have driven over all the United States and Canada and never had an accident. Never had a traffic violation ticket of any kind. Modestly, I believe that I am competent and qualified to ask questions.

Why not scrap the horns and remove it from all cars except police, fire trucks and ambulances? The horn has proved to be a menace and everyone would be better off without it.

The brake takes the place of the horn on my car at all times. For any argument in favor of the horn, my answer is: Press on the brake first.—Letter in Detroit Free Press.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour two pounds of bile juice into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats your stomach. You get constipated. Normally, bile moves the bowels. Then you feel "up and up" and ready for life's activities.

A mere laxative may relieve temporarily but to get the proper flow of bile you need something that acts on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills. Ask for them by name. Insist on getting Carter's. Refuse substitutes. Only 25c at all druggists.

Stamp Must Be Requested

If Properly Tagged Return Poultry Crates Not Dutiable

With regard to the export of live poultry from Canada to the United States, there is no duty charged on property marked return crates, but a duty of 30 per cent. ad valorem is charged Canadian shippers on the return of their crates into Canada. Therefore, prior to shipping poultry to the United States, the Canadian shipper has the crates properly tagged by a Canadian customs official as being of Canadian manufacture. A Customs stamp is placed on each Canadian-made poultry crate, and a metal seal is attached to metal crates. In order to have crates returned free on the coupe, it must be requested by the Canadian shipper.

MAKE YOUR OPPORTUNITY

What with more employment about, more trade, and more money to spend, there's the time to make the most of opportunities—for as Shakespeare wrote, "There is a tide in the affairs of men, which taken at the flood leads on to fortune."

Obviously this is a time to make the opportunity, not wait for it, and if some have the desire, and lack the means to do so, taxes have stuck and nerve force is disastrously low, and should immediately be raised to the necessary proportions, there is Ostrex Phosferine.

As always, the race is to the strong, and the energizing vitality of Phosferine will soon have you feeling one's own in competition with others. Tired feelings, nervousness, disabilities, and inferiorities, in deficiency of nerve force, soon disappear. Counts of Phosferine soon replenish with the stamina to make your opportunity.

Old House May Be Sold

Lake King George Visited It in Summer, 60 Years Ago

Ware House, at Cole Harbor, a few miles from Halifax, which the late King George visited as a Midshipman in the early 80's and which once rang with royal voices, will be advertised for sale and removal unless someone will undertake the expense of restoring the property, the Halifax county council has decided.

Years ago the Ware family sold the house and went to the Canadian west. The property was purchased by the County of Halifax and used as a residence for the caretaker of the County's Poor Home, nearby. When the home was burned down, it was abandoned

Had To Trade Property

Owners Arranged Matter When House Got Too Warm For Liking

Milton Brenner counsman of Pasadena Calif., went to see a lot he just had purchased and rubbed his eyes.

On the lot was a house and Brenner was certain that two days before there had been no house there.

Investigation revealed a house mover had delivered the home to the wrong address.

It should have been placed on a lot next door, so Mr Brenner and his house owner just traded their property

Empire's Best Salesman

King's Visit To Industries Fair Is Helping Business

Edward VIII. as King promises to be an even greater salesman for the products of the British Empire than he was as Prince of Wales.

This was strikingly borne out by the first comprehensive reports of the result of his visit to the British Industries Fair.

A New York tobacconist bought up all the samples of apple-shaped briar pipes the King admired at the Malta stand without even asking what the pipes would cost. He is planning to make a special window display of them in New York.

Malta has sold all its tartar pipes, in fact, largely as a result of the King's visit. A thousand gross has been ordered and the Mediterranean island will be working for more than a year on them. Arrangements have already been made for extension of the Maltese pipe works, increasing employment by 80 per cent.

Also, substantial orders were placed for Malta's homespun following a remark by the King that he had received some napkins made of the homespun from Lady Louis Mountbatten.

Ostrich feathers and sealskin slippers, a pair of which the King accepted from the Newfoundland stand, both benefited from the royal visit. The King had said he would like to see ostrich feathers come back, but wondered whether he could influence women's fashions.

"The King's interest in ostrich feathers had a tremendous repercussion," said W. E. Hennelle, of the South African trade commissioner's office. "It has brought in inquiries, mostly from milliners for decorative purposes, to an extent that we had never looked for.

"The industry has been moribund for years and years and the King definitely revived it." The good impression the King created while he was visiting in Hungary last year has also favorably affected British business. Two Hungarians at the Fair declared they had spent £4,000 on orders directly because the King had bought things at Budapest.

SELECTED RECIPES

ROLLED NUT WAFERS

½ cup "Crown Brand" Corn Syrup
½ cup butter
1 cup bread flour
½ cup sugar
1 cup chopped walnuts, or peanuts

Heat the "Crown Brand" Corn Syrup to the boiling point, remove from heat and add butter. Then, slowly and stirring all the time, add the flour which has been mixed and sifted with the sugar. Now add the chopped nuts. Drop small portions from the tip of a spoon on a greased cookie sheet, 2 inches apart. Bake in a slow oven. These cookies can be rolled or just left plain.

The Explanation

A Scottish minister had three bottles of champagne as a birthday gift, and handed them to his housekeeper for safe keeping. Shortly after afterwards he was entertaining friends, and asked the housekeeper to bring a bottle of champagne "Champagne, sir?" she queried. "Yes," he replied. "Dont you remember the three bottles I gave you weeks ago?" "Why you champagne? Mercy me, sir, I thought it was ammonia, and I've used it all to clean the windows with!"

To Encourage Women Writers

Prizes Offered For Best Non-Fiction Article By Canadian

To encourage younger newspaperwomen and stimulate interest in more inspiring journalism from women writers, the executive of the Canadian Women's Press Club announced the first award of $25 and a silver medal will be given this year for the finest piece of writing by a Canadian woman appearing in non-fiction.

Entries may be special articles or essays, dramatic, literary, musical or artistic criticism, editorials in magazines, newspapers or other periodicals, reportorial assignments or interviews.

The award is believed to be the first prize offered in Canada for competition among women writers for newspaper and non-fiction articles.

The contest is open to any woman writer actually resident in Canada within 12 months preceding publication of the entry, whether published in Canada or elsewhere; material will not be eligible which has been recognized by other awards.

All entries must be submitted not later than June 30, 1936, the award to be made not later than September 15, 1936; entries to go to the chairman of the Memorial Award board, Mabie Crews, Ringland, Brookdale, Ontario.

The Memorial Award is named in honor of members of the Canadian Women's Press Club who have written their last assignment.

Plenty Of Clocks

Liner Queen Mary Will Have Nearly 600 Timepieces

When the Queen Mary comes into service next June she will have on board 886 clocks, the largest marine clock installation in the world. The whole system will be controlled from the chart-house. It will consist of 39 master clocks, including the pursers' rooms, 81 specially-designed clocks for entrances from decks, 54 specially-designed clocks for special rooms, 370 clocks for first-class cabins, and 102 clocks for galleys, promenade decks, crews' and officers' quarters.

Would Help A Lot

If the entire population could be induced to eat just one more slice of bread daily, the decline in bread consumption would be more than arrested. If Jesse Smith, president of the Millers' National Association is correct in his estimate of results following such increase in Canada would mean an additional consumption of 742,341 barrels of flour, or 70,000,000 loaves of bread.

Haggis From France

Scotsmen In Canada Feel National Dish Is Insulted

Ottawa.—Scotsmen in Canada are in a huff—very. They can get no haggis from Scotland, but to add insult to injury they have been told they may get them from France.

William Fraser, Liberal member for Northumberland, brought the matter to the attention of the high court of parliament and asked Hon. James Gardiner, minister of agriculture, what steps the government proposed to take to restore to Scotsmen their ancient rights. He got no immediate answer.

The member based his question on a letter he had received from a prominent citizen who said "As a Scotsman born in Dumfriesshire of sheep-stealing ancestors I am passionately fond of the national dish of Scotland, namely haggis."

The writer went on to say he had been accustomed to import haggis for many years but the duty has informed a permit from the department of agriculture was required. After much correspondence he found the permit would be issued by an official in Edinburgh and after more difficulties got the permit He stated he hoped the shipment was stopped at Montreal.

China's First Girl Flyer

Will Astonish Her Own Country With Unusual Stunts

Acclaim awaited the return to China of the pretty 23-year-old Miss Ya Ching-lee, fresh from her flying exploits in the United States She completed her course at the Boeing School of Aeronautics and plans to continue her work in her own country.

Miss Ya with reluctance told how she unwittingly became a member of the Caterpillar Club Flying over San Francisco Bay with her instructor she was told to take the controls into a slow barrel roll

At a critical moment of the manoeuvre her safety belt came unfastened and in a second she was hurtling toward the water Miss Ya a presence of mind came to her rescue and she pulled the ripcord of her parachute to float lightly to the bay where she was picked up in a naval vessel

The young aviatrix is also well versed in hind flying, having made a successful test flight from Oakland to Reno She plans to tour her native land and demonstrate some of the tricks of the trade she picked up in America. Naturally she will be received open-mouthed by her people who have never seen these air stunts not to mention one of their own girls at the control of what is judged English is a "chicken go to-pieces."

New Type Of Camera Eye

Takes "The Unevitable Out Of Flashlight Photography

A new type of camera eye which takes the near uncertainty out of flashlight photography was announced by H M Biele, chief engineer of the Associated Press It was worked out in the A P research and development laboratory

The photoelectric cell, operating as a real eye, is set in the photographer's reflector behind the flash bulb The cell sees the flash from behind.

It sees what no living eye can and when mechanical devices previously have missed, the building up of the flash On the average five thousandths of a second are required from the beginning of the burning flash until its light reaches a peak.

The photoelectric cell watches this rising light, and sets off an electro-magnet trigger which opens the camera shutter at precisely the thousandth of a second of brightest light.

In one thousand trials the new eye has never missed once.

New Cancer Treatment

Lovely Maggot Said To Be Used By Los Angeles Physicians

A new therapeutic use for the lowly maggot as surgeon in a skin wound was disclosed in the archives of dermatology by three Los Angeles physicians

They were credited with saving the life of a California surgeon, a victim of cancer, in a report made by Drs. C. Manner Taylor, Nelson Prut and Samuel Ayres

Although use of maggots to remove bone abscesses has long been established, the three physicians called theirs the first instance where they were applied to a skin case.

Orthodox surgery, dressings, and violet rays had proved unavailing for their patient, a former medical missionary, they related. But the treatment by maggots removed the diseased tissue and the wound healed.

They described the operation as extremely painful to the patient, requiring frequent periods of rest. The larvae were applied to the ulcer in a cage of sponge rubber and wire, cemented to a steel "window" held around it by a plaster of Paris cast.

Forest Production Higher

Forest products of British Columbia produced during 1935 had a value of $56,941,000, an increase of nearly $11,300,000 over the value for 1934. Production was the largest since 1930 and amounted to a gain of 60 per cent. over the low year of 1932. Prices for lumber and newsprint, the two major commodities, were little changed, although shingle prices rose

Bronze Medals For Competition In Elementary Schools

The Hon. J. W. Estey, Minister of Education for Saskatchewan, announces that His Excellency, Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, has graciously signified his intention of following the practice set by his predecessors of donating each year a number of bronze medals for competition in the schools of Saskatchewan.

The recommendation of the minister respecting the distribution of the medals for the year ending June 30, 1936, has been approved by His Excellency and is as follows:

(a) Two medals to be awarded in each of the cities of Regina, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw, one to the boy and one to the girl from the collegiate institutes or technical schools therein, obtaining the highest standing at the complete grade twelve departmental examinations.

(b) Two medals to be awarded, one to the boy and one to the girl obtaining the highest standing of all the candidates at the complete grade twelve departmental examination from the collegiate institutes in the other cities of the province;

(c) One medal to be awarded to each of the two highest ranking boys and each of the four highest ranking girls at the complete grade twelve departmental examination from town schools:

Provided that not more than one boy and not more than one girl in any school in (c) may qualify for a medal;

(d) Two medals to be awarded, one to the boy and one to the girl obtaining the highest standing at the complete grade twelve examination from village and rural schools in each of four zones into which the province is divided by the 3rd meridian and the line between township 24 and 25

Rare Surgical Operation

Child Recovering After Misplaced Organs Adjusted By Surgeon

As the result of a rare surgical operation, Gary Nesslin, 7 years old, born with his internal organs in his left lung, was recovering at Kingdom, California.

A surgeon, who requested his name be withheld, found to his astonishment the child had been breathing with only one lung since birth.

Gary's organs, including his stomach, spleen and intestines, were in his left lung The lung was unable to expand and the heart also had been pushed over to the right side.

The surgeon carefully cut away three ribs and performed the delicate operation, using fascia or connective tissue from the mother's body.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MARCH 29

JESUS EXPLAINS THE KINGDOM

Golden text: They shall come from the east and west, and from the north and south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God. Luke 13:29.

Lesson: Luke 13.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 42:1-7.

Explanations And Comments

The Expansive Power of the Kingdom, Luke 13:18, 19 He said therefore: "To what is the kingdom of God like?" Jesus was never at a loss for an illustration. He used three very familiar things, a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and cast into his own garden." In the interpretation of the parable, it is Israel, God's own people, where the seed was first planted "And it grew and became a tree." Ordinarily, bushes are not very large, but in the northern part of New Guinea there are giant butterfly trees whose wings measure eleven and a half feet in expanse, and are hunted by the natives with bow and arrow. so the mustard plant is not usually of such large size as it sometimes attains a height of ten or twelve feet And the birds of the heaven lodged in the branches thereof."

The Pervasive Influence of the Kingdom, Luke 13:20, 21. Next, Jesus compared the kingdom to leaven, which a woman hid in three measures of meal, till it was all leavened. The word leaven is derived from the French lever, to raise it means anything which causes fermentation, especially a portion of fermenting dough A measure contained nearly a peck and a half (Revised Version), and three measures was the usual amount for one baking (Gen. 18:6. "Till it was all leavened." See First Corinthians 5:6; Galatians 5:9. "The thoroughness of the leaven's work is most convincing. The word of the Kingdom will not fail till the whole world is leavened by it. There is a consummation of a victory, when God shall be all in all." (R. A. Horton).

The Parable Warning Against False Hopes, Luke 13 23-30 Jesus continued on his way to Jerusalem preaching as he went in the cities and villages which he passed. "Lord, are there few that are saved?" someone petitioned him on that journey. Evidently the questioner felt sure of his own salvation simply because he was a Jew. He expected Jesus to answer that Israel and Israel only would be saved

Jesus did not answer the question but warned the man against his vain confidence, bade him look to himself, and think about his own entrance in to the Kingdom rather than speculate about the fate of others Strive to enter in by the narrower gate, he said, I say unto you, shall seek to enter in, and shall not be able. were the words of Jesus Strive literally agonize Grain every nerve

Yields Huge Profit

British Broadcasting Company Has Surplus After Expenses Paid

Of every £1 00 paid by listeners in Britain for radio licenses only $1.30 is spent on the broadcasting service. The rest goes to the treasury, the post-office and the income tax collector.

This fact is revealed in the B.B.C.'s report for 1935, just issued It contains, for the first time, comprehensive details of its vast expenditure.

Of the $18,400,000 received in license fees the post-office and treasury take $8,265,000 (B.C. publications showed a surprising rise in profits of $2,107,880.

This may seem an enormous sum just for putting music and talks on the air, but Sir John Reith and the governors found themselves at the end of the year with a balance of only $154,565 to carry forward Over the whole year the B.B.C. had to advertise the record sum $557,360

May Transpose Muscles

Successful Results To Correct Cross-Eyes Are Reported

Scientists surveyed the results of more than a year of experimentation and held forth definite hope that surgeons some day may be able to transpose muscles of the human eye and correct permanently such disorders as strabismus, eye paralysis and other optical ailments

Success of laboratory experiments along these lines was announced by Dr. J. M. D. Olmsted, professor of physiology at University of California.

Dr. Olmsted told how in his experiments, strong eye muscles of dogs and cats were transposed to assume the functions of weaker ones, and common failure to function properly caused a variety of eye disorders.

An old country woman going into a large town was, for the first time an electric light.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roper Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide and nearby ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, had forced Bonk Torney, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo knew would be called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to overwork the carter-overdrive, and declare that irrigation in Boone county so far as Fleming's plan was concerned was only a newfangled way to waste money.

The meeting terminated, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he starts rubbing his "spread," Buzz knocks him down. Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Hunter Turnbull, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is seen by the post-office and is convicted of the crime and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties.

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn up by Torney "to see whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for he and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done." Fleming told, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that wrecks the house, burns it and the plans and records. Link unconscious He is rescued from the blaze by an employee.

Helen and Link ride to Rawhide for supplies and to obtain thirty cents hours Kilgo's.

His eye narrowed. "Yeah" Let me tell you something, Link. Some of the lately have darned near fooled the cut-off. If that water comes on, spread till it ow yuh for damages!"

"I'll take my chances," scoffed Link "I'm trying to irrigate my land. Fleming's Folly yeah that's a good name Not a man in Boone county believes in it Hoss about you Seth" he demanded of Howland, the veteran Texas cattleman "is Fleming's Folly gonna turn out?"

"Well no. I don't reckon it'll do nothing but good, mostly."

"You hearee?"

Mat scratched his ear. He like Link's confidence, but he knew Kilgo's comments he eyes following her every movement. "Well, I'll tell you, Link, you're like a little pinto pony all kinds of ginger, but no bottom."

Other men expressed their views with but Howland had the last word. "I'll tell you, Link, I'm willing to bet a dollar against a dollar that the first time you irrigate that land it'll wash out in gullies. Then you'll be sorry you ever started it."

Why Not a Holiday?

"Get away from your work and take a holiday as a prescription frequently handed out by members of the medical profession to the jaded city office worker. The advice is usually based on the prediction that the eternal grind of routine work day in and out week after week and month after month has impaired the nerves and that change of scenery and new activities in all that is required to steady the nerves and tone up the flagging system.

Excellent advice unquestionably, but surely as applicable to the man and the woman on the farm and to the small town or village merchant or worker as to the inhabitant of the large cities.

As a matter of fact the former today are probably a greater need of the recuperative benefits of change of scene that are the latter. The very good reason that a new era has been mantained by a continuous barrage of blunt knocks and trying conditions more than the man on the land and his family who have withstood a tremendous and prolonged siege against the combined forces of the elements and agricultural depression.

The farmer and his wife and the children of the small town and village have been the whipping boys of a terrific encounter with every whirling forces of a raging period. They have been the closest to the core and have borne the brunt of the fierce attack at point of most violence.

No one can long withstand such a drain of feeling possible tension effects on the nervous system, on the physical frame and it would be one of the unforgivable of foolish faux pas to consider travel and health if it has impaired at least threatened to be put under ban.

But being the case it is not at all amiss to suggest that the time has come when the workers on the land should plan to take a well earned holiday this summer even if it has to be limited to a week. True it may be difficult to arrange for the necessary care if livestock and other things must be looked after but surely the family can be moved for such a short period and the necessary help arranged with a little ingenuity and planning.

A modest outlay can be counted that it does money to go away on a vacation and that there is little if any outlay available as a result of the presence of economic conditions of the past few years. Perfectly true but there are to the influence of the automobile except perhaps in a few favored districts where the circumstances it is possible to combine a holiday with very little expense

For the majority of prairie residents the conveyance problem is already solved. There are few who do not either own or can get the use of a motor truck even though it may be of ancient vintage and where these are not available there is at least a wagon and team.

A car and a tent is a very inexpensive outfit available the town problem of transport and temporary housing are solved. As for the question of sustenance this also is not difficult of solution on the prairies in the summer time. Some reasonable can be carried along on the trip and others can be procured from small town merchants and farm houses at not greater cost than if they were purchased at home.

Added to the only additional expense of such a holiday trip is the cost of gasoline and oil, if auto or truck is used and this can be kept within reasonable limits if the vacationist curbs the temptation to travel long distances and burn up road mileage at great speed. One does not have to go far from home to find new and interesting things and the leisurely pace is the one that affords the most beneficial results.

Such a holiday should yield dividends in improved mental and bodily health and it may be made to give educational returns to all members of the participating family. The alert vacationist will inevitably pick up some ideas and such a tour will often put to practical use on his return home. Contact with new minds will invariably result in broadening the outlook on life and incidents and scenes will be absorbed and cherished later in memorability, and as a camera, if one is available may be made a valuable adjunct to a vacation trip.

Much more might be said about the virtues and values of a holiday But time to say that the idea and how to take a little time off for a change of scene and use the time sensibly will reap dividends that can not be estimated in dollars and cents

Early planning has many advantages. Apart from the pleasure of anticipation it will provide planning ahead will ensure proper provision against contingencies and enable the adventure to be taken with peace of mind, an important concomitant of a real vacation.

Perfect Courtesy

A certain middle aged painter has a vivid memory of Texas courtesy.

She was struggling with a hot cup of coffee in a small town railway station trying to gulp it before the last call. Suddenly she dumped into the saucer $3 600 worth of machinery which had been salvaged at considerable expense from a disused sawmill at Grande Charlotte city The error, recently overhauled at a cost of several hundred dollars was being carried by the passing Lady when a strong northeast squall proved too much for it.

Storm Upsets Salvage Scow

Within an hour of its destination a scow made torpedoed by heavy incurrations of ice turned turtle in 12 feet of water in a small town railway Hecate Strait off the coast of British Columbia and dumped into the ocean.

Newspaper correspondents when first invading Ethiopia last fall discovered none of the natives had ever heard of the World War.

Speed Limit Of Planes

Only 373 Miles An Hour With Present Wing Design

With the present design of wings, airplanes will be limited to a speed of about 373 miles an hour, Dr George W Lewis, director of research of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, showed at a special meeting of the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences that was held in the New York Museum of Science and Industry in Rockefeller Center. At this speed Dr Lewis said and he showed motion pictures to prove the point the maintaining flow of air over the top of the wing suddenly breaks away in a shock wave and the airplane loses all its lift.

Australians Sure Stream-Liner Train Could Not Compete With Whale

Pidgeon on a streamlined train has nothing on that at the end of a rope attached to an angry whale This is the experience of Geff s Barker, of the fishermen of Geff s Harbor, Australia. While they were fishing near Geff's Harbor the anchor of their launch fouled a large whale which started off at about a mile a minute, both men holding grimly to the small-screaming craft. Fearing that the whale might dive any second and wrap the boat with it, Edward would unscrewed and cut the rope, freeing the boat.

Cost Of Living

Slight Decline Is Reported By Bureau Of Statistics

The Canadian cost of living index, on the basis 1926 equals 100 declined from 80 7 in January to 80 1 in February as a result of a moderate recession in food prices, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported The food index was 72.9 against 73.3 in January.

Increases in eggs butter lard and pork were more than offset by declines in all other meats and poultry.

Coal and coke prices were slightly higher as were also those for gasoline.

New Health Body At Work

Campaign For The Universal Pasteurization Of Milk

For a number of years now the Social Hygiene Council, indefatigably led by Dr Gordon Bates as general director, has been performing a national service in this country that is beyond all praise Feeling the need, however, of giving this organization a still wider scope, it has been reorganized during the past few weeks and now stands forth as the Health League of Canada Fortunately Dr Bates still remains as general director but the presidency has been conferred upon the Honorable Mr. Justice Riddell of Toronto

Powerful support was given to this re-organization by the presence of the Governor-General. Lord Tweedsmuir, who urged that there should be active co-operation between public and health authorities and that every individual should give greater attention to public health in the future than in the past. With a short address by our own minister of health at Ottawa this renewed stimulus to public interest should be alike a help and an ovation

Dr. Bates has announced as one of the first objectives of the new body a national campaign for the universal pasteurization of milk that has just been laughed Pasteurization has to overcome the same kind of prejudices as vaccination, for instance had to do at one time, plus the opposition of those who conceive it to be contrary to their commercial interests. The need for educational propaganda is clearly indicated and this is what is being supplied Sooner or later sooner, rather than later, it is hoped the new campaign, will bear fruit from which the people of Canada will reap the benefits Quebec Chronicle-Telegram

Island Loses Its Queen

Sunnk Bat Fearless Ruler Of Tory Island Is Dead

With the death of Mary Herrity, only three feet high and extremely fearless, a wild, desolate island off the Donegal Coast, Irish Free State has lost its ruling "queen" and most dominant personality.

On Tory Island, where customs have not changed for centuries, it was the word of Mary Herrity that went as law. The tallest, strongest men on the island did not dare refuse her bidding.

Her little domain was but one of many similar islands scattered along the coast of Ireland; islands where Gaelic is spoken rather than English, and where the women still wear the short and old Irish hood cloak.

Many of these islanders have for generations been more Scotch than a man as their chief, The Clydagh people on the Galway coast whose ancestors were Spaniards, a man has yet to "rule" over the people there

How To Science

Australian University Flat Three Animals From New Guinea

Three specimens of animals brought from an island off the northwest coast of New Guinea to Professor Wood Jones, of Melbourne (Australia) University, had to be introduced to science. Two are rabbit carcasses but the third, a lively ball of white fur, hoops itself dashingly across an banana plantation, tobacco, milk and honey, and an occasional paw-paw or carrot. It is a small marsupial, with some affinity similarly to a rare species in the tropical part of Australia.

Although tuberculosis is being fought valiantly and the death rate is lower, the disease is responsible for the greatest public health problem of the country

Famous Underground Depot

Used By Escaping Negro Slaves During Civil War

History's famous "underground railroad" has lost its "depot". This was a three story brick building in Cincinnati in use before and after the civil war in aiding the escape of Negro slaves After crossing the Ohio river the fugitives made their way through a tunnel to the building.

The structure, more than 100 years old, is now being demolished to make way for a gasoline station

The foundation wall of the building carries evidence of a well-developed passage 5 feet high and 4 feet wide Similar indications of an underground passageway are apparent on the foundation walls of several of the other buildings for three blocks west of the old brick building.

Old-timers insist the tunnels were built by slaves who escaped from southern plantations. They were usually concealed beneath loads and transported in wagons.

The term "underground railroad," supposedly, resulted from the tunnel to the old brick building. There opponents of slavery supplied the runaways with food and clothing.

In the basement of the building is a space, 20 feet long and 10 feet wide, filled entirely with rock. Investigators have been unable to learn the significance of the rock. Old residents of the 4th street commission district, where the building is situated, hope the razing of the building will clear up the mystery.

Flying Licenses Suspended When British Pilot Broke Regulations

What is believed the first case in England of an aviator having his license suspended has been reported to Pilot Officer R. R. Kerr, of South Wood, who made a solo flight from Newcastle to Oslo Norway and back in 11 hours five minutes The flight was made in secrecy Kerr left Woolsington Airport without passing through nay Customs formalities As this was a breach of regulations the Air Ministry was obliged to take some form of action, but in recognition of Kerr's enterprise and the value of his achievement, that action was applied in the mildest possible form, a withdrawal of his flying license for eight weeks

Trio To Explore Greenland

Scientific Research Is Purpose Of Three Young Frenchmen

Three young French scientists, guided only by a sextant and compass, will brave the 60-below-zero blizzards that sweep across Greenland, to explore its little-known and uninhabited interior this summer

The trio will travel by dog train from Kristianashab on the island s west coast to Angmagssalik on the east coast, a distance of 500 miles.

Scientific research is the avowed purpose of the expedition, backed by the French government Three explorers will leave for Kristianashab early in April.

Each man will mush behind a 22-foot sled loaded with 770 pounds of supplies and pulled by 12 dogs. The trip would be impracticable, said Victor, unless the dogs were used both as draught animals and food They expect to arrive at Angmakssalik with one sled and only eight dogs.

Not A New Term

Word "Radio" Was Used As Far Back As 1896

Radio, the combining form of radio in Latin word meaning among other things, a ray, came to be used by itself in a curious way. At a convention drawn up in Berlin in 1906, "radio" was adopted as the distinguishing mark of wireless telegrams, and was so adopted by the United States Congress in 1912 When wireless telephony came along, "radio" was used for that, too, and its earlier meaning was eclipsed A radiogram, however, was originally an X-ray photograph or radiograph, and this term was so used as far back as 1896 Toronto Star

FARM PROBLEMS INDUSTRY'S ALSO

Ezra Miller One of Canada's chief problems is to find a solution to the question: How can our farmers be assured of operating a business on a reasonable profit? Owing to the fact that transportation is the biggest single factor governing the cost of practically everything grown, it is easy to see that if the farmer is compelled to pay excessive rates on business and industry throughout the country will be affected, and the farmer will be unable to buy as much from factories as he could if transportation charges were lower.

BELIEVES CANADA GREATEST MINING AREA IN WORLD

Ottawa.—Belief Canada was the richest mineral area on earth which "our grandchildren's grandchildren will not exhaust," was expressed here by Lord Tweedsmuir, governor-general, to the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Speaking at a dinner closing the three-day meeting of the institute, Lord Tweedsmuir said mining was no longer a closed except in Nova Scotia. It speedily becomed a highly organized business and as exact science. Up-to-date business methods and every new development in chemical and mechanical science were being used.

One feature about Canadian mining pleased him. "In most mining areas—certainly in South Africa the prospector is the one who does pioneering work, did not reap the fruits of his labor. That was left to the capitalist who came after him, who never stirred from his office chair. But here, not only has the prospector often made the big money, but he has stuck to it."

Mining problems were not new to him, the governor-general said. In South Africa other industry of the Rand was under consideration.

In the few months he had been in Canada, he said, he had visited gold and copper mines in northern Ontario and asbestos mines of Thetford, Que. He hoped to see a great deal more.

"It is a wonderful piece of good fortune for Canada that in these difficult days, when agriculture all over the world is in straits and when normal industries are crippled, you should have found so much wealth, much of which can be as readily cashed as a Bank of England note.

Cattle Sales Increase

Heavier Marketing Of Cattle In Toronto

Toronto.—Heavier marketing of cattle in Western Canada has been shown by stock yard sales for the first 11 weeks of 1936, Mr. Hull of Canada Packers Ltd., told the 18th annual meeting of the Eastern Canada Livestock Union here.

Exports to the United States of beef cattle also showed an increase over the same period in 1935 but shipments to the United Kingdom had fallen off from 4,781 head in 1935 to 1,746 up to March 12, 1936, Mr. Hull said.

Sales on stock yards, Mr. Hull said, for the period ending March 12 show a decrease of 12,478 head in Toronto and Montreal but an increase of 4,053 in the western markets. There had been also a decrease of 8,202 in shipments from the west to the east in that period.

Meeting in connection earlier the delegates decided to appoint a committee of five in addition to the union's president and secretary to co-operate with a committee from the Western Canada Livestock Union in gathering information and preparing it with respect to interempire trade pacts which will be reviewed in 1937.

Growing In Importance

Canada Going Ahead As Industrial Country Makes Warning

London.—Canada's growing importance as an industrial country was stressed by Hon Vincent Massey, the Dominion's high commissioner to London at a luncheon given by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain.

He believed trade between Canada and the United Kingdom "should form a practical demonstration between the two countries of their regard for and interest in each other," and broader economic progress in the Old Country.

Committee Appointed

To Investigate Administration Of Radio Act Of 1923

Ottawa.—Operations of the Canadian Radio Commission and its administration of the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Act of 1932 will be investigated by a special House of Commons committee of 23 members. Its membership will include 17 Liberals, 4 Conservatives, and one each for the C.C.F. and Social Credit groups.

Announcement of the committee personnel, together with an outline of its reference was made in a resolution placed on the order paper of the House of Commons by Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of marine.

The committee will "inquire into the operations of the Canadian Radio Commission and its administration of the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Act of 1932 and amendments, and the regulations made under authority thereof; advise what, if any, changes shall be effected in the existing system of radio broadcasting; and whether the said statutes and regulations should be amended in any respect, and what, if any, additions should be made thereto, also inquire into the extent to which there has been any abuse of broadcasting privileges, either for political or advertising purposes, and to report what principles should govern the regulations or control thereof."

Canadian Women Honored

Selected For Outstanding Achievements In Many Fields

New York.—Two Canadian women were among a group of 23 selected for outstanding achievement in varied fields who were honored here by the New York League of the National Association of Business and Professional Women at a dinner.

They were Isabel Stewart, of Fielcher, Ont., and formerly of Morden, Man., director of nursing education at Columbia University, and Margaret Cuthbert, of Prince Albert, Sask., who is director of women's activity for the National Broadcasting Company.

The program was part of a nationwide celebration of business women's week, inaugurated last year as an annual event to emphasize the importance of women in art, business and the professions.

Made Excellent Showing

Saskatchewan Youths Win In Judging Competitions At Brandon

Brandon. — Two Saskatchewan youths made an excellent showing in the students' judging competitions at the Manitoba winter fair here in a class of more than 50. Jack Parker, of Togo, was among the winning five in four competitions, and Clifford Bishop, of Carlyle, collected prize money in two.

The competitions were held in conjunction with the agricultural short courses being conducted here during March by the Dominion Extension Service. Jack Parker came third in the swine and poultry judging class, fourth in the cattle class and fifth in the seed class. Clifford Shirley won second place in the swine class and fourth in the horse class.

Yvonne Starts Last Lap To Fairbanks With Dog Team

Tanana Crossing, Alaska Diminutive Mary Joyce, 27, and her five-dog team struck the snowy trails on the last 165 miles of her 1,000-mile mush from Taku to Fairbanks.

The Taku hearing lodge mistress, making the trip "just for the fun of it," was accompanied by an Indian guide. He will break trail as far as Big Delta, 91 miles from Fairbanks. She will then travel the rest of the way alone, as she has done most of the time since she left Taku, December 30.

EVOLVE PLAN TO SMOOTH OUT THE LOCARNO BREAK

London. — A French spokesman said that Locarno members have agreed tentatively on a plan to safeguard Germany's occupation of the Rhineland.

Informed French quarters said the provisional plan contained three points forming a compromise between the British and French viewpoints

1. An appeal shall be made to the Hague court for decision on the French-Belgist mutual military assistance treaty.

2. Measures shall be taken to preserve the status of the Rhine zone pending arbitration with the possibility of an international force, perhaps British and Italian, to control the frontier.

3. Guarantees of mutual assistance among remaining Locarno members in case of attack.

The tentative agreement was reached at a session of Locarno representatives after the former alliee had made the German proposal at a League of Nations' council session.

Direct telephone contact will be established between the two chief premiers.

Aviation Expansion

Urge That Royal Canadian Air Force Be Brought Up To Date

Expansion of commercial aviation in Canada and bringing "up to date" the Royal Canadian Air Force were urged in a resolution passed unanimously by the annual convention of the Canadian Legion in Vancouver

The resolution stated that "the federal government is not at present giving adequate assistance to the development of commercial flying in Canada and is strongly urged to bring about without further delay some plan of definite assistance to all commercial operators"

It was further advocated unemployed labor be used in the development and completion of airports in Canada, that the trans-Canada airway be completed and put into operation with as little delay as possible and that special consideration should be given to the northern operator to assist in the development of mining areas

A Valuable Asset

Good English Will Enable One To Talk Convincingly

Next to the ability to think, the ability of express oneself convincingly is the most valuable tool one can have in one's equipment. Out of every ten people who rise from prominence to leadership to fame nine do so because they have equipped themselves with effective speaking

If you are properly ambitious your aim should be to make your English powerful, instantly effective and impressive Then your employer your friends your clients and customers and your casual acquaintances will respond to your strong personality as you wish them to do

Peril Of Closed Mines

Men Who Stops Thinking And Learning Becomes A Fossil

The peril of the closed mine is the deadliest of all perils whether it sustains a man in muddle life or in mud age To be ever learning is the one gateway to the fountain of youth Arrow that path there is no boldness When laziness stops a man from thinking and fear prevents him from exploring new realms of truth, that man is on the way to the museum His contentment if he has attained such is the contentment of the fossil

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Then gases bloat up your stomach. You get constipated. Poisons are not eliminated from the body and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a doctor's liver prescription made of vegetable herbs. Nothing harsh and nothing habit forming about it. Just ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by their full name. Insist on getting Carter's. Refuse substitutes.

New Device To Aid Deaf

Persons Rated 50 Per Cent. Deaf Hear Almost Perfectly

Success in giving 95 per cent. perfect hearing to half deaf persons was announced recently by researchers working a scientifically ideal earamplifier.

Delighted smiles of persons hearing the high notes of an opera for the first time in their lives are rewarding the researchers, Prof. Vern O. Knudsen, and two graduate students, Norman Watson and Ludwig Sepmyer who have spent a year and a half on the project at the University of California.

They seek to place mechanical hearing aids on the same prescription basis as eye glasses, promising great relief to the hard of hearing who are estimated at 3,000,000 in the United States alone.

Discovering that most of such afflicted persons hear some notes perfectly, but are deaf to others, Dr. Knudsen built an amplifier that will pick out a certain range of tone and amplify that alone.

Partly deaf persons, most of them professors and students on the campus, are given sound tests running up and down the scale. Usually they hear perfectly the middle range, but are deaf to high pitched tones.

The amplifier is adjusted to bolster only their "deaf spots" and records are played through it. Listening through earphones, persons rated 50 per cent deaf have been enabled to hear almost perfectly.

JESUS MEETING HUMAN NEEDS

Golden text: Come: for all things are now ready. Luke 14:17.

Lesson: Luke 14.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 55:1-7.

Explanations And Comments

The Parable of the Slighted Invitation. Luke 14:15-24. Jesus' mention of the recompense in "the resurrection of the just" (verse 14) rendered a guest present in the Pharisee's house (verse 1) of the great feast which, according to Jewish belief, would usher in the Messianic reign and be conspicuously observed. Pictured to be so short an interval in the kingdom of God." Then Jesus told him a parable designed to disabuse his mind of his evident expectation that, being a Jew, he would be present as his right. "Ye," said the Master, "blessed indeed are they who sit down at the heavenly feast. You think you are one of those whom the kingdom of heaven had invited to the banquet; what have you done, though, with the invitation? I know you have received it who have simply loaned it alone; his post of that number? Listen now to my story of the divine banquet and of the invited there-to" (Spencer).

A certain man [who represents God] made a great supper; and he bade many," then Jesus' parable began. "Many" were the Jewish people, especially to an original mind. No other figure could our Lord have expressed to the audience so attractively the idea of real happiness as by a feast. This is his favorite symbol for the kingdom of heaven. Even it is "a great supper". Elsewhere it is a wedding festival; and yet again, the marriage feast of a king's son." Such, however, was not the response that the message received. First, all with one accord began to make excuse, to "beg off," as the literal understanding. All were moved by the same spirit, though in their excuses differed. They had all made their engagements for business or pleasure without regard to the banquet, to which they were indifferent.

Englishman Claims Unmuzzled Bark Breeds During Any British Crisis

Evidence that will be produced in Great Britain, Sir Mark Grant-Sturgis will only have to look at a mummified dog which died in the year 79 B.C. will be bleeding from beak and breast. The bark originally came from Egypt, and I understand that its habit of bleeding during British crises was discovered at the time of the Boer War. Throughout this war and the Great War the dog bled continuously. Sir Mark saw the bird the other day. Unmoved by Italo-Abyssinian bloodshed, the mummy bark remains as dry as a bone

Harnessed Sun Power With A Reflecting Battery Of Mirrors

H. E. McCoy, said Los Angeles inventor, gingerly held a steel plate in front of a beam of his "concentrated sunlight" and chuckled as the ray promptly melted a hole through the plate, the molten metal dripping down like melted butter

He waved triumphantly at a huge revolving battery of mirrors which was focusing the bright rays from noon-day sun into a beam of 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit in temperature

Well, yes all our facts are with sun power through outfits like this some day" he declared

McCoy's invention consists of three panels each holding 20 curved pieces of silvered mirror glass They tip up or down and run on a circular track following the sun's path from east to west. The panels are kept aimed constantly on a fire brick seven 15 feet away.

All the sunlight striking 60 square feet of mirror is concentrated on the small target raising the temperature to approximately half the terrific heat of the surface of the sun itself

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. READING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Bloom County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread". Buzz shoots at Fleming in a somewhat irritable fit of anger, but Rusty Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Torney to learn whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there he is explosion that wrecks the house, burns it and the plans and renders Link unconscious. Fleming receives the blame by an employee

Helen and Link ride to Rawhide for supplies and to obtain funds to carry out the new project. They meet Roper, who greets Helen and offers to drive with her Link goes to see the Sheriff, who tells him Buzz Hamilton has been released. He would arrive on the incoming stage, but that he thinks Link has made a mistake in getting Buzz released.

Buzz Hamilton arrives back in Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the bank gaining a loan for payment of wages for work on the dam. Roper Kilgo and Jackpot Mell meet him and he goes into the saloon with them By the time his sister and Link come from the bank, Buzz has had several drinks Roper has distorted the facts concerning Helen's presence in the saloon, and has scarcely dared hope even to exist. Of a sudden he felt again that the Silver Creek project must be made a success! So that later, when both spreads prospered from its waters, he could ask Link to the dance he had toyed with inwardly while they looked at the wedding and engagement ring display in Ira Lane's window

She was describing the holdup to her best friend when a big bomber rear Ira Lane's head and a big boulder right alongside the road He had two guns, and he was a beauty! Right behind the flivver, but reserved looking. He wanted the money we I—had just drawn from the bank.

"How much" Kilgo asked direct up.

"I had my thirty-eight, she continued, "and I was going to shoot it out when Mr. Roper—Suddenly she eyes encountered Buzz At first she gulped incredulously and her red lips parted. Then uttering a low cry, Helen darted forward.

He could but reply to the third question but did answer the Sheriff's "Come," the Star Loop owner said in a tone the others could not hear, "don't let out how much Cause it is make things harder for us at the dam Helen got robbed of eight hundred bucks we just borrowed from Otto Pieper."

The law man's eyes widened He strode over to the girl, Fleming at his heels "Tell me about it, Miss Hamilton ma'i can start hunting for the guy right off."

There was another moment of staring at Buzz taking his thin face between her two soft palms while she used him again and again this "Oh!" she breathed as happy, thankful tears coursed down the smooth tan of her cheeks "I'm glad you're free Buzz' Nothing else matters now But how " She stopped "I don't understand Your three years "

V. S. A. "LITTLE ROYAL"

Interesting and Instructive Display By Students on Saturday

In spite of rather severe weather conditions, the "Little Royal" at the V. S. A. proved to be a very interesting and instructive affair. The gymnasium was completely filled with exhibits from the carpentry, blacksmith, harnessing and household administration departments. The latter department showed some very attractive needle and sewing screens which were much admired by the visitors. The agronomy department had an instructive exhibit showing the effect of Lytoman, ceresan and formaldehyde in the treatment of this year's low grade grains, as well as exhibits of grain, grass and potato samples. Some very excellent work was shown in the blacksmithing and cabinet work.

The library also was completely filled with the sewing exhibit. This too, was very interesting and attracted a great deal of attention. The west classroom had an excellent exhibit of pastry and plain bread-making, cheese and butter. The whole affair was the equal of anything that the V. S. A. has shown up to date.

In the shooting of the stock entirely, particularly the horses, the cold bothered both the shooters and the animals. Here several splendid changes in deliveries were brought out all trained, groomed and in proper show shape. The cattle classes, fortunately, were held in the shelter of the pavilion where it was much more comfortable for all concerned. The main object in the Brucknell classes was to give the second year boys experience and practice in showmanship. The showmanship winners in the various classes were:

Horses—W. Hackman, Vegreville. W. Anderson, Minburn.

Cattle—Joe Kallal, Tofield; Frank Whiting, Lloydminster.

Sheep—C. Rithe, Lavoy; S. Watson, Provost.

Poultry.—C. Quail, Round Hill; G. Tomasky, Saskatoon.

Calves—A. Parsons, Vermilion; E. Koechli, Daysland.

Heifers—W. Bradley, Lloydminster; P. Theories, St. Paul.

Best Braddina—Peter Fedoruk, Vegreville, Nick Pattuke, Mor. Valley.

The following snappy advert appears in a window of a ladies hair dressing salon— "There is many a bachelor-ship wrecked by a permanent wave."

A swardsman who had refused to shave off his moustache has just been court-martialled at Windsor England. Whatever may be the merits of the case many people will admire the man for the stand he made in defence of his moustache. For a moustache may mean a lot to a man. Who would Hitler be without his, and Charlie Chaplin has proved his worth or such an adornment. Mr Anthony Eden would look vastly different without his now famous mouthache, it is at most part of his political making. Who, then will blame the guardsman for daring to guard his precious moustache?

The advance guard of the crows has arrived and that means Spring and Spring means seeds!

DERWENT DRIBBLES

The weatherman has played an odd trick on everyone this year, but none so amusing as that played on our curlers. With the advent of warmer weather of two weeks ago, the ice began to soften and the curlers were forced to wind up their activities for the season. The rocks were tucked away into snug nooks to be dormant until the coming of next winter. However winter decided to stay and fight it out until the last, with the consequence that the curlers again decided to pull out the rocks. Really, they are at it again.

The season now drawing to its close has been the most pleasant one in the town's history. The winter, with its biting winds, hard frosts and various other inconveniences naturally forces one indoors to overheated rooms and stuffy apartments. Perhaps none realize that so plainly as the women-folk who by sheer necessity are chained to spend most of their time in the kitchen. Fortunately a very hectic curling season was provided by the curlers and While the lasting Good-nite, everybody moved about with brisk and youthful energy. The efforts of those who organized the rink are much appreciated.

With the winding up of the curling season a very keen competition between three rinks consisting of local ladies took place at Derwent splel. The competitions were all the keener because beautiful prizes were to be given to the winners. The first rink was made up of Mrs. MacRae, Mrs. Arnold, Mrs. Christenson, and Miss Margaret Taylor; the second rink of Mrs. Morrison, Mrs. Grekuhik, Mrs. Hare and Kathleen Curry; the third of Mrs. Algot, Mrs. Cunningham, Miss Jenny Korbie and Miss Louie Korbie. After a breathless struggle the first mentioned rink succeeded in finishing the other rinks and won a beautiful prize, a trophy symbolic of the championship of the Derwent lady curlers, graciously donated by the Edmonton Distributors Ltd

No less exciting was the men's bonspiel Eight rink participated. Each rink consisted of three men and one lady. There was much enthusiasm displayed and had to overcome some stiff opposition. After the process of eliminating the rink rompe loss of Mrs MacRae skipped by Mr. Harry Jack with Dixie Curry and Mr Wright captured the top honors, winning the Derwent championship. The trophy may be seen in the office of Mr Wright's hotel. Congratulations winners.

To finish off the season a banquet was given by the members of the rink in Mr Wright's hotel. It was one of the rare social affairs that the town is to the banquet an interesting ceremony of filling the cup" took place. Here that the skips stood in a row and Mr G. Mann [illegible] the prizes. MRS. M. G. STONE'S AUCTION SALE POSTPONED

Now Set for Monday, April 6th

Owing to the bad roads and weather prevailing over the last week end it was deemed advisable to postpone the auction sale of the farm effects of Mrs M. G. Stone scheduled for Tuesday March 31. The sale will now be held on Monday, April 6 commencing at noon sharp. There is a complete listing of farm implements, dairy stock, horses etc. See bills for full particulars. The farm adjoins the village of Islay.

TOLLAND TIMES

It must be spring! Crows are reported from all directions even since the official date, March 21st!

Congratulations to Mr and Mrs. Lyman Gow on the birth of their second daughter, Isabel Ann, born in the maternity ward of Lea's annex with a weight of 8 lbs. Mother and Wonderie anymore. Also congratulations to Mr and Mrs Ivan Lewis, who had another son born to them on the 21st of March.

Mr Kreager returned home from the states where he visited his two daughters and son.

Mr Delmar Ford was kicked by a range cow and suffered a broken nose.

The Tolland Hog Sale was held in Chris Tomson's sale barn on Saturday last at 12 o'clock with a large crowd in attendance. Mr W. Manders and Mr F. Van Wyck were the auctioneers. Very good prices prevailed for all classes of stock. Mr Manders and Mr F. Van Wyck were the auctioneers. Very good prices prevailed for all classes of stock. Mr Manders and Mr F. Van Wyck were the auctioneers. Very good prices prevailed for all classes of stock.

Seeding grain and cane is well under way. The present pastures on account of the dry weather are not very good. Farmers are putting a few cows on to pasture hoping rain will soon fall to make pasture for their cows.

ISLAY PIONEER RETIRES IN EDMONTON

D. Gilchrist Came to Alberta in 1902; Homesteaded At Islay

(Edmonton Journal)

Long a popular member of the staff of the city postal branch Donald Gilchrist 5012 11b st. 64 year old mail porter retired recently, ending 13 years of service with the department in Edmonton.

Born at Lindsay Ont., in 1872 Mr. Gilchrist came to the west in 1902 where he took up land near Islay 80 on the advice of a boyhood friend, the late General Sir Sam Hughes who owns the coming of a railroad in that area. In 1906 Mr. Gilchrist returned to Ontario where he was married, later returning to Edmonton to enter carpentering work.

Joining the postal service in 1917 Mr. Gilchrist was employed in the accountant's office for almost 12 years before he was transferred to the city mailing department where he remained until his retirement.

Mr. Gilchrist went overseas with the 49th battalion soon after the outbreak of the 1914 war.

Always a proficient musician, Mr. Gilchrist was presented with a Spanish guitar on March 26th by his fellow workers.

Mr. Gilchrist is still well known in Islay, as one of the founders of the Islay Agricultural Society. He is a member of the Masonic order.

CEASE PUBLICATION OF UNITED FARMER

Considerable Financial Loss Suffered in Publishing Paper

CALGARY, March 27.—Publication of the United Farmer had been suspended with the issue of March 27, Norman F. Priestley, managing director, announced Thursday. Considerable financial loss had been suffered in publishing the paper during the past two years, Mr. Priestly stated, and it was felt this could no longer be incurred by the association. It was likely a publicity service would be continued, he concluded.

LACOMBE STATION OFFERS AID IN FARM PLANNING

Ever since its institution in 1907, the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe has been gradually extending the field of its activities, in order to be of the greatest possible assistance to the public. In its twenty nine years of existence this station has carried on demonstrations, experiments testing field, forage and horticultural crops, cultural and rotation practices and methods of feeding and caring for all commercial classes of stock.

The vast fund of information so gained through these experiments has been disseminated through the press, press articles, field days, short courses, direct contact with those who visit the Station, a wide-spread correspondence and, for the last two years, weekly news letters to the newspapers throughout the territory served by the station.

Now the Lacombe station has made another decidedly progressive move in being about an even greater application of this valuable information through the institution of one of the newest services which this station has ever been able to offer to the public. This is a farm planning service which is designed to assist farmers who wish to more methodically coordinate their field crops with the other farm requirements. Rotations will be recommended also suitable grass and legume mixtures, in relation to the number of live stock maintained on the farm, and the climatic and soil conditions.

To secure this free service write to the Superintendent, Dominion Experimental station, Lacombe, asking for a questionnaire and blank plans which when filled out and returned to the station will give the details necessary for the drafting of recommended changes.

M. D. VERMILION VALLEY MINUTES

A meeting of the council was held in the Municipal office on Saturday the 21st inst. The chair was taken by the reeve N. McClellan ... 1:30 p.m. and all councillors present. The meeting continued until close to 5:30 p.m.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The resolution referring to hospital fees was rescinded and the following substituted Vermilion hospital rate was set at 2% mills and hospital at 2.5 mills. The offer of the Bank of Montreal for a settlement of the taxes on SW 22 53 5 was accepted and a by-law ratified at the above effect on the consolidation agreement would necessitate 3 West lines now in the town of Vermilion was received and ...

A number of applications were presented for seed grain for the approval of the council and the same passed subject to the limitations set by the government on acreage. A resolution was passed whereby the municipality should have the right to enter any premises where seed grain had been advanced and take sufficient grain to satisfy the indebtedness caused by such advance it will be necessary to have an agreement signed by the grower and the municipality giving this right. This agreement will be attached to the seed grain promissory note at the time the grain is delivered.

A statement was presented by the New Town showing the position of the schools with the amount of their requisitions. The rates for the school were set as follows: Vermilion Public 18 mills, Bentell, Ie, Bridgeview, 11.5 Campbell Lk. 8; Deer Lk. 10; Gap Lk. 18; Hollywood, 11; Irricville 7.5; Island Hill, 15; Kenilworth, 13; Kingsford, 11.5; Kohnke, 11; Lands 7; Marriott 12; Optimist 9.5; Poplar Hts. 9.5; Turkey Hill, 11; Union 11

Several letters from the Commissioner of Relief regarding relief granted in certain sections in which it was claimed the municipality had not given a sufficient amount, were considered. The council decided the amount already passed were in order Bills amounting to $745.15 were passed and ordered paid and council adjourned

CONSUMER CO-OPERATIVES

MR. W.M. HALSALL, one of the leading Co-operators of the West, and Vice-President of The Co-operative Union of Canada, states: "There is much evidence of enthusiasm for Consumer Co-operation that we hardly know how to deal with it."

STARTING just over a year ago, The Vermilion Co-op. has 127 Shareholders, is expanding rapidly, reaching our lines and lines, in an effort to still further benefit its shareholders and customers in return for them the profits on their purchases.

YEARS AGO, the need for this became apparent in the Old Country, a few men forming the original Rochdale Society, based on sound commercial principles. As an endeavor, as someone has said, to help the under-dog; today, as a result of shareholders' loyalty through thick and thin, the Old Country Co-ops. are a tremendous power for good — The depression stopped wagging his tail, and used his head instead.

IT IS EXPECTED that the next few years will witness enormous development along Co-operative lines in Alberta. Recent conferences indicate the need of Co-operation among Co-operators of the different Co-op. organizations — getting together on a common ground, of the shaking of personal and political differences, which in cold reality, have no place in Co-operative work

WORKING CAPITAL

SHARES provide the permanent capital for the foundation of the financial structure. There at $10.00 each, pay 4% interest to the Shareholders

LOANS of varying amounts have been made to the Association, and provide a good method of investment for shareholders; interest is paid on these loans at 4% for one year, 4½% for two year, and 5% for three year terms

DEPOSITS. Many of our Shareholders use the Deposit Account method, as a convenient depository or on-plus cash and cheques — withdrawable at any time. 3% interest is paid on quarterly balance.

DIVIDENDS

OUR DIRECTORS have followed a consistent policy of "Dividends on every purchase for every Customer". Please keep in mind every time you buy a sack of flour or sugar or any other commodity that at the end of the year your profit will be reduced by your Dividend; so, for instance, if we lose on every bag of flour, or 3½c on every 10-lb. bag or can, all throughout last year, helped to cut your Dividend, besides the fact that every purchase helps to build up your own Customers' Co-operative Association. If you are not already a shareholder your dividends are applied on a share until the Five Dollars is paid for, then all future dividends may be taken out if desired, by all paid-up Shareholders.

MEMBERSHIP

SHARES in our Coop. Store are sold at $10.00. These, if fully paid up, entitle you to all voting privileges in the election of Directors and policies of the business. A number of our Shareholders paid for their Shares out of the Dividends as paid them on last year's business, without acts ally paying out a cent for their Share. They simply saved their money, or perhaps brought them in at the end of the year and received 5% dividend them. In some cases customers purchases were not large enough to pay for the share in full, in Dividends, but future Dividends will complete payment of their Share

In some cases new customers are paying $1 or down on a share, they get their own purchase book then, and every time they buy anything we enter it in their own book for Dividend purposes.

A SPIRIT OF FAIRNESS is shown by the fact that this is one of the very few Coop Stores having a separate book for every shareholder, in which we keep track of all purchases for that shareholder and even though he may have some or all of the bills, he will get his Dividends on everything he has bought, just the same.

AUDIT

OUR BOOKS, Cash Receipts and disbursements are audited each month and the Financial Statement for 1935 shows very remarkable progress being made in present business and in sound expansion for the future. If you are interested, the books of the Association are open for your inspection at any time, with the exception, of course, of individual accounts

The old saying concerning March coming in like a lamb and going out like a lion can surely be applied to March of 1936. The storm of last week end certainly piled up the drifts and made spring seem very far away since more Old man winter having a last wicked fling no doubt. Little George Hartley has almost recovered from his recent attack of the whooping pneumonia.

Pop Pearce had the misfortune to be kicked in the stomach by a horse last week but seems to be getting on all right.

Several from this district attended the Friday night a number of young folks from this neighborhood journeyed to the dance at Pleasby school and reported a good time although the road wasn't large.

This week end there will be a dance at Bloomington and a social evening at Ormawa so just take your choice for a good time.

Up to date of writing no trace has been found of the stolen team belonging to F. Thompson

Quite a few cases of measles are reported in the district.

The PERFECT Chewing Tobacco

Eradication Of Tuberculosis

Great forward strides have been made in the fight to stem the toll of human life taken by tuberculosis in the prairie provinces in the past few years but there are evidences that complacency has not yet been won. There is more work yet to be done before this enemy of mankind can be said to have been totally routed

An most residents of that province are aware tuberculosis in Saskatchewan was some years ago brought virtually within the category of State Medicine when the sanatoria were placed under the administration of the Saskatchewan Anti-Tubercular League, with authority given the League to impose an annual tax levy on all municipalities, rural and urban, which is supported by government grants. Furnishes the finances for treatment of all cases of the disease found within the province. In addition, it should be added, the funds for supplementary preventive work are secured from voluntary contributions realised by the sale of Christmas seals

While not quite patterned on the Saskatchewan system, the fight against the disease in Manitoba is waged along somewhat similar lines and at the time of writing the Alberta Legislature has a bill before it which will virtually place the war against T. B. in that province within the State Medicine phase, if adopted

As a result of the work done in Saskatchewan during the past decade, that province can boast, and with justification, that it is in the van of the fight and has to-day the lowest death rate from tuberculosis of any province in the Dominion. 30 per 1,000 deaths for last year

Facts and figures show that, partly as a result of the preventive work, the incidence of the disease in Saskatchewan has passed the peak, that the former upward curve of the number of cases treated annually is now trending in a downward direction and that, as a further result, space in hospitals which have had to care for an overflow for which provision could not be made in the sanatoria, is no longer required for T.B. cases. An additional result is that patients in the sanatoria can be held there for treatment longer than was formerly possible thus improving their chances of complete recovery

While this is all to the good, there yet remain two real hazards to be definitely eradicated. These are the menace afforded by the Indian and the cow

In the early days when the Indians roamed the prairies and lived in the open tuberculosis was practically unknown among them. It was not until they were taught to adopt the habits of the whites and confine themselves to permanent homes that they became subject to tuberculosis. Since that time the disease has become rampant among the aborigines and is taking heavy toll. In other words, the "whites" presented the Indians with tuberculosis and to-day the Indians are returning the compliment by infecting the whites with whom they come in frequent contact.

Figures were recently quoted showing that the incidence of tuberculosis among the Indian population of the prairie provinces is ten times as great as among the white inhabitants and it appears that very little at present is being done to cope with the menace

The Indians are the wards of the Federal government and this is a situation which should receive the immediate attention of the authorities at Ottawa. If the efforts of the provincial governments in reducing the disease among the other residents of the provinces are not to be of less partially neglected.

The other danger spot in the situation is the prevalence of bovine tuberculosis among cattle. Every effort has been made to reduce this disease among the cattle of the prairie provinces and to minimize the risk of infection from cattle to human beings via the milk route, there is still danger of infection from this source and will continue to be until it has been entirely stamped out of the herds.

Eradication will not be complete until such time as compulsory inspection of cattle for bovine tuberculosis and slaughter of all re-actors in the cattle areas of the three provinces is in effect, but that consumption cannot be achieved until there is a sufficiently strong public demand for it

Until that time farmers and residents of the smaller towns and villages outside of the T.B. free zones are subject to risk of contagion by milk from cattle suffering from bovine tuberculosis. This risk, however, could be materially minimized if farmers and others owning milch cattle would in the meantime, have their cattle tested at their own expense and slaughter re-actors By so doing, they can at least afford protection for their own families and their customers.

It is true that such action might result in some immediate financial loss to cattle owners who take this precaution, but it might be loss expensive in the long run than to continue to take chances of infection from that source

May Move Woolwich Arsenal

Vulnerability Of London To Air Attacks Is Reason Given

New emphasis on the vulnerability of London to air attacks is found in reports that the government is seriously considering moving sections of Woolwich arsenal to more remote places in the British Isles.

Talk of its removal has given the alarmists new occasion to paint a picture of gas, incendiary and explosive bombs, raining down upon the city—a city which already knows, from experience, of the terror of air raids.

It has provided proponents of a stronger air defence with new arguments in their claim that London, with its 8,000,000 inhabitants, and easily accessible from the continent, is not protected against the bombing plane.

Winston Churchill likened London to a "great fat cow waiting to be shot" soon be at the mercy of the nearest foraging dictator."

Public opinion is likewise being fanned by current discussion in the press and in parliament as to the ability of the navy to defend itself against air attack. Considered facing this, however there is the expansion, both real and indicated, of the Royal Air Force and the development of air defence: the hinted discovery of anti-aircraft weapons which would keep air invaders at bay, despite the fact London is but a matter of minutes from the continent by air.

There also went the Woolwich arsenal moved claim it has so far been the "fatally weak spot" in every defence plan yet devised for London. No way has been found, it is stated, of protecting the arsenal and rendering it immune from attack from the skies.

King's Birthday

His Majesty Will Ride At Head Of His Troops On Anniversary

When he will ride at the head of his troops for the first time as sovereign when he celebrates his 42nd birthday, June 23.

It was officially announced His Majesty's birthday will be celebrated in London and at all stations of the Royal Navy, the Army and the royal air force at home and abroad.

The principal function will be the trooping of the colour by the Life Horse Guards' parade. This was a ceremony always observed by the late King George, and on his last birthday, June 3, His late Majesty rode with his four sons in the picturesque ceremonial.

His Majesty's ships will be dressed over for the occasion, and royal salutes of 21 guns will be fired at certain stations. Land forces will hold ceremonial parades.

War Is Still On

Due To Omission In Participating In Signing Of Peace Treaties

A recent incident has revealed the fact that the republic of San Marino is still at war with Italy.

The manager of a Turkish agricultural institute recently spent a few months in San Marino studying with scientific studies. When he crossed into the territory of San Marino he was politely reminded that when he was arrested as an undesirable national of a country at war with the republic.

In 1915 San Marino joined Italy in a declaration of war on Turkey, and therefore is still legally entitled and invited neither to participate in the peace negotiations nor to sign the treaty concluded with Turkey.

Suspects of the republic of San Marino in Turkey have always been treated as Italian nationals.

Testing Television System

British Broadcasting Company To Stage Programs Very Soon

The world's first government-controlled television programs will be broadcast very soon when the British Broadcasting Company stages "beam-and-see" tests from Alexandra Palace.

Plans already are afoot to "television" King Edward VIII. next Christmas Day when he goes before the microphone to extend his Christmas greetings to the empire. If this royal innovation is successful the King's coronation—probably in May or June of next year—will be televised from Westminster Abbey in all its centuries-old pomp and splendor.

Converting of Alexandra Palace, an ornate remnant of Victorian days atop a hill in North London into a television station is being rushed, and postoffice engineers are laying the television cable, connecting London with Birmingham. The cable costs $3,000 a mile, but when completed will carry a load of 300 separate telephone conversations when not in television use.

Birmingham probably will be the site of the second station to be able to take some of its programs by the land-line cable from Alexandra Palace, which in turn can be connected with the B.B.C. Broadcasting House six miles away in the heart of London and thence to "outside relay points" such as Westminster Abbey.

The only hitch is that few Britons will have television sets when the first "televised" broadcasts are made. They'll have to go to a theatre, or to the home of somebody who chooses or join an orchestra.

Public talk in Russian cities today is much the same as in other countries, except for the "appalling" overcrowding, according to Miss Spaull, who said huge blocks of flats and skyscrapers were being built but could not keep pace with the increasing city populations.

The average Russian has a normal family life. There are nurseries and kindergartens for children of working mothers, clubs for adults and "magnificently" organized clubs for children. Education is optional for children from five to seven years of age, but is compulsory for those from seven to 17

The clubs are a useful innovation that owing to crowded home conditions have become necessary. The new cities are not quite so crowded, and conditions with families living in self-contained flats with gas, electric light and telephone are similar to those on this continent.

Marriage is regarded as permanent, divorces are still easy to obtain, but regulations relating to dissolving marriages are being tightened. Miss Spaull remarked, "The Russians have seen their mistake." Interest in the welfare of children is the main objective of the present move.

Musician And Artist

Man Made Beautiful Violin From Old Cigar Box Material

Piece by piece, section by section, John Swistkowski of Windsor, Ont., spent one year in making a violin of match sticks and toothpicks, until he has a remarkable instrument which experts say has tone and quality. More than 15,000 sections were matched with infinite care

Not only a musician, John, 23 years of age, is an artist as well, for the reverse side of the violin, he has included the picture of a beautiful woman, which he drew alone carved 60 tiny pieces of wood; a rose whose every petal and thorn stand out against the workmanship of the background of the instrument's reversed side.

The designs have been inlaid across the grain of the thousands of matched pieces without affecting the mellow tone.

In some sections, John explained, the violin contains three thicknesses of match sticks and toothpicks, to give the proper strength and shape.

House Life in Russia

Speaker Says Life In Russia Much The Same To-Day As In Other Countries

Homes in Russia where whole families were crowded into one or two and—if fortunate—three rooms, were mentioned in an address at the Women's Canadian Club at Ottawa by Miss Hebe Spaull, member of the staff of the League of Nations in London.

She then told of clubs in the many cities where children from seven to 17 attended their own theatres and cinemas, keep their white mice, canaries and other animals in the "pet rooms", do their homework under the supervision of qualified teachers, take up any hobby they choose or join an orchestra.

Public life in Russian cities today is much the same as in other countries, except for the "appalling" overcrowding, according to Miss Spaull, who said huge blocks of flats and skyscrapers were being built but could not keep pace with the increasing city populations.

The King's English

Recent Address Broadcast By Edward VIII. Was Good Sample

The papers freely discussed the address delivered by King Edward VIII. on March 1, the first to his people since ascending the throne. Considerable attention is given his pronunciation of English and pronunciation. It is pointed out, for instance, that he used the word "radio," rather than "wireless," thus accepting the designation more common in Canada and the United States than in the Old Country, and the commentator mentions his pronunciation of "broadcast" with the short "o," as used in Canada and United States, rather than the English inflection "broadcahst." All seem to agree that he was as correct in his pronunciation as in the selection of styles in clothing, which is something, too, when it is realized that the new King is known to be as nervous as any other ordinary man would be in approaching the microphone on such an auspicious occasion and, therefore, liable to some slight slip in pronunciation or articulation. — Port Arthur News Chronicle.

Discovery Of X-Ray

Montgre Happened On Great Find 61 Years Ago

Like many other epoch-making discoveries in science the discovery of X-rays was accidental While investigating the passage of high-voltage electric currents through vacuum tubes, William Conrad Rentgen in 1895 happened upon the great find Further research has resulted in the development of X-rays to a point, when to-day it is considered one of our major aids in the fight against the dread disease cancer Its use in diagnosis in hospitals is well known and of extreme importance Its application is being constantly extended

But the X-ray has also found its place in industry It is now possible to discover defects in various metals by the use of the X-ray. This is of great importance when metal is used in construction subject to enormous pressure and strain

At several of the most important ports of entry, the Customs Department uses the X-ray in searching for articles intended to be smuggled into the country. Then again, in the jewelery business X-rays are used to ascertain the value of gems, particularly pearls. Another curious use to which they are put is to obtain information as to the authenticity of paintings by the Old Masters.

It is believed that an X-ray apparatus is manufactured in Canada According to the records, the imports of surgical and dental instruments equipment sundries X-ray apparatus, microscopes and complete parts for all the foregoing, ran to the total of $1,700,000 in 1934, coming mainly from the United Kingdom United States and Germany.

New Form Of Illumination

Synthetic Suns Produce White Light As Sun Shines In

Powder light, a new form of illumination in which synthetic dusts glowed with brightness exceeding electric lights, was made public for the first time at a meeting of the New York Electrical Society.

At the same time a laboratory approach to the sun itself, a mercury vapor light, was shown, its temperature 25,000 degrees, twice the sun's surface heat and described as the hottest ever created by man.

The powder light is produced in tubes about a foot long and the diameter of heavy walking canes. It is a cold glare fluorescence, reduced by invisible ultra-violet light produced electrically within the tube.

Brilliance of coloring never before seen, and efficiency even in white light twice that of ordinary electric lights were claimed for this discovery that a dust coating of the new lights, in colors from green to pure white, were demonstrated by Dr. I. J. Bellaugh, research scientist of the General Electric Company at Nela Park, Cleveland.

There are hundreds of kinds of natural rock dusts which glow faintly that is fluorescence—when invisible short rays fall and strike them.

The new step of science is to create artificially dusts which glow with surpassing brightness, instead of the usual dull glow of nature.

The fluorescent colors of these dusts are brilliant and beautiful, as exotic as those of nature. By mixing several of them together the wizards of the new light have produced white light in the same way the sun makes it.

World Wheat Situation

Documents From All Countries Improved Last Month

During March there was a sharp improvement in the world movement of wheat, clearances from all countries being at the highest level of the crop year. Canada and Australia secured a very high proportion of the total trade in the four weeks, 42 per cent. in the case of Canada and 37 for Australia.

It is apparent that Canada may expect much less competition than usual in selling wheat until the 1936 crops are harvested. Russia will probably offer the first real competition in the United States where an import basis has prevailed in 1934-35 and 1935-36, an export surplus appears probable in 1936-37, although government policy in the matter at its disposal is not yet clear.

Present prospects suggest a surplus of such size that it would probably be sold at domestic end-of-season stocks without embarrassment.

Britain To Conduct New Crusade In Public Safety

The most exhaustive analysis of road accidents ever made in Great Britain will be the basis of a new crusade to increase public safety.

It will be the latest step in a campaign to reduce accidents for which, Leslie Hore Belisha, minister of transport, told the House of Commons, caused more than 3,500,000 casualties in the reign of the late King George.

This figure, he said, is "comparable with the aggregate of all killed and wounded in the forces in the United Kingdom in the Great War."

Hore Belisha, since managed already has met with some success announced the forthcoming analysis would involve study of about 2000 cases, "in occurrences throughout the country Every road accident investigated by the police during the year to be analyzed in a search for the causes and possible remedies

Gave Strange Idea Of World

Greek Philosopher Credited With Drawing The First Map

The credit for drawing the first map goes to a Greek philosopher, Anaximander, who lived between 610 and 546 B.C.

Anaximander's map represented a large circular disk of the earth, with so little of it was then known and, like all men of his time, he had no idea that the earth was a globe.

He thought of it as completely flat an expanse of water and land over which the blue dome of the heavens rested he thought was quite stationary. He was among the earliest philosophers who attempted to conceive the origin of all things.

Man struggled for hundreds of years to find means of relieving himself of work Out of that effort grew machinery. And now man finds himself out of a job. We greatly fear man is a "fathead."

The King Takes A Walk

Edward VIII. Will Not Be Governed By Old Customs

Nobody ever saw a photograph of King George walking in the street, nor of King Edward or Queen Victoria.

The other day King Edward VIII. walked out of Buckingham Palace with a friend and proceeded up the Mall about half a mile to a meeting at Buckingham Gate. A few working men gave a timid cheer and he tipped his derby to them.

Only once, it is reported, did King George venture to walk out of the Palace. About 100 yards up the Mall from the main gate, is the huge and beautiful marble memorial to Queen Victoria. The King had driven past it probably thousands of times, and he said one day he would like to have a close look at it. So he walked out and looked.

Queen Victoria once expressed a desire to ride in a street car. But, of course, she never could. There are few things the common people do that King George has not done, and if there is anything he wants to do, he'll just do it, king or no king.

Birthday Of King Edward

Saskatchewan Government Makes June 23 Statutory School Holiday

The birthday of King Edward VIII. —June 23—from now on will be a statutory school holiday in Saskatchewan.

Provision for making this a holiday was written into the school act recently by way of house amendment to the school bill which was before the house.

Before the king's birthday was listed as an optional holiday. Now it has been changed and becomes a statutory school holiday.

Another change in the act gives the overseer of a village the power to proclaim a public holiday in the same way as that power was held by the mayors of cities and towns, and the reeves of municipalities.

A Really Cold Spot

Visitors to the moon would find it pretty cold up there, Dr. Harry F. Reinmuth Society of Canada reports. Measured by thermometers used in this earth, the society estimates the temperature on the moon dips as low as 243 degrees below zero.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS'S TRIUMPH OVER DEATH

Golden text: Because I live, ye shall live also. John 14:19.

Lesson: Luke 24:1-35.

Devotional reading: Revelation 3: 9-13.

Explanations And Comments

He is Risen, Luke 24:1-12. In the account of the entombment of Christ, Luke tells us that the women who had come with him out of Galilee followed after and beheld the tomb and how his body was laid. They returned and prepared the spices and ointments, and on the Sabbath they rested according to the commandment. On the following day, the first day of the week, they went back to the tomb with their spices and learned that the tomb was empty; Christ had arisen. All the way there they had been worrying about the great stone that blocked the entrance to the tomb. They knew they could not move it, and who would be there to move it for them? But they found the stone rolled away from the opening, and on entering found the tomb empty.

Their task had so long been final. It was regarded as the end of all earthly pilgrimages. They came with the gloom worn out that Easter morning, thinking the tomb was final still—and victorious. They expected nothing but a hushed body needing the loving ministration again, the quiet undoing of oriental heat. The tomb, they thought, had ended their brief and luminous ministry of their Master. The only thing they could do was to let its stone be rolled away for an hour and then seal it again. And, lo, the tomb was empty! The fact leaped at them and stunned them. They had no predisposing expectation of a resurrection. But then and there began the Christian joy over "the conquered tomb" (Dana Glenn Hinton):

"Why seek ye the living among the dead?" were the words the angels, appearing, perplexed women heard They were seeking for them in the wrong place "He is not here" He is not to be found among the dead. for "he is risen", and will be found among the living.

"Remember" how he spake unto you when he was yet in Galilee, saying that the Son of man must be delivered up into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again" A reference to the conversation in Galilee recorded in Caesrea Philippi, chapter nine.

The women—Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and the other women, returned from the tomb, and told all these things to the eleven, and to all the rest.

YOUR GARDEN

Early Spring is generally considered the most favourable season for planting nursery stock. Under the latter heading comes a wide variety of plants, including ornamental trees, perennial flower plants, vines, raspberry canes, asparagus, and strawberry plants and a host of other permanent things. In purchasing such material, authority or rule placates the importance of securing fresh stock from a reliable Canadian source. Roots and stems should be pliable and moist and if there is any upper growth as in the case of shrubs and trees, there should be plenty of fine green buds. On receipt the plants should be immediately set outside in their permanent quarters, if this is possible, but otherwise buried lightly in a trench with the soil firmed about the roots, or if the ground is frozen the roots should be stored in a cool, moist place so that there is no chance of its drying out.

Most people realize that all vegetables deteriorate in storage. The early potatoes are of course lighter than those coming out of frosty cellars this month. The former taste better because they are not ripe. To get this quality in all vegetables experienced gardeners spread their seeding season over a period of weeks. They realize that vegetables deteriorate in the garden just as they do when being stored, so they always have a few feet of lettuce and a row or two of peas, and Jackpot Mel practically everything else coming on in succession. The former taste maturing at one time. There is nothing to equal fresh peas, tender lettuce, which are taken right out of the garden and put in the pot, but by the same token a row of beans or vines for three or four days after they have been ripened, is tough as the one packet, at intervals of from ten days to two weeks and is still further extend the season by using early, medium and late varieties.

Reed cauli-gues will prove mines of information for the average gardener. This publication is thoroughly reliable and is illustrated with actual photographs of the crops. It sets out for the large firms contain much more than is mere names of the many flowers and vegetables available in Canada They specify important points such as time of planting, depth of planting, lack of resistance to frost height colour, season of blooming whether scented and also the suitability of the plant for cutting purposes All of these points should be taken into consideration in planning a real garden authorities state, as only with such knowledge can a comprehensive and practical scheme be worked out. Annuals must not be hidden by tall things and there should be as much room in the garden as there is from early June on The most satisfactory planting also will give a good deal of material for bouquets and they should be more than merely dotted here and there. A good flower garden is similar to a good library. It will reflect the individual preferences of the owner, and there will be something to fit every one.

Not What He Thought

The new prisoner had been in his cell when he began to realize that he was a disappointed man.

"I say," he called, and on the fourth day, "when does the fun begin?"

"Fun!" echoed the warder "What fun? You don't expect fun in 'ere"

Th and snapped.

Lumme he exclaimed, then what did the judge mean when 'e said I was to come in 'ere for the benefit of my health?"

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

His story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boose County citizens, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kitty stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. Then angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread". Buzz shouts at Fleming in an unprintable fit of anger but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is unhurt. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Torney to learn whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for Link and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that wrecks the house burns it down. Fleming plans and renders Link unconscious He is rescued from the blaze by an employee

Helen and Link ride to Rawhide for supplies and to obtain funds to carry out the dam project. They meet Roper, who greets Helen and offers to shop with her. Link goes to see the Sheriff, who tells him Buzz Hamilton has been paroled, and Wyatt arrives on the Increasing Star, but that he thinks Link has made a mistake in getting Buzz released.

Buzz Hamilton arrives back in Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the store, and hands over a payment of wages for work on the dam. Roper Kilgo and Jackpot Mel meet him and he goes into the saloon with them. By the time his sister and Link come from the bank, Buzz has had several drinks. Roper has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposed to Buzz making it appear that Link was trying to cheat him. Buzz, inflamed with liquor and anger, tells Link that everything he has is thrown to the floor Then Helen appears and tells Fleming she has been robbed of the $600 they had obtained from the bank.

(Now Go on With The Story)

"Tah can't fool me, Link Fleming!" The words spilled in a torrent from his quivering lips "I got the truth about yuh an' I got it right. And you think because you're trying to run town enough to put me wise?"

"Why, Buzz!" the girl pleaded. "What do you mean?"

He turned on her almost savagely "You ought to see through it but yuh don't. You've got control of our spread; I haven't my rights till I'm paroled That's what Kilgo wanted to get me out for. You'd see through it easy enough if you weren't so blind in love he's got yuh buffaloed! Every time he holds your hand—"

That's enough, Hamilton!"

Shamed so that her countenance fairly glowed with blushes, Helen looked away uncertain how to deal with her drink-roused brother particularly as sentiments obviously not rational with him. "Please, let's not quarrel the first hour we're together again! After I've prayed for you, and hoped and—"

"That's all right," he growled. "But I can't see how yuh ever fell for Fleming's Bago about that dam. There isn't a rancher in the county has faith in it. Bosh! Torney and I wasn't any good, didn't he" You're shore to break our spread trying to irrigate a hemp o' sand!"

He pressed ahead, toward the foothills of the Captain Range a few miles away, topped by jagged peaks rising into snow sky. "That's wasteland'll never be anything, no matter how much money yuh pour in it. That's declared emphatically "Waterin' twenty cent ground"

Link stared where he indicated with a sweep of the pelombed arm, to pause beyond low-lying buildings of the Triple H Ranch, on whose property they now rode. He was puzzled by his wife Hamilton's confidence, and bitterly reproached himself for having knocked the bottle out. Yet he knew sight of Buzz drinking was like a knife turned in Helen's flesh; he had been forced to it by the bitter misery in her soft eyes

Hold on oldtimer" he said in a conciliatory tone I don't think it'll be so bad after all. Silver Creek's only thirty-two feet across where we're damming it. There are rock sides for a mile back that'll hold an awful lot of water Of course, we dug a cut-off while the dam's being laid, and we're digging irrigation ditches through that wasteland.

"We've got a good engineer in charge," he went on, watching hopefully for even a modicum of interest "His name's McLendon, and he's built a lot of dams. It's like this," he continued. "I'm standing seventeen-twenty-sixths of the cost, on account of having seventeen hundred acres to Helen's—yore—nine hundred

"I'll admit, we're hard pressed for money. Have had to raise first mortgages on our spreads, and we gave a note for that eight hundred that was just stolen. But what if folks do call it Fleming's Folly? Inside of a couple of days they'll change their tune. Because the Bill—Bill Hamilton will be in Rawhide mighty quick now. Nothing can stop us—we're going to increase the value of the Triple H and Star Loop at least three hundred per cent. If you ask me, a thousand per cent!"

Finding, he was conscious of Helen's eyes upon him, wide and shining with enthusiasm. Link smiled as he, too, glanced at Buzz. His upper lip was curling.

"Yeah?"

It carried plainer than words the doubt and intractability of the man. It was as if he had called: "I'll bet—like as if he had sneered: "I'll never work, and even if it does, I won't believe it!"

The partners exchanged discouraged looks. Link realized Hamilton's coming was not a success. If anything, he was an added obstacle, a thorn in their flesh, for where already there were so many . . .

CHAPTER XI.

Drawing rein in the Triple H yard, the riders saw two men in nondescript garb emerge from the cook shack house stoop, looking as if they had waited there some time. The pair stood in the afternoon sun and ambled forward while Link and Helen exchanged questioning glances. Roper Kilgo and Jackpot Mel meet him and he goes into the saloon with them. By the time his sister and Link come from the bank, Buzz has had several drinks. Roper has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposed to Buzz making it appear that Link was trying to cheat him. ABRUPT END TO FUNERAL

Viewing the remains at a negro funeral in Georgia was a spectacular event. Positive power of drawing his corpse was discovered in the others. The deceased, who had lapped a kilometer in a minute, was to be buried at 4 p.m. Friday each week on race track. At 4:15 p.m. a fourth was not in sight, and the undertaker, acting on instructions left in a will, had the body buried in a grave without a horse.

Here and There

Barnwell, Alta., sets this year's record for the first official report on work on the land, according to a message received March 19 by the Agricultural Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Winnipeg. The earliest last year was from Taber, Alta., which has held the record for five years, on March 21

Alfred E. McKay, recently elected president of the Southern Alberta Pioneers' and Old-Timers' Association, is one of the two surviving members of the survey party which started the route of the Canadian Pacific Railway across prairies and mountains in 1883-84.

Interviewed at Victoria recently, A. M. Neal, vice-president of western lines, Canadian Pacific Railway, stated that he anticipated one of the biggest tourist years in recent Canadian history. There had been, he said, a substantial improvement in passenger travel business last year which is expected to reach new high this year

Changes in hotel management in western Canada are announced by E. P. Mathews, general manager of eastern Canadian Pacific hotels system as follows:—T. F. Chester, manager Hotel Vancouver, appointed assistant general manager of the company's hotels in western Canada, succeeding A. E. Robertson, resigned; Colin F. Pratt, manager Palliser Hotel, Calgary, becomes manager Hotel Vancouver with W. W. Wright succeeding Mr Pratt as manager of the Palliser.

Vancouver Island, known as the historical cradle of the Pacific Northwest, is to be featured in the province's special exhibit at the Princess Norah, of the Canadian Pacific R.M.S. service, which will make a complete circuit of the Island, leaving Vancouver at 7 p.m. April 15 and every day trip in the paths of the early explorers.

During the winter season just closed, there was witnessed the greatest step forward in skiing travel ever recorded. Over 51,000 more than a fifth greater than last year, made journeys to the week-end from Montreal to ski centres in the Laurentians, since the mountain paradise in the north of Montreal is favorably reached by Canadian Pacific trains from every point in the Eastern United States to enjoy the sport.

Nine weeks have been named and arranged for Vancouver's Golden Jubilee celebrations program this summer but the festivities will cover the whole season and are expected to attract visitors from all over the world during the week before the day of the opening of the arrival of the first Canadian Pacific train half a century ago.

Thirteen short European cruises from British ports will be made between May and October by the Canadian Pacific liners Empress of Britain and Empress of France. The Baltic and the Mediterranean will be covered extensively in these cruises.

Dr. A. H. Compton, physics research expert, recently returned from a trip to Honolulu on the S. S. Aorangi, after studying secondary rays in the cosmic ray in the southern hemisphere. A special instrument housed on the liner's after-bridge contained the delicate apparatus for the purpose of recording latest data on the subject, but ever present was the rolling of the ship's antipodean trip.

Warm Weather Follows Advent of Winged Creature

Warm weather followed the advent of a big yellow butterfly, which was brought into the Standard office by J W Phillips on Monday. Mouse fouled the pretty "critter" in his window on Sunday, he noted that it was a trespass, fed it and brought the "insect" down town on Monday. After the butterfly had been duly admired, it was replaced in the box and taken home. Although the weather has made a decided change for the better it will be some time before the butterfly will find flowers to flutter to and fro between.

A "DOGGONE" GOOD TURN

A recent good turn to a dog involving quick action and some courage was that of Scout Joyce of Hunstanton England, on Guy Fawkes day last. On his rounds as an errand boy, Joyce came upon a dog with lighted fireworks tied to his tail. He called the dog and and threw the fireworks away just before the explosion.

LOOK FOR INCREASE IN TOURIST TRAVEL

WINNIPEG, Man., April 8 "If we are to use there are very definite signs that tourist travel this year will be decidedly better than in 1935 and there is every indication that Western Canada will benefit very largely in the tourist movement," stated Robert Freeman, passenger traffic manager for the Canadian National Railways, western region on his return from the Pacific Coast.

"The Vancouver Jubilee celebration this summer is attracting considerable attention and no doubt a great many from the prairies will take advantage of this celebration to visit the Coast. The annual shrine convention which will be held in Seattle this year will be particularly well attended from all Provinces. The Alaska sailings at Seattle are heavily booked as this unique trip into the north, along the inside Pas sage, becomes more popular each year.

An innovation this year will be the inclusion of the latest type of air conditioning on some of the equipment on the transcontinental trains. This will fill a long felt want to all kinds of weather. Although our through trains make the journey from Montreal to Vancouver in three and a half days, it is planned to still further curtail the running time of our crack trains from coast to coast when the summer service is inaugurated," stated Mr. Freeman.

CHATSWORTH CHATTER

The weather is far from being springlike despite the fact that several crows and gophers have been seen within the last two weeks.

The children of the district are looking forward to the Easter party on Thursday April 9 at the school. Miss Chrisp then leaves for holidays at her home south of town.

Several who went from this district to the social evening at Crews on April 3rd, report it the best time had yet and are looking forward to the next.

Mr. A. C. Branham is convalescing at the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. Telford.

Finalmost thing heard this week—Russell Branham using a bob sleigh as a "load" for his motorcycle.

WILDMERE WORKS

April 8th—Ice bridge save and winter still with us. Most people are about down to the last straw of feed too, the winter of '35-36 won't be forgotten very soon.

Earl Graham, Baptist Evangelist, held a service in Wildmere school on Sunday last, with a very nice crowd attending. Earl is at present visiting his sister and brother.

Gordon Mathews, who has worked this winter for Mr. Cox, spent Sunday March 29 at the south home in Wildmere.

Nellie Riley and L. Graham were visitors at the writer's home on Wednesday evening.

A jolly party was held at the Scott flats, home on Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Erle Madill Those present were: Geo. and Fred Hallee, Tommy O'Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gow, Mrs. Riley, Doris and Ned Ile and L. Graham. After a dainty supper card games were enjoyed. Mr George Haines favored the gathering with several recitations.

George Haines has been an Edmonton visitor these past few days. He returned home on Wednesday April 1.

Mrs. George Crathers is in town visiting her daughter, Mrs. Marfleet She will remain in town until her other daughter Marjorie finishes her course at the College on April 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Erle Madill spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Gow of Hasewood

Mr. A. Smith of Wildmere received a son pig which had a nice litter of little ones and then absolutely refused to have anything to do with them. Norman and Albert are trying to raise them by hand. Surely tough though when the mother is so mean.

Quite a number of Wildmere-ites took in the auction sale of the late Geo. Cox, Battleview, on Friday, 3rd A good crowd attended and things sold really well, especially the horses Mrs. Larsen, the late owner's housekeeper was the sole bequine. She has rented the farm but will continue to live in the house. Mr Cox's sister, Mrs Bailey, stayed with Mrs. Larsen until after the sale when she returned to her home in Lacombe.

The writer of Winks will soon have forgotten what the town of Vermilion looks like, as she has not been to it since 12th of December, 1935

Bob Martin, A. Rendell and Dave Cox spent Friday evening at the home of L. Graham

Wildmere Community Club will be held a meeting at the school on Saturday evening April 11th.

Funniest thing seen was—"Mac Gregor", a dog belonging to O. Malt ew's, getting the end of his nose scalded with coffee on Friday at the sale and then getting his face smeared with vaseline by Mrs. Wm Seale of Battleview. We all know now what to do for a burnt nose eh, folks!

Norman Smith visited his sister, Mrs Morand on Thursday last.

Mr and Mrs Wallington spent Friday evening at the Smith home

Wildmere Club dance and Pie social was a decided success on Friday. The pies sold real well, considering the times, and the club thanks the different districts who helped make the dance a success. J. Bathe managed the door, Jimmie being absent Nichols and Holman supplied the music.

Mrs. Geo. Dibbon of Beaswood, and Mrs. Holt of Wildmere are the first two of whom we have heard who have been setting. Writer of Winks is away behind this year Trying to raise baby pigs by hand is her hobby just now. How about "rockets" for them in the fall Mr. Webb and Mr Rose"

We were pleased to hear that Bill Roberts who was reported dead at first, is slowly recovering after a very severe accident in a grain elevator at the coast where he had his arm badly crushed. Rumors will our somehow best of luck Bill.

CANADIAN TURKEY HARD TO BEAT

In the British Fish Trades Gazette, published in London, England, one of the leading publications dealing with the produce trade, there has appeared recently several commendatory articles on Canadian agricultural products, principally with reference to Canadian poultry. In its issue of 7th of March, 1936, one of its writers states

"The class of turkeys which are arriving from abroad—that is, the fresh killed varieties—are very good Apart from these we shall no doubt have some Canadian birds on show, and as you know, a good Canadian turkey wants a lot of beating if it is the right quality and paste.

OTTAWA JOTTINGS

The Ottawa local Social Credit study group held another social evening on Friday April 3, which proved a treat for all present. The debate was one of a high standard, the subject being "Married versus Single Life". Mrs. Arthur Good and Mrs. Earl Plaster spoke for the affirmative, whilst Geo Newman and Frank Bird held up the defense of the bachelor's state. It did not take the judges long to decide that the affirmative had the strongest argument and handed them the "bouquet". If all the single folk that were present take the advice of their own they will be the winners, our sympathy won't be able to raise much comfy by taxing bachelors. We have never heard that both sexuities speak a new language for wives, and in Long Year too. The musical program which followed the debate was of a high standard and was right in style as it was an "amateur night". There were instrumental numbers, songs and amateur boxing by school boys. The first prize was awarded to Teddy Reid and the second was won by four children from the Chatsworth district. They gave a dialogue. The next social evening will be held on April 15.

It is gratifying to hear that Peter Herbert and Joseph Morley were successful in obtaining their naturalization papers in the district court on March 31. Everyone will agree that they are the types of citizen that Can ada will be proud of

Quite a number in this district are looking forward to a demonstration of one of Milne's high tension supply units. This unit takes the place of the 6 batteries for operating a radio set, and they last for 20 years or more There are over 100,000 in use in England. A more detailed report will probably be made in next week's issue regarding this battery.

POSITION OF 1936 EQUALIZATION PAYMENT.

The act providing for the equalization of the 1930 Pool payments basis 60c NO. 1 in store at Terminals has been given three readings in the Federal Parliament at the time of writing. It is anticipated that it will complete its journey through the Senate and become law within a comparatively short time. The present legislation contemplates a payment of $6,875,000 of which approximately $2,732,220 will be paid to Alberta farmers who come under the equalization.

The present understanding is that the money will be paid over to the Wheat Board who in turn will pay it over to the Wheat Pools of each province who will distribute the amounts to the growers who are entitled there to under certain regulations to be set up by the Wheat Board. The payment includes adjustment on spreads on wheat delivered.

The Wheat Pools have the various accounts in shape to proceed immediately with the issuing of cheques for the payment upon receipt of the money. Of course it should be understood that the issuing of nearly 25,000 cheques takes considerable time.

Growers are requested not to write into Pool Head office unless absolutely necessary as a large volume of mail will interfere seriously with the issuing of the cheques.

There is small hope for a world peace plan to succeed when practically all the age of thirteen years both their preparatory military training This is the practice followed in Germany.

TAXATION

Ratepayers who received tax notices in no doubt also received a shock, as municipal taxes increased very decidedly this year. However prospects for reduced taxes in 1937 should be bright, as the town has several thousands of dollars due from steam heat consumers which will be collected by June. Given good tax collections coupled with close attention through out the year to utility accounts the town's finances should be in a sound position by the time the 1937 assessments are made up

REGRETTABLE ACTION

The action of the Attorney General's department in cancelling the commissions of the two Vermilion police magistrates is generally regretted locally Mr P. H. Pilkie had held office for nearly 20 years, had given considerable attention both with his work and was justly entitled to retain his commission. A. E. Kaiser, police magistrate for the past six years has handled an equally large number of cases in that time; the appeals that have been made can be counted on the fingers of one hand, which bears out the fact that he has been satisfactory. He took his work seriously, took pride in it and spent considerable time studying Law Codes parallel cases etc. in order to better both himself for the work

Regardless of the personnel the police of Dominion men who carry out such duties necessarily [illegible] and to make way for others is wrong and regrettable practice.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the South-East

The meeting held at the home of Chas Friedland on the 23rd to discuss the organization of a Co-operative body under the Cooperative Associations Act of Alberta displayed results in the form of the election of a board of trustees to accept monies for shares in the new enterprise. These are Mrs Hilda Potter, Messrs. A. Friedland, W. J. Ingle Sr., S. Robinson, and Wm. Brown. We hope that the commercial development of the body is to the best interests of the beneficiaries of it and its well wishers—and we appear to note very much the encouragement and co-operation offered by the key men. Co-op. offers us a chance to help that such a movement can be developed step towards the prosperity of the Neighborhood while in that can be reflected in many directions. We further hope that the enterprise in its growth may fit in use for the poverty unfinished and into nature of vertising that such business needs and which we cannot handle in this column.

The next meeting of the group will be held at the home of Bob Mclean on April 20th. The question of the next meeting will be discussed among members of the next card party.

The Ellis pup and dance entertained a big crowd again this one special comments being made on it, especially and stage management. Characters in the play were a widow played by Miss Alice Gaston, her six daughters, taken by Miss Betty Holden and Mrs. Len Vagner. The part of the fiancees to the five daughters was unanimously acted by Dougie Gallaway while the husband of the one and, who found plenty of hot water to go into, was ably taken by Len Yarwood. The trouble—of those tough gentlemen were added to by the activities of a Turk, fiercely portrayed by Art Gaston, in search of his missing daughter which Turkish miss was taken by time Turbette who ran afoul of the law, represented by Mr. Bud Funnell, when she told foreigner time of the finest portrayals of the year was Miss Fannie Rankin as the maid. Between acts music was provided by Wes. Funnell. From all accounts, Union maintained its usual high standard of entertainment, and we congratulate them on their enterprise and ambition

A BOYS' BACK TO THE LAND MOVEMENT?

Is there a boys' back to the land movement developing in Canada? Well over 500 Fraternity leaders, boys subjects associated with farming were passed last year by Boy Scouts in the ranks. They included the late Rowper 47; Dalrymple, Or. Farmer, 41; Fix ester, 44; Gardener 126; Fruit grower 7; Boatman, 27. Covering addition of knowledge also useful on the farm were Blacksmith 1; P tioner in-charge 129; Electrician 162; Carpenter, 71; Mason, 56.

SAYS MINING INDUSTRY MUST CURB THE CROOKS

"The public must take a large share in the initial development of mines this is of necessity a speculative undertaking and therefore the public integrity must see to it that the risk of the investor is confined as far as possible to the mining risk only," said Hon. T. A. Crerar, Federal Minister of Mines, in his latest radio talk. That is quite great enough without the addition of risks arising from any unscrupulous promoter.

"Those who have fraudulent funds to warrant the taking of any risk would be well advised not to make any investment whatsoever in new mining ventures, and those who take their own risk in their capital should use discrimination. They should distinguish very carefully, for instance, between the honest effort to make a profit by converting a prospect into a producing mine and that fraudulent effort, masked under the name of mining, in which a hole in the ground is used as a mouse to secure funds for the pocket of the promoter instead of for the development of the prospect. Unfortunately of that type does a great deal too much in the mining industry. It is a serious handicap to the legitimate mining of mining capital."

The Standard could at column with other many interesting items—don't overlook reading it.

PREPARATION FOR SEED SUPPLY

Another spring time has come or is on the way, and another sowing season when farmers naturally become concerned.

The first thought of a farmer should perhaps be given to an estimate of the quantity of seed likely to be required for the area to be seeded. In this connection, sufficient seed should be provided so that the rate of seeding or grasses and clovers especially, be generous. The next consideration should be given to the quality of the seed to be used. This consists of the selection of suitable varieties and seed of a high and known grade whether purchased or home-grown, thoroughly cleaned to remove weed seeds, inert material and light bodied or an level seed or kernels. Good seed should not only give a high percentage of germination, but should also possess the necessary reserve of plant food to sustain the seedlings against adverse conditions by being plump and well filled.

Experimentations and plant breeders are constantly developing the material adaptation or natives to sections of the country rather than to the country as a whole. Under the influence of variety, these traits or some sort of attention than may be generally supposed their value. Each province should be determined by date of maturity, yield and smallest value. Efficient cleaning contributes in a large measure towards the production of seed. Such must be accomplished by using a proper is equipped and operated hand cleaning of seed in small quantities. A careful seed cleaning point should be employed by. Control by government subvention is made in many instances such cleaning plants have been established at different points.

The best treatment for disease should receive serious consideration, particularly with regard to smut infections. Heavy loss is sustained each year through seed-borne diseases which could be largely obviated by proper treatment of the seed before sowing. Information concerning the several treatments may be obtained by application to an Agricultural Representative, an Agricultural College or to any Dominion Experimental Farm or Station

"FISHERMAN'S HEAVEN" IN CANADIAN ROCKIES

Rex Beach Describes Raw Fishing Grounds at Amethyst Lake in Jasper Park

"There must be millions of trout in Amethyst Lake in Jasper National Park in the Canadian Rockies, or whatever part of the lake we explored produced an ample number. We returned many more than we kept and the only problem we had was to induce the biggest fish to strike." Thus Rex Beach noted in the near-future sums up his fishing experiences at Amethyst Lake during last season—the opening season for fishing in those hitherto barren waters. The story of his trip is told by Beach in the April issue of cosmopolitan Magazine

Following the year-round planting of Maligne Lake with speckled trout, rainbow trout were introduced into Amethyst and other lakes in the Tonquin Valley, a ten of Jasper National Park. These lakes were opened for sport fishing in 1935, and Rex Beach was one of the first anglers in its restlessness with the sporty game that is to settle he becomes the angler called to raise the trout so he had to resort to smaller patterns of dry flies. Then the action commenced and he and F. L. Paul, Trail of Empress, pilot of the Canadian National Rail as a second speedical carried all of parts to Amethyst Lake

"Canada is doing a fine work in stocking these high barren lakes of the Rockies," states the noted author later than "The first experiment was made at Maligne Lake, where Pennsylvania brook trout were introduced. They grew to prodigious size and raised big families. Fishermen hurried up there. Trails were improved, a fish hut was built and Maligne Lake became world-famous for the splendor both of its fish and its scenic setting. Now trails and a lodge are now reported for Amethyst Lake

"This section of the Rockies is already a fishermen's heaven and the quality of the sport is steadily improving."

Last his experience of "dry flies only" should encourage less experienced fishermen, Beach counsels "No doubt a beginner would have fully as much fun as we had and perhaps catch more fish for those trout will gobble worms or lures or strike greedily at a trolling bait, but once a person acquires interest with the technique of fly fishing he can never again enjoy the reader form of angling

Everything raised from Jasper National Park to the Pacific Coast, Beach states. "From Jasper Park west on the Canadian National are many lakes and streams that equal in with fish waiting to go a few feet regards with all comers. Of course, one doesn't have to go that far to get good fishing. It is to be had almost anywhere if one takes pains to look for it. Nevertheless those Canadians are farsighted. They have pursued a much sounder conservation policy than we have and they are building wisely for the generations of fishermen (and women) to come."

Co-operation of Parents Urged by Medical Health Officer

To the Editor of The Standard.
Vermilion Alta.

Dear Sir:—

As the rural board of Health has under consideration inoculation of the children against Diphtheria, with the assistance of the School Board, it would be timely to give a short account of the treatment with its results.

Diphtheria is produced by toxic bacilli or germs which attack the mucous membrane of the nose, throat or windpipe. These germs are transmitted through the discharges from the nose and throat of Diphtheria patients. They are also spread by carriers — i.e., healthy throats may pick up the virulent germs, not be affected and still pass them on to others. In a single examining of 1000 throats of healthy school children in New York city some years ago, three or 4% proved to be carriers. The germs are also indirectly transmitted. They have been found on milk bottles or clothing of a Diphtheria patient, on drinking cups, pencils, candy, money, purses, etc. A case is recorded of a girl who received a doll's dress infected wound on his finger. Twenty-two families taking milk from the same dairy had the disease.

Diphtheria falls into two groups, according whether it commences in the throat — pharyngeal — or in the windpipe laryngeal. The incubation period i.e. the time between germs of the toxic bacilli and the first symptoms is from one to five days. In the light throat cases there is a gradual onset, headache, feeling sick, slight fever, tiredness in the throat, pallor and the child may have a glandular swelling in the neck. In the membrane may show on either tonsil or on the back of the throat it looked thin. The local signs usually begin by day till on the third or fourth day the doctor is sent for. Severe types, of course, show extreme illness in 24 hours. In the laryngeal type the onset is always gradual with a croupy cough. There is nothing to be seen on looking into the throat. Late in the the doctor does not see these till the fifth or sixth day when they are hospital cases.

Before the discovery of anti-toxin in 1893, some of you may be able to recall what a scourge diphtheria was and how whole families or children were wiped out. Even now there are too many deaths. From 1922 to 1932 in Alberta there were 1693 cases reported with 823, or 13 per cent. of deaths 65 per cent of deaths were between the ages of 6 months and 6 years. 20 per cent. deaths were between the ages of 6 months and 15 years. Those that recover may be crippled for life or for long periods after. The toxins or poisons develop at in the system affect the heart muscle and have damaged hearts. There may be various motor paralyses—the limbs, palate, throat and eye muscles are paralyzed for long periods. Abscesses of the nose and throat and many cases of mastoid diseases are the after effects of Diphtheria

Anti-toxin was a wonderful discovery and gave us a weapon to combat the disease. The trouble is that many cases are seen too late for its effective use. We have now advanced a step further and can establish immunity for years against the dread disease. In 1921, Ramon, of the Pasteur Institute, France, developed toxoid which is now used the world over. Three injections of this are given in the arm, three weeks apart, in a child from 6 months to 12 years there is no reaction of any kind. In the older cases, say from 12 years up, to make quite sure, a skin test is given beforehand and if any reaction shows whatever, he or she is treated differently. In Edmonton over 15,000 children have been done without any preliminary test without any trouble. Injections of toxoid stimulate the slow production of anti-toxin in the blood. It takes from two months to 22 months after the last injection before immunity is established. Ninety-seven per cent. of all individuals show immunity in six months

In Lethbridge inoculation on a large scale was done in 1924 and 1925. There was an average of 70 cases of Diphtheria a year. In 1926 only 9 cases developed. In Calgary, from 1920 to 1921 inclusive, there were 828 cases of Diphtheria with 71 deaths or a yearly average of 177 cases with 14 deaths. A toxoid campaign was started in 1915. In 1926 there were 11 cases with 7 deaths and in 1927 there were 22 cases with 2 deaths. Edmonton ran close similar figures; only their inoculations on a large scale were only started in 1930. Throughout the United States the number of Diphtheria deaths yearly dropped from 13,000 to 3,000 from 1922 to 1924, in those cities and states where inoculation of pre-school age children is the rule and not the exception the danger from Diphtheria is steadily decreasing. In fact there are many large communities where no deaths from Diphtheria have occurred over a number of years.

In Vermilion we hope to get a campaign for inoculating all children from six months up, underway shortly. A definite date will be announced and we hope to get one hundred per cent. response from the parents of this District.

Yours truly.
JNO. J. ENGLE.
Medical Health Officer.

MARDI GRAS

For one glorious evening you may leave Vermilion and enter, through the enchanted gates of the palace of the Mardi Gras, into the gorgeous past. For five or six bright hours you may revel in the gaiety that is of a new city to you . . . New Orleans. It will be a transformation. In the palace where the Carnival is to be held you can flip cue and worry from your finger-tips and dip deep down into the cup of Old Prance, New France, Vermilion . . . a New Orleans Mardi Gras.

Today in some cities of the United States is still held the annual Mardi Gras. New Orleans, Louisiana sets the pattern with a gala affair usually lasting from three days to a week. The Mardi Gras is always conducted on the day of Shrove Tuesday, the day before Ash Wednesday and here again New Orleans is foremost, for that city usually adheres to the old historic custom —other cities choose Mardi Gras day at random.

A king and queen are chosen, costumes are in great evidence and dance hall, streets and parks are decorated in a riot of color and festivity. There are side shows and foreign cafes with drinking concessions and eating places, games and dancing and most of all laughter, fun and a gay abandon of everyday personalities. There are many gallant gentlemen with silks and satins, tiaras and shining shoe buckles; there are lovely ladies in their powdered curls, intriguing "beauty marks" bewitching eyes and flirting fans; to day there can be a make-believe of the same so entered into that no one will know but what you are not the Marquis of Evermonde or Princess Lamole at the Mardi Gras ball.

Ah, ha!" When will it be you say? Where? Then, mon cher, if you wish to climb the rainbow bridge to a night in a Mardi Gras palace you must attend! For the future knows all and it is to be suggested that this be just a taste of future announcements, and they an appointer for the real fun at the forthcoming Mardi Gras.

To Our Subscribers

Through no fault of their own, quite a large number of our old friends who have been consistent readers of their home paper, The Standard, for many years past have gradually fallen behind in their subscriptions.

We have stood the brunt alone with them, of the unfavorable conditions which have prevailed, always optimistic that, "seat year" everything would be O.K. That has always been the spirit that has sustained western peoples since the first settlement on our vast prairie stretches — and may it ever remain. It is a faith and hope worth maintaining, for in spite of all, it means life.

For our part, faith in the integrity of ... aders whose arrears run into three and four years, is as strong today as it was when they were enabled to drop in regularly year after year and renew their subscription.

It is in this frame of mind that we are asking that from now on, a special effort be made to place the paper in good standing and a wee bit in advance. Financially, the matter is a most urgent one to us.

May we hear from you all!

Ye Olde Editor.

THREE-ACT PLAY STAGED AT UNION

"Safety First" Delights Large Audience

On Friday, March 27, the young people of the district staged their annual concert, it being a 3- act play, "Safety First".

Despite the difficulties encountered while practicing, due to the severe weather, blocked roads etc., the actors made the play a success, judging by the general opinion of the crowd.

Jack Montgomery, (Mr. Len Yarwood) caused many a laugh, as he played the role of the nervous young husband of Mabel Montgomery, (Miss Len Yarwood) who finds it necessary to elope with her husband in order to escape her mother's watchful eye.

Jerry Arnold, (Mr. Private Galloway Jack's chum turned out to be an unsuccessful "flier". He decides that his motto "Safety First" does not always work. Mr. McNutt, (Mr. Dud Funnell) is kept very busy trying to carry out the orders of the bad scarecrow." Mrs. Barlington Bloomer (Miss Alice Gaston). If Jack and Jerry could her grounds they are to be shot on the spot. Elmer Crabtree, (Mr. Robert Galloway) the awfully attractive young man, finds himself confronted by the most violent opposition, when he plans to marry Zuletha, (Miss Unclet) the tender Turkish maiden over whom the fierce Ibrahim, Abou Ben Mocha, (Mr. Art Gaston) the terrible Turk from Turkey caused many a shudder to be flourished his wicked looking knife and demanded "blood, blood, it is blood that I want!" Mary Ann O'Flaherty (Miss Eunice Rankin) the Irish rouk and also McGuire's "fiancey" had a hard time trying to sympathize with everyone and protect us to from the Terrible Turk. Miss Virginia Bridger, (Miss Betty Holden) makes a stellar error when she mistakes McNutt for Jerry Arnold (her fiancee.) But after Jerry makes and misunderstandings were cleared away and Mama had withdrawn all opposition the play ended with the two happy couples seated to each other at last. In closing, Jack left this advice for us young people of the audience

"Stay at home
Or if from friends delight
You have to roam,
Be safe and tell the truth.

MUST TRY TO PAY S. C. DIVIDEND, SAYS CREDIT-ER

Honest Government Not Enough, M.L.A. Says at Lethbridge

LETHBRIDGE, April 6 — Jas Hanson, Social Credit M.L.A for Taber speaking Sunday at a social Credit convention in Taber held a provincial convention hall. It is not enough for the present government just give Alberta good, honest government. They must tackle social Credit that is what you voted for and it is up to this government to make an honest effort to pay dividends. I am making just no promises, but it is can't be done it's up to know it."

He also declared "I firmly believe the U.F.A. administration was an honest one—at least we have discovered nothing to make us think otherwise.

On debate he said "We have refused to pay the default would have led to more serious trouble later" His remark was applauded

The Human Factor In Automobile Accidents

Commencing from about the time that appears in print the graph recording deaths and injuries from automobile accidents will take an upward trend and for the next few months remain at a high altitude if history repeats itself, and there is no reason to believe it will not.

For figures of the past few years show no tendency towards deminution in the toll of deaths and injuries taken by gasoline propelled vehicles in Canada. Figures recently released show that in the first nine months of 1935 the automobile was responsible for the deaths of 778 persons in the Dominion which means, if the same rate was maintained for the remainder of the year, an average of three a day for the twelve months.

Undoubtedly the increase in the summer months in the prairie provinces is greater than its mathematical ratio to the Dominion for the whole year, when it is borne in mind that a larger percentage of cars is in roling storage the greater part of the winter months in the west than in Eastern Canada.

Whether or not campaigns which have been conducted during the past winter over American radio chains and by distribution of literature through the mails and campaigns for safer driving which are planned by governmental and other agencies both in the United States and Canada for the coming summer months will be effective in reducing this terrible toll will not be known until the fall is over.

It is at least a consolation to know that the general public in Canada and the United States has become thoroughly aroused to the danger of the automobile. This is evidenced by the fact that the pamphlet "And Sudden Death --" has reached an estimated 25 000 000 readers, either directly or its re-printed form in the newspapers. The message conveyed by this publication would seem to have reached such a large number of people had there not been a demand for it

But in speculating on the possible mitigating effect of such wide publicity on the future accident toll it must be borne in mind that results will only be measured by the extent to which each individual driver takes the lessons to heart as his or her own individual responsibility. If he or she adopts the view that the warning is not meant for him but for "the other fellow", results will be negative, for many who might generally be regarded as safe drivers suffer lapses at times and even take chances occasionally.

Analysis of figures and available data on automobile accidents demonstrate beyond peradventure that the great majority of such accidents are attributable to human frailty and human foibles rather than, for instance, defective equipment, despite the stress which is laid on the importance of cars being maintained in perfect mechanical condition by automotive supply firms sponsoring some of the "safety first" radio campaigns of the past winter

This does not mean, of course that defective equipment is not responsible for accidents but but analysis of data shows that the number of accidents attributable to such causes is insignificant in comparison with the enormous percentage due to the actions of the man or woman while at the wheel

Attention to this phase of the problem of safer driving is drawn by Merrill Denison in the first of a series of articles appearing in the March issue of the Canadian Home Journal. He shows that out of 10,913 cars involved in auto accidents in the first nine months of 1935, no less than 10,396 were classified as in "apparent good condition", that is, steering mechanisms were all right, brakes were in good condition and lights and tires were not defective.

The writer further reports that out of 10,865 of these accidents studied by the Motor Vehicles Department of that province 10,396 were classified as "normal." Only 156 were suffering from extreme fatigue, which probably means they were asleep, only 110 were intoxicated and only 23 had physical defects.

All of which means that nine out of every ten accidents could not be attributed to defective equipment or abnormality in the driver.

"What interpretation can be placed on these figures? Do they not point to the fact that bad driving is at the bottom of the trouble?" pertinently asks Mr Denison, laying the foundation for a suggestion that women can be an important influence in instilling safety into drivers. This they could achieve, he suggests, individually, by using their influence "to allay the driving habits and manners of the other members of the family," and collectively, "they can demand that the proven safety techniques be adopted in their cities and provinces; that educational courses be made a part of both elementary and high school curricula and that a greater portion of the tax money derived from motor vehicles be devoted to safety development before being diverted to other purposes."

Occupational Mortality

Judges And Parsons Live Longer Than Other Professional Men

It has been said that film stars die young, but the shortest lived professional men in Britain are doubtless On the average they have about sixty years of life.

"I suppose the mortality among doctors is due to the nature of their work," Dr. Anderson, secretary of the British Medical Association, declares. "They are called out at all times of the day and night and in all weathers. They are more exposed to the danger of infection than other people, although every precaution is taken by the profession against it. They must needs have iron constitutions to carry out the arduous duties which fall to the average practitioner."

An analysis of occupational mortality shortly will be issued by the registrar general, and unless there has been a marked change since the 1921 census it will be found that doctors are not about second on the list for short life.

Steel puddlers, the men who stir molten metal, head the list with an average of less than sixty years of life Judges and parsons live longer than any other professional men.

A French War Waif

Unknown English-man Holds Only Clue To His Missing Parents

An unknown Englishman that his made the only possible clue to the identity of Louis Albert de la Rue, who, as a child, was found on a French battlefield in 1918.

The youth, now living at Bruges, is seeking the help of English authorities in his search for his parents.

In the spring of 1918, when he was about 16 months old, De la Rue was found by a British officer on the Bailleul-Hazebrouck road just when the German offensive began at Locre Kemmel The officer took him to Rouen, where the Sisters of Our Lady of Pity took care of him. He was christened Louis (for France), Albert (for Belgium), Pierre (for the battlefield) and de la Rue (meaning "of the street").

And from that day to this young Mr. "Of the Street" has known no more about himself than his discovery in the front line.

He wants to find the officer who saved his life, hopes that his rescuer can remember the exact spot and date he was found, and that the information will help him solve the clues in the search for his parents.

Western Producers Wish To Be Present At Imperial Conference

That representation of producers be asked to invite organizations of primary producers to nominate representatives for consultation with the government representation in an advisory capacity to the imperial conference in January, 1937, was decided at the third meeting of the Western Agricultural Conference in Calgary.

The resolution also requested each branch of the agricultural industry concerned, an expert field be represented at a proposed conference of British Empire primary producers to be held prior to the imperial conference.

Another adopted motion said that if the supreme court of Canada declares the Natural Products Marketing Act valid, the conference should urge the Dominion government to seek the co-operation of the provinces to ensure that its terms be immediately supported by uniform enabling legislation in each province.

A New Seismograph

Will Record Simultaneous Earthquake From Engine Vibration In Plane

A new seismograph for recognizing to record instantly earthquakes passing through a plane from engine vibration was announced by the Massachusetts Institution of Technology.

These seismic shocks of flying have been one of the baffling problems of aviation. Their waves could be felt throughout a plane, but their epicenters the point in the universe that made them could not as a rule be located.

With increase in power and speed the flying shocks have risen to the point that they often cause rapid weakening and breakage of wings. Discovering the "epicenters" has become essential in getting rid of the danger.

Century-Old Drive Repeated

Characters From Dickens Live Again To Commemorate Him

Celebrating the 108th anniversary on March 30 of the publication of "The Pickwick Papers" by Charles Dickens, the famous Commodore Church—the actual coach which bore the Pickwickians to Rochester 100 years ago—set forth again in London from the Golden Cross with its quintet of illustrious passengers.

The departure of the coach was part of the elaborate revernacters arranged by the Dickens Fellowship and other devotees to celebrate the centenary of that immortal work.

Mr. Pickwick, rotund and oozing geniality through his spectacles, was hoisted aloft, followed by Mr. Tupman, the bold impersonation of whom female charms are concerned. Then there mounted the poetic Bracegrass, with Winkle, the would-be sportsman. Last of all came the scapegrace Alfred Jingle with long black hair, green coat and brown trousers, plus the scarf-coated guard playing a merry fanfare on a horn.

The Dickens Fellowship was holding its 49th convention simultaneously with the celebration. A total of 49 branches were represented, including Toronto, Edmonton, Victoria, Vancouver, Philadelphia, Copenhagen and Brisbane.

Alberta Dry Bats

Recommend Unproductive Areas Should Be Put Under Special Control

The section of the dry belts in Alberta where unproductive soil, or poor economic conditions, have to made farming operations hazardous should be placed under the administration of the provincial Natural Areas Act, according to the recommendations of the special survey committee, which was appointed by G. S. Hanson, provincial field crops commissioner.

The committee, appointed by the former government last year, made an extensive study of the whole problem of farming in dry areas.

It recommended that the act be administered under the act should adopt a direct relief system and that special agricultural relief should be discontinued.

Development of water resources, small irrigation projects and improved farm cultural practices also are recommended.

Big Tractor Hauls 24 Loads Of Spruce Logs In Bush Country

Northern transportation circles experienced a thrill recently when 48 sleighs were hitched to a tractor and smashed by a 75-horsepower caterpillar Diesel tractor. This record haul was made at the Spanish River camp of The Pas Lumber Company.

The big tractor was driven nine miles in the bush over the ice roads, to 24 big loads of spruce logs, and successfully dragged the logs into the mill yards. Signalling the entire camp is located 70 miles northeast of Nipawin.

The log train extended almost 300 yards from the tractor, and estimated weight was close to 1,600 tons.

H. J. Morris, formerly of the city engineer's department, Regina, was at the controls of the tractor. His crew was a Regina Flying Club member and was known at Balfour Technical school.

Possibilities Of Television

Interesting Developments Have To Follow In Its Wake

Television may bring with it "sound-conditioning" apparatus capable of throwing a shroud of silence about homes, factories and other buildings, Mr. Andrew W. Cruse, chief of the electrical division of the U.S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, described this and other developments that may follow in the wake of television. He said however, that the plans are far from the practical stage. Besides "sound conditioned" buildings, he foresaw the perfection of various kinds of apparatus for revealing an enemy's use manoeuvres, for vastly speeding up commercial transmission of messages, and for aiding seizures.

The safest time to drive an automobile is between six and seven in the morning, on Wednesday, according to a survey of accidents in Pennsylvania.

Man Used Ice Disks Successfully In Gas Meter

Gas inspectors of London accustomed to finding tin disks, medals, buttons and foreign coins in gas meters, give the palm for originality to a business man who has been using disks made of ice. Large amounts of gas had been used by this consumer, but whenever the collector called to empty the meter few coins were found. It was noticed too that the meter was exceptionally clean. Investigation convinced the authorities that the consumer had been dropping ice disks in the slot instead of coins.

Relief Loans

Federal Government Advances More Than $111,000,000 To Provinces

Outstanding loans from the federal treasury to the provinces under relief legislation amount to more than $111,000,000, according to a return tabled in the House of Commons at the request of W. M. Ryan (Lib. Saint John-Albert).

Only four provinces share in these loans, as follow: Manitoba, $15,028,096; Saskatchewan, $46,834,986; Alberta, $22 779,000; and British Columbia, $26 947,650

Additional loans to the provinces still outstanding, arising from the Dominion housing loans of 1919 were reported as follows: Prince Edward Island, $31,500; Nova Scotia, $682,000; New Brunswick, $648,700; Quebec, $3,609,687; Manitoba, $1,065,000, and British Columbia, $1,701,500

LIBERAL MEMBER FOR VANCOUVER URGES NEW DEAL

Ottawa.—The voice of the hard-pressed unemployed was raised in the House of Commons when George McGeer, Liberal member for Vancouver-Burrard and mayor of Canada's third largest city, urged a new financial deal for embarrassed cities and towns.

Canadian municipalities, the Pacific Coast member said, were being driven to the financial wall by relief burdens. He urged the government to handle relief on a national basis, easing the burden on provinces and municipalities by payment of proportion of Alberta's failure to meet its obligations.

"To-day, from one end of the country to the other, municipal governments are bankrupt. Some are behind in their obligations, cut down to the bone, but just as it did a century back, Bertram Mills, who owns the Combination Circus, is the coachman.

Thousands of city workers, pouring from very modern tubes and subways, are unable to achieve the Commodore with its great yellow wheels, black body, four spanking horses, and its scarlet-coated guard playing a merry fanfare on a horn.

Secret Meeting Of Social Creditors Refuses Lottery Idea

Edmonton.—Efforts in one faction of the Social Credit representation in the legislature to obtain legalization of lotteries for the benefit of Alberta hospitals were spiked in the Social Credit caucus and therefore will not be brought before the legislature, it was revealed.

A resolution which, had it obtained support of the caucus, would have been presented to the legislature, was presented to the Social Creditors' secret meeting.

This resolution was declared to have been a copy of the resolution passed a few days ago by the Saskatchewan legislature by J. Mildenberger, Maple Creek M.L.A., that "this legislature is of the opinion that the parliament of Canada should enact such legislation as will permit any province of Canada to operate government-controlled lotteries in aid of hospitals.

Agrees In Principle

But Manitoba Not Committed To Participate In Loan Council

Winnipeg.—While the Manitoba government has agreed to the proposed Dominion-provincial loan council in principle, Premier John Bracken informed the Manitoba legislature the government is not committed to participate in it.

Questioned by W. Sanford Evans, Conservative leader, Premier Bracken said the Manitoba government has not considered details of the proposal.

Mr. Evans raised the question by directing attention to publication of correspondence respecting the council between the Alberta and Dominion governments.

Consignment Which Was Wrongly Described Leaves For Germany

Halifax. -- Customs officials have released four carloads of scrap metal consigned to Chandler sichel. It was placed aboard the Swedish American steamship Korshold, bound for Hamburg, Germany.

The "nickel" was a part of a general flow of metals through this port to Europe, wrongly described in bills of lading which have puzzled customs men puzzled and worried.

The Hamburg shipment, 73 cases labelled nickel cathodes, was billed March 13 and the United States Freighter Liberty sailed without it. The consignment went forward later to Hamburg on another vessel.

B. C. HOUSE HAS PASSED HEALTH INSURANCE BILL

Victoria.--British Columbia's legislature prepared for prorogation of its third session after legislating the first public health insurance bill in North America.

Designed to make available essential medical services to some 275,000 persons in the province, the bill, most important and also most controversial issue the Liberal members during the session, gained third reading by a 29 to 14 vote. It will not go into effect until so proclaimed by the government.

The vote, as in first and second readings, split party lines with seven Liberals members joining with 7 from the C.C.F. opposition, four independents and one Unionist in opposing the measure. After third reading Premier Pattullo announced the legislature would prorogue. The bill is little changed from its original draft as submitted to the house last week.

Under its provisions some 125,000 employees with incomes ranging down from $1,800 annually will pay one per cent of their wages but not more than 70 cents per week. Their employers will pay 1 per cent., but not more than 70 cents per week, of the employees' wages.

For this the employee, his wife and children will receive medical care from the physician or surgeon they may choose, free hospitalization, services of diagnostic laboratories and necessary drugs and medicine. Other medical services also will be granted if sufficient funds are available

The government's share will be $50,000 which has been earmarked from estimated receipts of an origination under which the scheme will be operated

It will come under a commission composed of a chairman, vice-chairman and two or three members their salaries remunerative to be $7,500, $6,000 and $2,500 annually respectively. The commission will be assisted by a technical advisory board of six members including the man of the workmen's compensation board, one physician, a representative of a municipal organization and two others whom it may be deemed advisable to appoint.

Hon. C. G. Power Is Chairman Of Pensions Probe

Ottawa Hon C. G. Power, minister of pensions and national health was elected unanimously chairman of the House of Commons special committee on pensions and returned soldiers' problems

The committee authorized the chairman to issue summons of two sub-committees which will deal with correspondence and the calling of witnesses respectively. Major Power suggested it would be unnecessary to call a large number of witnesses, and that the number might be limited to two or three on each subject

The chairman said the Canadian Legion had signified its readiness to appear before the committee and he considered to do no before Easter It was decided to arrange to sit so as to facilitate this.

The committee decided to ask the house for authority to print proceedings in such quantity to direct late ang-ing branches of the Canadian Legion

Revising Relief Costs

Ottawa Plans To Reduce Total Grants After Survey

Ottawa.— Result of surveys showing weicter costs of relief were greater than in spring and summer, the Dominion government proposes to revise the present Dominion grants-in-aid to provinces, designed to meet conditions prevailing during the winter months. It was announced in a statement issued by the department of labor. Total grants would be reduced by 15 per cent., making the grants-in-aid to the provinces for April $2,606,286.

"Prior to July 31, 1934," the statement no d, "the Dominion contributed on various percentage bases to the expenditures of the provinces for direct relief, the Dominion percentage being equivalent to approximately 36 per cent. of the total expenditures."

"From August 1, 1934, the system was changed, and in place of a percentage contribution, grants-in-aid were made to the provinces to assist them in connection with their relief responsibilities, the monthly grants-in-aid to the nine provinces being $1,751,250. This expenditure was equivalent to a Dominion contribution of approximately 28 per cent. of the total joint expenditures."

HITLER SUBMITS A NEW PROGRAM TO ENSURE PEACE

Berlin. Chancellor Hitler's long-awaited program to insure peace in western Europe, envisaging 25-year peace pact with France and Belgium and Germany's return to the League of Nations, was delivered to the British government.

The lengthy document, one of the most important pronouncements on foreign policy by der Reichsfuehrer in his three years as chancellor, was hailed in official quarters here as a constructive and far-reaching proposal.

The general view was that Hitler's program, outlined in counter-proposals following his rejection of the plan drawn by the four Locarno powers, goes much further than Hitler's original proposals advanced March 7 when he denounced the Locarno treaty.

The document, in part, said:

"Germany earnestly desires to help promote the peace of Europe.

"The German people is determined under all circumstances, to safeguard its freedom and its independence and, herewith, its equality. It renews with the most upright will to co-operate with all its power in the great work of general reconstruction and understanding among European nations."

Hitler proposed negotiations concerning a pact of four nations, which might be termed a new Locarno replacing the pact broken by Germany.

During these negotiations, Der Fuehrer suggested, Germany, France and Belgium should agree to limit of their frontiers by a commission of one representative each from Great Britain, Italy and one neutral power.

Both sides — Germany, which recognized the Rhineland in violation of the Locarno pact, and France and Belgium which protested this action should refrain from casting suspicions on each other through the publications public utterances or teachings.

A plebiscite of the three peoples directly concerned was proposed by Hitler to give solemn sanction to the work of the statesmen over negotiations were concluded successfully.

These negotiations, with neither side to participate in military forces during the, the border zone would be followed by a general conference for limitation of armaments.

The terms offering Hitler a new pact of the Rhineland impasse, were disclosed after Joachim von Ribbentrop, Der Fuehrer's ambassador-at-large, arrived there to London to report to Hitler.

Hitler's own public statement in the Reichstag, London and Berlin agreed, was the original basis for the negotiations.

Hitler was received at the fair in coffee supplied by a Canadian firm and a new type of canned soup was introduced which resulted in several large orders even for 12,000 cases.

Entitled To Pensions

Ottawa, -- Ten members of the House of Commons were entitled to pensions for war service, according to a return tabled in the House of Commons by State Secretary Rinfret In the case of three cabinet members, Hon. KING EDWARD HAS APPROVED PLANS FOR CORONATION

London.—King Edward VIII. will be crowned in May next year—probably on Thursday, May 27.

Prime Minister Baldwin announced in the House of Commons that His Majesty had approved of arrangements for the coronation ceremony to take place in that month. The actual date, he added, would be announced as soon as possible.

Court circles singled out Thursday, May 27, as the most probable date. It was recalled the coronations of Queen Victoria and King George V. took place on Thursdays—June 28, 1838, and June 22, 1911, respectively. Edward VII's coronation also was Edward VII's coronation also was on one of the sovereign's illness was prolonged until Aug. 9, 1902.

May 27 was considered the most likely Thursday for the present king's coronation because Thursday, May 6, is the anniversary of King George's accession, while May 13 and 20 are too close to Easter

The king Thursday participated in a colorful ceremony in connection with his accession, and made it the occasion to voice a fervent plea for peace and to pledge himself to continue service to the empire

"I, Prince of Wales," his Majesty declared. "I bore a device with the ancient motto 'I serve.' As king I shall hold this in constant remembrance, for a king can perform no higher function than that of service."

The king affirmed his determination to do all he could to promote peace and help bring about a revival of commerce and industry both at home and abroad.

Conference Of Premiers

Heads Of Western Provinces Going To Ottawa For Finance Parley

Ottawa Question of Dominion-provincial financial relations will be re-opened shortly at conference between Finance Minister Dunning and heads of the western province governments, as a result of the break between Alberta and the federal government over the proposed loan council scheme.

Premier T. D. Pattullo, of British Columbia, will be here and it is anticipated the governments of Saskatchewan and Manitoba will also be present, with the possibility that Alberta will be represented.

Refusal of Premier Aberhart of Alberta to commit himself to the loan council scheme has the effect of upsetting the plans of the federal government, worked out at three successive conferences with provincial governments and accepted unanimously by all concerned What effect the future relations between the Dominion and Alberta remains to be worked out.

THE WEATHER

Following some of the lowest April temperatures ever recorded, the weather finally broke on Monday night, when a wind from the south-west ushered in high temperatures. Monday evening was extremely cold ranged by 11 degrees below zero noon and a high wind, this gave place towards morning to a good rainstorm. Warm temperatures have since prevailed since and few are going fast.

SALVATION ARMY SELF DENIAL APPEAL

In making our annual appeal on behalf of the Self Denial fund, we do not consider it the ambition of the people of this province to make any objection to Alberta this year to $6,500 as the objective as planned.

The past year has been a busy one for the Army. The films in stores numerous which we are still meeting have brought increased responsibilities to our organization in caring for the needy and unfortunate.

In addition to this phase of our work our activities in Alberta include the operation of a maternity hospital, three eligible homes for aged men and women and one home for children. Our maternity hospital does much to save sick mental girls, while our social departments carry on continuously with police court and prison visitation.

The work which has been established so many years past by our corps in all of the more important cities and towns in the province is still being carried on vigorously and helpful service is being rendered by all our officers.

We thank you for the practical help which you have given to us in the past and feel sure we may rely upon your hearty support of this year's appeal.

Yours sincerely,
Adam S. Williamson, R.M.

IMPERIAL OIL TO TELL STORY OF SERVICE IN PICTURES

Series Will Prove of Great Interest To Standard Readers

It is a big job providing quality petroleum products for Canadians from coast to coast and from the International Boundary to the Arctic Circle, but few of the general public, it is quite safe to say, realize just how big it really is. It is for this reason that Imperial Oil, in a series of advertising this season are telling their story in pictures. The first release appears in this edition of the Standard and our readers are advised to follow these up as they appear from time to time in subsequent issues.

These pictures will show graphically Imperial Oil's activities in producing, refining, transportation, distribution, research as well as interesting eye witness records of the many world wide Imperial Oil products help to keep the wheels of Canadian industry smoothly. It makes a great story one which the company is proud of—one in which we think the public will be interested.

AMATEUR NIGHT SLATED APRIL 22 IN VERMILION

Local Merchants Sponsor Half-Hour Broadcast; Bert Cairns, CJCA Staff Announcer as M.C.

IN COLUMBIA THEATRE

Eliminations April 20th.

"The wheel of fortune, 'round it goes, and where it stops nobody knows," is the major theme around Vermilion is staging its own amateur night, and broadcasting it from CJCA, the popular Edmonton inaugural station, on the evening of April 22nd, in the Columbia Theatre, at 10.00 p.m. Vermilion merchants, one hundred per cent behind the idea, have combined in joint sponsorship of this 30 minute broadcast which will present Vermilion's talent to western Canada.

In the half hour which is allotted to this feature, only about eight or nine contestants can appear, and accordingly, an elimination contest has been arranged in Vermilion for the evening of the 20th of April. Entry blanks for the competition can be secured from the various local merchants behind this enterprise, whose names appear elsewhere in this paper, and who display Amateur Night cards, and all would be competitors are urged to make their applications early, to qualify for the broadcast. The winner of the half hour show on the 22, will, along with other winners from western Canada, appear in a grand final contest at the Capitol Theatre, Edmonton from which most emerging winner of the cash prize of $250.00. The winning Vermilion act will be assisted financially by CJCA in coming to Edmonton for the finals.

The morning of Wednesday, April 22, will find two members of the staff of CJCA arriving in Vermilion to conduct the broadcast. Bert Cairns, popular staff announcer at Edmonton's studios, and master of ceremonies for the Capitol Theatre "Amateurs on Parade" broadcasts in Edmonton will officiate during the evening and will be accompanied by one of the station's technical engineers to handle the complicated business of controls. The latest type microphones and remote control equipment will be brought in on the broadcast to ensure the best possible results.

Also Press for Second R. C. M. P. Officer

The regular meeting of the board of trade was held in the Merchants' Cafe on Friday evening with President Robinson in the chair and 24 members present. The annual meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 22nd in the Elks hall starting at 12.30 o'clock. A delicious luncheon will be served, after which members will attend the polo game between Vermilion and Lloydminster.

PRESS FOR APPOINTMENT OF SECOND POLICE OFFICER

Although first results have not been encouraging the Board intends to continue to endeavor to have a second R.C.M.P. officer stationed at this point. The territory is too large and means of transportation too many for one officer to cover it in the hours of duty.

JUSTICE HANDICAPPED BY HAVING NO MAGISTRATE HERE

A motion was carried that representation be made to the Minister of Justice at Ottawa for the appointment here of a Police Magistrate and Justice of the peace. Very often a serious request for support of his application be made to our local member. Hon. W. A. Fallow. There is no magistrate here at the present time and Justices of the Peace have been appointed.

Mr. Easton will act as chairman for the next meeting

PARKING BY-LAW IS ADOPTED BY THE TOWN

Goes Into Effect May 1st; Will Make Town Parking and Driving Easy, Safe

As predicted on last week's issue that a parking by-law for more vehicles was on the way for Vermilion, the Standard now announces that the same has been passed by the town council and will be effective on the 1st of May next.

Parking spaces as set out in the by-law are

First: The centre of main street and the centre of 1st street south from Alberta avenue (by the Bruns. wick hotel) to Darden avenue (by the Imperial Block).

Second. No trucks will be permitted to park on Alberta and Railroad avenues between Main and First street south, but cars may be parked on the east side leaving the centre and west sides clear for traffic.

Third—From First street south to Railway street along the west side of Alberta avenue and at the east end of the town park are parking spaces reserved exclusively for the park users' trucks.

All lots fronting must be kept free of rubbish suggesting which may be left on the lots by the public. Ashes must be made from the street.

Stopping at the curb to receive or deliver goods only will be permitted, but no loiter ing will be allowed.

Parking signs will be placed on all the main entrances to the town and are also included within the parking limits. The Standard will publish the by-law in full in its next issue.

Will Head Fifth Line

Over 6,000 Reservations Made For Vimy Pilgrimage

A flotilla of five ships will convey close to 6,000 pilgrims to Vimy Ridge in July for the unveiling of Canada's national memorial there. In a consultation between Brig.-General Alex Ross, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, and representatives of the Canadian Pacific and White Star-Canard steamship companies, the decision was reached to augment the formerly arranged four ships by an additional one.

The capacity of the "troopships" is 5,950. Already 6,000 persons have indicated their intention of making the journey; but the expectation is that before the date of embarkation quite a number will "drop out."

General Ross said that the 5,950 was the "absolute limit."

"We announced many weeks ago that the deadline for registrations would be March 12," he said, "and it naturally follows that all persons who signified their intention of taking part in the pilgrimage and had complied with the requirements as to that date would receive first consideration. Those who came in after must of necessity be placed on a waiting list. Their expectations being dependent solely upon whatever vacancies result from cancellations."

The legion head announced that Col. D. E. McIntyre, D.S.O., M.C., of Owen Sound, had been placed in charge of "all pilgrimage movements." Col. McIntyre, with a staff which will be furnished him, will co-operate with the legion and have for the actual moving of this pilgrim host to ensure no slip up in the program.

Brig.-General Ross paid official tribute, first grade, of the 2nd Canadian division. He served as lieutenant-colonel of the 16th battalion, was advanced to the staff and became I.O. of the 4th Canadian infantry brigade, later proceeding to division.

A New Expedition

Glacier Priest Hopes To Measure Ice On Greenland's Mountains

Father Bernard R. Hubbard, named as the jesuit priest, will, for his scientific discoveries in the Arctic, is preparing a new expedition. He hopes shortly to measure the depth of ice on Greenland's mountains. Admiral Richard Byrd and other explorers claim that the ice caps in Greenland and in the Antarctic are more than 10,000 feet deep. Father Hubbard believes they are not more than 2,000 feet. To prove this he is going to Alaska to put his theories to the test on the Malaspina Glacier. Snow and ice piling up creature pressure, he argues. Pressure creates heat—and heat melts the composition of the snow and ice in perpetually melting away, keeping the depth of the ice field at an average of 2,000 feet. Father Hubbard and his party will have to traverse the treacherous Takru and Inklin Rivers with their canoes and supplies, ice menace and rock strewn beds.

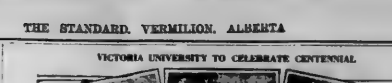
Victoria University To Celebrate Centennial



The one hundredth anniversary of the granting of the Royal Charter by King William IV. in 1836 to Upper Canada Academy, Cobourg, Ontario, as an institution of higher education, will be observed this fall by Victoria University, Toronto. The Upper Canada Academy changed its name to Victoria College in 1841, and College (3) the Arts Faculty of Victoria University, this was changed to Victoria University in 1884. Victoria College conferred the first degree in Arts ever with the University of Toronto, and moved to Toronto conferred in Upper Canada, in 1845. The original building of Upper Canada Academy, later Victoria College, in Cobourg, was opened in 1836 and still stands. This building is pictured in (1). Emmanuel College, the theological branch of Victoria University, was opened in Toronto in 1851 and is shown in (2) above. Victoria was opened in 1892 when Victoria College federated

SELECTED RECIPES

BREAD IN 4½ HOURS
(Four Loaves)

(About) 12 cups Purity Flour, sifted
1 cup water
2 tablespoons shortening (melted)
3 tablespoons white sugar
2 tablespoons salt
2 compressed yeast cakes

Method Dissolve yeast in ½ cup of lukewarm water. In the remaining liquid (which should not be above 100 degrees F.) dissolve the sugar and salt, then add yeast. Mix in sufficient flour to make a soft batter; add shortening and beat well. Stir in sufficient flour to produce dough soft enough to handle conveniently, but not sticky. (In cold weather, warm flour before using). Turn out on floured board and knead until soft and elastic. (The temperature of the dough should now be between 80 and 85 degrees F.) Place in a greased bowl, cover and let rise until it is double the original bulk; then punch down. Let rise again and, after punching down and cutting, divide into pieces which will half fill black sheet-iron baking pans. Round these pieces into balls and let stand a few minutes; then mould into loaves and place in greased pans. Cover and let rise again until double in rising. When double in bulk, place in oven. If the surface is pressed lightly with the finger, the slight depression thus made will remain when the loaves are ready for baking. Should the depression quickly disappear, let rising continue a little longer. Bake in hot oven of 400 to 425 degrees for 40 to 60 minutes, depending on size of loaves.

The liquid used may be plain water, potato water, whey or part milk and part water. When potato water is used, reduce the salt by amount used in cooking potatoes. If milk is used it should be scaled and cooled.

Four cups of liquid yeast (used ready as New Purity Cook Book) may be used in place of compressed yeast. If liquid yeast is used, reduce salt accordingly.

By the above method bread may be made in about 4½ hours. Equally good bread may be made by doubling the amount of yeast specified, but process will take longer.

Other recipes are desired, double amount of yeast.

The French government sank artesian wells in the Sahara desert, and fish spouted high into the air.

Rising is classified as a dye because it neutralizes the yellow in clothes, thus making them white.

Cost Of Armaments

Writer Figures Out Per Capita Cost To Each Country

When George Bernard Shaw wrote "Arms and the Man" he was not dealing with the economics of the question, but a writer in the London Morning Post figured it out that way recently.

He finds that in Canada the cost is $1.34 a person; in New Zealand, $1.50; Denmark, $2.18; Australia, $2.49; Japan, $3.70; Belgium, $4.10; Italy (at war), $6; Great Britain, which defends a vast empire, $9.50; and the United States, $8.60.

He statistics are misleading for Germany. But the United States, for the first time since the war, has begun spending money for arms, battleships, and aircraft.

And if there is going to be an international conference to limit armaments much higher. The average British family of five pays nearly $50 a year for defence. Obviously Great Britain has strong reasons for striving so hard for peace. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Toast To The King

Orders Covering Correct Procedure Issued To Fleet

Fleet orders were issued covering the correct procedure in connection with the toast to the King.

The orders state that the health of His Majesty should be honored each day in all naval messes, whether on ship or on shore, on all occasions except when the National Anthem is played, when the toast should be drunk standing.

When toasts for foreign heads of states are included, first and last of the King should be drunk standing, whether the National Anthem is played or not, the orders provide.

The custom of drinking the loyal toast seated is said to have originated in the days of Cromwell, when any recognition of our evil as first and foremost sin and offence against Him, is the essence of all true repentance. To distinguish it broadly from its source, and all other kinds of sorrow that may find a place with it, we call it (French).

A long way off the father saw him coming and ran to meet him and kiss him.

Red Cross In Peace Time

Society Is Always Active And Ready To Help

Many people associate the Red Cross Society only with war, but if they notice the great work it does in time of peace. The fact is the Red Cross is always on the alert and in every country where it has branches and the organization is such that it may be quickly called into service wherever and wherever there is an emergency.

This has been exemplified by the wonderful manner in which it has responded to the flood conditions in the United States. Most of the 400,000 homeless people are being cared for by the Red Cross. $175,000 being succored in Pennsylvania alone. A stupendous effort was set in motion at a moment's notice, and without it the municipal, state and federal authorities would have been in a desperate situation, St. Thomas Times-Journal

YOUR GARDEN

Even with a very small space, there is a big advantage in having something of a more or less permanent character like perennial flowers. With these there is something to build the rest of the garden around and there are less likely to be long blank periods when there is no bloom available. After a few years general advice will not be needed because the gardener will go on extending here and there, specializing to some extent in favorites, just as the same persons will do in building up a private collection of books.

Lack of variety is the chief fault of the Canadian vegetable garden. Experts point out that there is no excuse for running out of lettuce early in the summer for example, when after the season for the leaf variety head lettuce could be grown and then during the hot weather the Cos type. For the "greens" enthusiast, a few plants of Swiss Chard will provide an abundance of meals. It is worth investigating as it also Broad Beans, which come along about mid-summer, and, for those who like a sort of refined cauliflower, Kohli Rabi, a related type. Red cabbage and yellow Globe turnips will lend interest to the regular types and provide a slightly different flavour. In many places egg plants and peppers can be grown and will be appreciated. They must be started early indoors. Another type of the latter is be used as a pimiento filling for sandwiches. In the melon family, will be unanimous that the cantaloupe is certain varieties of which can be produced in the short season of the prairie provinces. There is also the little ice-box watermelon. The Golden Queen squash, which is a big improvement over the ordinary Hubbard type. Looks add variety to the onion family and tender white radish lengthens the season. While vegetables in the regular lines the season can be straight rows, they can be grown effectively as well as more idle types. In garden peas, for example, the dwarf or bush variety will vary from about 50 days to the Lenten Pearl of plaited type. Variety it is advisable to include at least three. Early sowing is essential, half in certain parts of the country a fall crop with a quick-growing variety. Sow thinly in drills, the very early Bantam types mature when grown for seed. Of the pole sorts and some of the late, both white and yellow, birds are so until frost or even after.

Where one is fond of an abundance of flowers, experienced gardeners advise growing a portion of these in straight rows among the vegetables or in a special cutting garden. Some well designed beds of mixed annuals are spoiled if too many flowers are picked and then they have a certain things like sweet peas, for instance, that have little attractive foliage. Cosmos, especially the early sort as well be grown behind the regular beds.

Protection in England

Although Invisible It Is One Hundred Per Cent. Effective

The stories that have been appearing in the press from time to time about Col. Lindbergh and his family living "unguarded" at their retreat in England, are in a sense misleading.

The fact that their home is not surrounded by a cordon of uniformed police does not mean that the possibility that the police in their vicinity have taken special precautions against any possible attempt to molest them.

And they are guarded by the invisible but very real, highly organized and trained police force, which protects everyone in England by keeping a close eye on all the time, and by that fear of the law, which English courts have put into the hearts of the criminally

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County citizens called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

The meeting terminates, but Evan Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plans. The angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he departs, calls his "spread". Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of rage but Buster Townsend Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership. Fleming's crops are far above their own properties.

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Torney to learn whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that startles Fleming and he runs out to the house, and all other kinds of sorrow that may find a place with it, we call it (French).

The meeting terminates, but Evan Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plans. Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of rage but Buster Townsend Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership. Fleming's crops are far above their own properties.

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Torney to learn whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that startles Fleming and he runs out to the house, and all other kinds of sorrow that may find a place with it, we call it (French).

A long way off the father saw him coming and ran to meet him and kiss him.

The ragged, shoeless, hungry boy began his words of confession, but before he could get to be made a servant, the father stopped him and directed his servants to bring clothes and bring the best robe for his son. Then a feast was held and it was announced by the fellowship board of the Royal Society of Canada. "Link," she added on sudden impulse, "do you think this dam is going to bankrupt us?"

Something in her worried tone made Fleming eager to go to any extreme to safeguard Helen and her property. "We'll come through," he said with confidence he did not quite feel. "We still have our steers to sell and once we get cash for 'em we'll be dand a lot better. I'll get Marty Bush to make our beef go out first when shippin' opens day after tomorrow and pay us cash. So, Helen, you better cut out what you're selling and get things all paid up."

He turned a little away. "I'm sorry about Buzz. I planned to give you the surprise of your life, getting him paroled Well, it was a surprise, but not quite like I expected. Buzz came on the stage while we were with Otis Pieper, and knowing he headed right for the Half Moon, I sent you on home. By the time I got inside he was stuffed with wrung talk against us. Instead of being on our side he's plumb sure the dam won't turn out.

"Beats me," he exclaimed, scowling, "how folks can think that Gosh, if anybody examines it, they've got to admit it'll work"

Of course it will work, Link." She flattered a moment. "I hear Buzz, I think. Please let me know what goes on"

She was about to trip inside the ranch house when he stayed her. Kevin and Ovlina sat waiting on their hooves two hundred feet distant but they were conversing with faces turned away. "Helen." Fleming said hesitantly, "being as we're business partners, maybe I should say this But business aside, I sort of I hope you like me pretty well. Do you?"

She smiled. "Of course. Why not?"

"Then then would you" He kicked self-consciously at a tuft of bunchgrass For an instant he hesitated as if debating further speech but then suddenly lost heart and turned to his horse

Buzz Hamilton arrives back in Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the bank getting a loan for payment of wages for work on the dam Roper Kilgo and Jackpot Mail meet him and he goes into the saloon with them. By the time the latter and Link come from the bank, Buzz has had several drinks. Buzz has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposed by Link, making it appear that Link was trying to ruin him. Buzz, inflamed with liquor and anger, tries to throttle Fleming, but is thrown to the floor. Then Helen appears and tells Fleming she has been robbed of the $800 they had obtained from the bank

ANNUAL VIMY SMOKER

The annual Vimy Smoker was held by the Canadian Legion Post 11 on Monday, April 13, this being the nearest convenient evening to the actual commemoration day - April 9. About three dozen members and visitors were present. Cards took part in the capacity of the new Masonic Vimy Ridge Hall. Cards were all used years, some being the signs of their advancing years and a few more added by the friendly enjoyment of those weary and sore.

Bert Lambert, well, that is no place and runs the delicatessen or fountain and this one was no exception. Mr. J. Little very early in the evening, to relieve the pleasure of the members — boys off on the old war scene. Those were rendered with the usual accordion. A street in Vimy, by Mr. Albert West, who delighted the hosts with his usual fine singing, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Bill Hall. Mr. Hall also rendered two or three song from his collection. Tom is very clever when it comes to and appears to enjoy his efforts. No another evening complete without a story, or humorous sketch and Mr. Hector Mc Millan certainly made the audience laugh on this occasion. Frank Bowman and his songs very pleasingly and Mr. Lavoy rendered up the old favorites making [illegible] A. L. [illegible] a splendid sample of his ability as a singer. Mr. Simmons piano accompanied diplomas.

Speeches on this occasion were very short and well on the point. The speakers were Mayor Robinson, Mr. W. H. Morrison, K.C., O. C. Douglas, S. C. Lockhart and Mr. F. Kaiser. Mr. Robinson [illegible] Vimy Ridge was one of the most important battles in the attainment by Canada of her present [illegible] status among the commonwealth of nations. He referred also to the present [illegible] and the part Britain's policy is always taking sides with the under dog. He likened it in 1914 when Britain went to the aid of smaller little [illegible] and would do so to-day. The question is now, said Mr Morrison what would Canada do? From all appearances she would be with the mother country. Mr. Douglas spoke on the same subject and his remarks were also well received. Mr. Lockhart [illegible] a little disappointed in the [illegible] of a repetition of the [illegible] Mr. Kaiser [illegible] Those who [illegible] hope to have a call to [illegible] Mr. Kaiser [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

WHEAT SEEDING LATE

Present prospects indicate a later seeding time in Alberta than has been experienced for many years. With one-half of the month of April gone Alberta farms are a long way from being in condition to work. The moist areas and central areas are pretty well covered with heavy snow and it will be weeks before machinery can be placed on the fields there. In the south the snow is lighter of course and snow disappears quickly under favorable weather conditions but even there the season is sure to be very backward. The winter has been the longest and coldest experienced in Alberta for a generation.

In areas susceptible to frost the farmers are likely to get their wheat in as early as possible. Many of them will be in a quandary this year due to soil drifting. They may be having to swing from wheat to coarse grains but the market prices for the latter do not offer any great inducement

TO COMBAT MOSQUITO PESTS

The Dominion Entomologist directs attention to the fact that much can be done by community action in reducing the number of mosquitoes which breed the summer and bring a pest to farm districts annually. Mosquitoes breed largely in temporary bodies of water such as stock and rain pools and river flood areas. They develop only in water and the method of control which ultimately gives most satisfaction consists in eliminating the breeding places by drainage or by filling. And, in the case of large flood areas, by dyking and pumping. Pitlike and bowelling of low places where water accumulates should be carried out wherever possible. Care should also be taken to prevent mosquitoes breeding in artificial containers, such as water barrels, either by emptying or screening them.

The Dominion Entomological branch has prepared a circular dealing with mosquito control in Canada. This circular is available free on application to the Publicity and Extension Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. In the case of community campaigns, towns and villages contemplating action against the mosquito pests should write the Dominion Entomologist at Ottawa for direction and information

To Our Subscribers

Through no fault of their own, quite a large number of our old friends who have been consistent readers of their home paper, The Standard, for many years past have gradually fallen behind in their subscriptions.

We have stood the brunt along with them, of the unfavorable conditions which have prevailed, always optimistic that, "next year" everything would be O.K. That has always been the spirit that has sustained western peoples since the first settlement on our ... ships and stay it ever remain. It is a faith and hope worth maintaining, for in spite of all, it means life.

For our part, faith in the integrity of those of our readers whose arrears run into three and four years, is as strong today as it was when they were enabled to drop in regularly year after year and renew their subscription.

It is in this frame of mind that we are asking that from now on, a special effort be made to place the paper in good standing and a wee bit in advance. Financially, the matter is a most urgent one to us.

May we hear from you all!

Ye Olde Editor.

FRESH GRASS FOR THE LAWN

Persons who desire good lawns can have them, but it will require some effort on their part, especially in the early spring. This is the time when little attention may save a considerable amount of work later on. Just as soon as the snow has disappeared and the soil is dry enough to walk on, is the proper time to rake all dead grass by giving the lawn a good raking. This prevents the young shoots from getting smothered and destroys the soil around the roots. There need be no fear of pressing down hard on the rake handle; the grass will not be injured by rough treatment.

Early spring is the time also to fill up those bare patches with a little fresh seed. First rake them in the roughly to a depth of two inches Then broadcast grass seed evenly, cover very lightly with a sprinkling of sifted soil, pack down firmly, and water freely with a fine spray.

Kentucky blue grass is the best and most widely adapted grass for lawn purposes states the Dominion Agrostologist, Dr. E.L. Kirk. It is used as a base for most lawn mixtures, because it is very serviceable and long wearing. One of the best grass seed mixtures for lawns consists of four pounds of Kentucky blue grass and one pound of Colonial bent (brown top). To this may be added one-quarter ounce of white Dutch clover.

A little clover in the lawn is desired. The above mixture is needed at the rate of three pounds per 1,000 square feet. In order to make sure of getting dependable fresh seed one should always insist on this.

Lawn grass, like other living things must have food if it is to grow normally. This food can be supplied as commercially small cost and should be applied to the lawn just as soon as the raking and seeding has been done. There are on the market a number of ready made mixed fertilizers practically all of which will produce good results. It is important to apply fertilizer very evenly and at the rates specified on the containers, because satisfactory results cannot be expected by applying one pound where five pounds are recommended or vice versa. As soon as the fertilizer has been applied it should be well watered in, care being taken to use a fine spray so that the seed is not disturbed in the newly seeded areas. On these seeded areas the ground should be kept moist, but not flooded, for about two weeks so that the young plants have a chance to become established

Cutting should be regular and should start just as soon as the grass is long enough to allow the mower to function properly. It is a mistake to allow the grass to grow over two inches long at any time. When cutting, it is advisable to use a grass catcher and remove all cuttings. This material does harm by forming a mat around the crowns of the grass plants, thus smothering young shoots, and it also helps weeds to spread, as weed seeds

PROGRESS OF EQUALIZATION PAYMENT

The federal act providing for the 1936 equalization payment has passed both House of Commons and Senate and has been signed by the governor general. The regulations governing the payment have to be laid down by the Wheat Board. Following that, nothing will remain to complete the operation save the writing out and mailing of the cheques

JUNIOR GRAIN CLUBS

One of the important junior organizations of this province is the Junior Grain Club, says the High River Times There are branches of these Clubs all over Alberta. The aim of the Junior Clubs is the distribution of pure seed and the training in efficient farm methods. Members are between fifteen and twenty two years and they undertake to grow a certain amount of registered seed grain. Ultimately the inferior grain which may still be grown on the farm will be replaced by pure seed Demonstration and instruction in seed selection and grain testing are a valuable training not only for the junior farmers but for the adults

POSTMASTERS AND PATRONAGE

A recent bill introduced by O. L. Boutbien, liberal member for Bellechasse Que. for the purpose as its name the outside civil service, including most dominion employees not at present under the jurisdiction of the civil service commission, was viewed with dismay by all civil servants, particularly by those in country villages and small town postmasters. Under previous governments the villages and small town postmasters. Under previous governments the office of postmaster was generally filled by the party in power. Mr. Venizel, postmaster general in the previous King government set a very bad example and was followed by Mr. Power, postmaster general in the Bennett government who although he promised to abolish the spoils or patronage system, found the pressure from those who wanted jobs to grant favors and during his term of office so expanded it as to render the patronage of record set by Mr Venizel

Under these circumstances it was quite natural that a change in government should cause much heart burning among the post offices in various Canada particularly and the dominion generally, as the result of post masters' associations. Mr. Charles D. Ferguson, who was appointed by the King government as Postmaster General in 1935 and the Hon. J. C. Elliott very shortly after his appointment to the cabinet. They were pleasantly surprised to find a new type of man holding the office of postmaster general who had already resigned to dismiss small country postmasters, who under ordinary circumstances would have been allowed to continue their political activities without any change being laid against them or without the accused being given an opportunity of defending themselves against any political charge, which might have been made by those desirous of obtaining their positions.

Since that time Mr. Elliott has quietly carried on his field with large, only that very few postmasters have resigned or been dismissed and there is a greater sense of security in the postal service than there has ever been known before

If the Hon Mr. Elliott can stick with his guns and withstand the pressure there is no doubt that he will have done a great act and his name will ever be remembered in the postal service as the man who killed patronage The postal service is without doubt the greatest business in Canada entering intimately into the lives of every citizen and the disrupting effect on this great business machine can readily be understood when over eight hundred postmasters lose their positions after each change in government and were replaced by inexperienced men.

The Century Of Science

Research work now being carried on in the laboratories of the world devoted to industrial progress and advancement of scientific knowledge is unfolding vast reservoirs of hitherto hidden facts and data to such an extent that their practical application to man's needs and welfare is bound to profoundly change habits and modes of life and work in the future.

Of all I well accepted theories in the realms of astronomy, chemistry physics, medical science, biology and other fields of science are being shattered almost daily as a result of the work which is being carried on by silent, be-spectacled men and women in the research workshops and so rapidly are new discoveries being made and converted to the use of mankind that those who predict that the present century will go down in history as an era of scientific achievement are speaking with undisputed authority.

In fact the achievements of the first third of the present century are sufficient in themselves to substantiate the claim for such an assertion even if for some work we are to put to practical teams, the work in the next score of years will be found to be even more startling.

One does not have to search far to find examples for this remarkable advance in the sphere of the difficult under an and to explain why so much that has remained hidden for centuries is now being revealed in so great abundance.

One of the reasons is the large number of men who have been made available for the prosecution of such work by wealthy philanthropists. Another is the tendency to endowment of educational institutions that is paying them to devote a percentage of their earnings to the conduct of research work to assist them in unearthing ways and means of improving their products and of reducing the costs of production to enable them to achieve a paramount place in their field or to achieve it. Another is the now well known fact that almost every new discovery, or the search for it, opens the door for another one and often enough paves the way for several more. Thus this work is not only progressive but cumulative and in more than mathematical ratio something like rolling up a snowball.

Still another reason is the fact that so frequently, a discovery in one field of endeavor results in the perfection of new equipment which makes it possible to delve deeper into the mysteries of some other scientific realm or some other school of science.

And these do not exhaust the reasons. There are others referred to recently by Mrs G Lamirux. Writing in a recent issue of the Christian Science Monitor an article dealing with developments in the arena of natural science this author said:

"Natural science arms partly out of man's desire to conquer nature and partly from his insatiable curiosity. From the earliest times man had never been content to live by bread alone. It had that within it which impelled it to seek out the mysteries of the world around. It is this curiosity which has forced men to make instruments which have enabled him to sweep the recesses of the starry heavens; to delve among the rocks in order to read from them the history of the earth and those who have lived on it in ages past. In his eagerness he has even penetrated into the heart of matter and seen it dissolve into radiation."

The same writer sheds an interesting sidelight on the effect such work has on the minds of those who make new discoveries, when she says "Every time the research worker opens the locked doors in the Palace of Knowledge he has become humbler than certain of his at-one-time unshakable faith in the reality of those things which his hands could touch and his eyes see."

It is unfortunate that in Canada sufficient recompense is not always given to the men and women who are devoting a lifetime to unlocking the mysteries of science for the benefit of the country and her people; at least, that is too often the case with those who are prosecuting their work under government aegis. As a result, more adequate remuneration sometimes proves too tempting and they are lured away south of the international boundary to the great lure of that country.

When the benefits which accrue to the country as a result of the development of a rust resistant wheat is quote an illustration are weighed in the balance against the remuneration those trained experts receive it is not surprising if better offers from elsewhere for their services are sometimes accepted.

Talked Through His Hat

New York Man Used Radio Equipped With Topper

An announcer wearing an "electrified Shirley Somers", in the form of a radio-equipped silk hat, broadcasted with the Easter Sunday strollers in New York describing the fashions and eavesdropping on conversations unbeknown to those on the side-walks. The stunt provided a test of a new portable microwave station. The range of the silk-hat broadcasters is about a quarter of a mile.

The human hair grows at an over age rate of five inches a year in a temperate climate.

CONSTIPATION STOPPED AT ONCE!

"Constipation troubled me for months. Nothing seemed to do any good until I used Fruit-a-tives. They brought quick and complete relief." — (Mrs) Mr Hutchinson, Belleville, Ont.

Fruit-a-tives are the discovery of a famous Canadian physician. They concentrated extracts of APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS, PRUNES and HERBS. The result is a natural remedy wonderfully prepared for best results. Constipation — no use to allow trouble. Safe—do not contract harsh purgatives or habit forming drugs. More than a laxative—Fruit-a-tives bring lasting relief. They tend to strengthen all organs of elimination. The tonic effects help the entire system

Going In For Ice Cream

London Is Preparing For Big Sale This Summer

Warm weather ice cream fashions are being determined at the Ice Cream and Dairy exhibition at the Crystal Palace, the London News-Chronicle remarks:

"This summer, it seems, we shall consume at least 50,000,000 gallon of ice cream, so that the rehearsal now in progress is thoroughly justified.

"It will be bought from penny-in-the-slot machines, in special paper bags, in tubes of chocolate and in new waffle wafers, which make it look as if you got more for your penny than you actually do.

"And it will be better ice cream. The milk marketing board has arranged for ice cream manufacturers to buy milk at bulk wholesale prices. Milk powder from abroad has been widely used so far.

"The summer engineering industry that has grown in recent years to meet the needs of the big milk distributing companies should give those now engaged in the milk prices inquiry some idea of where the money goes."

Richly Clad Mummy Found

Is Believed To Be Daughter Of Great Pharaoh Cheops

The sumptuously-clad mummy of a princess of the Fourth Dynasty (2723-2562 B C) is believed to be the daughter of the great Pharaoh Cheops, who built the second Pyramid, has been discovered by Egyptian archaeologists.

The mummy lay in a limestone sarcophagus in the underground tomb whose location was not revealed in the announcement of the find issued in Imperial rainers. The princess wore a golden diadem, two necklaces of golden beads, anklets and sandals.

A gold-plated copper belt circled her waist and the fingers of her left hand were encased in gold and silver rings.

Prof Selim Hassan of Cairo University, directed the excavations which resulted in the discovery. He said the tomb apparently had never been pillaged by marauders, like most monuments of ancient Egypt.

Welsh Discovered America

Landed 300 Years Before Columbus Made His Appearance

The legend of the white Indians, and the claim that America was discovered by a Welshman, were revived at Cardiff, Wales, recently during the Eisteddfod when books relating to the part played by Wales in world history were exhibited.

Legend has it that the American continent was discovered by Prince Madoc in the twelfth century, 300 years before the discovery by Columbus from North Wales across the Atlantic with a fleet of 12 ships and 300 men.

It is declared that he landed near the mouth of the Mississippi and settled there with the men and women made friends with the Indians, and ultimately formed themselves into a tribe of white Indians.

Ellsworth Hopes To Be Mate Of Ship In Antarctic

Lincoln Ellsworth, who recently completed an aerial survey over the Antarctic continent, said he would like to explore the Australian desert by camel. He had no definite plans, however, for the venture.

Ellsworth said in an interview that he would soon go of exploring still to be done in the Antarctic and he expected to do some of it.

The explorer landed in Los Angeles in March after an absence of almost a year.

New Jersey Doctor To Use Surgical Grafting Principle

Sixteen - year - old John Seeley's hope for artificial restoration of the arms he lost last November under the wheels of a train at Nutley, New Jersey, rested to-day on application of a 65-year-old surgical grafting principle.

A Newark orthopedic surgeon, starting with an operation at Beth Israel Hospital, expects to apply the discovery of an Italian physician, Vanghetti, about 1870, using muscle grafts to connect artificial limbs.

The surgeon, who has asked his name be withheld, has been engaged by the crippled children's committee of the Nutley Elks Lodge. As he described the operation, a flap of the patient's skin is drawn into a tube and inserted under the muscle. This operation will be performed twice on each of the stumps of Seeley's arms. When the tissues have healed, he said, cineplastic arms would be attached to the flaps. The artificial arms and fingers then would be operated with the flexing of the muscles.

New Device Invented

Artificial Ear Gives Effect Of Sound On Human System

An artificial ear, for the exact measurement of sound, and its effect on the human system, has been invented by Dr. Vladimir Novak at Prague. It is to be used by the Czecho-Slovak Ministry of Health in its investigations into the noise problem. Previous sound-measuring devices are stated either to have been too subjective, which has led to inaccurate results being obtained, or difficulty in calculation, or they have not measured the true effect of various sounds on the delicate mechanism of the human ear. The new device, it is claimed, represents exactly, in an easily measurable form, the way in which sound affects the ear of a living person.

Prediction Made That Smoke Will Be Discharged Into Sea

Funnelless ocean liners in the near future was a prediction made by John Johnson, chief engineer of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd., addressing the Institution of Mechanical Engineers at London, England, recently.

Speaking on the future of steam propulsion, Mr. Johnson said that smoke and gases from the furnaces would be used until they were almost cold, the heat extracted from them being put to — for work.

ROYAL ASSENT GIVEN TO BILLS BEFORE RECESS

Ottawa.—Parliament started a 15-day Easter recess after Chief Justice Duff gave royal assent to the accumulated legislation passed through both houses.

In a last-minute spurt, the government bill to establish a national employment commission was rushed through the house and senate, giving the administration free scope during the adjournment to make necessary appointments and start it going.

Left among unfinished business was the government's relief bill which, among other provisions, would enable the Dominion to sign direct relief agreements with the provinces. The agreements lapsed March 31, the end of the fiscal year, and payments which have averaged 75 per cent. for the winter months were cut 15 per cent. in April. In the meantime it is assumed payments will continue from month to month until new agreements are negotiated but the rates have not been disclosed.

A supply bill of $51,167,000, representing the supplementary estimates for the year ending in March, went through both houses.

The most important of the bills receiving royal assent was the one ratifying the Canadian - American trade treaty.

Premier King told the house practically all important legislation has been presented to the house but he was unable to say definitely when the budget will come down. It has been forecast for the first week in May.

The house has been in session slightly more than two months and it probably will last into June, providing largely with the budget and the attitude of the opposition toward the government bill restoring a board of directors for the Canadian National Railways.

Another bill that received royal assent was one to distribute $4,500,000 among western farmers as a result of 1930 pool operations, both wheat and coarse grains. It looked earlier in the day as if it would not be included on the assent list but the house rushed through the amendments and all was serene. Distribution of the money now is only a matter of time.

Wheat Stocks Sold

Board Disposes Of 8,000,000 Bushels No. 1 Northern

Winnipeg—All stocks of old crop No. 2 Northern wheat held by the Canadian wheat board in eastern position were sold to-day, it was announced by the board. 8,000,000 bushels of this grade to export interests.

It was understood, however, that the sale, the largest in the cash grains market in some time, did not mean the board's withdrawal from movement out of the Dominion. It represented only a change in ownership, officials said.

Traders on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange were of the opinion there was a prospective demand for the wheat and that exporters were getting into a position to meet the demand. They expected the grain would be exported as soon as navigation opens

Defence Of India

Field Marshal Chetwode Says It Would Be Madness To Take Risks

London.—In considering the defence of India it would be madness to take risks, declared Field Marshal Sir Philip Chetwode in addressing the East India association. Sir Philip has just completed a five-year term as commander-in-chief of the forces in India.

"The Indian frontier", the field marshal said, "is vital, for it is within reach of the Russian menace which advances and recedes according to the state of the rest of the world and Russia's politics.

"Nobody now imagines the likelihood of war between the British Empire and Russia, but as was seen in the last year, international situations alter rapidly. The Russians have the biggest and possibly the best equipped army and air force in the [illegible]."

British War Film

Has Been Temporarily Banned By The Movie Censor

London.—A film depicting the horrors of war was always presently here after it had been banned for the time being at least by the Marquess of Crewe, movie censor.

The actual warfare scenes, the film gives the views on war of the average Englishman, ranging from pacifism to militarism. It ends by appealing to the public to intervene with their respective parliaments and obtain from them a pledge always to vote against war.

Suppression of the film caused much criticism. H. G. Wells in a newspaperman "it would be outrageous if a film of such public importance were suppressed."

In the face of criticism, Lord Crewe has decided to submit the film to the ministry of war for its approval or rejection.

Further Discussions Likely

Finance Minister Plans Conference With Governments Of West

Ottawa. — Both Finance Minister Dunning and Premier T. D. Pattullo of British Columbia were non-committal after their conversations on financial questions. It was intimated no definite move would be taken with respect to the problem of Dominion-provincial financial relations until there had been further discussions between the finance ministers and governments of the western provinces.

Such conferences will have to await the prorogation of provincial legislatures, Mr. Dunning said, and that probably will not be before May. In the meantime the minister has been in communication with provincial premiers.

Cattle Must Be Treated

Announcement Is Made Of New Ruling On Exports

Ottawa. — Cattle exported from Canada to England, Wales and Scotland between March 15 and June 30 will have to be treated with a preparation which will reduce the hazard of introducing the warble fly, it was announced to-day following conference by the department of agriculture.

Canadian cattle for export to the British Isles will be treated by officials of the health of animals branch of the agriculture department or under official supervision. Treatment will be applied at the time cattle are tagged for shipping or export point. A certificate will be issued declaring the cattle have been treated.

Toronto.—League of Nations economic sanctions against Italy have been effective as far as Canada's business with Italy is concerned, a report of the committee on import and export trade of the Ontario Retail Grocers' Association said.

The report said there had been a cessation of Canadian imports from Italy of olive oil, anchovies, shelled pistachio nuts, shelled almonds, filberts in the shell, sorrento walnuts, lemons, limes and maraschino cherries.

"The sanctions have been of considerable benefit to Spain, which now supplies most of the articles mentioned above.

FRENCH TROOPS STAND GUARD ON EASTERN BORDER

Paris. — The French government has ordered 178,000 troops—about half of the country's peace-time army—back with the colors until further notice pending outcome of negotiations to settle the Rhineland crisis.

The order, announced in a decree signed by War Minister Gen. Louis Felix Maurice, applies to troops whose term of service would ordinarily end April 15. Many of them are stationed in the steel-and-concrete Maginot defence line on the eastern border, fully manned since December Adolf Hitler's armed stride into the Rhineland. France's peace-time army is about 375,000 men.

The number of conscripts available to France during 1936, 1937 and 1938 — the "lean years" resulting from the low birth rate during the war years of 1916, 1917 and 1918 — is far below the previous averages The men were understood to be linked with partial mobilization moves considered by the French government during the week prior to the Rhineland occupation in March, following confidential reports from Andre Francois-Poncet, French ambassador at Berlin.

It was asserted that the Maginot line can only be considered fully effective when it is manned by thoroughly trained men. Several months are required before the men become familiarized with the complicated auxiliary intricacies of the subterranean and other forts of the defense building.

A large number of French troops were immediately despatched to eastern frontier towns and villages following the Rhineland coup The moves would have been rendered in effective had they been ordered until 000 troops on April 15, military experts said.

The moves it was said in charge of the nation's French security demands and to uphold France's pos tige before Europe during the current negotiations

May Call At Halifax

Nova Scotians Likely To See Liner Queen Mary

Halifax Great Britain's bid for the "blue ribbon" of the Atlantic, the new liner Queen Mary, may visit Nova Scotia this summer.

The government of Nova Scotia has been endeavoring for months to have the Queen Mary call at Halifax in order that the people of this province may have an opportunity of seeing the world's premier liner" Jon A S MacMillan, minister of highways, said in a statement

The information we have at present is that while a cruise to Halifax during her early voyage will not be possible until in a distinct possibility that later in the season this will be arranged.

The Nova Scotia liner built by the Cunard White Star Line will attempt to wrest the supremacy of the Atlantic from the French liner Normandie on May 27 when she starts her dash across the ocean from Southampton to New York

Late Seeding In Alberta

But Crop Yield Is Not Likely To Be Affected

Calgary. — Farmers of Alberta faced the prospect of a late seeding season, possibly the latest in 10 years, particularly in central and northern Alberta, according to a survey made by local agriculturists There need be no great apprehension yet, however, regarding the possible crop yield, they said

In many areas fields were under deep snow and it will be many days before the land is fit to work Warmer weather would have brought promise of more favored fields

Last year at Agec, 30 might per cent of the fields had been seeded and the 10-year average at April 20 was 25 per cent In 1926 one of Alberta's best crop years with 50 per cent was seeded on April 20

Coronation Date

Will Be Proclaimed In London With Much Ceremony

London.—The date of May, 1937, upon which the coronation of King Edward will take place will be proclaimed next month with much the same ceremony as attended the proclamation of His Majesty upon his accession to the throne last January

Heralds and pursuivants will attend the great officers of the College of Arms, who will make the announcement at the same historic four points in London from which the accession proclamation was delivered. These are St. James' palace, Charing Cross, Temple Bar and the Royal Exchange

The actual date will probably be announced in the House of Commons by Prime Minister Baldwin on the same day as the Duke of Norfolk, in his capacity as earl marshal, issues the proclamation

PLAN TO ENLARGE NEWS SERVICE OVER THE RADIO

Ottawa Establishment of facilities whereby radio Lieutenants may be given more frequent Canadian news broadcasts was recommended to the parliamentary committee on radio by a delegation representing the radio committee of the Canadian Press.

In a brief which described the services on the air brought into Canada direct from United States lack of British characters and were often inaccurate and misleading, three alternative suggestions were laid before the committee as a means of increasing the present facilities for Canadian coast-to-coast news broadcast to three or four.

W. B. Preston, managing director of the Brantford Expositor and president of the Canadian Press, told the committee if facilities are provided for daytime national network broadcasting the Canadian Press would furnish the news service free as it now does on the single night by broadcast

Board of expense involved the coast-to-coast network of the Canadian radio commission operates only during evening hours, Preston told the committee who displayed a keen interest in the subject agreed that increased broadcasts of a Canadian and British character were desirable. The matter will be discussed further when the committee meets again after the Easter parliamentary recess.

E. Norman Smith, vice-president of the Ottawa Journal and honorary president of the Canadian Press and J. F. B. Livesay, Toronto general manager joined with Mr Preston in submitting the argument

SECURITY PLAN OF FRANCE SAID NOT ACCEPTABLE

London France's all-Europe security plan received a lukewarm reception in the press. Newspapers generally urged the British government to resume its efforts to bring the powers together for the purpose of devising a European settlement.

The French proposals, said the Daily Telegraph, "in part are wholly impracticable. Recent experience in international complications made it clear that a policy of pure confidence to by all nations is a notion that has only the most remote relation to actual conditions in Europe. The French reply throws back upon the British government the task of exploring the path to negotiation Until negotiations can be begun the several visions of a pacified Europe are as receding mirages."

The Daily Herald said the immediate problem was to prepare the way for a collective effort to incorporate the results of the French and German plans, with such other proposals as other nations may contribute into a practical, generally acceptable whole.

The Times said doubts will be felt whether all the French suggestions are feasible. Europe can hardly be described as ripe or ready for the large negotiations of sovereignty implied but the suggestions as a whole constitute an elaborate far-reaching plan "to be met with candor and not in criticism. It is to be examined together with the German proposals so the present moment never the mandate purpose must be to clear away the obstacles in the way of discussion of a permanent examination for order of peace."

Church Hospital Burned

Nurses Played Heroic Part In Fire At Ukrich

Ukrich, N.W. Hospital of the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada was destroyed by fire here. Patients housed in the building were removed safely to other sections of the settlement. There was no loss of life.

Three Toronto-trained nurses played a heroic part in rescuing the patients. Miss M. A. Mellor, Toronto, was in charge of the hospital. Miss Ruth Hamilton, of Port Hope, and Miss Hutchison, of Hamilton, were the other graduate nurses at the hospital.

A modified eight-bed hospital was given by Col. and Mrs. Leonard of St Catharines Ont. It was electrically equipped and had been enlarged in 1931 to 18 beds, with a new X-ray machine and an enlarged operating room. Damage was estimated at over $25 000

STOCKS OF WHEAT IN CANADA DOWN

OTTAWA, April 15.—Stocks of wheat in Canada on March 31 were about 37,000,000 bushels below the corresponding date last year, according to a crop report just issued by the dominion bureau of statistics on Tuesday. Stocks at the end of March in Canada were given as 246,922,849 and a year ago at 283,922,184.

The 1936 figure was the lowest for that date of any year since 1930, when the total was 228,416,347 bushels. In addition to the stocks of Canadian wheat in Canada on March 31 last, there were 16,135,165 bushels of Canadian wheat in the U. S. making the total in both countries 262,158,954 bushels as compared with 299,749,329 in the same positions a year ago.

Stocks of wheat on farms, including seed supplies, amounted to 16,116,000 bushels, which was 11,241,000 bushels below the farm holdings at March 31, 1935, and was the lowest farm stock at this date since 1925.

PARKING BY-LAW APPEARS IN THIS ISSUE STANDARD

Will Be Great Convenience To Farmers and Shoppers

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the new town by-law relating to parking restrictions in Vermilion. All are asked to peruse it carefully and fully acquaint themselves with the different areas. There is nothing complicated about the matter. The restrictions will be a great step forward in safety and will prove much more convenient for farmers and shoppers during the busy shopping periods on Saturday evenings.

Vermilion is but following the lead of Wainwright in this respect, in the southern town, traffic has been regulated for years. This is also true of Vegreville.

Many complaints were made by farmers and out of town shoppers on Saturday evenings due to the great inconvenience of the old system of bi and mine parking. A farmer would purchase his week's supplies or maybe some heavy hardware, and then he would have to hunt around for some one to the store with his car or truck, and by the time he got back it would be at least a half hour away. Under the new parking by law, this inconvenience will be done away with. Mr Shopper will find that no store entrance is blocked, the cars will be parked in the middle of the road and he will be able to drive up to the main entrance of the store with his car or truck, load up his supplies and drive away unhindered. Another cause of complaint was that people who parked their cars next to the corner at the east end of the park, would come to get them and find them completely hemmed in by cars on both sides and that they would be unable to move them for some time.

Most of the changes effected have been suggested by citizens and a study of the town by the by-law is by no means rigid and changes will be made if found necessary. A further study is made for the safety of all and for the convenience of the farmer and visitor to the town. The restrictions are not to...

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

There has been some criticism of the high school for having too many absence. This criticism is unfair and probably results from ignorance of the facts in this connection. The dates allotted to the school have always been determined by at least three of the teachers. They usually stop promptly at 3:15 p.m. An average of only one day per month has been held since the term started. On account of this unfair, unfounded and prejudiced criticism the students were deprived of their Easter dance which they were justly entitled to. Any who have criticisms should always get the facts before starting to talk.

All students resumed rather regularly to their studies after a splendid Easter vacation. Practice for the musical festival is now going strong and baseball is beginning to range to...

HORNBY SETTLEMENT PLAN FULLY DISCUSSED

One of the fullest discussions ever accorded any scheme by the Board of Trade took place on Wednesday when, following the regular luncheon, the Hornby plan of settlement was debated. A new idea was worked out regarding this, four members of the Board leading the debate, two on each side of the affirmative and negative, then throwing the topic wide open for the regular debaters period of argument. As a result every strong and weak point of the scheme was brought to light and a good many of the members took part in the open forum. The debaters themselves were affirmative—Carl Heckbert and Frank Hall; negative—H. W. Brown and Tom Watts. These four gentlemen are to be commended for the manner in which they prepared their notes and also for the clear, concise way in which they were presented.

Following the complete controversy the following motion was handed in by Dr. Scott and seconded by J. W. G. Morrison, that Dr. Bell Mr. Morrison Mr. Andrews and Mr. Allen bring in a resolution at our next meeting, inviting all surrounds to be adopted. In the Board re the Hornby plan and that this plan be voted on at the next meeting.

Mr. H. Easton made a very efficient chairman and C. W. Robinson introduced the speakers. A further social evening followed in the form of a dance, which was enjoyed by a large number of members and friends.

VARIETY OF WEATHER HOLDS UP LAND WORK

76 in Shade Last Friday, But Snow This Week

A temperature of 76 in the shade last Friday sent hopes hurtling skyward that we were now in for unsettled spring weather and a real summer. Saturday the weather continued the but a high wind blew from the east bringing with it snow and rain during the night, and here we are temperatures have since prevailed May-snow fell Tuesday night and Wednesday morning but quickly melted.

Work, which started last week, and on the land, is now held up but a little warm day would put the farmers at spring work in real earnest. The thermometer reading of 76 above was the highest reading of the week. This was a Monday morning.

All main roads are passable for cars, those rounded into condition faster than in any spring for many years. Moisture has disappeared quickly but considerable snow remains in the bushes and shaded spots.

A FAMOUS DAY

April 23 is quite a famous day in Vermilion as it is claimed that no less than 23 citizens of the town celebrate their anniversaries on that date, and ... a conspicuous burial day also.

FAIR BOARD MAKES PLANS

A meeting of the directors of the Vermilion Agricultural Society was held in the Town hall on Saturday afternoon, April 18, with President Wm. Stone in the chair and Wallace Hall, secretary present, matters pertaining to the holding of the 1936 fair were discussed and plans were laid for the holding of Vermilion's thirty-first annual fair.

The prize list as prepared last year by a committee was adopted and lists will shortly be ready for the public to which they have for some years contributed the greater part of the prize money. The holding of the 1936 fair will be a greater opportunity to participate in the awards, the new Regional map will appear shortly in the town and prospective exhibitors are urged to take note of the boundaries as set forth in the map and to be prepared to ...rouble in the area to begin to ...stock for the Vermilion fair, the greater the number of exhibitors the greater the opportunity for a keen race to place in the prizes, which will be as follows: 1st, $15.00; 2nd, $10.00; 3rd, $7.50; the money to be divided among the exhibitors in the winning region according to the number of points won.

Dates for the 1936 Fair will remain continuation of the Girls and Boys Camp, the Vermilion fair carried on the largest such camp in the province of Canada in 1935 with a total attendance of 212 young people, a small number can be accommodated this year and preference will be given those children who have not previously attended a camp. All persons who are their children to take advantage of this camp should make reservations at as early a date as possible.

The Vermilion fair requires the support of the citizens of the district and all who possibly can do so are urged to take membership in the society, this involves no obligation or cost so far and you may be sure that your support will be most sincerely appreciated.

Vermilion will hold its fair on 1st and 2nd of July this year and ready plans call for the holding of a mammoth basketball tournament and a speedy programme of horse races. Further information will be released to the public in the near future.

SCHOOL FAIR MEETING

The annual meeting of the Vermilion School Fair was held in the Council chamber on Tuesday evening, April 21st, with a fair attendance present. Reports of the various committees were read and adopted and the following officers elected for the ensuing year:

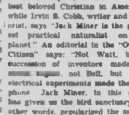
Famed Naturalist At 71, Counts His Wealth in Friends

Jack Miner celebrated his 71st birthday April 10th Edgar A. Guest, the Detroit poet, terms him "the friendliest man I ever met" and "the best beloved Christian in America"; while Irvin S. Cobb, writer and humorist, says "Jack Miner is the greatest practical naturalist on the planet." An editorial in the "Ottawa Citizen" says: "Not Wait, but a succession of inventors made the steam engine, not Bell, but many electrical experiments made the telephone Jack Miner, in this sense has given us the bird sanctuary." In other words, popularized the sanctuary idea

While his hair is turning somewhat white, otherwise no one can notice the years creeping on him, because he is as active and as enthusiastic in the study of bird life as he was twenty years ago.



JACK MINER, NATURALIST

The world knows he is poor financially, and they say: "It's biggest asset is my friends throughout the world, and the good health the good Lord has blessed me with. The friends are something money cannot buy. Some men can count their money, but I can't count my friends."

In his birthday interview, he said: "If it were not for children, flowers, birds and music especially children . . I would have no desire to carry on." And his advice to young men is: "Don't work all your life to make a living, but work to live all your life"

When asked what he thought about world affairs, he said: "The hope of the world is more love and less pig-skin kind of education, and less bayonet-point compulsion."

Speaking of religion, he said "There is too much churchianity and not enough Christianity, and the world needs more evangelism and less apologetics."

Everybody knows he never uses tobacco in any form, and never drinks anything stronger than water but he said to-day, "Tea cannot judge the size and quality of any man's heart by the smell of his breath

In closing the interview, he said "If a man is built of the right material, the more you sit on him the broader it will make him

"Be sure you're right and then go ahead because you will be criticized if you do, and you will be criticized if you don't, so, do and be criticized but to escape criticism, say nothing do nothing and be nothing."

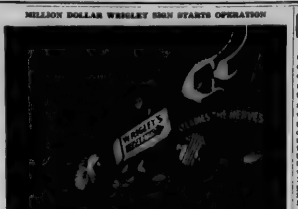
MILLION DOLLAR WRIGLEY SIGN STARTS OPERATION



The new Wrigley Spearmint Gum Sign on Times Square, New York City, a million dollar project, largest of its kind in the world, was formally dedicated and put into operation on Saturday evening, March 28th.

The sign occupies the entire block on Broadway from 44th to 45th Street on the east side of Times Square. The new sign is a superstructure on the top of a two story steel and concrete building built especially to bear the tremendous weight of the display. This world's largest spectacular towers ten stories high; the Spearman on the sign has a grin a yard wide. The package of Wrigley's Spearmint is larger than a bouncer.

The sign shows gigantic, multi-coloured, tropical fish swimming about the sky; the largest fish measures 42 feet from tip to tail. The flashing mechanism consists of 21 pieces of apparatus, all operating in unison, but no piece is synchronized with another. The electrical current required for this huge display would serve a city of ten thousand. There are 1,584 feet of neon tubing and almost twenty miles of wire used. The investment on the entire project is a cool million dollars.

Hundreds of thousands of people will pass the sign each day; the number who pass daily through the subway at Times Square is estimated to be almost equal to the population of Toronto.

Have Every Freedom

Spanish Women Not Cloistered As In Old Days

The long-sheltered women of Spain have been released from behind the romantic iron grills that used to shut them off from the world to invade fields once reserved to them.

While 25 years ago the number of women in Spanish universities could be counted on the fingers of the hands, to-day in some of the faculties, such as philosophy and literature in the University of Madrid, there are more women than men.

The republic overnight gave Spanish women the vote and in Madrid more women voters are registered than men. Where a woman, distinguished in some branch of learning used to be a rarity, to-day there are scores of women whose names are known throughout Spain.

Years ago most Spanish girls could not go out unattended until an advanced age. Those in moderate circumstances went with their mothers or married sisters. Those in wealthy families were attended by duennas who never left them alone in public for a moment. To-day girls, alone or accompanied by companions of their own age, are seen in public just as in other parts of the world.

Life is just a merry-go-round. We have to work to get a loan and then work twice as hard to get rid of it.

Part of South Africa's government mint in Pretoria may be converted into an ammunition factory.

Dividing Of Territory

Nations With Vast Expanses And Those Who Have Not.

Nations of the world could be divided into those who have "leave" and the "have nots"—Major-General W. A. Griesbach, of Edmonton, told the United Services Institute of Nova Scotia at its annual meeting in Halifax.

One class, including Great Britain, Canada and Australia had vast expanses of productive territory, while the other, including Germany, Japan and Italy, had no room for expanding population.

Sooner or later the British Empire, with its tremendous resources, would be challenged,' Senator Griesbach said.

"This may mean war and tribulation for us, but history tells us that that is the age long test by which the nations are judged in their struggles to survive, to be happy, to be free, to be secure."

YOUR GARDEN

In the fairly large garden there is a special place for fruit. This end of the business is often neglected especially in those not infrequent sections of Canada where the winter is severe and the summer season short. But there is some fruit which may be grown almost up to the Arctic Circle. Under garden conditions where it is difficult or expensive to get imported supplies. In this connection early cherries like the Richmond, early apples such as Yellow Transparent, St. Lawrence and Red Astrachan, or some of the new varieties developed by the Experimental Farm authorities, are worth considering. Where space is very limited it is quite feasible, through grafting or budding, to have several varieties of fruit on a single tree. This applies to apples and pears especially.

In recent years there has been a good deal of interest in rock gardens which is a very natural development when it is realised that artistic results can be secured. Where the ground slopes sharply this sort of treatment is particularly effective. Large irregular boulders are sunk well into the ground and the little alpine plants are grown in the earth pockets between. Most of these plants originated in the rocky slopes of the old lands and in our own mountainous sections. In rock gardens they change an ugly or waste spot into a very attractive miniature garden with a profusion of bloom. In special sections of the seed catalogues will be listed suitable plants with the height and time of blooming so that there will be no difficulty in making a selection. About 40 different types of all colours and sizes are available from the Dominion Experimental Farm, Vioma, Primates which grow up to eight inches in height, through the Dominion Alpine Arabis, Campanulas Linarias, to the taller Erigeron, Centaurea, Coreopsis and Geum and Pyrethrum and others.

Climbing plants are important part in any scheme of landscape gardening, adding a finishing touch to a wall, fence or verandah. It is not possible by any other means. There is a mistaken idea that such plants may be harmful to brick or stone work, but there are many old buildings in the old lands which have been supporting vines for centuries and the walls under these green mantles are said to be in an excellent state of preservation. Aside from the fact that climbers add a little trouble to the job of painting the structure around doors and windows, subterranean clubs that there are no harmful effects whatever.

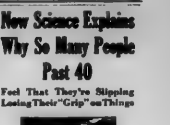
Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things



Many people 'round 40 think they're growing old." They feel tired, a lot . . . "weak." Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "Phillips'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Made in Canada.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM
Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a spoonful of liquid. Just chew and swallow. Price 40 cents.

JESUS LOOKS AT WEALTH AND POVERTY

Golden text: The rich and the poor meet together: The Lord is the maker of them all. Proverbs 22 2

Devotional reading: 1. John 3 13-18.

Explanations And Comments

The Parable of Dives and Lazarus, Luke 16 19-31 The first two verses of our text has "the most perfect picture of wealth and want that can perhaps be found in any literature. The "certain rich man" we call, for convenience, Dives, the Latin word for "a rich man." The extreme luxury in which Dives was living is pictured by the costly purple outer robe and fine linen undergarment and sumptuous table. The purple robe was of rich material dyed with the liquid obtained from the shellfish murex. You recall that Lydia, the first convert to Christianity in Europe, was "a seller of purple", Acts 16 14. The fine linen was made from a rare flax that grew only in the banks of the Nile and was so finely woven as to be almost transparent.

Lazarus, the name of the beggar, is a contraction of Eleazar, which means "Help of God", and was perhaps given to him indicate his character, for there is no more virtue in being poor than in being rich. This beggar, covered with loathsome sores, lay at the gate of Dives pretending to live on the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table, but the only attention he received was from the dogs which roamed the streets as scavengers. These dogs licked his sores and must have increased his misery with their rasping tongues

In time it came to pass that both Dives and Lazarus died, the one because he sheered. Dives doubtless died of overfeeding and overdrinking, just as Lazarus, died of starvation and exposure. The beggar was carried away by the angels into Abraham's bosom.

The rich man is found in torment in Hades

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. KRATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen called together with the object of forming an irrigation organization.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton has other plans; Helen Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. Fleming explains and secures Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he assures him, his "spread" Buzz shoots at Fleming in an unprovoked fit of anger but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to put irrigation over and Helen's help to persuade Fleming to buy her own properties.

Fleming buys home and studies the plans drawn by Torney to learn whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that wrecks the house it and the plans and renders Link unconscious. He is rescued from the flame by his employee

Helen and Link ride to Rawhide for supplies and to obtain funds to carry out the project. Fleming remeet Roper, who greets Helen and refuses to deal with Link. Fleming to see the Sheriff who tells him Buzz Hamilton has been paroled and would arrive on the morning stage

Buzz Hamilton arrives back in Rawhide and Fleming is shocked to see in the bank getting a loan for payment of water rights on the dam Roper Kilgo and Jackpot Meil meet him and he goes into the saloon with them By the time his sister and Link come from the bank Buzz has had several drinks. Roper has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposed to Buzz, causing it appear that Link was trying to rob him Buzz, influenced with liquor and anger, tries to throttle Fleming, but is thrown to the floor. Then Helen appears and tells Fleming she has been robbed of the $800 they had obtained from the bank.

On their arrival home they were met by a couple of Link's workmen, who told Fleming that there was a strike on the job and that the men were afraid they would not get their wages. Link told them of the robbery and promised them their money as soon as possible The men reluctantly returned to work.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XII.

Half an hour after the irrigation workers had concluded to return to their toil, Fleming emerged from the ranch house at sound of a horseman approaching He recognized Marty Bush, the local cattle agent Starting to meet him, Link stopped, his attention drawn to a bit of paper in the dust where marks of Valite's body still showed.

He picked up the crinkled sheet, smoothed it out, and read in pencilled scrawl: "Keep on the job. We'll run this guy out yet."

Fleming looked up as Bush came closer. "Howdy, Link. Have a cancinner cigar. Ha, ha," he added, noting his friend's scowl, "what yuh got there, a love note without any love?"

"Nothing important," he added, not having had a run-in with Cyp Valite when he tried to get my men on the Bonsers' payroll. Looks to me like Cyp dropped this. What do you think of it?"

The cattle agent read the note, and handed it back looking thoughtful. "Somebody above put Cyp up to thrown' monkey wrenches in the machinery of buildin' yore dam. But who would it be? Otto Pieper, maybe? You owe Otto considerable money, don't yuh. Link? And in case it came to a sheriff's sale the Stockmen's Bank'd come off first bet.

He pursed his lips as again he studied the writing. "This isn't like Pieper's hand. Besides, I hardly think he would hire a man like Valite to try to reach a stake gang and get my workers to strike. No," he mused, "somebody else is behind Cyp."

"Break a sluice gate, eh?" Bush gave a low whistle. "Well, you'll have to keep your eyes open, Link. Some folks can't get along without perty's into other folks' business and when you push aside a couple of enemies, buildin' that dam.

"By the way," he went on, chuckling, "you should've seen Cyp Valite's face when he met Roper, who greets Helen and Link from the street and manager. These dogs licked his sores and must have increased his misery with their rasping tongues

In time it came to pass that both Dives and Lazarus died, the one because he sheered. Dives doubtless died of overfeeding and overdrinking, just as Lazarus, died of starvation and exposure. The beggar was carried away by the angels into Abraham's bosom.

Bush made no reply for a moment. "I'd like to see you hold your beef another ten days, Link. I've studied the market quite some time now, and it's my judgment you'd get more money. Steers for market ain't so plentiful, but it won't be reflected in price till shipments sag under heat yore."

"Marty, just between us—and I wouldn't say this to another man in the county—Helen and I have to sell now. We've got to have cash, or else . . ." He gestured significantly.

"Hmm. Heard about her gettin' robbed of that eight hundred." The agent cast a sidelong glance at Link. "Hit you purty hard?"

Fleming nodded. "Look here," Marty proceeded, "I want to see yuh get top price for your beef because you're really short of money. I'd like to sell me a hundred acres o' that wasteland, would yuh, Link?"

The latter laid a hand on his friend's knee. "Do you believe in the dam?"

"General opinion's against it, yuh know And I backed out on—"

"I wouldn't sell you a hundred acres of said gold, Marty, unless you really had faith in it."

There was a full minute of silence The cattle agent's cherubic countenance wore a troubled look. Finally he said: "Link, would yuh—uh—like to borrow a couple hundred?"

Fleming was wholly surprised. He happened to know that Marty's diminutive wife, Lenore, had just received from an cousin illness "Thanks," he said with feeling. "I couldn't give security except my cattle. I'm hoping to keep clear because I'll need every cent they'll bring. And more, I reckon."

Bush made no reply but produced a checkbook. He dug inside his calfskin jacket, produced a two-inch-thick pocket, fished a pen from his boot's top. "Ho hum!" he yawned, rising to stretch wearily. "There's five hundred in small bills. Thought that'd suit yuh best. I get it to ride over to Bridge Bonsers' place an' talk beef with him. So long."

"Marty! Well," Link confessed, exceedingly pleased as he fingered the money, "I guess you're crazy, but—oh, shucks!" he exclaimed. "I'm sure obliged!"

"No?" mockingly. "Link, get that Triple H an' Star Long beef to Holmes Junction early Thursday morning, and I'll fix you up. Want thousand money above put Cyp up to throwin' monkey wrenches in the machinery of buildin' yore dam. But who would it be? Otto Pieper, maybe? You owe Otto considerable money, don't yuh. Link? Returns To Ottawa

Dominion Cartilleur Has Studied Fifteen Months In Europe

The bells that rang out from the memorial tower, and play to work hustling members of parliament and dignified Senators, are again under the direction of Percival Price Dominion carilleur He has returned to Ottawa from a 15-months sojourn in Europe, where he used the Pulitzer prize granted him for his "Symphony of the Bells" to further study and research of music.

High up in an office nestled like an eyrie in the tower Mr. Price over reaps of research in medieval city archives for ancient music of ancient monastery chimes modern monks had forgotten to play, and the beauty of opera in Warsaw and of the interest expressed in Canada's carillon in Parliament Hill.

So interested are many musicians, programmes are underway for an international congress of carilloneurs in Ottawa this summer English, French and Belgian authorities intended to send representatives.

During most of his time in Europe Mr. Price studied with Wetzig either in Vienna or Berlin. He spent several months in Belgium in the Royal Belgian Archives where he found a parchment of 1648. Equally usable ancient music was found in the Bodleian Library in Oxford.

Reduce Relief Lists

Tourist Trade Expected To Give More Employment To Women

A statement issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, that the number of persons in receipt of relief in the month of January, 1936 totalled 1,429,000 persons, a decrease of 1,000 persons as compared with the previous month and a decrease of 1,000 persons as compared with the same month in 1935. The number of persons in receipt of relief in January, 1936 represented 11.4 per cent. of the estimated population of Canada.

COL. W. C. CRAIG
PRESIDENT OF NORTH BATTLEFORD B. OF T.

Last week's North Battleford weekly reminiscences carried a two column story on an interview with Col. W. C. Craig, President of the Board of Trade of that city. The story recalled to mind that Col. Craig was the first secretary of the Vermilion B. of T. away back in the years 1906 and '07. The Saskatchewan city board has had a very active year under the Colonel's guidance and met with much success in their undertakings.

DERWENT DRIBBLES

After seven weeks of Lent our town is again bristling with activity. Easter has been one of muddy and slushy roads but that did not prevent a record crowd from attending the play and dance in the Ukrainian National hall on Monday April 13. The evening was certainly well spent in enjoyment, it has been a long time since such mirth and hilarity were displayed in a social entertainment. Derwent orchestra was in attendance.

A birthday surprise party was made by local boys and girls for Pete Nemeth, Good un prevailed throughout the evening with many humorous games being played. Refreshments were served. April 7th will be long remembered by those who attended the surprise party. Best wishes Peter

We are pleased to see Mrs. Annie among us Iwa Kobylnyk. Dan is at reading the University of Alberta where he is a third year engineering student. Dan also is a keen hand in the Varsity exams.

Another dance was held in the town hall on Saturday, April 18. Real enjoyment promised for all.

Farmers were thinking of beginning seeding work, but plan snow has again fallen.

BASIC FACTS RE FERTILIZERS

The whole question of the use of fertilizers resolves itself into a question of the study by soil and crop technicians in Canada, and the experts of the world. It is explained, places C. H. Robinson, the Dominion Chemist, that much is yet to be learned from experimental work, and that conclusions in regard to the use of fertilizers may change materially in years to come. A number of basic facts have already been determined however and these are centered around the per cent three essential elements of plant food—nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. Further work is being done in regard to the relationship between the fibber investment and the physical chemical and biological components of the soil may assume an important role in directing the use of fertilizers in the future.

The placement of fertilizers has received much attention in recent years at the Dominion Experimental Farms, the Provincial Experimental Stations, the universities by the educational departments of one or two of the larger manufacturers and by the U. S. S. More and more it is being realized that the economic use of commercial fertilizers to produce maximum yields depends greatly on the placement of the fertilizer with respect to the seed and plant roots. For cereal crops a series of rates or application are used to generally recommend that starting in the fertilizer with the seed as great practice For this purpose certain special attachments to the seed drill may be used With low crops the best results may be expected when the fertilizer is placed in a narrow band along each side of the drill row a distance of ten to twelve from the seed, and at about the same depth as the seed or slightly more In fields which plow the fertilizer in this position are also obtained It is usually a dangerous practice to place the fertilizer in direct contact with the germ or other seed crop seeds, including peasons.

The uniform distribution of the fertilizer is also important in obtaining evidences of stand and heavy yields from the crop The modern fertilizer machinery already mentioned is designed to distribute the fertilizer evenly All set where applied broadcast the fertilizer should be spread as uniformly as possible It is more difficult to distribute uniformly the lighter weight fertilizers such as 16-16-0 or ammonium phosphate It is quite important that the fertilizer be placed in the soil uniformly applying machinery gives satisfactory distribution

There has been much improvement in the physical condition of fertilizers in recent years and the trend in this respect is towards the manufacture of fertilizers in granular form. Fertilizers in granular form lend themselves to a more uniform application than the

News from Islay

The house located on the farm owned by Mr. J. Pyle, about four miles west of town, was completely destroyed by fire on Tuesday of last week. The origin of the fire was a mystery. The occupants of the farm are Mr and Mrs. W Bellingham and family and the fire occurred in the afternoon. Mrs. Bellingham had gone out into the yard to gather some chips to start a fire in the stove and she noticed then that the roof was ablaze. Her husband in attempting to dampen the fire on the roof with water, was blown off by the high wind and in the fall suffered a broken wrist, in spite of this severe injury he and his wife carried everything from the house, thus saving all the household effects. An immediate start was made on a new dwelling.

Mr and Mrs Merlin Shea and baby Jane spent the Easter holidays with Mrs. Shea's parents in Saskatchewan.

DECISION FAVORS KELLOGG'S $25,000 SUIT DISMISSED

Action Over "Shredded Wheat" Trade Words Lost

TORONTO—Justice C. P. McTague dismissed an action at Osgoode Hall a few days ago, in which the Canadian Shredded Wheat Co., Ltd., Niagara Falls, claimed $25,000 from the Kellogg Company of Canada, Ltd., and Solomon Bunsh, Toronto, merchant, for alleged infringement of its registered trade marks.

The Canadian Shredded Wheat Co. Ltd. alleged that the Kellogg Company of Canada, Ltd. used the words "shredded wheat" or "shredded whole wheat biscuits" in connection with the sale of biscuits when they had had the words registered. The judgment delivered by Justice McTague was that such words "are common words, merely descriptive and have not acquired a secondary meaning in such manner as to give the plaintiff the relief sought"

"To require the defendant to change the form of its biscuits and to label each individual biscuit," Justice McTague said, "would be to impose an obligation too doubtful as to cost and would do more than a disturbance in saving the plaintiff of such continuance of the monopoly which it could further enjoy by patent or trade marks"

The Kellogg Company manufactures Kellogg's Corn Flakes, the original Corn Flakes, Kellogg's All-Bran, Kellogg's Pep Bran Flakes, Kellogg's Rice Krispies, Kellogg's Wheat Krispies, Kellogg's Whole Wheat Flakes, Kellogg's Kaffee-Hag Coffee. Kellogg's products are sold by all grocers and general merchants in every city, town, village and hamlet in Canada.

Attractive rank second among Canadian trains in the total value for the 1935 fruit crop. The production of 56,190,000 quarts valued at $2,249,000 in 1935 was well above the five-year average of 19,625,000 quarts worth $1,765,000.

Superphosphate is used on the largest scale as fertilizer material for single application in Eastern Canada and British Columbia, while ammonium phosphate is more popular in the Prairie Provinces.

By-Law No. 394

BY-LAW No. 394 BEING A BY-LAW OF THE TOWN OF VERMILION WITH RESPECT TO PARKING OF MOTOR VEHICLES ON CERTAIN STREETS IN SAID TOWN.

The Council of the Town of Vermilion enacts as follows:

1. No motor vehicles shall from and after the coming into force of this by-law be parked in those portions of 50th Street and First Street South contained in or between Alberta Avenue and Borden Avenue except in the centre of said portions of streets and then only in such spaces thereof as may be designated by parking signs.

2. No truck shall park on that portion of Bulyea and Alberta Avenues between Main Street and First Street South respectively, and all other motor vehicles thereon shall park only at the curb on the east side of said portion of said streets, and between as may be designated by parking signs.

To Our Subscribers

To date we are rather disappointed that more of our subscribers did not respond to the special request that an effort be made to place their paper in good standing. However, hope has not been lost and we are looking forward confidently to seeing many more sending in payments or ordering into the office.

If 41 of our readers came in and paid the regular annual subscription price to the paper for one year, the $61.50 received would be required to meet the cost of the paper used and the express paid on the Standard for the five issues of the current month.

From this you may figure out, from the date on your label, just how much CASH the management have put into the blank paper used in your issue of the Standard, working on a basis of a one thousand circulation.

We have no papers to give away — subscriptions must take care of all costs in this respect. Revenues from advertising and job printing are required to pay for the setting up of the reading matter and printing of your paper. This cost includes wages, power, inks, oils, etc. and there must as well be sufficient surplus to meet taxes and fire insurance premiums, before one cent of profit accrues to the business.

Just think things over and we feel quite sure your Sub. will soon be paid up.

With this issue "The Standard" is exactly 27 years old.

TOLLAND TIMES

Two meetings were held the week before Easter Sunday. The L.F.W.A. gathered at the home of Mrs. O. L. Walters and an exchange of ships and needs took place. It was decided to have no meeting in May, but one on June 12th at Mrs. Hank's place. Other picnic matters will be discussed.

The Juniors met at Raymond Preston's, turning out in full force, two new members joining. They will treat themselves to some picnic, the girls choice being bleeding hearts, lilies and geraniums; the boys all wanted strawberry plants, with an eye on future layer cakes filled with them! An attempt is being made to get the Union pictures to give a performance in Gaston school sometime early in June. The next meeting is to be at Margaret Ford's on May 2nd in the afternoon.

Mrs Axell was taken to Lloydminster hospital on Monday morning. Mrs. Chris Hansen motored in to the Vermilion hospital on Monday.

Mr and Mrs J Rasmussen motored to Vermilion on Sunday, visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Peterson.

Mr. H. Fergusson moved with his family into the old Gaston house recently.

The Queen Mary

Disappointment is probably in store for millions in the British Empire who have conceived the impression that the first trip of the Cunard-White Star's mighty liner, the Queen Mary, scheduled for May 27, is a world sporting event of the first magnitude with the blue ribbon of the Atlantic for speed as the stakes.

The record for the Atlantic was held for the British for 22 years by the Cunard Steamship Company's Mauretania until August, 1929, when the title passed to the Nor, flying the flag of Italy, and has not since been recovered by any vessel carrying the Union Jack.

Millions have been lost in balmy Britain since the Queen Mary is expected to win back the speed supremacy of the North Atlantic for Great Britain and as a result of the great amount of publicity given to this vessel during the course of her construction and on the occasion of her launching at Clydebank a few weeks ago they confidently anticipate that this consummation is to be achieved by the new boat but this according to the London Times, is not the purpose of the construction of this great steamship.

On the contrary the Times shatters this and other misconceptions of the purpose and mission of the Queen Mary. Not only was she not built to wrest the speed supremacy of the North Atlantic from another country but, we are told, she was not designed to be the most luxurious liner afloat, despite reams of descriptive material which has been published emphasizing the lavish nature of her appointments and equipment.

"The problem," says the Times, "was not to build a ship so big and so fast as to 'stagger creation'. The problem all along was to build 'the smallest and cheapest ship that could form one unit of a weekly service'."

Continuing the Times says: "Speed is very expensive; and a ship must be big to pay for it. On the other hand size is also expensive; and there is need for nice calculation. The Queen Mary is not meant to be the biggest and fastest ship afloat. She is not meant to be a 'luxury' ship at all. It has been made perfectly clear that the luxury will be there for those who can ask it, but one advantage of great size in a ship is that room can be made for all sorts of people, and the Queen Mary is not for the rich only."

However, if the Queen Mary is not designed to be the largest ship afloat or the fastest boat on the seven seas or even the most luxurious, she has claims to distinction which make her an impressive monument to the human resourceful for her creators, in the words stability, strength and safety and these attributes have been achieved without undue sacrifice of size, speed and lavishness.

On this certainty, the Queen Mary is of noble proportions and embodies the last word in naval architecture, marine engineering and scientific research.

Every conceivable device has been adopted to justify the claim made for the Queen Mary that she is the safest, most reliable and fast passenger ship aboard her will be safer than in their own homes. To quote a recent issue of Pearson's Weekly she is "so well equipped with scientific instruments that it will be literally possible, with a little adjustment, to send her from Southampton to New York without a man aboard" and, "she will be able to steam through impenetrable fog at 40 miles per hour automatically steered and protected from collision with ships and objects."

These devices include a 'radio searchlight' with which the Normandie is also fitted, a continuous beam of ultra-short radio waves which covers the horizon of the power of the advancing vessel and record electromagnetic tions on a sensitive receiver.

Another is the infra-red ray detector to locate other vessels or icebergs at a great distance in dense fog or black night "The latest detector of this kind," says the writer in Pearson's Weekly "is so sensitive to changes in heat waves that it can detect a man through a mile of heavy fog by the heat of his body."

The boat is equipped with an automatic helmsman, consisting of a gyro, electrically connected with the rudder post in such fashion that if the vessel deflects one half degree from the set course it will automatically be swung back on the true course. An "echo sounder" will guard the vessel set against striking a submerged wreck or iceberg groveler, which hardly show above the surface.

The Queen Mary is practically fireproof. Each cabin is safeguarded by a thermostatic alarm which automatically sets water sprinklers in action when the temperature rises above a certain level and the "electric eye" will be used to detect fire in the holds. At the slightest trace of smoke the electric eye will sound the alarm and release a stream of carbon dioxide gas, automatically selecting the burning hold and smothering the blaze

New Uniform Calendar Plan

Provides Intercontinental Holiday And Five Business Holidays Yearly

With a suggestion that it be put into effect on January 1, 1930, Rev. Father Jacob Wilhelm of Regina has drafted a reform calendar which provides for the days of the week always falling on the same dates of each month.

Under Father Wilhelm's plan the four quarters of the year are equal with 31 days for the first month of each quarter and 30 days each for the other two months except that 31 days are provided for December to give a total of 365 for the year. An extra day is wedged in between June 30 and July 1 every fourth year to be known as "leap day."

The year will start with January 1 labelled as "international holiday" and January 2 is to be a Sunday with December 31 a Saturday. If the calendar were adopted Good Friday would always fall on April 7 and Easter Monday on April 9.

It is suggested that Saturdays falling on January 1, April 1, July 1 and October 1 be made business holidays giving a little extension Monday on January 1, five business holidays each year The first four, according to Rev. Father Wilhelm would be known as rest days when everyone should carry out a review of his duties or pursuits.

The calendar is designed to offset objections of the Christian churches to the present calendar that it does provide for a year of 13 months containing 28 days each

Patient Revived

Apparently Dead For Some Minutes Is Resuscitated On Operating Table

Another case of a patient who "died" on the operating table, only to be brought back to life again by heart massage and injections of adrenalin, is described in the current issue of the British Medical Journal

The patient, Ernest Hinsley, about 45, of Waterloo, Ashton, is now normal again, but has no memory of having been to the operating theatre.

His heart, said Dr. J. V. Fiddian, surgery without warning and Hinsley ceased to breathe. Efforts at resuscitation began immediately and the "usual two or three minutes were wasted in fruitless artificial respiration."

Dr. Fiddian then resorted to cardiac massage. The heart responded two minutes without feeling any spontaneous movement of the heart. He said: "Then I injected 10 c.c. of adrenalin into the ventricle.

"The effect," he writes, "was immediate and dramatic. Before I had made such aqueous that followed the heart was felt to be enlarging and suddenly it began to beat again.

"It was several minutes more before spontaneous respiration was established, but from the first there was no further immediate anxiety."

The patient was returned to bed within his heart still beating tumultuously, in a remarkably short time of an overdose of adrenaline."

Smallest Book Printed With Sub Plates

The world's smallest book, which is a quarter of an inch long, three-sixteenths wide, and weighs a grain and a quarter, is for sale in London. The most surprising thing about the tiny book is that it is properly printed from minute copper plates, with ink, on paper, and not merely produced by photograph. The pages are stitched by hand and bound in leather. The various pages of the book contain stains on the paper, and can be read only with a magnifying glass. When the book was being printed in Worcester, Massachusetts, in 1923 it was found that the vibration of a passing motor-car was enough to blur the type.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should empty two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Then gases form. Poisons from this decaying food are absorbed into the blood. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Merely relieve constipation temporarily and you only get relief for a few hours. What you need are those good, old-fashioned, liver bile flow. Dr. Caldwell's Senna Laxative Pills are specially made to get the liver flowing freely and make bile flow. Don't take calomel. Calomel is a dangerous drug. Ask for Dr. Caldwell's Senna Laxative Pills by name. Refuse substitutes anything else. 30c.

Overcomes Difficulties

Youth Born Deaf And Dumb Learns To Talk And Graduates From University

Born deaf and dumb 23 years ago, Hillis Arnold, University of Minnesota graduate, has accomplished two objectives—speech and completion of a three-year mural painting project.

The mother, Mrs. A. C. Arnold, said she taught Hillis lip reading. She patiently enunciated words slowly. Hillis repeated them by watching how she formed the syllables with her lips. Unable to hear, he is unable to control his tone.

His mother with her hands, indicated when he was speaking too loudly or too softly. To-day he speaks in a clearly understandable moderate tone.

The youth entered the university of engineering school in 1931. In his senior year he began an art project, a series of murals for the library, a work of various engineering professions. To-day the job—108 feet of murals, 12 feet high—was completed and he was free to devote his time to another job, as instructor in the Minneapolis Institute of Art.

Building Flying Boats

Imperial Airways To Operate A World-Wide Service

More than 1,000 skilled men are engaged in Great Britain and Ireland, in building a fleet of 29 giant flying-boats for operation by Imperial Airways on world-wide services—including the Atlantic.

There are two decks to the new flying boats, lower being for passenger accommodation and the top for crew (two pilots, two steward, and a purser), mails and baggage.

The gross weight of the new ships will be 17½ tons, and they will be powered by four 740-h.p. engines, giving a maximum speed of 200 m.p.h. and a cruising speed of 150 m.p.h. Underneath the pilots' cabin is a combined navigation room, and there are two more cabins more than eight feet high with adjustable luggage racks.

There is daytime accommodation for 24 passengers and for 16 sleeping in bunks by night.

SELECTED RECIPES

FRUIT CAKE

Temperature: 425 degrees F.
Time: 25 minutes.
½ cup "Corn Bread" Corn Syrup
1 pint jar cherries (canned)
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon butter
Tea biscuit batter

Drain cherries and pour juice in a saucepan. Add the water, sugar and "Crown Brand" Corn Syrup. Boil 5 minutes. While the syrup is boiling make an ordinary tea biscuit batter and roll it out in oblong roll. Spread the cherries over the dough; sprinkle with cinnamon, dot with butter and roll up like jelly roll. Place the roll in an oblong pan; pour the hot syrup over it and bake in a hot oven.

Issuing New Coinage

Canada Could Improve On Sterling When Making Change

With the coronation of King Edward VIII. Canada, in common with the rest of the Empire, will issue a new coinage. Would not the president, while we still have a year or so, be a good opportunity for the Government to call together a body of artists and experts to submit designs for coins that would be a little more representative of Canadian artistic accomplishment than the exceedingly unattractive ones which, year after year, generation after generation, reign after reign, come from the mint with such deadly monotony?

Tradition declares that upon each accession the effigy of the new sovereign upon the obverse side of the coin shall be reversed. When we have done that we in Canada are apparently content to allow the natural wreath of maple leaves on the reverse side—which on a slightly worn coin much more closely resemble those of the cabbage—and the rather sprawling legend within it to continue to "symbolize" Canada but, be that as it may, the Canadian nickel is one of the ugliest coins in circulation anywhere.

Other countries are paying increasing attention to the attractiveness of their coins from an aesthetic point of view. Some of the newer United States specimens are things of real artistic beauty, indicative of the country's progress in the arts of sculptural design and modelling. There are surely competent artists in the Dominion who would welcome an invitation to compete for designs for coins of different values, and out of such competitions there might come a coinage of which, from an artistic point of view, Canada could be legitimately proud. — Montreal Star.

London's First Film Show

Moving Pictures Taken Forty Years Ago Again Screened

London's first film show 40 years ago came to life again in the gallery of the Polytechnic Cinema to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the introduction of moving pictures to the country. The original projector used by M. Lumiere, the French pioneer, was used.

One gathered something of the thrill for an audience of that time of the spectacle of Trewey on the stage, with his performing dogs, the performance and of Louis Lumiere's brother having tea on the lawn with his wife and baby.

When, subsequently, the pictures were thrown by up-to-date apparatus on to a large screen, one saw Reed how good the photography was in the circumstances.

The changing of the guard at St James' Palace, children playing in the surf, the falling of a wall, a charge of the French Cuirassiers were some of the relics shown.

There was, too a delicously quaint "comic", indicating the popular conception of the motor car.

Other interesting features, showing how the newsreel was advancing, were the animated records of the funerals of Queen Victoria and King Edward VII., taken by Cecil Hepworth.

He recalled his concern, at Queen Victoria's funeral, when he found that the notes of his home-made camera was disturbing the silence of that occasion and how King Edward, looking round, halted the procession so that the picture might be taken.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well - Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with "Aspirin."

We say this because, before the public's gaze, "Aspirin," most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of "Aspirin" largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken "Aspirin" year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember, that "Aspirin" is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

Three Dimensional Animated Cartoons Seem To Be Shown

Three dimensional animated cartoons which can be shown with regular movie projection equipment and without use of any gadget by audiences were announced by Max Fleischer, pioneer in the animated cartoon field.

Fleischer declares his invention has passed the experimental stage, and that full length animated cartoons using the third dimension through sight will be released within six months.

Fleischer obtains the third dimensional effect by foreshortening the perspective of figures, to the feel and using a special lens which does not focus directly on the objects photographed.

MECCA OINTMENT

CHANGES IN THE B. N. A. ACT MAY HAVE TO WAIT

Ottawa. — Constitutional reform, which seemed almost a certain issue at the opening of parliament in February, will probably go over until next year, according to the best information available here

Some weeks ago it was apparent that the efforts engaging the attention of Dominion and provinces to obtain power for Canada to amend the British North America Act without recourse to the British parliament could not succeed during the present session. It was believed, however, that certain specific amendments would be sought in a joint resolution by the house and senate.

It is now considered unlikely that any amendments will be asked during the present session. A resolution is on the order paper asking a petition to Westminster to amend the British North America Act so that a loan council scheme of Dominion-provincial financing might be set up, but recent developments have caused at least temporary suspension of these plans.

At the Dominion-provincial conference in December, soon after the present government took office, it was agreed that certain specific amendments to the constitution were needed urgently. These were in the Acts of Union, particularly in the Acts of sculptural design and modelling. There are surely competent artists in the Dominion who would welcome an invitation to compete for designs for coins of different values, and out of such competitions there might come a coinage of which, from an artistic point of view, Canada could be legitimately proud. — Montreal Star.

Canada's Resources

Development Of Our Natural Resources Will Set New Pace

Montreal. — Development of Canada's natural resources during the next 25 years, if there is peace, will grow more than it has during the past 75, Dr. W. M. Tory, of Ottawa, former president of the University of Alberta and honorary director of the Association of Canadian Clubs, said at the annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club here.

"There was every justification for an optimistic attitude in Canada he said. The right combination of industrial climate had created conditions to make a civilization.

Canada was a large country, communications were easy, centres of population were close at hand, he continued. The people, the two greatest civilizing and colonizing races in the world combined into one nation, were virile, intelligent and progressive.

The past generations had made a magnificent job of Canada, Dr. Tory said. Mistakes had been made, he admitted, but these were now in the paying the piper for stupidity in early transportation development, but he said, these mistakes had been a Canada had it not been for the railways.

Dr. Tory praised the tendency to set national problems. Unity must be maintained, he said, and provincial barriers should be broken down even more than they now are. Canada must take leadership in intellectual movements, he concluded, for no enduring empire was the foundation of civilization.

Will Not Consider Plan

British Columbia Not Interested In Creating Provincial Bank

Victoria. — Premier Pattullo of British Columbia arrived home for a brief visit before returning to Ottawa for continuation of negotiations with the Dominion government, which were interrupted by the Easter holidays.

The premier, who arrived by aeroplane, said discussions between British Columbia and the federal administration do not concern the receipt of Dominion aid in connection with a $3,500,000 bond issue maturing May 13, but rather settlement of general policies. These policies he said, include relief, financing and other matters.

Virtually Columbia has no thought whatever of creating a provincial bank, and has not for a minute considered it, he said in reference to a recent announcement the government of Alberta would suggest co-operation of the coast province with Alberta in establishing such a bank.

Caused Much Discussion

Members At Geneva Are Divided Over Regional Leagues

Geneva. A move by some of the Latin-American countries to create an all-American League of Nations has caused much discussion and sharply divided reaction here.

Diplomatic circles feared this would be the beginning of disintegration of the Geneva institution but others believed these regional leagues could constructively dovetail into a universal League of Nations.

League officials said they were convinced economic and financial sanctions could be applied universally against any aggressor nation, but they believed three regional groups could engender regional credits and apply military sanctions in case of necessity.

Advocates Mining Policy

Would Cure Canada's Unemployment Opinion Of Supreme Court Judge

Vancouver. — Mining directly and indirectly could take care of the bodied man presently unemployed out of unemployment, Mr. Justice A. M. Manson of the Supreme Court of British Columbia said in an address to the annual meeting of the British Columbia division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

He advocated a Canadian national mining policy and a conjunct policy between the Dominion and the mining provinces—"a policy that will give to those who hazard their money in the development of our natural wealth, and so often lose it, a chance to get their capital back—no taxes for the first years of production.

"Such a policy," continued Mr. Justice Manson, "should stabilize mining taxation for a period of years. It must do that if we are to induce capital from abroad to come to Canada. Mining capital will not venture on a big expenditure knowing that the taxes are now undefined. It brings a mine to production its margin of profit may be eaten up by increased taxation. Dominion and provincial. Such a policy should fix the rate of taxation so that it will be possible to discover the maximum of low grade ore."

MANY MATTERS CLAIM ATTENTION OF PARLIAMENT

Ottawa. — Interest in parliamentary activities from now to prorogation will be largely centred in the red and green chambers and the half dozen committees which are fixed for the agenda which has been set out yet really commenced their work.

Radio, railways, pensions, elections, privileges of the house speaker and agriculture are subjects of special committees of the house, and all are expected to be ready for presentation to sit while the house is sitting, which will mean many empty seats in the gallery chamber from now on.

Of outstanding public interest will be the committee on railways, radio, pensions and agriculture. Election laws will be dealt with at some length, but no legislation is expected at the present session in view of the fact it not likely to be needed for some years. Questions of privileges of the speaker during the interim between defeat of a government and election of a new speaker will deal with matters of procedure.

The radio committee will go a bill to nullify the Canadian National-Canadian Pacific legislation of 1932 which was never put into effect. The board of directors which was replaced by a board of three trustees. It is now believed these trustees will restore the directorate system and the whole question of government railways and their huge annual deficits will probably be threshed out in committee.

New Hospital For Aklavik

Plane Completed But Money Is Not Yet Available

Toronto Plans have been completed for erection of a new hospital at Aklavik, Arctic trading post in the Northwest Territories, but Rt. Rev. R. J. Contributions are coming in slowly, but it is feared the necessary amount would not be obtained in time for purchasing supplies and work this year, Bishop Fleming said. As the hospital is situated 1,681 miles north of the motor road head for materials must be placed within three weeks if the hospital is to be rebuilt this year

Fears Of Potato Shortage

Crop Report Shows Farm Stocks Lowest Since 1929

Ottawa.—Fears of a potato shortage in Canada appeared well-founded after release of a crop report by the Dominion bureau of statistics.

Lowest since 1930, farm stocks of potatoes at March 31 were 41,047,000 cwt , compared with 19,740,000 cwt. the previous year, the report said. The reductions were general throughout the maritime and eastern provinces In addition the report said 2,249,701 cwt or 5.6 per cent. of the 1935 crop were unfit for merchantable quality This compared with 2,174,000 cwt. or 6.1 per cent. of the 1934 crop.

Before the bureau report was issued, M. G. McNeely, president of the Prince Edward Island Canadian Shippers, said he believed Canada would be faced with an absolute potato famine before May 1. Prince Edward Island had the "only potatoes in the maritime provinces," he said. New Brunswick's supply had run out as had surplus stocks in other potato growing provinces

Italian People Discontented

Becoming Hostile To Fascist Regime Says Expelled Writer

London. The Italian people have become increasingly hostile to the Fascist regime, whose war policy even though victorious has "impoverished the country," Giovanni Giglio former Rome correspondent for the Daily Herald, declared in that newspaper.

Giglio, who was recently expelled from Italy by Premier Mussolini's government, emphas ed the Italian discontent, which, he said, is a serious conviction that it is Europe's African adventure is driving them to ruin

"They understand," Giglio asserted, "that whether war brings them victory or disaster, their country will be completely pauperized and that for the next 20 years at least Italy's exports will be negligible."

The rise in the cost of living has been a large factor in popular discontent, the writer stated

GREAT ACTIVITY IS EVINCED IN MINING INDUSTRY

Ottawa. — Mines Minister Crerar announced completion of 15 preliminary reports based on last year's $1,000,000 geological survey program and said Canada mining, prospecting and exploration companies' plans also would be able to send men to the field equipped with a greater wealth of information than ever before

The mining expert, the minister said promises to be the most active in the history of the Canadian mining industry and it will be Canada's first opportunity of testing the value of such expl ration projects as that supplied by the government this year To-se projects sent to the field close to 180 field parties comprising about 1,000 men

Mr Crerar said the information gained by the parties "will be a powerful factor in increasing employment for many years to come" He emphasized that the reports already available had been issued in the form of mimeographed form with provision made to be used by prospectors passing in each staff of the survey

Prospectors are being invited to supplement the reports with data that will add to their value

Among the reports are those of Dr. A. O. Hayes on the Yellowknife area, Dr. A. G. Lang on the Great Bear Lake region, Dr. H. C. Gunning on the Lardeau district of British Columbia, Dr. A. L. Parsons on the Porcupine area of Ontario, Dr. A. E. Barlow on the Cobalt area, Dr. A. G. Burwash on the Rouyn district of Quebec, Dr. A. Stansfield on the Ungava district of Quebec, Dr. J. F. Jack Miner says "It is not as sane for a lot of friends to leave a few hundred thousand dollars to The Jack Miner Foundation, where birds can always be seen alive and secure from extermination, as it is to leave several millions to museums where only dead stuffed specimens can be seen in glass cages."

Jack Miner being so well known to all, the men and women who personally join his home and bird sanctuary will become as famous as Jack Miner throughout the world, and their names will go down in history with Canada's well known bird lover naturalist, philosopher, lecturer and author Jack Miner's friends is "When making your will remember The Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation.

Has Strange History

Centuries Ago Dying Woman Founded Tichborne Dole

A strange history attaches to the "Tichborne Dole," which was recently distributed at Tichborne Park Alresford, by Sir Anthony Tichborne features ago a Lady Tichborne, when on her deathbed, asked her husband to set aside money to be distributed to the poor in her memory Her husband by no means a model character, snatched a blazing brand from the fire and told her he would set aside the revenue from as much land as she could walk around before the brand burnt out She accepted the challenge, had herself carried out, and contrived to crawl on hands and knees in a circle enclosing several acres before the brand sputtered out. The "Dole" is distributed in bread every during the war years it was continued by special permits of the Food Controller

A Rare Occurrence

St. Paul's Cathedral Had Third Burial Within Six Months

The rare incident of a third burial within St Paul's Cathedral in six months happened April 16, when Louise Creighton, widow of a former Bishop of London who died in 1901, was buried beside her husband in the crypt

It is doubtful if any woman has been buried in St. Paul's since the great fire in 1666. Mrs. Creighton was 86. Her husband was regarded as one of the greatest historical scholars of his generation. His wife possessed an impressive intellectual gifts her biography of her husband has been considered a masterpiece.

After her husband's death King Edward VII granted her apartments at Hampton Court palace. Subsequently she removed to Oxford. Her daughter is Mrs. Cecil Chesterton, widow of the late Cecil Chesterton and niece of the present Bishop of London.

Other recent burials within St Paul's were those of Lord Jellicoe in November and Lord Beatty in March

The Canadian Badger

Lives Underground And Is Seldom Seen In Daytime

The Canadian badger is a low, thick-set animal, the body more than fat, sure short, tail short, legs very short and powerful. Its coat is silvery gray, a white stripe runs back from the tip of the nose. It is more carnivorous than the European badger. It hibernates during the colder months of winter, and is the only member of the weasel family to do so.

The badger lives for the most part underground and is seldom seen abroad in daytime. It can be a formidable fighter when cornered and badger-baiting used to be a popular sport.

JESUS TEACHES FORGIVENESS, HUMILITY, AND GRATITUDE

Golden text: Be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you. Ephesians 4:32.

Lesson: Luke 17.

Devotional reading. Philippians 2 1-11.

Explanations And Comments

The Sin of Causing Others to Sin, Luke 17.1, 2. It is inevitable that hindrances should come (Moffatt's translation); but woe unto him through whom they come!

Better were it that he should be cast to death, than that he should cause one of these little ones to stumble By "these little ones" Jesus refers affectionately not to the disciples who were weak enough to be easily led astray.

The Duty of Forgiving, Luke 17. 3, 4. "Probably the Evangelist intended no connection between this and the preceding utterance. But it may think of the connection in three ways: the unforgiving spirit is given as an instance of the occasion for stumbling; there may be a contrast intended between our severity to ourselves and our tolerance to others; or the duty of forgiveness may be but another may be joined the greater or forgiving the ill others do." (A. E. Garvie).

The Power of Faith, Luke 17.5, 6. "Probably the disciples thought it but it will take more faith than I have to believe I could do such a work out that way. That is just what the apostles the contrary to the Lord to increase their visible faith." (A. E. Garvie). Dr. Henry Jones replied to the disciples that if they had any faith at all comparable to a grain of mustard seed, their virtuality, they could accomplish the seemingly impossible, and he impressed by the words "To would mean the tedious clearing of the land, fatti tree, Be thou rooted up and be thou planted in the sea, and it would obey you"

Doing One's Duty Without Boast or Merit, Luke 17.7-10. "This appears to have no connection with the saying that precedes it." Jesus made the apostles' request Jesus detected the suggestion that he was entitled to reasonable demands on his followers, and that he therefore had no claim to say asserting his unlimited claim (A. E. Garvie).

A Leper's Gratitude, Luke 17. 11-19 As Jesus and his disciples were on their way to Jerusalem traversing the borders of the two provinces of Galilee and Samaria, he entered a village and were met by ten lepers, who stood afar off as prescribed by law (Lev 13 45, 46, Num. 5 2) to prevent infecting others. Jesus healed them, whereupon Loudly they cried, "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us." Jesus made himself known to the priests as the Messiah by healing them, and thus he gave them the opportunity of recognizing him as such. Only one of the ten returned to give thanks, and this he did with a loud voice, and he was a Samaritan. Jesus, in view of the fact that they were from leprosy and might mingle with other people, bade them go to the priests, probably a great faith Yet all ten lepers obeyed, and as they went on their way the disease had vanished True it was for them, Jesus Dr. A. E. Garvie, where says, that "Faith begins as an experiment and ends as an experience."

Samaritans were not welcomed by Jews. But misery likes company, and in that afflicted group the Samaritan was not hated. Such a one place in Jerusalem to-day where Jew and Arab hatred of the Samaritans as buried is in the leper hospital. Only the Lord Jesus could have dissolved that the disease had left him, he returned to fall at the feet of Jesus and pour out his expression of gratitude And Jesus answering said, "Were not the ten cleansed? but where are the nine? Were there none found that returned to give glory to God, save this stranger." And he said unto him, "Arise and go thy way thy faith hath made thee whole."

Has Proved A Success

Panel Heating Is Now Widely Employed In England

Panel heating, the most recent departure in heating methods now the subject of much building Link has to be more widely employed in England. Hot water is circulated through coils of steel pipe concealed in the ceiling, from which heat rays are sprayed downward.

Unlike all other methods, by which the air itself must be heated to around 72 degrees for comfort, panel heating produces the same pleasant sensation of warmth as the sun, at an air temperature of 65 degrees or lower. Because the warmth is not breathed into the retained longer by the skin and clothes, windows can be opened offices to dispel any stuffiness.

Cost of installation is high but operating costs show savings as h gh as 25 per cent.

YOUR GARDEN

Even with the most fertile and open soil, expert gardeners stress the importance of thorough cultivation. The preliminary jobs will usually be done with a spade, or digging fork where space is limited, but in the country where land is not valued by the acre a horse or tractor-drawn plow will be used. At least once during the year, and better still two times, the soil should be thoroughly turned over. Later on just before seeding it is usually best to rake or cultivate finely, in order to break down all lumps. The better of frequent light cultivation is two-fold. It will destroy weed growth, thus conserving the fertility and moisture used by these unwanted plants and it will also conserve moisture from evaporation which is drawn to the surface by the packed, uncultivated soil.

Where the area devoted to the garden is limited careful attention must be given to such points as a definite space between rows and between plants, so that all space may be used to the best advantage. Plants must have room to mature yet gaps must be avoided. A study of rotation of crops and time of maturity is of great value in planning for a succession of crops. Early crops as radish and spinach may be grown as intercrops between the rows of late maturing crops like carrots or parsnips Late crops as crops may be planted between the rows of early maturing crops from which they are harvested. Two or three crops of such plants as radish and lettuce may be grown on the same row by succession of quick growing crops by planting at intervals as closely possible.

For quick results, an important point with the new garden or with the established one, is to transplant flowers will make a very satisfactory showing all the season. They are less troublesome, too, in filling the gaps in the perennial bed which may have been damaged in the winter damage. In almost every garden of Canada there are hardy annuals of varieties from which to choose. These are almost every conceivable color and shape. There are many plants like Dahlias which will make excellent backgrounds to screen the puipers until the perennials have had time to full age. There are climbers such as the Scarlet Runner Bean, Nasturtiums Sweet Peas and others which will quickly screen an eyesore or give cool shade in the summer. Plants like the tall high tiny Alyssum to form flowers Cosmos and Zinnias, which very frank in habit may be headed back from time to time to induce bushiness and a greater profusion of bloom. Annuals may be planted in the fall for early spring flowering, but the safer plan is to wait until spring when the soil is warm and dry enough to work. Many annuals may be purchased as well started plants

Guarded By Police

Former Chief Secretary For Ireland Revives Protection

It was revealed that a police guard is now mounting on the seventh chambers in Drays Inn of Lord Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland during the stormy years of 1920-22.

Lord Greenwood, a native of Whitby, first retired from the Irish office in 1922, and the police guard remains at the chambers and he is constantly shadowed by such a detective.

These precautions date back to the turbulent period preceding the signing of the Anglo-Irish treaty in 1922 creating the Irish Free State Lord Greenwood, then Sir Hamar Greenwood, was the only member of the Irish government of a few months to hold the office of chief secretary for Ireland as it was abolished after the treaty.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE KEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Bonne County cattlemen. Link together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister. Link is surprised at his "spread" Buzz shouts at Fleming in an unreasonable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend Link's foreman, is shot in the shoulder. Link's reputation is uninjured Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Torney to learn whether they could be altered to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's needs. He finds that the scheme is somewhat too ambitious for their purse. Helen arrives back in Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the bank getting a loan for payment of wages for work on the dam. Roper Kilgo and Jackpot Bell meet him and he goes into the saloon with them. They buy the beer and Link come from the bank. Buzz has had several drinks. Roper has distorted the facts concerning the dam proposal to Buzz making it appear that Link was trying to ruin him. Buzz, in his drunken fit of anger, tries to throttle Fleming, but is thrown to the floor. Then Helen appears and tells Fleming Buzz has been robbed of the $800 they had drawn from the bank.

On their arrival home they were met by a cowpuncher, Ed Hamilton, who told Fleming that there was a strike at the dam. He said the men were afraid they would not get their wages Link told them of the robbery and promised to pay their wages as soon as possible The men relucantly went back to work.

(Now Go On With The Story)

Once out of sight he removed the bandana from his face, pulled it back and prodded fo the note Gyp Valle had dropped Eagerly he compared it with that he had found in the safe.

Fleming pursed his lips in disappointment The writings were dissimilar, could scarcely be those of the same man. He crushed the paper and hurled it away

Who had put Vaille up to the bit of sabotage? Buster Townsend reported.

The trail was strewn with paraphernalia of the dynamiting Link passed the rickety cabin headquarters of Tom McLendon, the young engineer in charge of the dam work. Tom was not inside. He walked on to the concrete abutment and paused surveying a group of men who worked in two and threes in the moist pit below, which would soon be the bed of Upper Lake

Down in the beautiful Lone Fleming Valley Link had spent many happy years. Here he had brought his bride, and here his children had been born. Now, with the completion of the dam, the valley would be submerged, and the ranch house, the barns, the corrals, the orchard, the fields of alfalfa and grain would be under water.

Fleming pulled his hat down over his eyes. "I see," he said quietly. "That was plumb generous of Kilgo to go out on his way for Dunn's interest However—"

Someone called out his name Glancing up, he saw Townsend at the land-end of the concrete, gesturing. Link flashed a look at Helen and quickly hurried to his foreman. "What is it?"

"Kilgo an' Bell have got about eight of the boys down in camp, an' we been blasting They're brewin' trouble." Buster panted, out of breath from the steep ladder climb. "Said I thought you might want to know!"

"Come on!" was the swift reply. "We'll go see Mister Kilgo!"

Quickly they descended into the pit at the base of the dam. Buster briefly told Link what was happening, and there's always guns getting' killed.

"Now, yuh all know I'm a friend of yours. Yuh all know what Roper Kilgo is straight I'm just warnin' yuh, because I'm none too anxious to get a couple of corpses of mine for dead guys. It's dangerous, workin' here!"

"Thanks a lot," supported Jackpot Bell. "Another thing, what are yuh getting out of it? Not even full wages. Five hundred bucks divided amongst fifty men ain't much money, but it don't fool anybody! Know what I'd do? Quit" he replied himself to the cowpuncher. "Yuh're a hell of a good hand, an' yuh're a work another hour for a guy that's going bankrupt as shore as there's a God!"

He stopped as Link and Townsend strode around a heap of stony debris. Roper Kilgo, at their coming, he flashed a look at Vaille and Roper, after which all three stared at Link. Then Kilgo spoke to Fleming's and Buster's pugnacious

"You'd quit, would you?" Warning my men they're likely to get killed, an' you'd quit! Let me tell you somethin'!" the Star Loop owner rasped hotly, his lips thinned back from his teeth, his whole demeanor with emphatic reminder. "Nobody asked you wuivers for advice. Nobody! Now get back to work before you're sure got nerve, interferin' with my men like this!"

"I'll hold on nothing!" he faced back. "You bought or scared Jackpot Bell, Vaille an' Ed Hamilton, fellow Terrens that left just ahead of Sheriff Stephen might be an acquaintance of yours, Kilgo, but I'm not! Get me right! I'm not failing for any crazy scheme to improve land that ain't worth the powder to blow it up!"

Link smiled tolerantly. "We'll make a big thing of it just the same We've had all the trouble we're built we'll see to it that you don't move profits Git!"

The Bog 50 owners floyd farmers and ranchers, hundred strong, forward in truculent defiance You can't prove all I've said!" He added to Roper. "I can report to the Governor that I've been threatened!"

"Go ahead!" Kilgo flung back. "I'll do it, too Stay out you an' your pair of malangas that go around hirin' bullies who never wanted

There ended a taut silence. Jackpot Bell muttered a threat at the foreman, who frowned and bade Link Fleming closely, but he saw no chance to whip out his revolver. Roper Kilgo would not start real fuss and had the men directly covered while Link's gun swung its threat Fleming's hands hung idle, ready to grab for his weapon the instant he saw a chance.

Suddenly, from the British Quebec [illegible] lifted the contents of the [illegible] Link [illegible] Fleming [illegible] Kilgo [illegible] Bell [illegible] Vaille [illegible] Hamilton [illegible] Townsend [illegible] Buster [illegible] Fleming

TENNIS COURTS SEE ACTION ON WEDNESDAY

Tennis players got away to the earliest start in years when racquets were going on the perfects courts of the local club Wednesday afternoon, the first real tennis day of the year. An official opening will be held on Wednesday of next week, when the committee plan to run off a mixed round robin tourney. Everybody is invited to this meeting for a few games on that day regardless of whether they are members or not. It is a free day and the club wants you to dig out the old racquet and play a few games. No town in Alberta has courts equal to those in Vermilion, so make use of them.

The annual meeting was held in the town hall on Tuesday evening when the following officers were elected for the 1936 season:

Hon. Pres.—His Worship Mayor C. W. Robinson.
Pres.—Sidney Millward.
1st Vice-Pres.—Miss Lucie Eastlick.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. H. Easton
Sec.-Treas.—Ashley Cooper
Grounds committee—D. Cooper, W. Pyke, H. S. Allan, E. M. Stewart
Tournament committee—H. S. Allan, Mrs. F. M. Stewart, D. Halliday, Mrs. C. Kirby.
Social committee—Mrs. F. J. Hebert, Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. A. H. Cooper.

The club looks for an exceptionally good season as no less than 12 new members have already signified their intention of joining the club.

Fees remain the same as last year, namely: Ladies, with privileges, $15.00. Students, full time rights, $2.00. Junior Rate, couple $8.00. Family rate, $20.00. Get your ticket early. Come and be a member of the executive.

STOCKS OF WHEAT ON FARMS

Apparently Western Canadian wheat farmers have an idea that there will be a reduction in the price of wheat with the coming of the new crop for on their holdings at the 1st of April were only 46,116,000 bushels which is 14.4 per cent less bushels better than the total on hand in 1935 and is in fact the lowest stock of farm supplies at that date since 1925.

MANY PEDIGREED ANIMALS

Pedigree certificates registered by the Canadian National Live Stock Records, approved by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture, during the month of March, 1936, included 317 horses; 2,679 cattle; 364 sheep, 556 swine; 2,777 foxes; 571 dogs; 163 poultry, and 1 goats—total 7,299

WASN'T MAPLE SYRUP

Three Ottawa residents were charged in Ottawa Police Court on April 3rd by the Fruit Branch Inspection Department of Agriculture with offering for sale adulterated maple syrup contrary to the provisions of section 4 of the Maple Sugar Industry Act. They were found guilty and each was fined $15 and $2 costs or in default four days in jail. An analysis of the syrup they offered for sale disclosed that it was merely fructose and coloured cane sugar and there was no maple in it at all.

ISLAND HILL

This community took a lively interest in the amateur broadcast, as a number of the selected eight took part at one time or another appeared here. The winner, Miss Myrtle Macdonald, for at least on one occasion appeared here and her singing was highly appreciated and also deserves and gets the congratulations of the community on her success. Another of the eight, Miss Frances Antoine appeared here on several occasions and judging by the number of phone calls and letters that have reached her since the broadcast from radio fans all over the country her singing must have been highly appreciated.

British land-settlers are organizing. Time date and place of meeting will be advertised in the Standard

Noticed during the week—Bill Hall bending for taxes per wagon at the same speed as per motor car. Joe Dienes rushing matters to get seeded. Ned Phillips, Allendale, bringing a big load of neighbors to town. James Devlin Clandonald, visiting Vermilion bending in the pink of condition. Mumps Fraser taking a great interest in some of the store windows in town. Emil Acheson sitting on the top of a big load of grain. Charles Taylor rushing to town Saturday afternoon. Geo Schoolfield loading for town with a carload of neighbors. Bert Searle unlikely leaving a car to give the best seat to a lady. Bill Boyd interviewing the C.O. of the Vermilion Battalion, Mr. Lyttle, re sunshine at Walsworth's reception, saying what he thought to four innocent looking settlers

It is proposed to form a school sort ball league consisting of teams from Allendale, Campbell Lake, Island Hill and Morrison schools. It is an interesting proposal and would liven things up a bit. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy

HOUSE FLY IS PUBLIC ENEMY

With the advent of Spring comes the menace of the housefly—which may correctly be termed Public Enemy No. 1. It is world wide in distribution and is responsible for part if not all of the spreading such serious diseases as typhoid fever, tuberculosis, bowel disorders, infantile diarrhoea and other dangerous epidemics. The fly breeds in filth; inherits itself with filth, carries germs of filth and deposits on its legs and body and in its intestines, and with these germs pollutes food, especially milk, one of the principal distributing germs in the establishment of the human race.

It is known that a single fly can carry as many as five hundred million germs on and inside its body but until there is active co-operation on the part of entire communities, including the municipal authorities and every single individual in the community to remove filth the main source of fly production, the menace of the fly to human life will remain.

The most effective and desirable method of controlling the house fly undoubtedly consists in eliminating or reducing its breeding places to a minimum by properly treating or disposing of such materials as manure and garbage. The house fly breeds in such decaying and fermenting material as kitchen refuse and garbage. Garbage receptacles should be kept tightly covered and where possible all refuse should be burned or buried at once without undue delay. It is run not be dispensed with, refuse should never be left exposed but sprinkled with powdered borax or chloride of lime. Windows and doors of houses particularly those of the dining room and kitchen, should be screened and all flies that gain entrance destroyed. This may be done by the use of fly swatters, by sticky fly strips, or by using a fly spray. Milk and other food should be screened in the same by covering it with muslin and fruit should also be covered in no account should flies be permitted in a sick room, and the faces of sleeping babies, or babies lying unattended in their cots or carriages, should be screened with muslin.

An effective poison bait, but one which cannot be used where children are exploring or romping about, is made by exposing in saucers a mixture of one teaspoonful or formalin in a cupful of sweetened milk or of water. Fly sprays, of course operate best in closed spaces, and the dead or paralyzed flies should be swept up and burned, or thrown into very hot water to prevent any from recovering

ANCIENT CREE INDIAN DIES

Lived Most of His Life in The Vermilion District

The announcement of the death of the 115 year old full blooded Cree Indian, Pee-ah-is, or possibly better known by the name which he was christened in later life "Jean Baptiste Lapalice," which occurred in the Camrose hospital last Thursday, created considerable interest here, as he had spent most of his life in this portion of the country. He lived here until 4 years ago when he went to Camrose to reside with his son.

Local people will probably remember the interesting old Indian, who would, every once in a while, come around with a letter stating that he was a good Indian, was nursing his sick wife and needed a little money or words to that effect. He nursed his wife for nine years before she finally passed away. He lived for several years in the encampment just over the north hill, during this period he was a familiar figure in the town. He also spent considerable time with his married daughter, Mrs. Jonah Nadeau, in the Clandonald district.

Pee-ah-is was well known to Catholic priests and missionaries during his life was christened by the famed and well loved Father Lacombe. Father Lacombe while here, also took particular interest in the old Indian.

When in Vermilion his particular habitat would be George Lacey's garage, and Mr. Law was rewarded by the old Indian as a close personal friend and "a true to Mr. Law he went for many personal favors.

His death occurred last Thursday, the funeral being conducted from the Roman Catholic church in Camrose on Monday.

His passing leaves the west poorer, as no doubt, with him dies many a tale and a wealth of knowledge of the early days of the west, of pioneering trips by land and water, of buffalo hunts and of the gradual encroachment of the white man into the last stronghold of the Redman, the last Great West.

FOUND COURSE USEFUL

Mr Otilla and Miss Edna Berling quote returned from the school of Agriculture at Vermilion. They intend to return next fall for the winter session. They brought back many pretty and useful pieces of handiwork made by them at college.—Critique News at Paul Journal.

MELBERTA MINUTES

Council of M. D. of Melberta No 183, met in the municipal office Manville, Tuesday, April 14th 1936. All the councillors present and Alex Allenach, the Reeve, in the chair

Minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved

Correspondence was received as follows: Vermilion Board of Trade inviting Council to attend their weekly luncheon, Wednesday, April 22nd at 12.30 p.m. where a debate on the Hawby plan of immigration would be heard. Dept. of Immigration Edmonton that nothing could be done by the government to have anyone deported who had been here for over 5 years and who had not previously applied to be deported. Dedrick Lodge asking for a donation. Nothing was done in the matter. Notification from the Canadian Utilities Co. that Mrs Clark had applied to obtain a Director of footways, notifying that about 96 acres taken off the N.W. 2-57-1, and that they were to deal with the Big Bend Alberta Land & Coal Co. in the matter of compensation. The secretary was instructed to inform them an offer of $12.00 per acre. W. J. Coulter, offering $25.00 for a road on the N.W. 24-57-1, which offer was accepted. University hospital notifying us if we did not pay [illegible] their Rate's bill they would take the matter up with the Minister of Health. Also another letter from the same place that unless we paid Mrs. Hall matron's hospital bill of $27.45 they would put the matter in the hands of their solicitor for collection. Treasurer was instructed to pay this. We did not consider ourselves liable. Woods, Field, Crain and Hamilton solicitors for the Brownell Estate, insisting on immediate arrangements for the payment of Kloetzmire's bill which we are instructed to collect and reply to them. Certain letters dealing with Relief and Seed grain Numbers of applications sent in to the Manville and Vermilion hospitals.

A pound was established at S 31-2-4 with Geo Symington as its pound keeper. Secretary was instructed to take title to the S E 5-45-4 and S W 21-56-4. It was decided to purchase from Jos McCauley wire repairs as he can make for our municipality, as he can furnish the same quality material and at a lower price than the machinery companies

News from Islay

The W. A meeting of the United church was held at the home of Mrs W. McRae on Wednesday April 22nd. Mrs. McPherson had charge of the devotional. While Mrs. Gallagher and Mrs. Barnes served lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnes and Lyle motored to Edmonton on Friday to spend the week end.

Mr. Wm. Keat of the Irwinville district passed away at his home there. His death came as a distinct shock to his many friends here. Sincerest sympathy is extended to the bereaved ones. The funeral was held on Friday of last week.

Miss Robson Bowser returned to Camrose Normal on Sunday morning after practice teaching for a week in the Islay junior room.

Work on the land in general now. Fine warm weather is being experienced at time of writing although the week generally has been cool.

FORMER WETASKIWIN PASTOR TO GRADUATE FROM KNOX COLLEGE

WETASKIWIN, April 27.—Word has been received here that Dr. Henry H. Rayner, B. A., who held the post of student minister in the Presbyterian church during the last two years is graduating in theology from Knox College, Toronto, at the annual convocation. Mr. Rayner graduates with scholarships totalling $100.

Besides his academic studies he has been actively associated with student newspaper work during his college career, and is president of the Canadian Inter-Collegiate Press Union. Mr. Rayner made a wide circle of friendships while resident here.

Editor's note—Mr. Rayner will be remembered as being in charge of the local Presbyterian church a few years ago. He still has a host of friends in town who extend their congratulations to him.

C.N.R. CONTINENTAL LIMITED CLIPS 1½ HRS. OFF COAST-TO-COAST RUN

New Services for Summer

WINNIPEG Mon. April 27—One hour and one half hours was chipped from the running time of the "Continental Limited" between the Pacific Coast and Eastern Canada effecting with the general change of time on April 26 according to an announcement made by Robert Cruikshank passenger traffic manager for the Canadian National Railways at Winnipeg. This speeding up means a saving of four hours as compared with the schedule one year ago. The "Continental Limited" will leave Vancouver an hour and a half later than previously and arrive Winnipeg a 4:00 p.m. instead of 5:30 p.m. Departure time from Winnipeg for Eastern cities has been set at 6.30 p.m. instead of 6:40 p.m. Arrival time, to the eastern cities have been correspondingly altered. They are 8.20 a.m. in Toronto and 8.55 a.m. in Montreal making connections at this point with the best special for Quebec and the fast train for the Maritime provinces.

During the summer season, to meet the demands of the tourist business, through sleeping car service will be operated in both directions, between St. Paul, Winnipeg, Jasper and Vancouver connecting at St. Paul with trains to and from Chicago. This service will become effective from St. Paul June 27, Winnipeg June 28, and, eastbound from Vancouver on June 26

A fast boat train will be operated twice a week, in both directions, during the season, between Jasper and Prince Rupert, connecting with the Canadian National steamers to and from Vancouver. This new service will permit of a daylight run through the spectacular Skeena Valley and a stop at the Indian Village of Kitwanga. The service becomes effective June 12.

There will also be changes affecting many of the C.N.R. branch line services in the western provinces.

CHATSWORTH CHATTER

Spring work began last week and is now in full swing though the light snowfall last week end slowed up the work slightly. The roads are all open for cars now.

Several from this district attended the big amateur night at the Columbia theatre on April 20. It is to be sincerely regretted that their was no timing in each number. The two entrants from this district, Jame Thompson and Mrs. Charles Hughes, were very noticeably cut down on their numbers. Jame Thompson was allowed to sing only the first part of her song and Mrs. Hughes was allowed 1¼ minutes in which time only one-half of her song had been sung. Each of those competitors' numbers would have only taken three minutes to sing completely through (including the opening accompaniment). Surely three minutes could have been allowed such competitor. The matter of time certainly didn't enter into some of the numbers. We feel that Mrs. Hughes was very unfairly treated in the rendering of her song.

We hope that the broadcast on Wednesday night put Vermilion "on the map." And by the way, we'd like to hear the definition of an amateur.

Messrs. Wm. Cunningham and J.R. Thompson are busy on the land with their "combines".

The plot of most of the talks now a days is —on the land—chickens—turkeys—pure pigs etc.—not to mention gardens.

The next big night at Ottawa is booked for June 5th. It's a long time to look forward to but the time will fly!

Congratulations to Mr and Mrs. W. Roebuck (nee Miss Sybil Moore), on delay on the birth of a son on March 20. Mrs. Roebuck is an ex-teacher of Chatsworth school.

STUDY MADE OF RURAL TAXATION

While it is recognized that the problems of taxation are not by any means confined to the rural communities, it is believed that because of the critical conditions which have existed during recent years in the agricultural industry, the taxation of farm property is one of the most important problems confronting the Dominion in order, therefore, to provide a basis for better understanding of rural government and consequent improvement of the taxation system, the results of a study of farm taxation in the province of Ontario have been assembled by the Agricultural Economics Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture and published in bulletin form under the title of "Taxation in Rural Ontario" by H. C. Hudson, Assistant Agricultural Economist.

The study also includes a review of provincial and municipal relationships and a detailed examination of public receipts and expenditures in selected township and counties. It is felt that such an investigation is of direct concern to the farmers of Ontario, and indirectly of value to those in other provinces. The facts included in the bulletin are not designed for sectional comparisons but must be interpreted as being drawn from representative municipalities, with the thought in this way a more detailed analysis of the situation may be obtained. The Dominion Department of Agriculture, because of its responsibility to farmers throughout Canada, has given its support to this project in the belief that more information is necessary on the subject of taxation, and while the present study deals with but one phase of the question, it is a phase that must be considered in any consent treatment of the whole subject. The extension of such an inquiry to other provinces and the inclusion of other forms of taxation is only consideration. The bulletin containing 32 pages of hard packed data and analyses of much importance to farmers, and there is a limited supply for free distribution by the Publications Branch Dominion Department of Agriculture Ottawa.

Mr. Robert Saville, of Dewberry, Alta., owns the highest record Hereford in cow in the March R.O.P. report in the three year-old two-a-day milking division. This good cow "Opal Alcartra Hengwold" produced 16,791 lbs. of milk and 611 lbs. of butter fat in 365 days.

According to the Dominion Department of Agriculture egg and poultry market report the whole situation with respect to market quality would appear to be that Canada's objective should be to secure a high uniform quality of poultry products as efficiently produced, processed marketed, and prepared for the consumer that they will move in volume and yield a profit to producers and others at the prices prevailing on world markets.

By-Law No. 394

BY-LAW No. 394 BEING A BY-LAW OF THE TOWN OF VERMILION WITH RESPECT TO PARKING OF MOTOR VEHICLES ON CERTAIN STREETS IN SAID TOWN.

The Council of the Town of Vermilion enacts as follows:

1. To Our Subscribers

To date we are rather disappointed that more of our subscribers did not respond to the special request that an effort be made to pay paper in good standing. However, hope has not been lost and we are looking forward confidently to seeing many more sending in payments or dropping into the office.

If 41 of our readers came in and paid the regular annual subscription price to the paper for one year, the $61.50 received would be required to meet the cost of the paper used and expenses paid on the Standard for the five issues of the current month.

From this you may figure out, from the date on your label, just how much CASH the management have put into the blank paper used in your issue of the Standard, working on a basis of a one thousand circulation.

We have no papers to give away — subscriptions must take care of all costs in this respect. Revenues from advertising and job printing are required to pay for the setting up of the reading matter and printing of your paper. This cost includes wages, power, inks, oils, etc. and there must as well be sufficient surplus to meet taxes and fire insurance premiums, before one cent of profit accrues to the business.

Just think things over and we feel quite sure your Sub. will soon be paid up.

THOSE SHOWER BATHS

The following item gleaned from the editorial columns of the Grande Prairie Tribune, will call to mind that the Town of Vermilion at present holds in trust, the sum of about $700, set aside for the use and only purpose of installing shower baths in the Vermilion arena. Every annual meeting of the V.A.A.A. brings forth a heighty argument, regarding the building of said showers, resulting in motions being made that the town council take immediate steps and use the money for the purpose for which it was donated ($1,266,000), while Ontario's apple crop ($1,299,200) was the only other item that passed the million dollar mark. Grandview, April 15—(Special to the Republic)—Death of Wm. S. Greenslades, 63, whose body was found floating in the sunnyside canal near Grandview yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, is believed to have been due to apoplexy. It is thought that he had a stroke while walking beside the canal and that he fell into the water, as there was little water in the lumps and no evidence of foul play or suicide.

Greenslades lived in the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. H. McClinton of Grandview other members of the family are three other daughters Mrs. Fred Riley of Ventura, Cal. Mrs. A. B. Creighton of Terrace Heights and Mrs. Ivon Allen of Yakima and three sons Darius of Los Angeles Albert of Sonora, Cal. and William of Vancouver, B. C. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock in the Hankins chapel here.

Editor's note—The deceased will be remembered as an old time homesteader and farmer here. His family were residents of the town for several years while the girls were attending high school. It is about 16 years since they left this district for the States

A TOWN BATH HOUSE WANTED NECESSARY

It is to be hoped that the town bath house proposal which was so favorably received at the Monday night's meeting of the town council will be followed by the necessary action and the long-felt want supplied.

The continued rain of a little over an inch would not work a hardship on the firmness of the town and a small rain which many would be only too glad to pay, would in time pay for the building

It was explained that the bath house be run in connection with the town's waterworks plant without making any really adjustments

The issue of Grave River sometime ago built a bathhouse, which, according to the Tribune's information is being well patronized.

By all means let us have a bath house which runs twelve months in the year. —Grand- Prairie Tribune.

HATS OFF TO THE MEN IN OVERALLS

Two people are herewith represented from an article appearing on the stock page of the Mail and Empire, Toronto, under date of April 23, and bearing the above caption. It needs no comment

The tragic incident of the Moose mine has served a purpose, which, it is to be hoped, will be grasped by all. That is the dominant role which the man in overalls plays in the life history of a nation. There have been spectacles, and news flashes about the work which has been done by public officials and leaders in other lines, but, back of it all stands out the grim picture of the New Ontario miners, down on their knees in the black and death threatening shaft fighting, as the average man never has to fight, for the lives of two others, who though not from their ranks were still human beings.

If the story of that work done from start to finish will not help us to make the way of smoother living our sons of the barriers which have existed in this country, and others, between classes Put-sets, a due tip of the hat to Hon. Michael Dwyer, Minister of Mines of Nova Scotia—the telling story in the tragic background is that, when it comes down to the grim business of seeing out the rocks and the dirt, and it is the man in overalls who does the work.

So the events in Nova Scotia have turned the national eye on the toil which is played, in a casualties on death, by the man in overalls. He will undoubtedly, after the last chapter has been written in the grim story of Moose River, be elevated a little on the pedestal of fame A fund has been started for the rescue-workers. They will undoubtedly appreciate that when the work is over. But to those scores of men volunteered to penetrate a death shaft which was condemned years ago, they were not thinking of the fund which might be raised on their behalf They were thinking of their lives. The latest and so the story of their battle should go down in Canadian history as an epic of the heights to which the men in overalls can rise when the emergency comes

A TRUE MEASURE OF PROSPERITY

What we are concerned with and what the farmers' organizations are concerned with is not the abstract term "prosperous agriculture." We are concerned with the farmer and his family in his home. Prosperity is measured for us by the standard of living which exists in the farm homes and in the cities of those who now inhabit them on these prairies and who have given the best of their lives to the cultivation of the soil. Whatever else exists cities factories railroads—is at best ancillary to

An Immigration Policy?

Signs are not lacking that the question of a clearly defined immigration policy for Canada is one which will forge to the front in the comparatively near future, though it may not loom up on the horizon conspicuously at the present session of Parliament at Ottawa.

The matter is one which has not assumed very much importance during the period of depression but now that economists and others who speak with more or less authority and quote statistics freely in support of their contentions state that the corner has been definitely turned, it is not unnatural to assume that the problem of encouraging newcomers to this country on a more or less considerable scale will become sufficiently insistent from some influential quarters to demand official attention.

Indeed, even in Western Canada, where popular sentiment at the present time appears definitely opposed to settlement schemes or selective immigration of any kind, an occasional speaker arises at club luncheons in the cities to declare that immigration is a necessity before the problems confronting the country, including those of trade balances, can be solved.

On the other hand farmer organizations generally are opposed to land settlement projects, at least until such time as those trying to wrest a living out of the land are able to secure some better return for their labors than has been available during the past half dozen years.

The proponents of immigration and land settlement projects for non-residents of the country, however, stress the necessity for a substantial increase in population to provide tonnage for the railways and assert that until this objective is achieved the railway problem cannot be solved and this burden removed from the backs of the taxpayers.

Whether or not there may be the outcome of conflict between these divergent points of view, and if encouragement, directly or indirectly, is again to be given citizens of other countries to transfer themselves and their families to Canadian soil, it is desirable that such a policy will be devised as to ensure a reasonably strong infiltration of British stock, if such is available and can be attracted to this country. As to the latter there is some doubt about it on both side of the Atlantic.

That the authorities in the Motherland are sympathetic to the idea is evident in the recent establishment of an Overseas Settlement Board with provision made for setting up a Dominions Office Overseas Settlement Committee which latter body will be solely responsible for day to day administration.

Discussing the policies behind these two organizations the London Times, in the current editorial takes the view that: "First would come the indirect method—the encouragement of economic improvement overseas—for instance, by expansion of the markets for Dominion produce where that is possible."

The Times, however, also pointed out that conditions which at one time brought about a strong migration movement from the Empire centre to overseas dominions has changed materially and as a result there is little likelihood of any immediate change in the future. The article is in a tense sentence: "With the great dispersion of material comfort and pleasure there is a slackened incentive for people in this country to seek a new life overseas."

Supporting the viewpoint that there is not likely to be any tide of migration from the Motherland to Canada for years to come, E. L. Chicken in an article in the Dalhousie Review reprinted in a distributing brochure entitled "The Future Of Immigration", refers to the mal-advertising which Canada has received at the hands of British immigrants who have returned in large numbers to the Old Country in the last few years. He points out that in the four years from 1931 the annual migration from the United Kingdom to Canada declined from 27,584 in 1931, to 8,398 in 1934, although during that period there had been no tightening up of regulations or restrictions, and asks "What is the explanation of this?"

"It is to be found, of course," says Prof. Chicanot, "in the steady decline in Canadian economic conditions, plus a distinctly unfavorable attitude which has been developing in Britain towards Canada as a land of hope and opportunity. It is the latter which constitutes the more serious difficulty for Canada to overcome. Canada can confidently look for an improvement in Canadian economic conditions which will make the Dominion at least as desirable a place for the average citizen as the British Isles seem to-day, but it is going to take much longer to eradicate those baneful views of Canada which have been subtly developing over the past few years."

New Type Of Dynamite

Product Superior To Nitro-Glycerine Made From Corn

Corn dynamite a new product of the test tube, potentially superior to nitro-glycerine, was reported to the American Chemical Society by its president, Prof. Edward Barrow, head of the University of Iowa department of chemistry.

Professor Barrow pictured the possibilities of corn, processed in the test tubes, being used all over the country to blast stumps from fields, excavate roads and skyscraper foundations, and "shoot" quarries, mines and oil wells.

The new explosive is one of several possibilities opened by processing corn from corn of a sugar-like substance known as inositol, hitherto unavailable because extraction made it cost about $500 a pound. In the last two months, Prof Barrow said, Dr. W. W. Wenker, of his department at Iowa, has discovered a method of extraction which cheapens the process so many laboratories already have started work on its possible uses.

Canadian Wheat Board Sells 1,500,000 Bushels

All wheat owned at Churchill, Man., by the Canadian wheat board, approximately 1,500,000 bushels has been sold to export interests, it was announced at Winnipeg The sale represents only a change in ownership.

A straight cash transaction, the wheat was sold to James Richardson and Sons and the Reliance Grain Company, who made the announcement. A variety of grades was included in the sale.

School Examinations

Unfair To Force Student To Repeat Year On Account Of Failure In One Subject

Dr. Duncan McArthur, deputy minister of education, suggested to the Ontario Educational Association's principal's department of the Ontario Educational Association that the middle school examination be divided into two parts.

Dr. McArthur suggested six subjects be written in third year with the candidate having two or less failures advancing to fourth year. If a candidate has more than two failures he would have to repeat his year.

The second part with six subjects would be written in the fourth year and those having less than two failures would be eligible to write the university entrance examinations. It is unfair, he said, to force a student who failed in only one subject to repeat his year.

A Strict Censorship

Japan Cuts Out Many Scenes From Foreign Films

In one year more than 8,000 feet of "kissing scenes" have been cut from home and foreign films intended for showing in Japan. A further 23,000 feet were cut from crime scenes considered detrimental to public morality and social thought A total of 64,000 feet were cut from the 12 779 000 feet of Japanese films examined All the cut portions are preserved in a special room at the Japanese Home Ministry in Tokyo. The accumulation since 1925 is said to weigh 15 tons.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Poisons are absorbed into the body, and you feel sick and sour all the world looks gloomy.

Don't take merely a laxative. Take something that will get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Don't be talked out of anything else. 33

Languages In Canada

No Fewer Than Thirty Is Listed In The Census

There are so many languages spoken in Canada that if representative orators of each happened to be assembled on the Parliament Hill at one and the same time, the Peace Tower would be a veritable Tower of Babel. There are no fewer than 30 listed by the census and there are a good many more.

English is the prevailing language, of course, for that is the mother tongue of considerably more than half of the population. The very large proportion of those whose mother tongue is another language have learned to speak English.

There are over 2,800,000 people who learned French in childhood. The German, Ukrainian and with over 300,000, then the Ukrainians with over one quarter of a million. The Slavs are also fairly numerous.

There are Chinese, Japanese, Dutch, Flemish, Greek, Italian, Icelandic, Gaelic, Austrian, Bohemian, Bulgarian, Russian, Slovak, Syrian, Arabic, Polish and many other languages spoken.

This information comes from census reports issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics

Outlet For Barley

Recognized As Excellent Feed For Many Classes Of Livestock

An increased outlet for barley as feed grain for livestock is being sought in the numbers of live stock fed on farms, by improving the market finish of such animals, by increasing the volume of imported feeds, or by supplanting other feeds now commonly used. Barley is recognized as an excellent feed for many classes of live stock, and a pre-eminent feed for certain classes. This statement by the Special Barley Committee, submitted to the National Barley Committee at its annual meeting held recently in Toronto.

There is widespread support for an increase in hog numbers on a scale sufficient to absorb many additional millions of bushels of barley or other feed cereals, the report points out. The potential value of providing an improved finish on meat animals is greater than may be generally appreciated. It has been estimated that it would require between seven and eight million bushels of grain to produce a desirable finish on the annual supply of poultry alone that comes to the Canadian market. Barley is recognized as being long used. Corn is the only imported feed that competes directly with barley.

A Real Sailor

Always Says He Serves In And Not On Ship

Speaking of his new charge, the Queen Mary, Captain Sir Edgar Britten, says she is "the easiest ship to handle I ever served in."

There speaks the sailor when he says he serves "in" a ship and not "on". All landsmen refer to being "on" a ship. Sail "on" the Saskatchewan, or they arrived "on" the Such-and-Such.

You sail "in" a ship; not "on" it. If you wear nautical logs and talk big about being "on" a ship you give yourself away at once to a real sailor.

Muzzled Newspapers

Three Great European Nations Keep Authority Over Press

In three of the great European nations the newspapers are muzzled, and the muzzle is official and municipal. Scores of German, Russian and Italian journalists are in prison or concentration camps for the simple offence of honestly portraying unpleasant truths. But these are not the only countries in which the press is muzzled, according to the American Legion Monthly. Direct censorship rules defiantly in Austria, and more than occasionally in Spain, Portugal, Greece and Poland, where troubles constantly break out which the authorities want to conceal from their own people as well as from the outer world. An occult censorship exists in France, Holland and Belgium, and in some other nations in the Balkans and along the Baltic. The result in most cases is to cause mistrust and disgurt in the minds of newspaper readers. Great Britain and the United States are "distinguished by a press independent and unafraid," according to the article received in. How long they may continue to hold that distinction will depend on how long and to what extent the human democratic."—The New Outlook.

Officials Of Royal Household Given Mementos Of King George

Carrying out the wishes of his father, the King has sent personal mementos of King George to every one of the officials of the Royal Household who were with the late King for ten years or more, says the Times in the world. The souvenirs are in the form of jewelry—cuff links, tie-pins, studs, and so on —which were in King George's large and valuable collection, and which the King is engaged in examining the records of all the scores of societies and institutions of which he or his father has been patron or president, or with which they were connected in any way. The whole list is to be revised, so that the King will succeed his father in many cases, and will not be merely attached to certain other bodies which, while suited for patronage by the Prince of Wales, would not be suitable for direct connection with the King.

Inaudible Sounds

World Of Silent Noise Awaits Explorers Of Science

A humming bird sings. The notes rise higher and higher. Suddenly they seem to stop. Yet the bird's mouth remains wide open as if he were still pouring forth melody in full-throated ease. There is but one conclusion. The bird is still singing, but at a pitch inaudible to our crude ears. So with thousands of insects. The life of the forest is a majestic symphony of which we hear only the deep bottle-drone, horn roughings, rustlings and shrillings.

Just how much we hear depends on our inborn aural sensitivity, our age and factors. Few ears can detect vibrations higher than 15,000 a second. For most of us all sound becomes inaudible at 16,000.

Clearly a world of silent noise awaits the explorers of science, says the "Christian Science Monitor." In the Cruft Laboratory of Harvard they are to be found in the persons of Professor George W. Pierce, Dr. Noyes and Miss Prouty. For the moment they have confined their efforts to the Bombian fanciful, a common, dark-brown field cricket which can trill for five minutes at a time, emitting notes for pure notes vary from 8,000 to 11,000 vibrations a second.

In the winter months, when nature has lapsed into numbness, there are indoor studies of such phenomena as the song they make by fine air jets or the friction of clothing as we walk. Even now it is possible to hear in the Cruft Laboratory the terrible and fascinatingly inaudible screeching generated by the scraping of skin on skin as hand upon hand or the outward thrust accompanies the higher frequencies when a match is struck against the box.

Mosquito Pests

Drainage Of Surface Water Aids Greatly In Control

The Dominion Entomologist directs attention to the fact that much can be done by community action in reducing the number of mosquitoes which affect the comfort and health of citizens generally. Mosquitoes breed largely in temporary bodies of water, such as snow and rain pools and river flooded areas. They develop only in water, and the method of control which ultimately gives most satisfaction consists in eliminating the breeding places by drainage or by filling, and, in the case of large flood areas, by dyking and pumping. Filling and leveling of low places where water accumulates should be carried out wherever possible. Care should also be taken to prevent mosquitoes breeding in artificial containers, such as water barrels, either by emptying or screening them.

The Dominion Entomological Branch has prepared a circular dealing with mosquito control in Canada This circular is available free on application to the Publicity and Extension Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. In the case of communities campaigns, towns and villages contemplating action against these mosquito pests should write the Dominion Entomologist at Ottawa for direction and information.

Popular Feature Ended

Royal Horse Artillery Giving Last Musical Ride This Year

One of the most popular sights at the Royal tournament in London, held annually at Olympia in aid of military charities, will be seen no more

After this year the famous musical ride by the Royal Horse Artillery, a feature of the program for 50 years, will disappear owing to the decrease in membership of the branch of the service F. Battery, under Lt.-Col. Dorman, will give a display for the last time and subsequently proceed to India

The evolutions of the guns with the horses at first trotting, crossing and recrossing with literally not two inches to spare, made a fascinating sight that became truly thrilling when the teams were put to a gallop. Very occasionally, too, there would be a bad spill, but rarely was anybody seriously hurt

However, if the public is to be denied the cantering horses, and the jingle and rattle of the moving guns, the younger generation at least is likely to find solace in beholding another don——— declaiming over the arena in a manner putting shame to the flesh and blood of the Grand National

CHURCHILL WARNS THE SITUATION IS REACHING CLIMAX

London.—Charging Germany had spent $4,000,000,000 on armaments in 1935 alone, Winston Churchill with a prevision which held the House of Commons spellbound, concluded his speech in the budget debate with a warning that Europe was approaching a climax.

"I believe that climax," he declared amidst tense silence, "has been reached in the liftiites of the present parliament. Either there will be a melting of hearts and a joining of hands between the great nations which will release for us a glorious era and the age of prosperity which is now within the grasp of millions of toiling people, or there will be an explosion—a catastrophe, the consequences of which no man can measure, and beyond which no human eye can see.

"I believe also that a strongly armed Britain, resolutely and valiantly led, seeking nothing but peace, but ready to maintain the right with any conceivably turn the dread scale between a blessing and a curse, ling of mankind."

He sat down amidst loud cheers from the crowded benches.

The additional £50,000,000 provided in the budget for bolstering the country's defences, Churchill declared at the outset of his speech, "proclaims the failure and inadequacy of our defence efforts this year." He went on to make striking allegations regarding Germany's armament expansion.

From the most reliable sources, Churchill told the House, he had learned that from the end of March, 1933, to the end of June, 1935, there was an increase in the German public debt of a minimum of 7,000,000,000 marks. To this must be added the yield from compulsory loans amounting to a further 5,000,000,000 marks. Therefore, he went on, the minimum expenditure for the 21½ years over current budget expenditure was 12,000,000,000 marks.

To Meet Defence Program

Extra Expense Means Higher Taxes For British People

London. — Neville Chamberlain's fifth budget, providing for increased taxes to meet the government's vast defence program, was generally received by the press as unexpectedly light, but was accepted with Spartan resignation and approval of the orthodox decision to meet the whole of the increased expenditure from revenue.

Commentators related the proposals received a gloomy reception in the house, where it was apparent many Conservatives hoped the chancellor of the exchequer would raise the defence loan earlier than now planned, while others considered the chancellor would have been wiser to suspend the sinking fund rather than increase taxation at a time when industry is recovering.

The majority of morning newspapers agreed, however, it was best to bring home to the country the vast measure of the defence program.

Besides raising the income tax, the chancellor increased the duty on beer by two pence per pound, an increase of 2d per pint. A duty on imported lager beer was also proposed. As a concession to small-income groups, the personal tax exemption for married men was raised from £170 to £180 and the exemption for each child increased from £50 to £60.

Highway Construction

Tenders Called For Work On Alberta Roads

Edmonton. Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, announced that tenders had been called for the construction of a 26-mile standard grade and gravel highway from Lethbridge to Iron Springs, via Picture Butte. It would provide an outlet for the new sugar factory in that area, he said.

Mr. Fallow said that 31 miles of "blotter," or oil-coating, and 15 miles of "mat" coating on the highway between Calgary and Banff would be completed by July 1, thus completing a hard-surface road from Calgary to Banff park boundary.

Also planned for later in the year is hard-surfacing of the Calgary-Okotoks highway.

Fifty miles of road on the Calgary-Edmonton highway south from the city to Wetaskiwin will be resurfaced, he said, "as it is failing apart." Twelve miles of this would be over new ground so as to eliminate "dead-in-the-middle" grades, a cool-digree of Stellarton broke into the shattered stope.

ambulances of a medical unit waited to care for the resurrected men.

Draegerman George Morrell walked to the drill hole through which Dr. Robertson and Scadding had talked with the surface. Triumphantly he cut the telephone wire.

The first stretcher came up bearing the doctor on the last lap of the journey. A great cheer went up.

Ten days' growth of beard stood out from Dr. Robertson's and Scadding's drawn pale faces. They had lost pounds of weight.

The diamond drill hole reached them at a spot where water was dripping swiftly from above, and they had to climb ladders to reach it. They had been unwilling to risk pneumonia from the water and were too exhausted to climb the ladders to get food.

But in spite of that Dr. Robertson was in marvellous condition. "Why I'm not even tired," he said. "I'm going back to my home and my wife and into his own room and demanded a big meal of beef steak." Joked Dr. Ed. Callie, a life-long friend, to his relief to find Dr. Robertson so well

BRAVE RESCUE IN MINE DISASTER CANADIAN EPIC

Moose River, N.S.—Victors over 240 hours of hunger, exposure and dread in a cavern far below the earth's surface, Dr. D. Edwin Robertson and Alfred Scadding came up to the twisting trail from the Moose River gold mine's caved-in pit.

They were carried out on stretchers borne by Dresgermen who for 10 days had striven downward through rock and rubble to cleave a path to the men entombed when the sides of a shaft caved in late Easter Sunday night.

As soon as the miners turned Dr. Robertson and Scadding over to the hands of physicians, they dared the mine again. In the black cavern they picked the body of Herman Magill, 30-year-old partner of Dr. Robertson in the mining venture that lured the men underground.

They carried it reverently to the surface. Men who had spared neither nerve nor muscle through the long days and nights of digging, blasting, drilling—hope and disappointment, and final triumph—cast aside any reluctance to handle the three-day corpse and completed their task.

Dr. Robertson, after being carried through the rescue tunnel from the prison to the old disused Reynolds' shaft from which the rescuers cut across, carried much of the way up to the surface on his hands and knees, said Jack Simpson, captain of the rescue crew.

He said Dr. Robertson and Scadding were on the north side slope of the 141-foot level beside the skip or trolley which operated from the depths to the surface. It was apparently the same spot to which they had dragged to safety when the cave-in occurred.

"It was about seven feet wide and 12 feet high but I don't know how long. It was very wet and damp. There were no signs of ladders." (Mentioned by the men in conversations with the surface during their imprisonment).

As soon as the Draegermen broke through, Minister of Health Dr. R Davis followed and examined the two men.

Dr. Robertson is 62 years old. Just once in 10 days food had come down through the tunnel under shaft of a drill-hole. But he was indomitable.

Scadding was in worse shape

Magill was the doctor's business partner in a level railway running under the city to Weatherbee's mine. It was the only way as gold The bank then would issue silver certificates against the silver. In addition, the bank would Base power to purchase newly-mined silver on instructions of the finance minister

HEAVY PUBLIC WORKS PROGRAM IN ESTIMATES

Ottawa. — Expenditures of nearly $60,000,000 in works projects of all descriptions throughout the Dominion are authorized for the current fiscal year in supplementary estimates brought down in the House of Commons by Finance Minister Dunning.

In addition the minister is making provision for the annual relief grants-in-aid to the provinces totaling $26 000,000 for the year ending March 31, 1937, and for a new grant-in-relief of $30 000 000 in the Canadian National Railway system for the calendar year 1936

The total amount in the supplementaries is $124,748,743, of which all but the amount estimated as the Canadian National deficit will be charged providing employment or relief. Authorization also is provided for loans to the railways totalling $6 412,400 to enable them to pay their share of cost of maintenance work designed to take care of those in camps for single homeless men and to complete the equipment buildings program started under the Supplementary Public Works Act of 1935

In estimates provision is made for the construction of a number of projects started by the late government and $30,418,341 is to be voted for that purpose. New projects will take $24 430 401

Prairie provinces conservation will be given particular attention with $1,184,000 to be voted for that purpose, while farm settlement and rehabilitation will take $2 560 000 [illegible]

Expenditures in national parks will run to more than $1 600 000 including $150 000 for establishment of new parks in the maritime provinces

Miniature Painter Able To Get Close-Up Of King Edward

Josef Hilpert, who recently painted the smallest miniature in the world—a portrait of Premier Hepburn on a bloodstone, told the Toronto branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club how he recently crashed the gates" to get a close-up of His Majesty King Edward VIII.

"I thought I'd like to paint him But when I got there it wasn't so easy. I said I'd come 4 000 miles for the chance. But I was told there were thousands of artists who wanted to paint him Hilpert explained. He discovered the British Industries Fair was scheduled to start on Thursday of that week He secured a ticket as a buyer, to pass the director of the fair and police found through which door and at what time His Majesty was due to arrive He then got permission to stand in an exhibit and joined the Royal entourage as it passed The King turned and said "Do you belong to the Royal Family?"

Oh, I'm a Canadian representative here he managed to reply.

Thank you, came the response and Mr. Hilpert marched on. He came back to Canada with several commissions

Mr. Hilpert chose Mr. Hepburn as his subject as the smallest miniature in the world because, he explained Everybody likes him or doesn't like him."

Using Different Colors

Great Britain Painting Submarines To Match The Sea

The British admiralty, after several years of experimenting, has decided to paint its submarines in different colors to "match" the seas where they serve.

The main purpose of the "protective coloring" is to make the submerged craft invisible to low flying aeroplanes.

For some time it was the theory of naval experts that gray-green would prove the best color, reflection of what sea a submarine might be cruising in. But the hues of the oceans vary to such an extent that new shades had to be added.

British submarines operating in the Atlantic ocean, for instance, will remain gray-green, but those stationed in the Mediterranean will be royal blue. Curiously, those in the Red Sea will be painted black.

Ambitious Air Adventure

United States Airman Plans For Non-Stop Trip Around The World

Clyde Pangborn, trans-Atlantic aviator, is tuning up two aeroplanes for ambitious air adventures record distance and globe-girdling attempts which would possibly include refueling in mid-air at Edmonton.

He wants to break the world's distance record of 5,657 miles set by M. Rossi and P. Codos of France in 1932.

Then he wants to fly non-stop around the world, with two or possibly three refueling contacts in mid-air, a thing never before attempted.

Pangborn has accepted delivery of the aeroplane in which he hopes to make the round-the-world flight, he said, and has taken it up for several satisfactory tests.

"I'd like to start the distance flight the latter part of June," he said, "either from Dallas, where I have been dickered with exposition officials, or from Daytona Beach, Fla."

Moscow, about 6,000 miles from either Dallas or Daytona Beach, will be his objective.

The flight to Russia will serve a double purpose, he said. In addition to the hoped-for breaking of the distance record, Pangborn wants to make arrangements with the Russian government for refueling stations at Moscow and China, in Siberia, for the round-the-world flight, the date of which is indefinite.

For the globe circling, Pangborn may arrange for an auxiliary refueling station at Edmonton. The flight probably will start from New York.

EFFECTUAL PRAYER

Golden text: God, be thou merciful to me a sinner. Luke 18:13.

Lesson: Luke 18.

Devotional reading: I. John 3:18-24.

Explanations And Comments

A Lesson on Perseverance in Prayer, Luke 18:1-8. Jesus gave his disciples the parable of the Unjust Judge and the Importunate Widow, for the purpose of teaching them ("to the end that") that they ought always to pray, and not to faint. He also told them a parable about the need of always praying and never losing heart. Moffatt's translation.

The widow in our parable importuned the judge in reason and out of season, and for a long time he would not hear her claims As Dr. S. Parkes Cadman puts it, "She ranged on his crooked trail, and like the man from Hampshire in "Black House" insisted on being heard at any time and in every place." Finally the judge was moved to give her justice by fear that her continual running would wear him out. would "give me a black eye", as the Greek may be literally translated. "It is persistently an athletic word belonging to the prize ring," he says. "It must have used a very strong corresponding word in Aramaic for to express his absolute requirement of importunity in prayer." Dr. Cadman's conclusion reads: Though I have no reverence for God and no respect even for man, still, as she continues in bothering me, I will see justice done to her lest to have her forever nagging and pestering me.

"How much more the unrighteous judge smith," exclaimed Jesus at the conclusion of his parable "will not wholly unprincipled man would yield to the importunity of a persistent widow, how much more will the just God be ready to hear and respond to persevering prayer!

YOUR GARDEN

Weather, soil and location may be ideal but without good seed, specially selected to suit Canadian conditions the garden is going to be a failure. There is no guarantee that a flower which has given wonderful results in Great Britain or the Southern States will do equally well in this country, and because of this the average gardener is well advised to observe his need and nursery stock from a reliable Canadian source.

Many people believe that it is much more difficult to grow beautiful flowers than a few rows of common vegetables. But this is not so In many respects it is easier to produce the flowers. Of course there are certain things like gorgeous roses, delicately shaded Iris, and tender, stately Lilies which certainly will not thrive on neglect, but there are also a dozen or so annuals and a few perennials which require practically no skill. Take the little Alyssum, for instance, or Sweet Alice. It comes in several sizes up to six or eight inches in height. It will grow almost anywhere and will bloom all season. If the dead flowers are sheared off they will keep coming in clusters or even a lawn mower. Portulaca is another annual that is almost indestructible and forgotten. It likes a hot sunny location and then their seeds must have moisture. Portulaca will bloom all summer. A little patch of the Spilendula or pot Marigold. It thrives in almost any position, though it should not be too shaded. After thining no more attention is needed The ordinary dwarf French Marigold is another which should not be overlooked by the gardener who has little time to devote to his hobby and also the California Poppy, Cosmos and ornamental Sunflower. This selection will give plenty of bloom, a fair variety of colour and height.

Vegetable gardens should be very productive affairs, and from a fraction of an acre of ground, ten times the yield is expected as would result from a similar area under ordinary field conditions. Where space is limited it is possible to grow two crops, even in those sections of Canada where the summer season is short. This is done by planting rows of very early stuff like lettuce, radish and spinach, in between later maturing vegetables such as corn, tomatoes parsnips and swiss chard. By the time the later things have beginning to need full room, the first named group will be used and out of the way. Corn may be planted in rows started coming down to get the prize. A. Stephen leaned over to a reporter and said:

"That's my daughter who pulled the ticket. That's my wife who won the raffle. And I donated the blanket."

Investigation proved he was correct.

FLEMING'S FOLLY

— BY —

LAWRENCE A. GEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread" Buzz shoots at Fleming in an unavoidable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured Buzz is arrested and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties.

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Tierney to learn whether they could be adapted to a smaller scheme suitable for his and Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done Feeling cold, he lights the fire and there is an explosion that wrecks the house, burns it and the plans and renders Link unconscious Yesterday's work has been done by an employee

Buzz Hamilton arrives back in Rawhide while Fleming and Helen are in the bank getting a loan for payment of wages for work on the dam Roper Kilgo and Jackpot Mott meet him and he goes into the saloon with them Buzz tells them story and Link come from the bank. Buzz has had several drinks Roper has exhorted him to "forget everything" and dam proposal to Buzz, making it appear that Link was trying to ruin him. Buzz, inflamed with liquor and anger, tries to provoke Fleming, but is thrown to the floor Then Helen appears and tells Fleming she has been robbed of the $800 they had obtained from the bank

On their arrival home they are met by a couple of Link's workmen, who tell Fleming that there was a strike at the dam, and that the men were afraid they would not get their wages. Link told them of the robbery and promised them their money. What'll yuh do after yuh go busted and take the Triple H along? And what about Helen? What about the gal?" he persisted.

Fleming dropped from his saddle, tossed reins over the mare's ears, walked toward Link's cook. "In that case, and if I don't become another county murder case, I'll maybe ride to your house in town, Amos, and ask for a hundred dollars. Then I'll marry Helen Hamilton and hit the trail."

The other's piercing gaze did not waver "You ain't a good risk around here, Gettin' back the only condition I'd loan yuh money on. Understand?" Stephen observed, and spat with extreme accuracy at a distant sage brush. "Course, if hinds think yuh won t get Helen "

"N-" Who will?"

"Roper."

Link smiled "He did have the inside track for awhile, that's true But I think he has it any more, though."

Shore he has. Got it again"

What's that?"—startledly.

That's what I'm sayin' plainly enough, I ain't never been 'lected sheriff."

Abruptly he changed the subject as was his wont. "Have yuh turned up anythin' about that holdup and the eight hundred?"

Link shook his head "I'm depending on you, Amos."

Yeah" He gathered his reins and readjusted himself in the worn saddle. "Reckon I'll ride over to the Triple H soon, ain't yuh." One hays are wantin' with every pound o' beef we can spare, and I understand Marty Bush promised to put us first in shippin' tomorrow morn'. They'll have to start for Junction to-day."

Puzzlement must have betrayed itself, for Buzz laughed somewhat self-consciously and climbed beside Link, holding his mount's reins over one wrist while he produced cigarette material

"Feelin a little cooled off since yesterday" he asked.

"Sure. It was those other hombres made me sore. Gyp had made it plain before. Buster fired him and I had to knock him down. Roper didn't hardly win my love there at the dam, and as for Jackpot Mott I'm not concerned—" His fingers strayed to the band but of his holstered gun "Reckon I'll ride over to the Triple H next. They might be friends of yours, but they sure aren't friends of mine How does it feel to be home?" he added, to change the subject

Hamilton struck a match and inhaled smoke from his cigarette. He seemed to be marshalling the words of some proposal Pondering what he should say Buzz, it struck Link as pitiful, the man's position in the world An ex-convict, he wore an indelible stain, and his past and irreproachable behaviour could erase. He could not help but feel deep pity for the man who was now in Hamilton's boots, and that the land had not handicapped him with Buzz's weak chin, his unstable nature, his utter lack of will power.

"We're wondering why I came, First." Helen's brother added in some embarrassment "I want to thank yuh for gettin' me paroled Prison is— He shuddered at memory and forced cockiness up. "It's like livin' death

Link put a hand on his knee "Let's forget that, Buzz. We always got along, the little while we knew each other before you went away I was sorry to hear about it, could do Helen's make She's fond of you, Buzz"—

"And mebbe you're fond of her?" Hamilton retorted slightly. "You ought put it that way"

There was a short pause "Trouble is, I'm in a bad position now and did get me there. I realize it. I only act very well yesterday, but maybe it was the shock of comin' home and all that. Anyway, I'm sorry for what I done. Reckon I'll ride over to the Triple H soon, ain't yuh. I don't never wasn't a fair sample of the way I'm goin' to be."

Shore that Loop owner swung around "I'm sure glad to hear you say that"

Yeah He gathered his reins and readjusted himself in the worn saddle. "Reckon I'll ride over to the hombre now, but I don't know who he is, where he is, or if he is All I got is a bunch shoot them leather cuffs Helen grabbed one of I can always get yuh a marriage license in town, Link," he added and rode quickly out of earshot

Fleming looked after, noting that Stephen headed for Silver Creek Dam He realized that in his self-torturing way Ames had wished him well expressed confidence in Link as a man but skepticism in him as a builder of the irrigation dam Also that he had delivered a friendly warning in regard to Kilgo leaving favor with Helen Hamilton, and that he had little notion yet who had held her up

The rancher climbed to the top corral rail and sat smoking in sober reflection. To a man, Boone County believed and almost hoped, that his plans would end in ruin. Queer, how obstinate people could be in regard to improvement. Merely because irrigation was as yet something new and outside their limited experience they fully expected his dam to fail!

He noticed a round-shouldered rider approaching, his carriage plainly that of one unused to the saddle. In some surprise Link recognized the hang-dog outline of Buzz Hamilton.

Helen's brother rode straight toward him and dismounted. "Hello, Link Gettin' yore men over to the Triple H soon, ain't yuh" Our boys are wantin' with every pound o' beef we can spare, and I understand Marty Bush promised to put us first in shippin' tomorrow morn'. They'll have to start for Junction to-day."

The Age Of Power

Reported Invention Of Japanese Scientist Would Revolutionize Industry

A young Japanese scientist, Hideyuki Kikuchi 21 is said to have completed an invention which in time will make Kilgo Hamilton and others what are to-day's waves of a legend, such great energy that they can be used as a basis for revolutionize industry The first application is to be on the smelting of iron, in which it is reportedly done away with the present elaborate melting furnace and the hydro-generation of coal to produce oil The inventor is going to obtain patents in eleven European and American countries. As the result of this invention Japan will draw orders from Germany for electric furnaces.

The Genius Of Dickens

People Who Never Read His Books Know The Characters

Dickens was the sublime naturalist whose Pecksniff and Micawber, Janet Chubbleruit and Squeers and Uriah Heep are not creatures of flesh and blood like those of Thackery and George Eliot They are rather humorous caricatures and fabulous bodied and walking about on two legs They are quoted and symbolized wherever the English language is spoken even by people who know Dickens as they know Shakespeare, only by hearsay And it is one test of his greatness that we can return to him again and again and catch a refreshing of the spirit at that general acclaim with which his genius was recognized in Pelwick a century ago Boston Transcript

OLD TIME CITIZEN LEAVE VERMILION

Mr and Mrs. J. A. Rosebrough left on Saturday morning of last week for Vancouver and other B. C. points where they expect to spend the summer at least. It is highly probable that they will visit their son Dr. Burl Rosebrough near Chilliwack, next fall. Mr. and Mrs. Rosebrough are Vermilion pioneers in the truest sense of the word, they have been actively associated with its development since Vermilion's early days. Mr. Rosebrough served a term as town councillor and for the last 11 years has been its representative on the municipal hospital board. He is a past Master of the local A.F. & A.M. No. Friday night before leaving the departing citizens were waited on by the executive of the Vermilion Old Timers association and each was presented with a handsome souvenir of Vermilion on Thursday of last week at a large social affair held in the Masonic hall. Mr Rosebrough was presented with a gold headed cane.

The many friends throughout this section of Alberta wish them the best of everything wherever they may ultimately settle.

INTERESTING LECTURE ON AUSTRALIA BY MISS GRACE PATULLO

The visit of Miss Grace Patullo, a Canadian girl who has returned from the continent of Australia as ambassador of the Commonwealth, including throughout Vermilion and district.

During the evening of her lecture Monday in the United church, she presented a rapidly moving travelogue of two hours holding the rapt attention at every the smallest children in the front rows. Glories of great Australian cities, beauty of her mountains plains and farms, interest of social functions, enchantment of flora and fauna, hospitality of the people, to the bewitching quality of a week spent on Day Dream Island in the coral Great Barrier reef—all were faithfully portrayed.

Miss Patullo closed with a glimpse of what would be Australia's future as a nation and gave a glowing message of good-will from the people of that island continent.

She brought with her an intriguing curio collection representing each state of the Commonwealth, including many from Tasmania, a wonderland though the smallest state, and many beautiful shells and corals from the Barrier Reef. These delighted the children and adults who were at liberty to examine them afterwards.

Miss Patullo lectures in Islay on Tuesday night, Kitscoty Wednesday night, and we are hoping a splendid crowd will turn out to hear her in Lloydminster on Thursday in Lloyd minster. From here she tours far afield in rural Alberta, rounding perhaps, a lively interest in all Australia and presenting that message of friendship.

This youthful Canadian lecturer is quite worthy of every encouragement and we wish her every success.

CHATSWORTH CHATTER

Seeding is now in full swing all through the district. The main winds are far from welcome but they seem to be the order of the day at this time or year so all we can do is grin and bear them. The weatherman has not decided whether he will serve us hot or cold days. The first electrical storm of the year was noticed one late southern horizon on Monday night but only a shower of rain fell here during the night with a few brilliant lightning flashes and distant thunder.

The softball and baseball practices have again started at Otisco. All other social activities have ceased until seeding is over.

Since May 1st the difference in the price of a gallon of coal oil is seven and one-half cents. The farmer is 10 hard nosed once more as coal oil is the main fuel used for lighting in the farm houses. It's too bad Mr. Aberhart isn't one of those unfortunates who have one small coal oil lamp for lighting purposes with mother sewing, father reading, several school age children trying to see to do their homework, and little ones looking at pictures or otherwise trying to amuse themselves in the faint glimmer that is left, when the others are crowded as closely as they can to the light. Why wonder that eyesight among the children on the farms or in the rural schools is poor? Does this tax allow for any chance of improvement?

WIREWORM PROBLEM IN WESTERN CANADA

Fully three out of four farms in many areas of medium and light soil in the prairie and open park sections of Western Canada, and many farms in other areas, have a "permanent" wireworm problem of considerable importance. This is revealed by surveys conducted since 1922 by the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Saskatoon, Sask. Yet, although the annual losses from wireworms run to millions of dollars in the Prairie provinces, not one farmer in ten realizes its cause. Because wireworms live in the soil, they are not readily seen, and because their damage is usually in the nature of a general crop thinning the injury is commonly attributed to various other factors.

Whether or not there is a wireworm problem is determined by first looking for the characteristic damage symptoms: a thin poor stand, or a general patchy condition which is worse on knolls, spots of light soil, and previously weedy areas; or, in more severe cases, where nearly the whole crop in some one, with plants still growing in the drill wheel tracks and other packed spots. Suspicion of wireworms should be particularly aroused if the injury is more common and severe to crop on summerfallow than on stubble, if the damage is more pronounced in years of limited moisture, or if the damage tends to recur in the same fields and in the same spots every year in which conditions are favorable to the pest.

Examination of the individual damaged plants for further characteristic symptoms is necessary, since a thin crop stand or patchiness may result from several causes. The young plant is injured by the wireworm boring into the underground part of the stem, feeding mainly on the centre tissues, often giving a "shredded" appearance to the injured part, but rarely completely severing the stem. By the killing of the inside of the stem first, the centre leaf dies and shrivels before the outside leaves begin to wilt.

Finally, search must be made for the pest itself. Wireworms are most easily found if the search is made in the top 3 to 4 inches of soil along the drill runs at the time and place that young grain plants are found in a dying condition. This will be in May or early June. If the search is made later, the pest will probably not be found because it burrows deeply into the soil during the hotter, drier weather. Wireworms are shiny, yellowish, hard-bodied worms, rather slim at both ends. Full-grown specimens are about an inch in length, but usually various sizes are found together in the same field.

Careful observations along the lines given above is definitely worthwhile to show both the abundance of wireworms and the rate of damage by them can be decidedly reduced, with one additional tool, by certain agriculturally-sound modifications of regular farming practices. Control measures are described in a leaflet entitled "The Wireworm Problem in Field Crops of Western Canada", which may be secured from the Publications and Extension Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa or from the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Saskatoon.

LARGE PROSPECTING PERMIT IS ISSUED

12,320 Acres Filed On Battleview Anticline Gas Field — Near Vermilion

(Western Examiner)

Someone has evidently profited by the report made by Dr. G. S. Hume on the Battleview anticline, as reported generally some time ago, as this week's list of prospecting permits applied for include one for 12,320 acres within townships 46, 47, 48, ranges 5 and 6 west of the 4th.

According to the maps which accompany the Hume report as issued by the Dominion Bureau of Economic Geology, the Battleview anticline lies between Grizzly Bear Coulee on the east and Buffalo coulee on the west, both of which run into the Battle River, and are directly north of the Baxter lake section of the Wainwright field.

The report of Dr. Hume recommends this as one of the most favorable areas (or testing for gas and oil, and shallow test wells are suggested as the initial effort and subsequently deep tests could be made with standard drilling equipment, the latter no doubt having in view the possibility of rotary tools shutting off possible showing.

This application adds another to the long list made since Hon. C. C. Ross minister of lands and mines introduced the prospecting permit system, or rather modified the operations of the previous regulations.

The production or creamery butter in Canada for the first three months of 1936 showed an increase of 2,249, 248 pounds compared with the corresponding period in 1935. The amount produced from January 1 to March 31, 1936 was 26,112,284 pounds

HAS DENMARK THE ANSWER?

Denmark leads the world in co-operation. True the English co-operative movement is richer and has more members, but England cannot touch Denmark yet as a co-operative state. Most of the needs of the Danish people are met through some form of co-operative organization. The Danish Co-operative Wholesale Society, however, affiliates with 2,200 societies. Danish farmers alike make loans in co-operative housing societies up to 80 per cent of the dwelling's value. Danish farmers have shown the farmers of the world a way out of their difficulties. They have organized producing and consuming societies and co-operatives in milk testing cattle breeding, and everything farmers do and need. The Danish co-operative bank lends only to co-operative societies and includes co-operative savings banks, credit unions and individuals. It has a staff of nearly 300 people. The state owns a number of banks, however, and pays a handsome revenue from them.

CLANDONALD AUDIENCE ENJOYS PEPPY PLAY

Excellent Comedy Presented In The Orange Hall

On Easter Monday April 13 an excellent comic drama entitled "Our Little Clothespin" was very successfully presented under the auspices of the St Mary's Anglican church, to an appreciative audience in the Clandonald Orange hall. Everyone present agreed that this was an exceptionally well written play of continuous clean humor with ample tense situations and a definite plot which held the audience throughout. These very desirable characteristics were superbly dramatized by the following local cast

Miss Juliette Bean, a mature boarding house keeper who still had confidence in her womanly wiles . . . Mrs. George Jacklin, Tony Gump, Juliette's friend, on who succeeded in the city as a policeman. Mr. T. Sonder, theatre Chairperson, an innocent little lamb in his millers eyes and in echo. . . . Lowell Fairchild. The Burden Of Debt

Figures revealing the enormous burden of debt under which the people of Canada are staggering have recently been published in the first of a series of articles by Major J. Creetham de Lorimer in the Montreal Daily Star.

The article is prefaced by the announcement that the author is a recognized statistician with an international reputation that his work has been officially recognized both in Great Britain and the United States and that the information he reveals throws a new and alarming light on the whole Canadian debt situation."

Major de Lorimer then proceeds to bury figures at his readers showing at the outset that exclusive of private capital invested in domestic enterprises such as farms, homes and other small estate property the people and industries of this country are indebted to investors in a total of $16,225,-364,922, covering bonded indebtedness of Dominion, provincial and municipal authorities, schools investments in railroads electric tramways, electric stations, telephone companies all manufacturing concerns, mines and metal industries forestry and lumber industries, public utilities, trading establishments finance, insurance, land and mortgage companies.

The writer states that of this total securities for $9,207,820,361 are held by foreign investors or $1.04 per cent and the remaining $8,923,434,-561 or 48.92 per cent represents investment by Canadians

Dividing the total in another manner Major de Lorimer shows that of this grand total $11,427,896,402 or 62.70 per cent is "dead weight" debt or indebtedness on which principal and interest must be paid out of public taxation.

Further analyses of several tables of figures scattered through Major de Lorimer's article show that the total bonded debt chargeable to the people of the three prairie provinces is $1,479,850,067 of which $915,848,906 represents dead weight debt for which payment must be made out of public taxation levied on the people of these three provinces

Allocating these debts to the three individual provinces, every man, woman and child in Manitoba is pledged in a total of $871 69 or for dead weight debt $533 16. Similarly Saskatchewan's per capita share of total debt is $488 66 or $256 41 for dead weight debt and every individual in Alberta is pledged for a total debt of $835 70 and for debt payable out of taxation $519 33, and it must not be forgotten that these figures do not include private capital invested in small domestic enterprises Multiply these figures by four and a fraction and the indebtedness of the average family is revealed if Major de Lorimer's figures are unimpeachable

Major de Lorimer lays the blame for this condition of affairs at the doors of the Federal and provincial governments as well as the municipalities and school authorities of each province, stating that these huge burdens is intolerable to ever-increasing and not to Canada's participation in the Great War

There can be no gainsaying the implied corollary that Canada is overgoverned when it is remembered that a population of 10,376,706 people (1931 census) must pay for the privilege of a Dominion House of Commons consisting of 245 representatives and nine provincial legislatures consisting of another 509 legislators. It is not alone the cost of upkeep of so many legislative institutions which is has plunged the people into such heavy indebtedness but the expenditures which so many representatives have been expected to authorize to ensure a place in the sun for their respective constituencies.

That this country has more government than the population warrants can be understood when it is pointed out that there is a representative in the Canadian House of Commons for every 42,354 persons as compared with one for every 74,909 of population in the British House of Commons and when it is added respectively to the provincial legislatures overlapping one for every 113,762 of population, the expense of government is altogether disproportionate to the population and its ability to pay

To cope with this situation various remedies have been broached from time to time including proposals to reduce the number of legislatures to five, one for the maritimes, one each for Ontario and Quebec one for the prairie provinces and one for British Columbia. Another is a reduction in the status of the provincial legislatures to that of the county councils of England, which unlike the legislatures are not sovereign bodies and are limited in scope and authority.

With the western provinces in financial difficulties some of these proposals are likely to be at least discussed in the near future, even if they are not the solution to the problem

Story Of Mummy Case

English Actor Linked Ocean Tragedy With Egyptian Curse

Twenty-four years ago, early on the morning of April 15, 1912, the great new steamship, the Titanic, on her maiden voyage, foundered in mid-Atlantic, after striking an iceberg, with a loss of 1,500 lives.

What mysterious forces of Fate brought about the disaster?

Tom Terriss, the celebrated English actor, on an American broadcast some time ago, linked the ocean tragedy with the black magic of an Egyptian mummy case.

Warned by a palmist not to buy while in Egypt, a mummy case, he was much tempted when one was offered to him for £100, but he refused to buy it. But next day the dealer came to his hotel and when he cut the price to £50 Terris decided to defy superstition. He shipped it to Alexandria, to await his return from big game hunting up country The first day out, his gun exploded and he lost one eye and had one arm badly injured. Homeward bound to England, a friend travelling with him died suddenly and another who had been with them jumped overboard

In London he offered the case to another collector, who might be received a phone call that the collector had been found dead in front of the door, a victim of his hobby. The case was then sent to the British Museum, where a photographer took a picture of the mummy. While he was developing the film it took fire. An artist painted a picture of the case and on leaving the studio knocked over by a team of horses and the painting was destroyed.

Finally, the British Museum offered the case to the Metropolitan Museum in New York It was accepted and shipped.

The mummy case went down with the Titanic!

Cold From Platinum

Modern Transmutation Is Described By University Men

A method of producing platinum into gold somewhat the reverse of the ancient alchemist's dream of forming the precious metal to the present yellow was described to the National Academy of Science.

The method, announced annulits against the structure of the atom is involved in the modern transmutation described by two men from the University of Chicago.

Dr. E. O. Lawrence and Dr. J. M. Cork performed the experiment with a "cyclotron," or whirling machine gun in which the nuclei of atoms are whirled about by an electric field to velocities up to 20,000 miles per volts and then shot at the atoms of other elements.

The technique described how a beam of these atomic nuclei of deuterium or heavy water with energies of 5,000,000 volts could be shot through a number of foils or thin sheets of platinum

The deuterium atoms apparently captured some of the speeding particles and added them to their own masses to change themselves into the next heavier elements in the table which is gold, he said.

There is something in its distances, and its isolation and its climate that grows on one. I'll tell you Mother England, I don't think I'll come home I'm home now." In a separate statement Mr McGill speaking of a large number of Britishers who have made this Dominion their place of residence.—Brantford Expositor.

The King's Birthday

Commercial Commodities Not Officially To Observe It As Holiday

No special proclamation will be required to make the birthday of King Edward VIII., occurring on June 23, a public holiday. In several statutes it is set forth that the birthday of the reigning sovereign shall always be a public holiday. This means that it will be a holiday in the Government service, the banking institutions, the schools and municipal offices. To what extent it will be observed by the commercial community will be for them to decide.

June 3, the birthday of King George V goes off the calendar as a holiday It was never observed so generally as other national holidays, largely because it occurred so soon after the Victoria Day holiday on May 24. Something of the same difficulty may be experienced from the fact that the new King's birthday on June 23 will be a week before July 1, which has perhaps the most general observance of all Canadian holidays.

Post Office Revenue

Operating Profit Of $3,000,000 For Year Ending In March

The post office department showed an operating profit of $3,000,000 in the year ending in March, Postmaster-General Elliott reported to the House of Commons. Net revenue totalled $32,507,400.

The post office department is changing nothing for the buildings which are erected by the public works department. The postmaster-general, replying to A. A. Heaps (C.C.F., Winnipeg North) agreed it looked anomalous for his department to be obliged to do nothing for rent, repairs or caretaking At the same time, the practice had been followed since confederation, and he agreed one department should do all the building Perhaps some system of rentals could be worked out but it might be difficult.

"It is a question for parliament to decide," added Mr. Elliott.

Famine in China

Reported That Millions Of Chinese Are Facing Death

A terrible famine sweeping Szechwan and North Honan provinces in China has assumed proportions of a national disaster with estimates of the number of natives dead or facing death ranging from 10,000,000 to 30,000,000

Chinese vernacular newspapers reported some hunger-maddened victims were resorting to cannibalism and that other starving parents were selling their children to gain money for food.

While millions of Chinese are facing certain death from starvation, other millions are suffering "deficiency" diseases which missionary doctors say must lead inevitably to their deaths.

EXTEND PLAN TO PLACE SINGLE MEN ON FARMS

Ottawa.—Extension of the farm placement scheme to all provinces was foreshadowed in the House of Commons by Labor Minister Rogers. It has applied for three years to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and involves single unemployed men placed on farms for the winter months.

The house passed a vote of $1,-900,000 for the scheme when the minister said he hoped to meet the provinces within the next few weeks and proposed extension of the scheme. At the present time, the Dominion pays $5 a month to the man and the provinces pay $5 to the farmer.

During the past winter, farm placements in Manitoba were 5,300; Saskatchewan, 6,700; and Alberta, 2,300.

Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) asked what was the use of putting unskilled people on outlying farms when skilled men on good farms could not make a decent living.

Mr. MacInnis said spending money for land settlement was pure waste. It only made it more difficult for the farmers and it was of no help to the city people. The government seemed to forget that production was a social process and under modern conditions no one could produce all his own needs.

"Why don't you suggest training these people as doctors?" asked Miss Agnes Macphail.

"Because there are enough doctors now and a lot of them can't make a living," was the reply. "A lot of doctors should go back to the land."

Miss Macphail said she became annoyed at philanthropists who always wanted to push people out of the cities and out to farms, and lawyers and manufacturers never wanted to make any new competition for themselves. The only way to create more competition in agriculture.

An investigation of the land settlement scheme, where city relief families are placed on farms, will be conducted before the session of parliament, Minister Rogers announced.

He intended to visit settlements for first-hand knowledge and to assist him in concluding whether the scheme should be retained, expanded or abandoned.

Queen Mary First Ship To Be Air-Conditioned By Steam

New York.—The Queen Mary is the first ship in the world cooled and air-conditioned by steam.

Steam has been used before for cooling a vessel, although it is in use on some Canadian and United States railroads. The steam cooling plant is one of three on the Queen Mary, the other two being carbon dioxide and methyl chloride cooling systems.

The Queen Mary has the largest air conditioning capacity of any vessel afloat, equal to the cooling coming from melting half a million pounds of ice daily.

Careless Driving Penalties

Bill Before Federal House Would Revise Present Law

Ottawa.- A jail term of not less than 30 days on conviction the first time of driving a motor car while under the influence of alcohol or a narcotic is proposed in a bill, sponsored by T. L. Church, Conservative member of the House of Commons for Toronto-Broadview

The bill is designed to amend the criminal code with the object of increasing penalties for careless driving of motor cars. One section declares persons guilty of speeding, racing or cutting-in may be subject to one year's imprisonment or a $200 fine or both.

Veteran Lumberman Dead

Joseph Vipond Went To B.C. During Yukon Gold Rush

Nanaimo, B.C.—Joseph William Vipond, retired lumberman and a crown witness in one of the most startling crimes of the Yukon gold rush, is dead here, aged 74.

Mr. Vipond was one of a party of six, including Joseph Claus, which started for the Klondike in 1898. Claus and two others fell behind and some time later Claus' companions were found slain in their tent on the Stikine River in northern British Columbia. Claus was arrested, convicted of murder and sentenced to death in Nanaimo. He maintained his innocence and died of self-administered poison on the eve of execution.

Mr. Vipond, as a member of the original party, was one of the witnesses brought back from the gold trail to testify for the crown.

Born in Illinois, Mr. Vipond came to Vancouver Island as a child. After gold rush days he established one lumbering business and while logging in 1907 made the record cut of the Pacific coast 15,500,000 feet from one claim on Cowichan Lake. He retired in 1913.

Public Works Program

New Zealand Government To Relieve Unemployment Problem

Wellington, N.Z.—The labor government is embarking on an ambitious program of public works, which it is expected will ameliorate the unemployment situation.

Minister of Public Works R. Semple announced a three-year plan, drawn up by departmental engineers and approved by the government's policy. It is anticipated the plan will provide the chief avenue for the absorption of the unemployed.

Men will be employed in various projects, in the following order of preference: Road construction, river protection, airports, completion of railways, irrigation and drainage schemes, road bridges, overhead railways, harbor buildings, hydro-electric works and housing schemes.

Hydro-electric development is an outcome of the government's policy of providing cheap power for the gold mining industry in view of the present depressed state of that industry, it was announced.

The government has given to the measure amending the customs act to bring it into line with the Canada-Japanese and the Canada-United States trade agreements as particularly with respect to duty valuations. The bill making change in the administration of the Indian act went as far as second reading after the Conservative leader ironically remarked the draftsmen of the measure should be given the Victoria Cross. It was said ever for amendments.

Senator Arthur C. Hardy (Lib., Brockville) pressed his inquiry if the government would give official recognition "to the fact that the year 1937 marks the 100th anniversary of the rating in Upper Canada under William Lyon Mackenzie, which with the concurrent one in Lower Canada, directly led to the establishment of responsible government in Canada." Debate so to be continued this week.

Senator Meagher, Conservative leader, said Senator Hardy wanted action taken to celebrate the rebellion led by Mackenzie. In the view of the Brockville senator that rebellion led to a chain of events resulting in establishment of responsible government in Upper Canada

Bank Of Canada

Almost One-Third Of The Shares Held By Women

Ottawa.—Women hold 30,447 of the total 100 000 shares of the Bank of Canada, Finance Minister Dunning tabled a return in the House of Commons giving the distribution of shares by occupational groups in the Bank of Canada at the end of 1935 Of the total 30,447 for the largest block of stock is held by "housewives" who have 19 259 shares. "Ladies" have 6,388, "nurses" 1 010 and "widows" 3,179

The return shows legislators have 17 shares, undertakers 14, newspapermen 445, soldiers 31. Under the name of "gentlemen" 7,057 shares are held.

OBJECTION HEARD TO AMENDMENT OF B. N. A. ACT

Ottawa.—The senate heard George Lynch-Staunton (Cons., Hamilton) register objection to any action of the British parliament which would give Canada the right to amend the British North America Act.

In its present parliament and in the provincial legislatures, Canada had all the power the imperial parliament could give, except that enabling the Dominion to establish itself as a sovereign state, he insisted.

Senator Lynch-Staunton said he did not concede the British parliament the authority, although it had the power, to deprive him of his rights as a British subject. It would be "folly", had business and against the material interests of this country."

Finally, he said, it would be against Canada's future as a nation and would endanger the empire trade agreements and the preferential treatment Canada received as a member of the empire.

Second reading was given to the measure amending the customs act to bring it into line with the Canada-Japanese and the Canada-United States trade agreements particularly with respect to duty valuations. The bill making change in the administration of the Indian act went as far as second reading after the Conservative leader ironically remarked the draftsmen of the measure should be given the Victoria Cross. R.C. Lieutenant-Governor

Eric Hamber To Succeed Hon. J. W. Fordham Johnson

Ottawa.—Appointment of Eric Hamber as lieutenant-governor of British Columbia was announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King Mr Hamber's appointment will date from May 1.

Hon J. W. Fordham Johnson lieutenant-governor since May 1, 1931, requested to be relieved before the expiration of his five-year term because of ill health.

Born in Winnipeg in 1880, Eric Hamber was educated at St. John's College and University of Manitoba where he received his bachelor of arts degree at the age of 18 He began his business career in the Dominion Bank in Winnipeg and occupied various offices in that institution until he became manager of the London, England, branch.

In 1913 he married Miss Alwyn Hendry of Vancouver, and joined his father's law firm, the British Columbia Mills, Timber and Trading Company.

Election Broadcasts

Political Parties Spent $173,000 In Talks Over Radio Networks

Ottawa Canadian political parties spent $173,000 in 1935 for broadcasting over radio networks, W. E. Powell, commercial manager of the Canadian Radio Commission, estimated in testifying before the house radio committee.

Of this total, he estimated $137,-000 was spent by Dominion parties in connection with the election last fall. Estimated expenditure by major parties: Conservative, $35,000; Liberal, $46,000; Reconstruction, $5,000; Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, $200 The amounts did not include single station broadcasts

Political broadcasts were treated exactly the same manner as other commercial business Powell said He testified the Conservative party still owed the commission $6,000 for time services in national network broadcasts. He was confident it would be paid.

Insurance Act

Senate Banking Committee Hears Protest From Companies

Ottawa An attack on the measure amending the Canadian and British Insurance Companies Act was launched by leaders of life insurance companies and the Independent Order of Foresters before the banking and commerce committee.

The insurance companies protested the proposal to increase from 90 to 95 per cent the maximum percentage of the profits derived from the participating policies which the companies may allow companies agents' calls to policyholders

Rumors Still Persist

That Prime Minister Baldwin Will Retire

London Reports persist in circles close to the government the retirement of Prime Minister Baldwin will not be long delayed.

"When I retire it will be at my own time," was Mr. Baldwin's own reply to rumors to this effect at Worcester three weeks ago.

S. F. Markham, National Labor member of parliament, declared the prime minister had made up his mind to resign and was only awaiting an opportunity.

Markham said: "I do not say the retirement will be in the next few weeks but one thing of which I am certain is the government before this time next year will be changed out of all recognition."

Markham added the "best man" as successor to Mr. Baldwin would be Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer

Such an opinion is shared fairly generally among political groups. The Spectator suggests Mr Baldwin will resign after the coronation of the King in May, 1937.

Alpine Manoeuvres

Many Rumors and Counter-charges In Europe

Geneva Austrian troops were engaging in Alpine manoeuvres not far from the German border, but the war office at Vienna insisted they were routine.

The German press charged rumors that German troops were concentrated near the Austrian border. French propaganda aimed at influencing British opinion against Germany

French officials claimed the rumors were attempts to influence the League of Nations in the Ethiopian question while other French sources charged the scare was British propaganda to influence Italy. British patriots in Paris confirmed the rumors were French propaganda to convince Britain she must lift sanctions against Italy if a united front in defence is to be preserved by Italy a army

Officials said four infantry battalions two artillery battalions and one armored car unit were engaging in the Alpine manoeuvres. A total of 1,450 men were said to be participating.

A WIDER RADIO NEWS BULLETIN SERVICE OFFERED

Toronto Proposal for establishment of a Canadian broadcasting news bulletin service through the day was unanimously approved at a meeting of members of the staff of the Canadian Press.

The meeting approved the memorandum presented by its president W B Preston of the Brantford Expositor and a delegation of directors who appeared April 1 last before the parliamentary committee investigating radio under the chairmanship of A L. Beaubien The memorandum proposes to supplement the present day-time bulletins the 10-minute summary of the day's news now broadcast each evening over the network of the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission.

The supplementary bulletins will be prepared at the head office of the Canadian Press in Toronto free of charge and delivered through the cooperation of the land telegraph companies at a small transmission cost to the Canadian Broadcasting Commission for the service. The bulletins must be send which any sponsored programs

Members affirmed the stand of the board of directors that in the various interests concerned no financial gain should accrue, and that all be made available to the Canadian public as an educative factor.

The meeting welcomed the assurance of the president that the parliamentary committee on radio would be requested to consider the proposal for the establishment of the Canadian broadcasting news bulletin service through the Canadian Press.

Although no exact proposals of the method of financing the service have been worked out, Mr. Preston stated that the Canadian Press would be prepared to assume a financial responsibility to the extent of $10,000, it was announced here. It was expected the plant would be ready for operation in July.

Price Advance Warranted

Minister Of Agriculture Answers Question Regarding Potato Prices

Ottawa Agriculture Minister Gardiner informed the House of Commons recent advances in potato prices could be warranted by normal marketing conditions according to reliable information in his department

The minister dealt with a series of questions asked by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction party leader. Mr. Stevens had drawn attention to a press despatch which, he said, stated there was a shortage of potatoes in Canada. He wished to know if the government was aware this statement was unwarranted, and whether the facts as to prices had advanced as a result of it

The government was not aware that the statement was unwarranted, the minister replied. "On the contrary reliable information shows that the present prices are warranted and warranted a sharp price advance in potatoes Commercial holdings in Canada at April 1 totalled 48,132 tons against 266,673 tons in 1935

Will Condemning Plant

Red Deer Alta. Work will start soon on a milk condensery to be erected at Red Deer by the Central Alberta Dairy pool at an estimated cost of $150,000, it was announced here. It was expected the plant would be ready for operation in July.

RELIEF BILL AND BLANK CHEQUES UNDER REVIEW

Ottawa.—The senate gave second reading to the unemployment relief bill and sent it to the banking and commerce committee for further consideration.

The limitation of parliamentary vote was contained in the unemployment relief bill as was the case in former years, Senator Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, said following a review of provisions of the measure by Senator Raoul Dandurand. In effect, the government was saying it was ready to give a "blank cheque" for relief but was not ready to give a "bank cheque" for peace, order and good government, which latter provisions were not in the measure.

All this talk against blank cheque legislation is now exploded as shocking and insincerity," he declared

Practical steps should be taken by the government to better unemployment conditions, Senator Meighen said The government had gotten as far in the study of unemployment relief problem "as they have in Alberta on another subject."

Senator Dandurand declared that when the government had come into office it had taken immediate steps to face the problem. The present government had promised to apply its best efforts to solve the question, and had not promised to "end unemployment" as the former Conservative administration had done in 1930

Not only were these steps proposed in conjunction with the provinces but also through the instrumentality of industrial agencies employing labor The government was doing its level best to improve conditions An unemployment committee of seven was being set up under another bill to deal with the problem.

Since 1930, a total of $1,200,000 was being considered in the House of Commons for relief projects in conjunction with the provincial labor Minister Rogers said he could not give details because agreements with provinces had not been negotiated.

Conservative Leader Bennett said this made the vote a blank cheque, a derogatory term often hurled at his government's legislation.

The minister disagreed. It would not be a blank cheque because the sum of money was stipulated.

That made no difference, Mr. Bennett retorted. Parliament still did not know how the money was to be spent. It was blank cheque authority.

It was impossible to give details of the projects because the agreements were not signed, the minister repeated. When in opposition, Liberals had criticized blank cheque legislation as blank cheques because the spending power was unlimited, no sums were stipulated at all.

BADMINTON CLUB CLOSES A SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Good Membership — Much Activity

The Arena Badminton club closed its activities on the 1935-36 season on April 30 after a most successful year. The membership was the largest on record and the interest of the members was sustained from the beginning to the very end of the season

For the first time in the history of the club they ended the season with a bank balance this amounted to 25c However the club is bound to spend all its surplus funds in improving the gym of the arena where they play. This year considerable improvement was effected by sheeting in the walls with building paper and shiplap as well as adding sashes

The club was given the use of the additional two unlined gymnasium and has enjoyed 47 nights in improvement. As a result, the building has now a fine floor, good lighting a heating system, waiting rooms, etc. has been finished inside, creating quite a rest, trust to the rooms of a few years ago.

Starts Flying School

Irishman Believed To Be World's Only One-Legged Instructor

Cleo-rogers J. J. Paddy" Fiven black haired blue-eyed Irishman has just landed his first gaggle in his new Flying School in Doncaster.

When Imperial Airways took over Winnipeg crashed near Neuchatel, France, in 1920 four people were killed Paddy" her pilot lived But he fractured his spine and skull but ner leg broke the other in two Doctors smashed his ribs spent the next two years in the hospital had nine operations.

Then the Irish air ministry had given him special permission to give flying instruction in his own school.

He believed he is the only one-legged licensed instructor in the world.

Before the City of Washington crashed, "Paddy" had carried 21,000 passengers flown at least half a million miles. When he re-covered Imperial Airways gave him a job in their accounts department.

But the little man with the cheery grin who stumped around with a tin leg and a rubber shod at a could not keep away.

He had an accident specially fitted for him and got back his A' private flier's license.

Now he flies school machines f his own.

An R.A.F. officer in the war, he was in the Richthofen squadron of "blood red" scouts. Then he went home to Ireland to fight against the Sinn Feiners.

When the English left, "Paddy" founded the Free State air force and fought the United Ireland fighters and Dr. De Valera's Republicans. He and his men carried homemade bombs in beer bottle baskets and sling them overboard.

Reduced Railway Fares

Low Excursion Rates Both East And West Are Offered

Every inducement to travel this summer in Canada's famous holiday centres both east and west is suggested in the excursion fares announced by the Canadian Passenger Association through its western secretary, John B Parker Summer fares on the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways offer unusual advantages in economy on the part of the traveller and in length of time allowed on the special rail tickets provided for.

Three kinds of tickets, first class tourist and coach classes from western Canada to points in the east will be on sale from June 1 to August 31 with limit for a final return limit of September 30 In addition to this special fares for return limit of October 31 will be offered from May 15.

To Vancouver Victoria and New Westminster from the prairie provinces giving opportunity for travel through some of Canada's most romantic scenery one summer tourist fares are to be in effect from June 1. The will bear a time limit up to September 30 and will provide a choice of travel in coach, tourist and first class accommodation Tickets with still longer limit will be in effect from May 15.

Added to these will be summer fares in effect from western Canada points to the great mountain resorts along both railways in Alberta and British Columbia

Levels Of Conversation

Referring to levels of conversation, the Rotarian Magazine says there are three of them: "The lowest level, one talks about things; on the middle level, about people; and on the highest level, about ideas." The Hamilton Spectator suggests that there is a lower level than any of these when one talks nonsense." But, stops the Toronto Star, after all, there is still a lower one when one talks only about one's self.

Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement

Stated That Reductions Effected Total Over $15,000,000

Since the Farmers' Creditors' Arrangement Act became operative were 18 applications filed, a total of 1,011 settlements, involving $83,127,676 of debt have been effected according to the first report of the committee in charge tabled in the House of Commons. Reductions actually effected total $15,941,430, with an annual interest saving of $1,228,718.

The reports sets forth that 19 091 farmers submitted proposals, and 11 011 settlements had been made with an average annual interest saving to individual debtors of $151 28.

"In addition to the value as may be placed on the work accomplished, in the comparatively short period", says the report, "there is a noticeable getting-together throughout Canada of the debtors and their creditors outside the purview of this act, but attributable to the legislation with a view to friendly adjustment of their problems by voluntary arrangement, and it is a matter of record that many thousands of such settlements are being effected without recourse to the official receivers and without cost to the government."

Settlements effected under the act, by provinces, include: Manitoba, 573; Saskatchewan, 3,183; Alberta, 1,041, and British Columbia, 66.

In addition to this total of 6,118, voluntary settlements accounted for 1,893 making a total of 12,011.

Indications of bounds being contested is noted in the report which records that one had been filed 2,987 cases before it Of these a total of 1 261 have been arranged.

Vagrant Planets

Astronomers Are Interested In A Very Distant Planet

Astronomers feel that now it can no be told. Last February there was a whole lot of anxiety round observatories where the practitioners of this science gather. A Belgian member had passed down a new minor planet. It isn't much as a planet, just pint-size really, but at that it thinks highly of itself and has start ed trying to make up with Mars Venus, Mercury and, finally, the Earth. That is how it came that in February of last year it was uncomfortably near us, well within 1,500,000 miles. With astronomers that is practically next door.

Most of these minor planets know their place. They keep 50,000,000 miles or so away and probably they ever get a good look at us through a celestial telescope think that that is near enough.

The astronomers have got the advertising one named, Anteros, but they aren't sure how it will be with longer around in his present company. "Gravitational disturbances" are suspected. This planet follows a little chap in a very long orbit over a long period or, perhaps, if things get too rough, eject him from the planetary system. Then it is placed on sale from June 1 to August 31 will will bear a final return limit of September 30 In addition to this special fares for return limit of October 31 will be offered from May 15.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MAY 17

JESUS INSPIRES HONESTY

Golden text: Thou shalt not steal. Exodus 20:15.

Lesson: Luke 19.

Devotional reading: Psalm 15.

Explanations And Comments

Jesus Inspires Honesty. Luke 19: 1-10. A chief publican or Commissioner of taxes, as we should call him. Zacchaeus by name, was rich, a fact which informs us that, like all such officials of the Roman government, he had made his money by extortion and dishonesty, for had he been honest he would have been poor. As Jesus was about to pass through Jericho on his way to Jerusalem, Zacchaeus realized that his shortness of stature would prevent his seeing him over the heads of the crowd that would gather. He was determined and resourceful; he ran ahead of the crowd and climbed a sycomore tree standing by the side of the road where Jesus must pass. He was not ashamed of his action, known to-day in England, but a tree generally has been described as a figmulberry because its fruit resembles that of the fig, appearance, and not to those of the mulberry. The tree was easily climbed, for it had a short trunk and wide spreading branches. When Jesus reached the tree he looked up and called Zacchaeus by name. The tax-collector in Palestine, by reason of the notorious system in vogue, stood socially where a gambler or counsellor stands with us. He was ostracized.

No Jewish rabbi would have offered to stay at a publican's house, but Jesus said to Zacchaeus "Make haste and come down for to-day I must abide at thy house." His "must" was that of a shepherd who searches for his lost sheep. When Zacchaeus dropped from the tree filled with great joy and hastened homeward with Jesus the people murmured saying, it is gone to be a guest with a man that is a sinner." "Publican and sinner" was a phrase in common use.

The day of salvation come to this house," said Jesus, "for as much as he also is a son of Abrahams." Salvation is worth more than the Son of man came to seek and to save that which was lost. Lost means out of place.

Celebration Was Postponed

Nizam Of Hyderabad Soon To Mark Silver Jubilee

The Nizam of Hyderabad, reputed to have £10,000,000 as his annual personal income, £30,000,000 worth of jewels, and a total fortune amounting to £150,000,000, is rightly hailed the richest man in the world. This potentate was to have celebrated the Silver Jubilee of his accession to the throne some time in February, but the festivities were postponed owing to the death of King George V. When the celebration does take place it will be the most brilliant of the pageant. The Nizam himself will ride in his state coach of pure gold drawn by six cream coloured elephants. Over a million pounds will be spent on this occasion. There will be an exposition there of hundreds of people. People will flock to Hyderabad in expectation of the great event, and the Nizam's palace and 10,000 anen will be required to feed the "guests" who are expected to be not fewer than 500,000. According to the family tradition, the Nizam must supervise personally this largest feast in the world. It will take him a month. Roger has and will last a week. Where the Nizam cannot go in person his officers must act the host for him

Anglican Fund Restored

Amount Originally Lost in Western Canada Has Been Made Up

Ottawa.—All the funds originally lost in western Canada that could be now been restored, according to a report of the restoration fund committee to the Anglican synod of the Ottawa diocese.

The original loss of endowment funds, on which depended much missionary work in western and northern dioceses, the pensions of aged clergymen, widows and orphans and the work of the theological college Winnipeg was approximate $760,000 When the restoration fund campaign was launched, $260,000 was added to the sum appealed for to augment the general synod pension fund.

YOUR GARDEN

Much of the real interest in gardening lies in trying something new. Of course it is not advisable to make over the whole garden each spring, nor should one abandon completely all those old favourites which have done well in the past, but without something entirely new each season interest will be lost. In a special part of every seed catalogue will be listed the very latest creations in both flowers and vegetables. Certain flowers which were always double before now appear in a single type, and vice versa. The distinct color has been added. Giants have been developed, like the tiny Zinnias, or very much increased in height, added to something which a few years ago could only be secured in mixed sizes. Practically all the leading flowers may now be secured in both doubles and singles and some of the latter, including the Asters, are very desirable.

Vegetables, too, appear will prove indispensable. Height of the flowers, times of blooming, whether they are suitable for such special purposes as edging or screening cutting and fragrance, are all mentioned and are vital facts in laying out a satisfactory garden. The variety in the lines the catalogue continues the useful service by listing different varieties under the heading of early, late and main crop so that a succession of vegetables is possible right through the season. With these helps and simple directions are given in regard to care and preparation for the table.

Many vegetables may be sown early in the open: Spinach, beets, radishes, lettuce, onions, parsnips and peas; seeds to be sown in the open in May include: Frost is over: beans, corn, melons, cucumbers, potatoes, squash and pumpkin; may be started in hot beds: cabbage, cauliflower, celery, tomatoes, peppers, egg plants. Early spreading sowing of each early vegetable over a period of two to three weeks a larger harvesting season is obtained.

In selecting a list of annual flowers attention must be paid to their height of blooming, color and height. But these are only elemental points. There are many other vital distinctions. Certain shades blend well together and often these hints will be selected with this blending in mind. Of course for this sort of thing, all the plants must bloom during the same period. Fragrance must be taken into account, as there are some spicy things like Evening Primrose, Nicotine, Mignonette, Sweet Sultan and Verbena, which while fragrant are plants fill the whole garden with their delightful perfume in the evening. In shaded quarters, Tuberous rooted Begonias, the annual Coleus do well. In fact, they prefer this location to any other

Urged To Store Food

If Not Needed Elsewhere Can Share With Others

Grow Food, Mr. Bennett said! If war comes here, the enemy airplanes will follow the lines of the rivers, pointing like arrows to the heart of the great seaports. The bombers will smash the docks, blow down the bridges, and destroy the stores of food and other supply. If war comes elsewhere, the cost of that huge dislocation of trade in the cost of the world will drive up prices in this country to near famine level And if this fear passes, as it is good men believe it will, and hope that it will, then if our land is fertile and our barns are filled we can give at least an expression that to thanksgiving to those that sorely need it. Two Men Are Winners In Alaska Ice Break-Up

Ice started moving in the Tanana river at the exact moment E. Miller and J. Covich predicted.

The break-up began at 12:58 p.m., April 30, the two Juneau men, who entered the guessing contest in Alaska along with some 72,000 others. The winners are expected to split around $72 000.

The movement was determined by a wire from a log cabin on the ice to a bell and clock on shore. When the ice moved, the pole broke, pulling the wire, ringing the bell and stopping the clock.

FLEMING'S FOLLY
— BY —
LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo and Isobel and Helen take Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread" in the bargain. Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buzz, after knocking Fleming down, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is unjustly tried for the crime and sentenced to three years' imprisonment.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties.

Fleming goes home and studies the plans drawn by Helen, not to learn whether they could be adapted to a similar scheme for Kilgo's land, but Helen's land, and is satisfied it could be done. Feeling cold, he lights the fire and finds an explosion that wrecks the house, burns it and the plans and ruins him unfortunately. He is rescued from the blaze by an employee.

Buzz Hamilton arrives back in Rawhide while Fleming is there Helen are in the bank getting a loan for payment of irrigation work on the farm. Roper Kilgo and Jackpot Mell meet him and he goes into the saloon with them. By the time he leaves and Link come from the bank. Buzz has had several drinks Roper has distorted the facts concerning the fire and has an explosive idea of people. People will flock to Hyderabad in expectation of the great event, and the Nizam's palace and 10,000 anen will be required to feed the "guests" who are expected to be not fewer than 500,000. According to the family tradition, the Nizam must supervise personally this largest feast in the world. It will take him a month. Roper has and will last a week. WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

Your liver pours into your bowels about a pint of liquid bile every twenty hours. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You have headaches, dizziness, acid indigestion. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sunk. Laxatives only move the bowels. They do not get at the cause. But Carter's Little Liver Pills are a purely vegetable medicine which act on the liver and make it pour out two pints of bile into the bowels every day. Your whole system is cleansed and purified. Your skin clears. You feel like a new person. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse substitutes. Only 25c at your druggist.

county five minutes. It gnawed at him because he lost to me the land I'm going to irrigate, playin' poker. And he needs range or his stock'll starve. He's plumb jealous. Can't you see it, Buzz?"

The visitor's facial muscles worked. "I can see Kilgo's a whole lot more friend o' mine than you are. Then yuh won't advise Helen to give me the responsibility of running the spread?"

"Yes. But by no means that power of attorney. You haven't earned it."

Buzz stood eyeing him, panting hard. Pinin in his nasty recwl was the desire to spring upon Link. But he was unarmed—a condition of his parole or certainly he would have whipped out a gun. His lack-lustre eyes blazed bitter, unyielding hate.

"I'm entitled to my share of the ranch, and if you don't help me get it, I'll find another way. I wish to heaven," the youth burst out suddenly, "yuh hadn't had me paroled! Roper would've got me a sudden, and no I could have my rights!"

"He lied to you. Kilgo never would've got you anywhere he hasn't got the reputation to have it worked through. Look here, Buzz," Link said, in tones of conciliatory tone, "let's cut this out. Tell Helen I'm in favor of making you foreman or manager. Say, down in your heart, you know you're glad I'm here. Don't you now?"

The look he received was one of supreme contempt. "I'm not that blind but what I can see yuh shinin' us of office property. Like that you'd hooked hocks yuh fixed to rob her —"

"Hold on!"

Buzz shrank back as if he feared a blow. "You know I had nothing to do with that!" Fleming roared, his face purpling with rage. "You were trying to make out I hired someone to pull that job? There isn't a scrap of evidence to prove Hamilton!"

Now the visitor was the self-possessed of the two. His upper lip curled back in a sneer. "There's isn't, eh? Yuh can bet yore life Steve Stephen but not Sis and me! That leather cuff Helen grabbed for a clue comes from Buster Townsend, half foreman. The guy you switched to bossin' the dam under McLendon. Know why I did it? Cause I didn't hire Townsend to pull the holdup."

Fleming leaned weakly against the wall, his incredulous gaze fastened on Buzz. "Townsend? You mean Buster? Why, gosh, there must be some mistake. My own foreman wouldn't —"

"It's hard to crawl out of, eh, Fleming?"

The rancher jerked bolt upright. "Let me tell you, Hamilton! I'll owens those cuffs, and he held up Sis' spread at the point of a gun. I'll pay! I'll wring it out uv him good and plenty. And if he's guilty Buster'll be in the jug before sundown, and I'll send him up for as long as the law allows!"

Buzz leaned down all his hooded toes, then flashed a skeptical look "We're waitin' to see if yuh act like yuh say yuh will. I found out yesterday that Townsend owns the cuffs. Another thing when Mell kills yuh, Townsend'll be arrested." It'll bankrupt us, I suppose. Or else yuh heir, whoever that is, will own it. Yuh'll be in a fine fix, Fleming. Yuh'll prevent that if I choke in the attempt?"

Link started off but Link, after brief hesitation, spoke up. "Hold on, Buzz, let's not wind up in a quarrel. Listen: Helen and I signed an agreement to do that." He told him about it, demanded if the g

FARM WEALTH AND REVENUE IN 1935

The total gross agricultural revenue of Canada for 1935 is estimated at $945,940,000 as compared with $942,[illegible] the revised estimate for 1934. The 1935 estimate is preliminary and subject to revision. It represents an increase of only $616,000, or less than one per cent. Increases are shown in the revenue from farm animals wool, dairy products, fruit and vegetables, poultry and eggs, maple products, and flax fibre, but these increases are largely offset by the decrease in revenue from field crops, tobacco, clover and grass seed, and honey.

By provinces the gross agricultural revenue in order of value is estimated as follows: Ontario $212,472,000; Quebec $171,[illegible]; Saskatchewan $134,826,000; Alberta $141,993,000; Manitoba $86,[illegible]; British Columbia $58,010,000; Nova Scotia $27,442,000; New Brunswick $23,276,000; Prince Edward Island $15,[illegible].

The net annual agricultural revenue for 1935 is estimated at $649,518,000 compared with $[illegible] for the revised estimate for 1934.

ISLAND HILL

Napoleon once said that an army marched on its stomach. Be that as it may Island Hill school soft ball team marched on Shanks Mare to the Moore log school on Sunday and came back—or did the opposing nurses? Here Miss Moir led her army and was assisted at the victory as Marshall Badoglio was at his entry into Addis Ababa. By the way where are the rules that once upon a time prevailed when the housekeeper that the teacher should be supported one hundred per cent?

Line ups were as follows: Morrison—R. and O Miller; W. and C. Gillies, A. and J. Rosaghan, J. and H. Seibbens, and J. Gould.

Island Hill—D and P. Birmingham; R and E Arnold, R and K McDaniels P Jenkins, S Hall and T. Rochford. Ball Hall was umpire. The bunch journey to Campbell Lake on Sunday.

Mr and Mrs Gillies entertained the following visitors after the match to a dainty supper Mrs Jenkins, Miss J Jenkins, Bill Morrison, Miss Moor, Bob Melmeist, E Jenkins and Miss V Jenkins.

People possessing the spirit of Mr. and Mrs. Gillies make one think that there is a spot of good in this old world after all.

An old friend newly arrived in Canada all the way from Scotland dropped in and paid us a visit a few days ago and from a number of extraordinary stories he told we selected this one for our readers to sample, and we admit it requires the proverbial grain of salt to swallow it. Here it is—A poor man had an only daughter, his wife was dead and his heart was set so much on his daughter that he thought that no one was good enough for her. She could do nothing wrong. Then the poor girl took ill and died. Nothing in this world could console him—tears went by and the poor man had himself worn away fretting. He was like a shadow and at last one day a neighbor man called on him and told him it was a shame for him to carry on like he was. "Your trouble is bad but it could be worse" said the man. And how could it be asked the poor distraught fellow—A dead trouble is bad enough and the neighbor man and your girl is better done for—a living trouble is twenty times worse—what do you mean asked the bereaved one. I had a girl once myself said the other man, and what happened to her, did she die like mine, the poor man asked. No she did not and as I said before a living trouble is the worst of all said the other man. Then what happened to her inquired the poor man. She married a Scotchman, was the pitiful reply.

CHATSWORTH CHATTER

Seeding has been somewhat held up by the recent rains. On Sunday a heavy rain fell in the northern part of the district with a light shower only in the south. There was also a light frost on Sunday night.

Miss Christy spent the week end at her home south of the town.

Mr Edwin Good motored to Fort Saskatchewan last week end to visit relatives. He was accompanied by Miss Mary Good.

Church services are being held at Ottawa again this summer, Mr Lam lent is in charge and will preach there every second Sunday. Several from this district attended the opening service on Sunday, May 10th.

Noticed around—Quite a number of cattle on the road allowances; Mr. B Kinchinsky working early and late with his tractor. Mrs. H. J. Davies with the first chicks hatched in the district; Mrs. E. Thompson at the ornamenta near the school, being assisted by a number of friends to change a punctured tire; Mr. F. W. Thompson bringing home a fine colt from the Van Pleaner sale last Friday. Mr. R Good with a new team, purchased at the same sale; Mr. Bill Twyning taking home a milk cow and calf also from the sale.

Contrary to reports the team of E. Thompson's is still listed as "missing" it was rumored that Mr. Thompson's head grain was stolen but this was also untrue.

Question—Has Mrs. Hughes recovered from the "shot" last Friday?

GRAVELLED ROAD TO NORTH BATTLEFORD

Here's more good news for motorists. Official assurance has been received by the Alberta government that one of the first projects on the Saskatchewan government's program this year is completion of the gravelling between Waseca, near the Alberta boundary, and Highgate, a distance of 54 miles. The remaining 11 miles into North Battleford has been graveled for some time.

With this Saskatchewan gravelling completed, there will be a gravelled route linking with the fine Alberta highway that runs to Lloydminster.

The need of this Saskatchewan gravelling has long been felt by motorists in this province. —Voice of Motordom.

GRIZZLY BEAR MINUTES

A meeting of the council was held in the Municipal office on Saturday, May 2. Reeve Shaw in the chair at 10.30 a.m. with all the councillors present.

Minutes of the previous meeting and financial statements for March read and on motion, approved. Agreed to lease the W½ 16-46-6 to Lloyd Crothers for the current year. Messrs. G. Cowley and C. Hodgson waited on council with respect to a continuance of relief. Agreed to allow same for the month of May. Jacob Hrushak made application for relief on behalf of his father, John Hrusch aks application was rejected as the Indian of Reiel as he had not voted. Asked the necessary residence to become a charge of municipality. Mrs Stone and Mr. Chinon were allowed $5.00 and $6.00 a month respectively as relief for the month of May. And with a few exceptions it was agreed to carry on for the next month. Secretary to warn recipients that after May all relief will be stopped. Messrs L. Kehoe, C.D. Shirley and C. Hodgson waited on the council with respect to weed inspectors. An application for said appointment was submitted by J. D. Campbell, and $50.00 per month recommended. A letter from Dept. of Child Welfare stating that Mrs. Johnson's Mothers Allowance had been cancelled. Due to advice that Mrs. Johnson was still eligible as she had at least one child under the age limit. From Dept. of Municipal Affairs that they had issued transportation to H Hrushak and daughter from Edmonton to Vermilion and that they booked to the M. D. for payment of same.

From Vermilion hospital notices of ratepayers admitted to that institution Jan Vandelen Farm Loan Board and H. B. Dumpson requesting statement of taxes against land in which they are interested. From Dept. of Municipal Affairs that the supplementary revenue tax act had been repealed, and that a new act called The Social Service Tax Act, with a minimum levy of three mills had taken its place. Letter correspondence dealt with re-issued Grain, weeds and Farmers Creditors Arrangement Act.

Moved that Municipal office be closed at 12 o'clock noon on Saturdays. Accounts amounting to $661.00 were submitted and ordered paid.

Meeting adjourned at 4.50 p.m.

Fundamentalist Says Elders Put Temptation in Young Girl's Way

"If the modern girl makes her lips look like the side of a red barn her fingers are blood-red they were burning blood on every nail, and her cheeks as though she'd fallen into a bucket of paint" Gods Name but the older people are at fault for putting temptation in her way," Dr. W. B. Riley pastor of First Baptist church, Minneapolis, told the World's Christian Fundamentalist Association at the People's church.

The cause of the present day evils rested on adults, that the latter had been sharp enough to get a few dollars more by hook or by crook, he asserted. Universities were filled with young men who found life's pathway and consequently spoiled many young people were tempted.

Thirty-Six Million in One Hand

Eight cheques totalling in value $36,[illegible] 430 changed hands on May 1 when the Canadian Pacific Railway paid off the balance in principal and interest due of the sixty million dollar loan contracted in 1932, and guaranteed by the Dominion Government at that time.

It will be remembered that in June of that year the Canadian Pacific had to raise the sixty millions to meet maturing obligations. The money markets of the world were then feeling the full effect of the financial crisis and were closed with the result that it was not possible for a Canadian institution to borrow so large a sum on advantageous terms. The Canadian banks therefore agreed to combine in making the loan, but as an added measure of security to the banks, the Dominion Government agreed to guarantee re-payment of the loan both as to principal and interest. The loan was to mature in five years, at which be paid off by the Canadian Pacific prior thereto on notice to be given to the banks. It has been paid off in full in less than three years, and the obligation of the Government to guarantee payment came to an end automatically the moment the cheques issued today were presented. Furthermore, since all interest and other charges have been paid by the Company, the entire transaction has not cost the Dominion Government one cent. The loan originally carried an interest rate of five per cent., but later this was reduced to four and a half per cent. New loans raised by the Company to pay the [illegible] were made at a still lower rate of interest.

Facing a Big Deficit

The discovery that the operations of the Federal government for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1936, resulted in a deficit of approximately $162,000,000 as announced by Hon. Chas. A. Dunning in the recent budget speech in the House of Commons must have come as a considerable shock to a large percentage of the Canadian people who must pay the piper.

The shock is not assuaged at all by the additional announcement that the increase in the sales tax from six to eight per cent which the government decided to levy will not be a heavy enough impost to enable the government to balance the budget for the current fiscal year and that, on the other hand, the best that can be expected from the new and other more minor levies is a deficit of something less than $100,000,000 for this year.

Not much is to be gained by any attempt to lay the blame for this enormous deficit at the door of any particular administration. Doubtless politicians within the fold of the two major parties will rise up and assert that the other party is at fault in the one case the former regime and in the other present administration while adherents of the other parties who have not yet been given an opportunity to demonstrate their ability to govern the country, will declare that the economic system is to be blamed.

The fact remains that there is a shortage of $162 000 000 as the difference between governmental income and outgo which has to be made up by approximately 10,000,000 people and the same number of people are apparently likely to have to make up another $100 000 000 or a little less next year. The money must come out of the pockets of these ten million Canadians and apparently the only way to get it is by increasing taxation in some form or another.

The government has decided that the law is to be made up partially by an additional levy of two per cent in the form of sales tax which means that the extraction of another two cents on every dollar spent by the consumers on practically "everything manufactured and produced in Canada." Hon Mr. Dunning stated that by this means the government is placing the burden on "rich and poor alike." Whether it will work out that way in actual practice, it is almost impossible to say at this stage, whatever the intention may be.

It is axiomatic that on the final analysis the consumer must and does foot the country's tax bill, and it is a matter of history that sometimes business not only collects the tax from the consumer but a little bit more by adding a small profit on the tax as well as on the cost of the goods and the cost of their distribution. In this way a tax sometimes becomes pyramided by the time the goods on which they are levied reach the consumer.

The present system of collection makes this kind of thing possible and it is to be hoped that the government will take more measures as are necessary to see that the consumer is not forced to pay an additional tribute to retailers jobbers wholesalers and manufacturers, or any of them as a result of the increase in the sales tax.

For any government of course a sales tax or an increase in sales tax, is one of the easiest ways of securing revenue from its subjects. Within a couple of months people will have forgotten about the budget and how they are paying another two per cent towards governmental administration on practically everything they buy, because it is a hidden impost.

In this connection there would seem to be some merit in the sales tax system in vogue in the State of Oklahoma where the tax is collected by the retailer and where the retailer is required to show on his bill to the customer the price of the article and the amount collected in tax as a separate item.

The system, while unquestionably irksome and cumbersome to the retailer, at least has the advantage of making the consumer "tax conscious" in the sense that he sees a direct income tax. Every time he makes a purchase from a nickel upward he is made to realize that he is making a contribution to the government and the amount he is contributing. If this system were in effect throughout Canada, no doubt it would result in greater pressure being brought to bear on the government to economize and might act as a deterrent in the number of requests made to the government for expenditures which might be avoided.

There are, on the other hand, some very potent arguments against the adoption of such a system of tax levy and collection. It would often result, no doubt, in efforts on the part of consumers to induce the retailers to absorb the tax and where competition is keen might result in injustice to the merchants. In addition to which the time that this method of billing and collection would require would no doubt, entail extra cost to the merchant which under present conditions he could ill afford.

Children In England Learning Profession Of British Railways

"Great Britain is the only country which trains children for the profession of transportation," says T. R. Deeter, of the Associated British Railways. In this connection a nation-wide educational program for children recently started.

"Men enambled with more rapid mechanical development the heads of British railways have realized that, in the long run, the wealth of their roads depends directly upon public understanding of rail transport problems. Realizing that transport is for the ages and not merely for the adults of to-day, they have begun to teach the children the fundamental facts of railroading and are conducting a series of nation-wide demonstrations for school children. Over 450 000 children have attended these. Instruction in every branch of railroading, from locomotive driving to signal service is given to children by competent instructors on special demonstration cars which are routed throughout the country.

"The eventual result, it is believed will be a sympathetic understanding by the whole people of the Empire's railroad problems."

Temple To The Sun

Building In England To Have 7,500 Feet Of Garden

A temple to the sun with 7,500 feet of hanging gardens is rising in England in the midst of one of South Hackney's most populous districts.

It is an experiment by the Bethnal Green and East London Housing Association in which housing experts, builders and architects have worked together to evolve the "sun and air home" of the future.

"We were faced with the problem of making the flats as much like houses as possible," said the architect, J. E. M. Macgregor, "and so we provided each flat with its own private garden on the same level."

The first section of the "sun temple," containing 14 flats, each with a minimum of 200 square feet of hanging garden space to the sun, will be completed in the near future.

Even on a dark day the building with its yellow brick walls and red tile roof suggests sunshine.

To make the gardens possible a new kind of building of pyramid shape was devised. The flats are built in receding steps around a central hall. The hall will be let as a market.

It is one of the first buildings in the world to be built on the central lever system.

Received An Answer

"Good gracious!" shouted the schoolmaster "I told you the simple question 'what is a fortification?' and get no answer."

The scholars stared but no one answered. The master tried again.

Pointing to the boy at the bottom of the class he demanded "Tell me what is a fortification?"

"Two twenty-fourteen, sir," came the answer.

Reduction In Insurance Rates

Hudson Bay Route Season Has Also Been Extended

Marine insurance rates on the Hudson Bay route have been reduced for the current year and the season extended eight days, Railway Minister Howe announced in the House of Commons.

The season this year will last from Aug. 9 to Oct 10 before surcharges are added to marine insurance. The season last year was from Aug. 10 to Oct. 2.

The earlier date of opening is qualified by the provision that no ship must pass Cape Chidley, Ingonish or Churchill, until the government ice breaker, the N. B. McLean, gives the word. Cape Chidley is at the mouth of Hudson Strait.

The reduction in insurance rates applies only to hulls and machinery and does not apply to cargo. It is a premium charged by marine underwriters over and above the year round insurance carried by vessels. The year round rate covers risks against accident on all trade routes of the world except a selected few before it runs. It may either have special trade routes, a premium has to be paid. The Hudson Bay route is one of these. The new rate of insurance to be paid has now been reduced to 25 per cent.

The reduction of insurance rates amounts to 25 per cent. A vessel of 5,000 tons, valued at $250,000 equipped with Gyro compass, will pay £625 per round trip. The same boat in 1933 paid £1,000; 1934, £1,250; 1935, 1937, if not equipped with Gyro compass, the round trip have paid £1,750 in 1933; £1,500 in 1934; £1,125 in 1935 and 1643 in 1936.

Reductions resulted from representations to the Imperial Shipping Committee.

Second Financial Policies

Record Of Britnor's Success Opinion Of Former Premier Of Ontario

Sound financial policies adopted three years ago are responsible for Great Britain's "amazing" industrial recent trade crisis of world leadership in the opinion of C. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to London and former Premier of Ontario.

Mr. Ferguson, who arrived at San Francisco on the last lap of a world cruise which took him to all parts of the British Empire, declared the activity of the Mother Country was reflected in all parts of the Empire.

"There are no other countries in the world which have recovered as good. Great Britain leads, and Canada and South Africa run her a close second," he said.

One of the reasons for farm failures in Canada, Mr. Ferguson believes, is the small size of the average farm. Even Ontario, he said, has many farms too small to be economically profitable. Only 36-acre farm near Ottawa had paid him a net profit of $1,000 per year for the past 30 years.

A Knight Of St. George

Duke Of Kent In Near Mishap Of The Order

Although St. George's Day received no general commemoration in London special significance attached to the annual service of the Order of St. Michael and St. George held at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The Duke of Kent appointed a Knight of the Grand Cross last year wore for the first time the rich mantle of Knighthood with the elaborate collar and chain over his naval uniform. The procession to the high altar consisted of other high officers as richly apparelled.

In the chapel of the order which is part of the cathedral the Duke of Kent's banner was ceremonially hung and the banners of these knights who had died during the year were taken down.

Most Lower Trade Barriers

Revival Of World Trade Necessary To End Economic Distress

Declaring there is a "rising danger" of a catastrophic world war, U.S. Secretary Hull at Washington, attacked what he termed the "supreme folly" of "excessive" trade barriers.

A revival of world trade through a lowering of such barriers is necessary to halt the "virulent disease" of economic distress, social unrest, dictatorships and war, Hull declared in a speech prepared for delivery to the closing session of the chamber of commerce of the United States.

"Only as the world's economic health is restored will individuals and nations develop again adequate resistance to the psychological madness that makes possible internal and external strife," the secretary of state said.

Describing the new reciprocal trade policy, Hull said that if it were scrapped, the United States would take a "fatal" step backward.

Another Great Ship Scrapped

French Liner Once As Famous As New Queen Mary

Less than 24 hours after the Queen Mary had made her triumphant passage down the Clyde another great ship had begun her last journey up the channel, stern first, to end her days in the shipbreakers' yard. She was the 42,000-ton liner l'Atlantique which was once to the French just what the Queen Mary is to the British people to-day, and which was burned in the English Channel several years ago. Over 100 men will be employed for about a year on breaking her up.

Uniforms For Air Force

Are Shown In Issue Of Canadian Airway Bulletin

Portraits of what is to come when the Canadian air mail is resumed in 1937, as current plans call for, is given in the latest issue of "The Bulletin," published by Canadian Airways, Ltd.

It shows a photograph of two officers of the company dressed in the natty blue uniforms of Canadian Airways, complete to peaked caps, with the familiar Canada Goose emblem of the company. Those uniforms, it is explained, will be worn by all pilots and co-pilots on airmail runs. The first of these are worn by pilots on the Vancouver-Seattle service. The planes there have also just been fitted with complete two-way radio equipment.

BRITAIN FAVORS THE CONTINUANCE OF SANCTIONS

London.—The British government favors continuance of sanctions against Italy for the present, it was understood in informed quarters, but it was considered doubtful that the government would be prepared to continue sanctions indefinitely as urged by General J. C. Smuts in an interview at Cape Town.

It was believed here no country would be prepared to take the onus of demanding the immediate raising of sanctions.

The diplomatic situation would be eased, it was stated, were Italy to adopt the face-saving arrangement of placing a puppet emperor on the Ethiopian throne. The situation would be further improved were Italy prepared to negotiate on the basis of the 1906 treaty defining the spheres of influence in Ethiopia among Britain, France and Italy.

Premier Mussolini has made a number of statements indicating he is ready to recognize British interests in the Lake Tana region but since the colleague of Ethiopian resistance the British and Italian governments have had no exchange of views.

The situation was debated in the house of lords when Lord Ponsonby, Labor, put a question to the government whether it has any plans in preparations for a thorough revision of the system of collective security in view of the recent experiences. He said he hoped the government would decide that Article XVI. of the league covenant must go.

"I am absolutely sick of the phrase "collective security," the Labor peer said. "It has been shown to be rather collective than security."

In the House of Commons the opposition Liberals tabled a motion urging the government to take the lead at Geneva in "devising for the maintenance and intensification of sanctions until a settlement of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute is reached in accordance with the principles of the covenant."

Premier Hertzog Says Sanctions Must Be Continued

Cape Town.—"If the league is to do its duty it must maintain and continue sanctions, if necessary for years," declared Prime Minister J. B. M. Hertzog in a debate on the Italo-Ethiopian situation in the house of assembly.

"If that is done Italy will be compelled eventually to give in," the prime minister said. "We must first be certain if the league proposes not to continue sanctions. If that happens the league will be dead. No country would desire to continue a member of a league that had proved a broken reed. Within a few days we should know whether the league is dead or not."

The South African representative at Geneva will be instructed to support "to the utmost any measure necessary to preserve the league's sanctions," General Hertzog told the assembly.

We concluded by declaring it would be "sheer folly" to refuse to consult Britain and other members of the British commonwealth of nations in regard to South Africa defence.

Outside the assembly, Deputy Prime Minister J. C. Smuts, in an interview, declared "either sanctions must now stand by the league to the utmost or the league will go down before the Italian attack and the world will be confronted with the alternatives which faced it before the World War."

General Smuts said he was for doing the "straight thing, namely sanctions," and would back Hertzog until Italy is compelled to make peace within the terms of the covenant."

ANTHONY EDEN DEFENDS BRITAIN AND THE LEAGUE

London. Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, told a crowded House of Commons the League of Nations must "must go on" but at the same time he said made no bid for a "stick-taking" by the league on the heads of the lessons learned in the failure of the league to halt the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Eden also told the house the government is to consult the dominions on "the problems involved" in Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.

Eden made no effort to conceal his disappointment over failure of the League of Nations to end the Italo-Ethiopian war as he addressed the crowded lower house.

But he declared in firm tones: "The League of Nations must go on!"

For hours he had been the subject of a bitter attack by Hugh Dalton, parliamentary under-secretary of state for foreign affairs in the last Labor government.

Dalton charged the government with having failed to carry out its obligations under the covenant; with having encouraged the Ethiopians to resist in the belief the league would help them and then left the Ethiopians to their fate.

Dalton was particularly aggressive regarding the supply of British oil to Italy. By the supply of oil the government profited through its share-holdings in the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. Through the use of that oil, the Italians were able to employ mustard gas.

Eden denied the charges with a sharp retort. He asserted all through the early days the British government had striven to effect conciliation. It was only true Britain had let the league down.

There were only three great powers in the days of Crimea they were two Britain and France — were Mediterranean powers. Therefore upon them must now fall the two major risk. There could be no question that Britain had taken the lead at Geneva.

Before the dispute the percentage of oil supplied to Italy by British companies was only about 13 per cent, of the total Italy received Eden thought that last year it was 29 per cent. He said that supply been stopped what effect could it have had on the course of the dispute"

From the outset Britain had taken the view that action must be collective. The sanctions adopted were for a deliberate purpose. They were co-ordinated under conference of the league countries Their weakness was that they could not in isolation be effective.

The only sanction that could be immediately effective was to close the Suez Canal, he declared.

"That," Eden continued, "must inevitably have entailed military measures and every league member in his judgment inevitably lead to war

Suspicion In Germany Over Britain's Reply

Berlin The German foreign office, studying a British questionnaire on Chancellor Hitler's suggestions for European peace, expressed surprise and suspicion over the absence of queries on Rhineland fortifications.

The questionnaire prepared by the British government on behalf of the German-Locarno powers, was handed to the German government.

Although the complicated document contained a broad inquiry into Der Fuehrer's April 1 proposals together with a request for a more precise statement on Germany's colonial demands, the questionnaire dropped completely all interrogations on German forts in the re-occupied Rhineland.

Hitler proposed as a counter-suggestion to the London-Locarno powers the establishment of a demilitarized rhineland to supervise the Rhineland during a four-month armistice period during which treaty negotiations would be carried on.

The commission would have one English and one Italian member who would name the third Germany would agree not to increase her forces in the occupied territory, but Hitler said Belgium would also have to make the same guaranty.

Hitler's plan of fortifications with British and French consent over what the chancellor intended to do in the Rhineland was once considered the backbone of the questions formulated by Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary

Germany's reluctance therefore revealed last night, was searching for a reason why this question was published at once and was inclined to take a pessimistic view that something lay behind the move which might prove too good for Germany

The government suspected that the French and the British may be contemplating re-erecting the Siegfried with Italy, a spokesman declared, and so will let the Rhineland fortifications question rest until Germany begins to erect barricades

WAR PRISONERS ARE ASKING FOR CONSIDERATION

Ottawa. — Opportunity to appeal from previous decisions of the repatriation commission for ex-prisoners of war, together with a request that those whose cases had not been considered be now given the chance to present them, was urged on the commission's permanent committee by H. B. Stone on behalf of the ex-Prisoners of War Association

Mr. Stone painted some harrowing pictures of the brutality with which captives were treated by the former enemy and of the methods which prompted German military authorities to beat down the resistance particularly of British prisoners

We were proud" said Mr Stone who had already told the committee he himself was wounded and captured at Sanctuary Wood in June 1916. "That pride was galling to the Germans, for it affected the morale of the German civilians They wanted to impress on the civilian population that the fighting spirit was low and that England was starving

"To some of the soldiers even if it was our last we would eat our food beat it first of them We would dress in our best clothes and shave then the word they were made of. We tried to prove they would not break our spirit. They would ask us how long the war was going to last. We always replied three years. Till take us three years to beat him" we told them. "Then you're a mad lot, you've got a good one."

The burden of the ex-prisoners' complaints was directed to Canadians from Germans only 18 months ago. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Former Pilot On Byrd Expedition Is Planning Trip

Harold J. Lane, formerly of Bristol, chief pilot on two Byrd Antarctic expeditions and Lincoln Ellsworth, flyer-explorer, are planning a joint expedition to the South Pole to discover what is thought to be the last continent to the west of the 800,000 square miles never seen by man.

Announcement of the new expedition, which may not leave for two or three years, or until new ice explorations equipment is perfected, was made at Providence, R.I., by Lane.

"The new continent is an area about one-third the size of Australia, and is on a straight line running from South Pole from Little America, on the other side of the world," Lane said. "We may have ever seen this territory, but we believe it offers the last bit of undiscovered land on the globe."

Carbon Monoxide Poisoning

Doctor Explains How Gas From Automobile Constitutes Danger

The traffic cop at a busy intersection who irritably blows his whistle and gruffly hands out tickets for minor infractions may be suffering from inhaling too much carbon monoxide, one of the elements in the automobile exhaust.

Or if a man suddenly starts quarreling with his family, worrying about his job and even threatening suicide—all for no apparent reason—he may have too much of the gas in his blood.

Small amounts of carbon monoxide inhaled over long periods cause chronic poisoning and result in physical as well as mental ailments, Dr. Harvey C. Beck, of Baltimore, explained.

Dr Beck was one of more than 7,000 delegates at Kansas City who attended the American Medical Association's 79th annual convention.

City dwellers can't stop outdoors at the average busy street intersections to escape the gas and get fresh air, Dr. Beck said.

"It has been demonstrated that traffic patrolmen after eight hours exposure will reach a danger point in the blood saturation," he explained.

Only one per cent. of carbon monoxide in the atmosphere causes serious poisoning and usually results in instantaneous death. Chronic poisoning causes anxiety, depression, fears, introspection, and emotional upheavals, Dr. Beck said.

The industrial alertness of the driver of an automobile is dimmed through inhaling small quantities of the gas he said, contributing to the cause for many accidents.

New York's Latest Craze

Train Carries People To Country For Bicycle Riding

Those who pictured New Yorkers as incapable of being torn away from theatres and night clubs revised their opinion last winter when ski trains hauled 12,000 on a single week-end to the snow slopes of the Adirondacks.

The illusion is again shattered by the inauguration of a "bicycle train" service on a recent Sunday the first bicycle train of the season carried 222 cycling enthusiasts to a rural district of Massachusetts, visited while they "wheeled" merrily over a 30-mile course among the violet and cowslip-sprinkled values, and then whirled them back to the city in time for a good night's recuperation before the toils of Monday.

It was reported as a day rich in the enjoyment of nature and exercise. Amherst undergraduate and student might and famil with the arrangement, since a cyclist accompanies by 221 others, acquired training, is not exactly alone with Nature, but 221 are considerably in many, 7,000,000, and doubtless to a New Yorker a country road containing no few people as that is practically a vacuum.

As for exercises, the excursion tort nothing to be desired. Any one out of training who rides a bicycle 30 miles knows it, and the next morning knows. Poundage was noticeably reduced—the purpose for which some enthusiasts—and many a time charite heros acquired to serve as a reminder of the outing being the news of Monday.

More joy to the New York cutors. —Detroit News.

After-Dinner Speaker Converted Hearer In Short Time

Warrior Bridge, masterpiece of London's great eighteenth-century engineer, Robert Mylne, spanned the River Thames close to Parliament Buildings, and now being rebuilt, offers a new example of professional tact.

An architect—with London's greatest exponent of his own particular craft, Sir Christopher Wren, in his thoughts — if an after-dinner speech accidentally included Waterloo Bridge, Mylne's building—but which this famous builder of his structures was responsible.

So the unhappy guest was called upon to reply. If he corrected the slip his architect host might feel humiliated. On the other hand, to pass it might seem to belittle the achievements of one of the greatest lights in his own profession. Somehow, however, he said: "The last speaker has rightly exalted Wren; so endeared is he to us engineers that we affectionately style him 'Wren' remain"—Christian Science Monitor.

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?
Ask Your Doctor and Find Out

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well - Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE, is one regularly in your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN."

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" that "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as they had the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is good for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate "Aspirin" among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to take regularly. In your own interest remember this.

Explanations And Comments

A Prophecy of the Fall of Jerusalem — Part of the Second Advent, Luke 21:5-36. Some of the people present began to talk about the wonderful stones and fine offerings that adorned the temple. Matthew says that it was one of the disciples who drew Jesus' attention to the glories of the temple. The stones in the foundation were enormous, and there were columns fifty feet in height of one block of marble. "The gifts to the temple were many and costly, from the great ones of the earth: a table from Ptolemy, a chain from Agrippa, a golden vine from Herod the Great. The temple was famous for its wealth."

The days will come, Jesus prophesied, in which there shall not be left one stone of the temple upon another, that shall not be thrown down. This prediction was literally fulfilled forty years later. Josephus, writing about the siege of Jerusalem says: "Caesar now gave orders to demolish the whole city and temple, only the towers, the gates and the west wall. All the rest was so thoroughly laid even with the ground as those that dug it up to the foundation, that there was left nothing to make those who came thither believe that it had ever been inhabited." "On the ninth day of Ab," the Talmud says, "the city of Jerusalem was plowed over."

A Call to Understanding Living. Our Scripture selections for this day's study are taken from what has been called the "apocalyptic" literature. The first selection seems to have specific reference to the destruction of Jerusalem only, and the later portion of the chapter seems to mingle this event with much other one in a way that is rather difficult to follow. But the advice and admonition in this first section is plain enough. In the midst of rumors of catastrophes and great disturbances in the thoughts of men, Jesus admonishes his followers to be steady and trustful and not let themselves be led astray or made fearful. Wholesome, helpful, rather matter-of-fact living is urged, and trust in God is the occasion. Jesus is not advising that we be indifferent to evil. We are not be interested in these great and tragic events which are soon to happen, but that must not be the face of them they ought not to go astray. But possess their souls in trust and patience and live lives of faithfulness and love. The reward mention

IMPORTANCE OF AGRICULTURE

Vancouver, Canadian people are ... pleased in farming, and a further ... her depend entirely on farming for ... their substance James G. Parmalee, ... Minister of Trade and Com ... merce pointed out recently. Unfortunately this latter number varied with the prosperity of agriculture, and the ... increase in urban employment as ... riculture is depressed, contributes an important factor in our relief problem of to-day. From 25 to 33 per cent of our national wealth comes directly from the farm. On a tonnage basis, because of the long grain haul, about 50 per cent is attributable to agriculture. Again 10 to 50 per cent of our total export trade is made up of products of farm origin and this is a prominent influence in the balancing of Canada's indebtedness.

MUCH DISTRESS AVERTIBLE

Is industries had enlarged the production of goods and lessened prices as agricultural prices were driven much of the distress of the depression could have been averted, J. D Rutherford, of the Federal Bureau of Statistics told the parliamentary committee enquiring into the cost of farm implements.

Mr Rutherford pointed out that agricultural production had been maintained in the face of a falling demand and the result was a precipitous decline in the prices of agricultural products. On the contrary, many industries maintained their prices and output. This resulted in unemployment. Much of the distress of the depression was due to reduced agriculture.

In 1932 agricultural prices had declined forty per cent from 1926-7 level and agricultural implements had dropped ten per cent. The volume of production of agricultural implements in 1933 was only 15 per cent of the average production volume in the period 1926 to 1929.

A few industries, Mr Rutherford pointed out enlarged production and reduced prices with beneficial results.

The enquiry into the cost of agricultural implements is continuing. The government has made some slashing reductions in the tariff on imported machinery.

WATER WEARS HOLE UNDER DAM IN RIVER

The waters of the Vermilion river have at last worked their way through the C. N. R. dam in places other than the sluice. In the days before the present substantial structure was built the river dam used to get washed away every spring but with the building of this dam some 20 years ago, the trouble practically ceased except for extending the piles well out from the river on the south side. It is under these piles that the river has at last worked it's way and the water is escaping rapidly and will result in a very low river unless repaired immediately.

C.N.R. officials have been advised of the break and it is hoped that they will take immediate steps to stop the leak otherwise it will have to go over mine in the old send pit this summer.

NEWS from UNION

(Too late for last week)

Seeding is progressing rapidly throughout th district despite frequent showers. Some people have most of their gardens planted. A few have sweet peas showing through the soil already.

Social activities are pretty well at a standstill, until spring work is finished.

On Saturday May 9, the three branches of the U.F.A. held a joint meeting in the school house. It was well attended, and many items of business were dealt with and disposed of. Arrangements were made to hold a picnic at Union on July 22, also to have a novelty dance after the picnic.

Through the kindness of Mr. Monroe and Mr. Cox, the Juniors are sending a delegate to the Junior Conference in Edmonton for the week in June. The Juniors were required to write an essay on "Why they would like to go to the Conference", the boy or girl who had the best essay was selected to go. Edward Cox was the winner of the contest. After hearing Edward's essay, we all agree that he truly deserves the trip, and that he will be an interested and attentive delegate. After the meeting a short entertainment was given by the Bluebird orchestra, assisted by other Juniors.

Arrangements have been made to hold dances at Union on the second Friday in the months of June, July and August. The dates are June 12, July 10, and August 14. Burt's orchestra in attendance. Three dances are in aid of the Christmas Tree fund for the children.

Don't forget that church services are being held in the school every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Collins from Vermilion is the minister for the summer.

The Japanese operetta "Takki san" will be presented in the Morrison school by the Inlay players on Friday evening, May 22 at 8:30 p.m. sharp. The play will be followed by a dance and lunch. all for 25c. 2-1

FEEDING OF TOXIC PIGS

As soon as young pigs begin to eat with their mother, a trough should be provided where the pigs may have access to feed not accessed from the mother. Shorts or middlings or fine wheat chop mixed with an equal quantity of oat chop makes a very good feed with an abundance of milk in a separate trough. Oat hulls should be sifted out of chop pigs pigs are young. If milk is not available the practice at the Dominion Experimental station at Scott, is to add to the mixture, 5% tankage and 5% linseed meal and keep the dry chop mixture before them, and water in a separate trough. Wet feed is satisfactory if eaten while fresh but when sour is left in the trough, it soon becomes sour and may cause scours. Fresh green pasture is very valuable for young pigs, particularly at weaning time.

If the pigs are eating well when weaned and plenty of milk is available they should continue to gain in weight, but otherwise they often become unthrifty and lose weight for some time.

When the sow is taken away, she may be returned two or three times, just long enough for the pigs to empty the udder.

Pigs will do better if those of the same size are placed together and not over 20 in a bunch. Feed should not be changed for a few weeks after weaning when the shorts or middlings may be replaced gradually by barley chop. When low grade wheat is available at barley prices, ground for pound, it should be used in preference. When tankage or milk is not provided, a mineral mixture is most valuable. A very good mixture is 2 the sulphur, 3 the hydrated lime, 50 the salt and 10 to 50 the ... meal fed

One percent cod liver oil in chop is valuable to prevent crippling in winter, but must be discontinued at least six weeks before kitting for pork or the pork will taste of oil

Salt is so beneficial to a pig as to any other kind of stock. If fed sparingly at first may be kept before the pigs in a self feeder or box

WORD OF DEATH OF KARL STRAUMAN RECEIVED HERE

Word was received here recently of the death in Vancouver in February last of Karl Straumau, a veteran of the Great War and an early settler in this district. He first homesteaded near Campbell Lake and then settled in the Islet-Isla district. He served overseas as being for the most part an interpreter in and about the internment camps both in England and in France and Belgium. The deceased spoke several of the foreign languages. He was a native of Latvia now a part of Russia. The deceased sold his farm stock and equipment early last fall and being in poor health for the past two or three years went to the Provincial Hospital [illegible] for treatment. Early in the year he went to Vancouver where he continued treatment in the shaughnessy Military hospital. He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Freda Bellamy residing at Hilton [illegible].

News from Islay

Local people will be interested in a recent item contained in the Lamont paper stating that Dr. W. Webber had sold his Lamont practice to Dr. Stewart. Dr. and Mrs. Webber (nee Dorothy Stone) are moving to Edmonton. Dr. Stewart is a brother to E. M. Stewart, Vermilion.

The contract has been let to F. Gilpin for the construction of the long awaited and much talked of community hall. Building operations are due to commence immediately. Lumber is being supplied by the Norton Lumber Yards, Vermilion.

The Japanese operetta "Trail San" will be presented in the Morrison school by the Islay players on Friday evening, May 22 at 8:30 p.m. sharp. Tea [illegible] will be followed by a dance and [illegible] all or 25c

Islay Hospital Board Meets

A meeting of the hospital board was held on Tuesday, May 5 with all members present.

[illegible] on motion by A. Wood the minutes of the April meeting were adopted as read.

The following resolutions were then passed by the board: that the secretary write a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Kent and family. That chairman and secretary be a committee to arrange [illegible] that the secretary write a letter of appreciation to Dr. [illegible] in Gardiner hosting at Islay. That the annual ratepayers' meeting be held in Islay on Saturday July 11; that the next meeting of the board be held on Tuesday June 9; that the matron's report for April be accepted and placed on file; that [illegible] man and secretary be a committee to investigate offer of Islay Town Co. for supply of drugs to the hospital; that all bills as read by the secretary be ordered paid.

WEDDING BELLS

BELL—CORLETT

The marriage of Vera Edith May Corlett to William Edward Cyprian Bell was solemnized at St. Saviour's Anglican church, Vermilion, on Sunday, May 17. The Rev. Canon Leversedge officiated at the ceremony.

MEALEESE—SMITH

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Roman Catholic church on Friday, May 15, when Margery Elsie, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smith became the bride of Samuel McAleese. The bride was dressed in blue, wore a veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of [illegible] and white carnations. The orange blossoms were loaned by the bride's grandmother Mrs John Smith, the latter having worn them at her own wedding 47 years ago.

A dainty lunch was served at which the parents of both the bride and the groom were present, as well as 17 brothers and sisters of the young couple. Other guests were 8 cousins of the bride.

OBITUARY

MRS. JANE WALKER

Mrs. Jane Walker of 11191 85 ave., passed away at the residence of her daughter Mrs. A. E. Ottewell on [illegible] May 15, at the age of 80 years. She leaves to mourn her loss one daughter, Mrs. A. Tuttle officiated, Andrews Bros. funeral directors.

WHY MUSSOLINI AND HITLER AGAINST BOY SCOUTS

"Scouting was abolished in Italy and Germany because Scouting helps a boy to think for himself. Dictators do not want people to think. The abolition of Scouting in Germany and Italy is not a setback for Scouting. It is a proof of the value of the training."—J.S. Wilson, Camp Chief, Gilwell Park

AUBURNDALE

The Autumn Leaf Social Credit Group held their regular monthly meeting on Monday May 11, there being only a small attendance owing to the rush season. Due to the absence of Mr. W. Hetherington, the president, Mr. J. Sampson, at the request of Mr. Little, took the chair. The following letter of appreciation was read from Premier Aberhart:—

J. Little, Secretary,
Autumn Leaf S. C. Group,
Cummings, Alberta.

Dear Sir:

Your letter of April 21st received during my absence has now been drawn to my attention.

May I take this opportunity of thanking you, and through you, the members of your group for the very reassuring message which you have been good enough to convey. Your continued loyalty and support is very much appreciated. Having had a brief rest after a long and strenuous session, I am looking forward to carrying out our program, and I am confident that we shall be able to achieve a very real measure of success.

Would you kindly extend to the members of your group an expression of my very best wishes to them in their work

Yours truly,
(signed) William Aberhart
PREMIER

There was no letter from Mr Maclean and he was not present at the meeting owing to the general disappointment of the members, but from rumors it was understood that he had attended another meeting in Wainwright and refused to take in the two meetings on the same journey.

The Secretary read Mr Robert Fair's very able speech in the House of Commons at Ottawa on the West Post payment. Anyone who wishes a copy of Mr Fair's speech can obtain one from Mr J. Little the secretary

A member gave notice that he is going to bring up the subject of Provincial health at the next meeting with a view to getting a resolution adopted by the group, and submitted to the government

We were pleased to see Mr. Anderson our new student pastor in attendance at the meeting.

The meeting was adjourned after the usual lunch. The next meeting will be on Monday June 8, at 8 p.m

Our new student minister, Mr. Anderson, should by this time be getting used to the rough and ready ways of Alberta, although it may take him more time to get used to the ways of Alberta horses, he having been thrown off his horse twice and had to go on Shank's mare for awhile an exercise which at any rate is good for digestion. Mr. Anderson is rallying the members of the young people's league in preparation for the coming season's sporting activities, and all the young men and women of the different districts are looking forward to a busy and happy season of sports and games.

The farmers around here are making the headway getting in their gardens and crops.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs Norman Armstrong on the birth of a son.

Miss Lena Miller who resided with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peters for the last year and a half has now gone to live at Claysmore.

A car load of young people headed by A. Kennedy and Clelands travelled down to Lloydminster to visit Miss Agnes Cleland who is staying there at present.

Two Civil engineers from the city spent Monday and Tuesday of last week with Conservator W. Hetherington looking over the route of the proposed highway between Vermilion and Wainwright. The engineer in spector said that the proposed crossing at the Battle River was the most feasible he had seen. He said the road would require a month's surveying before building work could be commenced. Prospects he said, looked promising for an early start of the building of the highway.

Rev. Mr. Magnus will hold a service every second Sunday evening in the Autumn Leaf schoolhouse until the cold weather sets in again in the fall. He held a meeting on Sunday 17, and the next meeting will be held on Sunday May 31st at 8 p.m. Everybody will be made heartily welcome.

At the request of any of his friends or acquaintances, Mr. T. Slipper of Irma will send on approval a copy of his book "A Study in Evolution." The price will be one dollar, postage free. Everybody who is interested in and studies the Bible should get a copy of this very enlightening and instructive little book, and it is an ideal gift to send anyone interested in the Bible. Copies are already on the way to Australia, South Africa, Ireland, the British Isles, the United States and other parts of Canada.

PRAIRIE PROVINCES FIVE-YEAR CENSUS, JUNE 1st, 1936

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT INVITES THE WILLING CO-OPERATION OF EVERY CITIZEN

COMMENCING June 1st, the usual five-year census of the three Prairie Provinces will be undertaken. The object of this census is to gather statistics by means of which your Government can function more intelligently, more effectively and more economically in the interests of all citizens of the country.

No Government ever yet succeeded or gave its best without a thorough knowledge of its country and its people. That is why we ask your utmost co-operation in the census of the Prairie Provinces which commences on June 1st this year. When the Government Enumerator calls at your door, receive him courteously. Give him all the information for which he asks. Remember, he is the agent of good administration and is in your service. Help him to complete his work with all possible dispatch. On the accuracy and completeness of your replies to his questions depends the best interest of yourself and your Government.

ALL INFORMATION IS HELD STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL
You can place absolute trust in the official enumerator who calls on you. All information you provide will be held in the strictest confidence. It is compulsory by law to answer the questions put by the enumerator. But you are living up to the spirit of good citizenship as well as to the letter of the law by giving information readily, completely and sincerely.

WATERS OF LAKES LAURIER, WHITNEY O.K.

Provincial Sanitary Engineer Advises Neither Lake Has Been Condemned

Rumors Without Foundation

To offset a current rumor regarding the waters of lakes Laurier and Whitney, popular summer resorts some north of Heinsburg, Gregor Bros. who operate a resort, have forwarded the Standard a copy of a letter received in reply to one written the sanitary department of the provincial government. It apparently sets at rest any doubts that may have been entertained as to the fitness of the waters of these lakes for bathing purposes:

(Copy)
Edmonton, Alta.,
May 7, 1936.

Gregor Bros.,
Heinsburg.

Dear Sirs:—

A letter addressed by you to this department on March 26, 1936, in connection with lakes Laurier and Whitney somehow went astray and has just come to my attention, and I wish to advise that neither of the above-mentioned lakes has been condemned by this department with respect to bathing purposes and the story must be merely a rumor.

I regret very much the delay that has resulted in replying to your letter.

Yours very truly,
(signed) Dudley B. Menzies,
Provincial Sanitary Engineer

TOLLAND TIMES

After a long wilting rest, we even do mind being busy, than to locate a column with extending our hearty congratulations to our friend, Mrs. Dorothy Doyle, the well known scribe on the popular Neighborhood Notes, on the birth of a son on May 11, at the Islay hospital.

Our silence certainly needs no explanation this time of the year. To cook all our waking hours to go through housecleaning, so we [illegible] quickly with the assistance of Mrs. Doyle of Woodvale.

To catch up with all the April and May jobs seems to be impossible and most of it would be too old, for some will be worth mentioning.

Between showers and shivers every farmer is toiling to get his crop in. Wheat seeding will undoubtedly be finished by the time this appears in print but around the 15th quite a bit had to be done yet and everybody's home looks a sure bet to catch up with the late season.

Gardens are progressing favorably, the early plants are already popping out of the ground.

Since most of the horses are [illegible] grass use, walking is the fashionable thing to do just now.

The Juniors held a meeting at Margaret Ford's with 5 members present. Correspondence read by Lilian Heaman club rules who are unable to give a performance here. Nothing further was decided about a dance. All the flowers and straw berries are [illegible] are doing fine. Next meeting at Fred [illegible] Wasewinsen's on Saturday June 6 in the evening. After the meeting there will be a weiner roast by the sloughs and let's hope the weather is warm enough for swimming and boating too!

A special ice-cream treat was in store the first Sunday of May for the guests of Mrs. Wilson Ford, who came to celebrate Margaret's birthday. The younger ones walked over to the ball practice at Orlando's, where [illegible] Tolland is again assuming a mean bat trying hard to get into shape for the summer games. Then first battle was fought at Triangle on the [illegible] where they were victorious to the extent of a 37-11 score. Let's good start, and hard to beat in future. But keep at it boys, with the girls so valiant by helping at practise you ought to go far.

There are also regular sessions at Ganton school every Sunday morning [illegible]

CUTWORM IS SERIOUS ENEMY IN GARDEN

From the temperate recommendations and the vegetable growers, cutworms are among the most important insects to be combated. They do not the immense amount of damage annually especially in the spring and early summer when the plants are young. The type of injury caused by these insects varies considerably with the species responsible for the damage. Most commonly, cutworms while feeding at the ground level cut through the stem of the plant causing it to fall over and eventually die. Climbing cutworms ascend the plant and feed on the foliage while other species attack the root system. Most cutworms are nocturnal in habit, hiding on the soil by day and emerging in the evening to feed upon their favorite kind of plant. Cutworms are widely distributed throughout the Dominion.

Under garden conditions cutworms can be controlled by a poisoned bait which is broadcast over the soil either before the seeds are planted or prior to the setting out of the young plants. The bait is composed of the following ingredients: bran 25 pounds, white arsenic 1 quart, paris green 1 quart, and water about 2½ gallons. It must be the bait may also be used as the Field Crop and Garden Division Entomologist Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture. Cutworms of vegetable insect pests, edema at Ottawa, the day injection should be mixed thoroughly that of the poisoning is then stirred in to the water and this solution added to the bran and the paris green. In mixing the bait, add only enough water to make the material the consistency of wet sawdust. It must not be made sloppy for as this is will crumble in the hands, and slip through the fingers easily.

In Eastern Canada, the bait should be spread evenly and thinly over the surface of the ground a few days before seeding or transplanting. It is important that this should be done in the evening and only following a warm day, since if the night is cold little feeding will take place and the bait will be wasted. If the plants are already in the garden, a teaspoonful of the bait around the base of each plant in the evening will give good results.

In the Prairie Provinces the bait should be spread after seeding but before any plants are up. In the case of transplanted seedling the bait should be applied two or three days prior to the setting of the plants. Furthermore, the ground to be treated should first be watered but allowed to warm up again before the poison is broadcast.

In British Columbia the method of control is much the same as in that east Canada. However in this province bran the addition of three or four bananas to the bait is advocated. Both the poisoned bait has dried are used, being added to the liquid part of the bait during its preparation. Bait should never be left at a place accessible to children or livestock as it is a deadly poison.

QUINQUENNIAL CENSUS OF AGRICULTURE, JUNE 1

Farmers To Be Asked Many Questions

The Census of Agriculture, which is to be taken on the first day of June, is primarily for the benefit of the farming industry and if taken at carefully will be of great value in the study of agricultural conditions. It is extremely important therefore, supply the Dominion Bureau of Statistics that a complete and accurate record of agricultural operations be taken.

The report when published will be a mine of information for all those interested in the problems of the farming industry in the Prairie Provinces. It is of the utmost importance that the figures contributed by each farmer be complete and accurate so that the best possible inventory of the leading industry will be effected.

The Census of Agriculture aims at securing accurate statistics relative to farm lands buildings live stock, machinery, etc., as at June 1, statistics for 1935 concerning crops, live stock products farm expenses and production, and statistics of incidental agricultural population, live stock animal products etc. on plots of less than one acre and statistics of vacant and abandoned farms.

There is an absolute guarantee that individual returns will be used other than certain purposes in preparing the Census figures. The individual answering the questions is completely protected. All officials connected with the census are bound by an oath of secrecy and there is therefore no reason why every farmer should not co-operate by supplying the census enumerators with complete and accurate information. Thoroughly effective remedial policies can only be founded when facts are made available.

For census purposes, a farm will be land farmed by one person with or without help, but it may be of one acre or more and must have produced agricultural products to the value of $$$ in 1935. A man who rents a certain piece of land might rent a part of it. This will be entered on the Census records as two farms, the land farmed, by each man being considered as a unit. On the other hand, a man renting various tracts of land from different owners will be regarded as operating one farm only, the various pieces of land constituting one unit. In business tracts are in different municipalities, areas or if a manager is hired to supervise a certain portion of land the portion will go down as a separate farm.

The farm population on June 1 will also be taken. The information will be compared with the farm population on June 1 1931 and it will be possible to show how many persons have left the farm as well as those who have come to live permanently on farms.

The information requested on the general farm schedule covers the operator, population of the farm on June 1 persons employed to do the farm work in 1935 condition of farms the value of the farm and equipment and the amount of mortgage debt and liens, with the rate of interest paid farm expenses in 1935, farm tariffs in 1935, farm products produced in 1935, co-operative marketing, crop acreages in 1936, acreages and production in 1935, with information relating to crop failure. live stock on June 1 animal products raised in 1935, and whether they were consumed on the farm or sold, poor bred animals on farms, and the value of products sold off the farms in 1935.

CENSUS QUESTIONS

These are the questions that will be asked about each person by a Dominion Government official when he takes census during the month of June:

1. Your name and where you live.
2. Whether owned or rented
3. If you own your home give the value, if you rent it, the rent per month.
4. How many rooms are in your home.

RAIL GRADING OF HOGS; A NEW MARKETING SYSTEM PROVES POPULAR

During the past four weeks one Alberta packing house has bought over two thousand hogs on a rail graded, dressed weight basis. This method of buying hogs has just been inaugurated in Alberta during the past four weeks, and, from all reports, the farmers who have sold their hogs in this manner, are very well satisfied and are coming back again, to sell on the same basis.

The buying and selling of hogs on a dressed weight basis has been in operation in Eastern Canada for over a year. The packers buying on this basis report their shippers are very well pleased.

It is now well over ten years since the Federal Government installed the present system of live grading, and this could be called the first step in the right direction towards the right type of hogs. There has been a remarkable improvement, during the last ten years, in the percentage of bacon hogs produced. This improvement is a direct result of the present system of live grading.

The Federal Government are now sponsoring what could be called the second step, namely the marketing of hogs on a rail graded, dressed weight basis.

A few words of explanation: the marketing of hogs on a dressed weight rail graded basis, is exactly what the words imply. A farmer delivers his hogs; these hogs are then tattoed with a number, so that they may be identified when they are killed. The live hogs are then weighed up, so that a part down payment may be made The live down payment usually runs around 75% of the butcher price. The hogs are then killed, and weighed individually, in the exact manner. A Government grading inspector then grades the hogs on the killing floor, according to standards as set up by the Federal Government, and the final payment is made on the basis of that grade. Those grades correspond very closely, to the present live grades, and the premiums and discounts paid are practically on the same basis. It will be easily seen that the grading inspector is able to do more efficient grading with the split carcass before him, as he does not have to estimate weight, depth of backfat or thickness.

Whip marks, scratches and bruises shall not be a factor in determining the grade, except those hogs that are seriously damaged. Carcasses that are condemned will be paid for on the same basis of the grade in which they would otherwise fall. The Government will issue reasons on all Rail Graded Hogs.

A farmer might well ask himself: Why should I change over to Rail Grading? How do I benefit by it? How does the hog industry benefit by it? These questions are easily answered. When the present system of live grading was instituted the policy of paying premiums to the farmers who raised good hogs, was started. In a very short time there was a great improvement in the number of bacon hogs marketed. To-day, the following situation confronts us: A number of farmers have progressed to such an extent that it would be nearly impossible for them to raise a larger percentage of Bacon hogs. Another number are just raising an average percent of Bacons, while the balance of the farmers are just raising hogs. Under the present system of live grading the dressed "yields" of the hogs have a great deal to do with the final dressed cost. The word "yields" refers to the amount of dressed meat in relation to the live weight. For example: two farmers bring in two hogs, each weighing 200 pounds. When those hogs are killed, one hog weighs 150 pounds dressed, while the other weighs 160 pounds dressed. Now it is easy to see that the 160 pound hog was a better yielding hog than the 150 pound hog, and that the producer of the 160 pound hog would receive more money; whereas, if these hogs had been sold alive, each producer would have received the same.

Under the present system of marketing hogs on a rail graded basis is to give the producer of high quality and high yielding hogs the proper value of his hogs as related to the whole volume of hogs produced. In other words, the producer gets paid for exactly what he delivers.

The marketing of hogs on a Rail Graded basis not only gives the producer a premium on his bacon hogs, but also pays him on a basis of yield. Hogs that are fed right, and looked after properly, yield high, which results in the producer getting more money for his hogs.

In this not sufficient incentive for the producer to raise good hogs, thereby benefitting the hog industry at large, and helping himself at the same time?

NOTICE
Alteration to Parking By-Law

For greater safety to motor cars, the Council has amended the Parking By-Law to read that light delivery trucks, not exceeding 16 feet in length, may park in the centre of the street at designated parking spaces. Cars with trailers have been classified with the big trucks and ruled off the centre and side parking where permitted, and must park in the area set aside for trucks.

THE COUNCIL.
Town of Vermilion.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL HOUSEHOLDERS

The town had its general clean-up day—all streets and lanes and private property have been cleaned of garbage and refuse and it now devolves upon householders and others to observe the By-Law which prohibits the dumping of slops, garbage and ashes on any lane or street. Observance is not a sanitary standpoint, alone, need not be emphasized, as it is generally known that the indiscriminate dumping of refuse in a prolific source of possible contagion when infested with flies.

It is suggested that water be thrown on dug ground and ashes and garbage dumped into cans. A small corner of the lot will take care of this

The lanes and streets must be kept clear as check ups will be made and infractions of the By Law dealt with by the law of the million pounds of bacon ... This Agreement was put into effect, the time it was ... to reach the quota was roughly 10% or 100 million pounds short. We might explain ... The 10% we did ship was not of the best quality, due to the fact that the producers had not as yet right type of hog. A lot of this bacon was just medium quality and not the type that would command a premium, or even sell in Canada as a leading exporter insofar as quality is concerned, on the Old Country Market.

Figured in dollars and cents, this 100 million pounds of shortage represents, at an average price of 8½ cents per pound, and an average yield of 65% bacon hogs, $10,000,000 worth of live hogs, each year. In number of live hogs, the amount ... approximately one ...

What does all this mean? It just means this, we fell down to the extent of 10 million dollars a year, in using our natural resources. We did ... raise enough hogs, and we did not raise hogs of good enough quality.

If all this shortage could have been consolidated and made up in our own Province of Alberta (which could not have been impossible) Alberta would have been the most prosperous province in Canada to-day. Just imagine 10 million dollars a year more income into Alberta and the results thereof!

The marketing of hogs on a Rail Graded basis should be the means (just as it has been in other countries) of increasing the VOLUME and QUALITY of Canadian hogs to such an extent that Canada will be SECOND TO NONE.

ISLAND HILL

The local school softball team still hold their undefeated record. On Sunday they defeated Campbell Lake by a score of 24-14 at the latters' grounds. Bill Hall was umpire and Miss Marie treated them all to their victory on a feast of candies.

During the progress of the game a rather heated dispute occurred between two gents—one Island Hill and the other Campbell Lake—which threatened to develop into a Braddock vs. Louis affair. What tickled us was neither are Irish and the interference of a Scotchman helped to settle the matter.

While on a cross country run the other day—No thank you, not in an airplane, just an old Shanks Mare, we suddenly came on a dog attached by a rope to a stationary wagon containing wheat seed ready to drill. What an eloquent if silent sermon that dog preached on the honesty of neighbors. A blindly and shivering neighbor is one of God's gifts and we cannot overlook recording the good deed Bill Hawkes—Campbell Lake did his neighbor Burt Herron. Owing to shortage of horses could not put in his crop so Bill turned out with his horses and drill and did the needful and thereby did a good turn that will no doubt be placed by the recording angel to the credit of Bill Hawkes.

Whatever may be said of other parts of the world deserting Christ, it cannot be said of Island Hill. Rowan Children's Aid held their service Sunday morning at the school while the adherents of United church held service in the evening in the same place.

FALLOW RECEIVES RAILMAN'S MEDAL

"Veteran's Honor Emblem" is Conferred on Minister

Hon. W. A. Fallow, Alberta minister of railways, telephones and public works, received Monday from the St. Louis Mess headquarters of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, a gold medal as a "veteran's honor emblem," presented to him as "symbolic of your continuous membership covering a quarter of a century in the order.

Mr. Fallow has been a member of the great international union since 1902. For the past 27 years, until entering the Aberhart government, he has been C.N.R. agent at Vermilion and before that was dispatcher at Battleford and Saskatoon. Now on leave from his railway post, he still retains his seniority.

Service of 25 years is only one of the requisites for the honor required, the recipient must have had a first class record and have been recommended by his division.

The League and World Security

Have the League of Nations proved a failure? Have the efforts of millions of people to put into effect the principle of collective security for the nations of the earth been abortive? Should the League, in the light of recent events, be abandoned and allowed to die? In fact, is the League already gagged, helpless and practically defunct?

These are questions which are agitating the minds of peace-loving people in all the countries of the world to-day? Many who saw the birth of the League a few years ago as an insurance policy against future conflagrations between the nations are now shaking their heads sorrowfully and are on the verge of abandoning hope. They are fearful that the nations are to revert to former practices and policies of "dog eat dog and the devil take the hindmost."

It is pointed out by these pessimists that to date the League has two apparent failures to its credit, or should it be said, to its discredit? They refer to the inactivity of the League when Japan two or three years ago was allowed to launch unhindered an aggressive campaign to bring Chinese territory under control—a process which is still being carried on, and more recently the failure of the League's attempt to stem the victorious march of Mussolini's troops into Ethiopia, by the application of economic sanctions.

It is true that Mussolini appears to have achieved his immediate objective and not only conquered Ethiopia, but has also annexed the country as an adjunct to the Italian crown, despite the efforts of those countries which remained in the League to prevent Italy from gathering the fruits of her lawless enterprise.

The fact, however, should not be overlooked that while Italy has so far succeeded in her ambitious program of conquest in Africa, the nations have not yet withdrawn sanctions against her and that by the continued application of the principle of pressure it is still possible to force the victor to disgorge, if not all, at least a portion of the spoils of an illegal war.

In other words the flouted members of the League still have it within their power to demonstrate to Mussolini that international lawlessness does not pay. All that is needed, as pointed out recently by the Winnipeg Tribune is determination. "The members of the League," said the Tribune, "can, by showing a little courage and determination at this juncture make it more of a living and vital force than it has ever been," but this newspaper adds, "unless they show some courage and determination in the present circumstances the League of Nations and collective security will vanish into the mists of yesteryear."

The Tribune further points out that Mussolini after all has only won the first race and "is still racing against time in the application of the economic sanctions which are slowly but surely strangling Italy into submission. He cannot win that race unless the League members weaken and allow him to escape from the inexorable pressure."

There are very cogent reasons why wavering faith in the League should be restored. One of them is the urgent desire of the great masses of the people in the majority of the countries of the world for peace and security. An essential if economical program is to be made. And that is necessary is for these people to strengthen the hands of their representatives by impressing upon them this viewpoint.

Another and very potent reason is the necessity for continuance and strengthening of the League and its principles if civilization is to be preserved. There is no blinking the fact that the majority of the European nations are arming to the teeth and that in some cases at least, conquest and subjugation are unrevealed motives. That is why a strong League is the only hope of security from further aggressions which may well involve the entire world.

Warnings of this very grave danger have recently been uttered by some of the outstanding statesmen of several countries and they are warnings that should not go unheeded.

That such a war is not only possible but "inevitable" is the opinion of General Ludendorf of Germany who makes this very clear in his new book whose very title is significant, "The Total War". According to a commentator on that book in Les Annales of Paris, Ludendorf not only admits a war which engages the existence of the entire nation—men, women and children, in other words, a war conducted without mercy. "He only also being the total annihilation of the enemy."

Apparently a strengthened and revivified League is the only hope of security the nations can expect against such "a war of frightfulness."

Lancashire Man Thinks Travel With Horse Is Most Interesting

Tom Whittam, from Blackburn, Lancashire, drove his pony and trap into London with a proud flourish. Peter Pan was forced the 210 miles from home in six days.

Five-year-old Dolly, the pony, did not seem to be happy. The traffic and the gasoline fumes frightened her.

Mr. Whittam says he made the trip "to show that for dependability surefootedness, safety, travel by horse and cart, pony and trap is still by far the best."

It'd be a charitable act if someone would give that resourceful singer back his books and saddle.

Demonstration Plastic Surgery

Doctor Performs New Ear From Portion Of Rib

Taking part of a human rib to build a new and shapely ear by plastic surgery was demonstrated to the American Medical Association at the Kansas City by Earl C. Padgett, M.D.

The piece of rib, taken from the cartilage at the base of a rib, forms the shell-shaped framework for the synthetic ear. The skin to cover this cartilage, and to form the soft doubly "live" constituting the ear's outer border, is taken from the neck.

Afterward the skin thus lost to the neck is replaced by skin taken from the thigh so that no neck scar is apparent.

The skin from the neck upon which depends the final sightliness of the new ear is moved by detouring it first to the temple by the plastic method known as the pedicle graft which resembles the handle of a suitcase. After this flap has been stitched by one end in the temple area so that it gets its blood supply from that point by contact, it is ready to be dropped down over the new ear structure and be moulded into place.

Two Halifax Ladies Remember Days Of Sailing Vessels

Two elderly Halifax women—their ages total 197 years—look forward with interest to the maiden voyage of the new liner Queen Mary.

Both of them are something in the nature of ancient mariners. Mrs. Lorne Le Lacheur is the only person living who set foot on the little steamer Britannia when it sailed into Halifax harbor on its first voyage in 1840.

The other elderly seafarer, Mrs. Loring W. Bailey, crossed the Atlantic ocean from Liverpool to Halifax in the Cunarder's side-wheeler with sails 37 years ago. Both were six years old when they stood on the decks of their vessels.

Passage of years has not dimmed the memories of her first ocean crossing for Mrs. Bailey. Her father came to Canada to become chief superintendent of education in New Brunswick, she recalled.

Cheery and still active in spite of her 103 years, Mrs. Lenoir remembered the arrival of the little Britannia vividly. She folded her arms and recalled the excitement of old Halifax in 1840.

"We'd get around the Britannia was coming up the harbor," she related. "I was only a child but my mother gave me a silver piece and permission to go down to meet it. We lived not far from the wharf."

She told how the gentleman in a tall silk hat," came down from the boat and took her sister and herself aboard. "My it was exciting," the old lady confessed.

Mrs. Lenoir has seen the ocean steamers change from wood to steel and expects that the new Queen Mary will be wonderful to see it," she said.

Will Appeal To Travellers

Air-Conditioning Of Trains Will Add Greatly To Passenger Comfort

One of the irritations of railroad travel was the dust and smoke that filled nostrils and eyes and smudged clothes and faces. Passengers have talked much but did little about remedying the condition. It is gratifying to note that the railroads have set out in earnest to cure the defect. It is announced that on a' units built for the C.P.R. the coaches are to be air-conditioned. Most U.S. lines have already installed this equipment.

The public will be as ready to praise the development as it was to criticize the previous indifference. Air conditioning will not only bring in pure air free from cinders and smoke, but will keep interior temperatures cool in summer and warm in winter.

It is by devising and installing devices of this nature that the railways may hope to win back the good-will and patronage which have been lost. There are many obvious advantages to train travel and these can be capitalized if made sufficiently attractive.—Toronto Telegram.

Bishop Has Diocese Which Keeps Him Moving Ahead

Bishop of Malaneata, a sea which includes the Solomon Islands and the New Hebrides, former combatant lieutenant-colonel and occupant of a Military Cross, has the unique diocese which he discusses with the diocese over the radio, describes a passenger who landed at Montreal from the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Richmond. The bishop whose see is on the sea is the Rev. W. H. Baddeley, D.S.O., M.C., former commanding officer of the Eighth Enst Surrey regiment, whose command of a regiment at the age of 25 ralsed him as one of the youngest colonels in the Great War. Accompanied by Mrs. Baddeley, the bishop is en route to his southern diocese and sailed from Vancouver in the M.V. Aorangi, May 20 for Auckland, where he will be met by his 110-foot power schooner, "The Southern Cross". The 300-ton motor cruiser is his home. It is staffed with white officers and a native crew. "Contributions from England, Australia and New Zealand finance our work in Melanesia," Bishop Baddeley told Montreal reporters.

Could Represent Empire

One Ambassador At Washington Suggested By Senator Cosgrain

Representation of the British Empire by one Ambassador at Washington rather than by separate Ambassadors from the various Dominions was advocated in the Senate by J. P. B. Casgrain (L.Iberal, Montreal). Senator Casgrain said the vacant post of Canadian Ambassador to the United States should not be filled. One Ambassador for the Empire would be more proper because Ambassadors from the various Dominions who might hold different opinions would create confusion.

HOUSE IN FURORE OVER CHARGES ABOUT WALL ST.

Ottawa.—John Blackmore, leader of the Social Creditors, threw the House of Commons into a furore by relaying anonymous charges that an intrigue exists to place Canada under the control of Wall street.

The former school teacher from Lethbridge refused to accept responsibility for the statement or disclose the author, finally withdrawing it after a stormy 15 minutes. The incident was climaxed by Deputy Speaker Sanderson ordering the statement expunged from Hansard, an incident which hasn't happened in years.

While attacking a government resolution to amend the British North America Act to empower the Dominion to guarantee provincial borrowings under certain conditions and extend to them power to collect sales tax, Mr. Blackmore first gave his opinion of "money power" and its tempting to enslave all mankind.

Then he continued: "Here are a few words from a man whom I from much fear knows a good deal about his subject." He then read the following from a typewritten sheet of paper: "Your major danger in Canada now is in connection with an intrigue between the financiers of Wall street in the United States of Canada and"—he left this blank—"to modify the British North America Act so as to put vast under their control."

Ottawa.—Senate group gave second reading to a bill to establish "free ports" or "free foreign trade zones" in Canada and a special committee will study the measure before the bill is advanced further.

Senator J. P. B. Casgrain (Lib. Montreal), who introduced the bill, urged Canada under the proposal would derive benefits similar to those enjoyed by certain European countries which established "free ports."

The bill gives authority to the governor-in-council revenue to license a public body, a province or municipality to organize and conduct a place designated as the free zone.

Duty would be collected on goods reshipped from those ports only if they are consumed or remain in Canada. If the goods were to be sent to foreign countries, there would be no duty whatever.

Manufacturing would be stimulated at such ports, said Senator Casgrain. "As an immediate result shipment business would be built up. "And it would not cost the taxpayers of the country one cent," he added.

Makes Record Trip

Zeppelin Hindenburg Crosses Atlantic In 43 Hours

Frankfurt-On-Main, Germany. — The Zeppelin Hindenburg arrived over the aerodrome here, completing its return from its maiden trip to the United States.

The German dirigible took 43 hours, 27½ minutes to make its return flight, 11 less than 61 hours, 45 minutes for its crossing from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N.J.

The Hindenburg battered existing records for both the eastward and westward crossings.

The best previous mark from the United States to Germany was set by the Graf Zeppelin in August, 1929. when it flew from Lakehurst to Friedrichshafen in 54 hours.

The previous westward record was set by the Los Angeles, then known as the ZR-3, in October, 1924, when Dr. Hugo Eckener brought the airship across the Atlantic in 81 hours, 17 minutes.

Radio Advertising

Urge Wider Use Of Air As A Lower Cost

Ottawa. — Reorganization of radio control in Canada along lines that would permit wider use of the air at a lower cost to advertisers was urged upon the parliamentary committee on broadcasting.

Representatives of associations of Canadian advertisers, advertising agencies and broadcasters, suggested establishment of a general manager system with a board of governors acting in an advisory capacity.

It was urged contracts between the governing radio body and the land-wire companies be such that network facilities could be sub-let to advertisers at attractive rates.

The advertisers 'urged that radio advertisers be permitted to mention the price of advertised articles which they are now forbidden to do.

It was suggested the national system of control be restricted to programs, engineering and regulations, and that the government not engage in commercial broadcasting.

It was also urged that the technical and engineering aspects of radio be restored to the department of marine where it was administered prior to creation of the Canadian radio commission.

Mr. Plummer, of Toronto; Glen Dammerman of Tilbury, Ont., and J. A. MacLaren, of Toronto, spoke for the advertisers' association.

Annuity Rates Too Low

Canadian Government Should Charge More States Chief Actuary

Ottawa.—As a result of the increase in life expectancy in the last quarter-century, purchasers of Canadian government annuities should be paying rates 25 per cent. in excess of those prevailing, A. D. Watson, chief actuary of the Dominion insurance department, estimated at a meeting of a senate special committee.

On the basis, he said, $26,000,000 should have been collected as purchase price in place of $21,000,000 on annuity contracts made last year.

Increase in life expectancy among industrial policyholders was from 46.63 per cent. in 1911 to 51.19 per cent. in 1934, according to figures of a leading insurance company, he said.

Recognizing this, groups of insurance companies increased their rates from 27 to 33 per cent, but annuity rates had not been changed since the scheme started in 1908, British government rates had been raised.

ETHIOPIANS SET UP A NEW SEAT OF GOVERNMENT

Khartum.—Loyal followers of Emperor Haile Selassie have established an Ethiopian government in the Gore region close to the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan frontier, British authorities have been informed here.

Gore is about 250 miles southwest of Addis Ababa and only about 50 miles east of Gambela, Ethiopian trad ng centre now under the jurisdiction of Sudan authorities by virtue of a boundary agreement in the territory treaty of 1906.

Capt. E. N. Erskine, British consul in the Gore region, announced establishment of the Ethiopian administration in a despatch to Sudan authorities. Police and troops under the government's orders are patrolling the region, arresting bands of armed army deserters, the despatch said.

No indication was given as to whether the government had been set up in the town of Gore or in the mountainous district outside the city The Ethiopians were believed anxious to keep their location secret fearing an air attack by Italian planes stationed at Addis Ababa.

Despatches from Addis Ababa said Italian motorized column had left there for Gore to bring the region under Italian control

TAKE STEPS TO MAKE THE LEAGUE MORE EFFECTIVE

Geneva.—International jurists began active work to make the League of Nations more effective.

The first suggestions were submitted by Nicholas Kerastz Politis former foreign minister of Greece, delegate and one of the greatest European juridical authorities

Politis handed to Joseph Paul Boncour, French delegate to Geneva his recommendations on possible amendments to the League covenant.

The council, which postponed its deliberations on the Italian invasion of Ethiopia after the French administration withdrew from the session, adjourned after two meetings one presided over by Paul Boncour.

At the close of the session of the council, Anthony Eden, British minister for League of Nations affairs, announced that the next meeting would be held in London.

The first meeting were the League problem, resulting from Germany's reoccupation of the Rhineland and the international statutory question.

The latter session was devoted to the proposal to create a council seat for China. The council decided to refer the proposal to the league assembly in September.

The council meetings were completely overshadowed by discussions behind the scenes on the problems of reorganizing and revitalizing the league's peace machinery.

Dust Free Road From Banff To U.S. Boundary Is Considered

Ottawa. — Construction of dust-free roads from the United States boundary to the Banff National Park is being considered. Interior Minister T. A. Crerar told the House of Commons.

The Dominion has spent $10,000,000 on the park and last year only 4,800 American cars visited it. The minister said many Americans turned back after a few miles of the dusty, gravel roads.

It was a question of deciding what roads to re-surface, Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader said. One of the difficulties of the park was the fact the Jasper highway was not completed nor the road to the coast. Tourists must return by the road they entered.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Recon., East Kootenay) put in a word for parks in British Columbia. He believed it should be a national policy to open national parks to American tourists.

American tourists returned home and warned their friends not to use western Canadian roads because of the dust, Mr. Stevens said. He suggested one national road in each province tapping the parks

H. C. Green (Con., Vancouver South) wanted the Trans-Canada highway completed first, the last gap being the Big Bend highway.

Mr. Crerar said he believed if the roads were dust-proofed from King's Gate to Banff and from there to Calgary and to Waterton park many tourists would hesitate before using them. The minister said he would discuss with British Columbia representatives the best-dwelling of roads on the west side of the mountains

J. A. MacKinnon (Lib., Edmonton West) groaned for a commercial link between Jasper and the trans-Canada.

Nazi Ship At Montreal

No Disturbance Greeted Arrival Of German Cruiser

Montreal. — The German cruiser Emden docked at Montreal, May 14, slipping quietly out of it, which morning fog to tie up at Laurier pier.

Cordons of police held back crowds of civilians on shore to greet the German vessel but within sight of the ship there was no disturbance.

A few streets from the waterfront, however, police—250 strong—broke up a crowd of 300 persons attempting an anti-Nazi demonstration. Ten persons, including three women, were arrested and charged with disturbing the peace.

The Emden is the first vessel to fly the Nazi flag in the Port of Montreal since the first German warship to come upstream since the Great War. She is the third Reich ship to carry the name "Emden," the name made famous in the early months of the Great War by Kaiser Wilhelm's daring sea captain, Von Muller.

COMMISSION WILL MAKE STUDY OF LABOR PROBLEMS

Ottawa.—A seven-member national employment commission was announced by Labor Minister Norman Rogers.

Headed by Arthur B. Purvis, Montreal, the commission personnel includes three business men, a representative of Labor, a former newspaperwoman, a university professor and a Saskatchewan farmer.

The commission slate: Arthur B. Purvis, Montreal, chairman; A. N. McLean, Black's Harbor, N.B.; Alfred Marois, Quebec; Tom Moore, Ottawa; Mrs. Mary M. Sutherland, Wells, B.C.; W. A. Mackintosh, Kingston, Ont., and B. J. Young, Dunmore, Sask.

Its purpose, according to Chairman Purvis, is to try and put people to work. Its first function will be to try and get at the actual facts in respect to unemployment in Canada. Its first meeting will probably be held in about a week when plans will be made for carrying on the work. It will work in close cooperation with the department of labor.

"I have great confidence in this new venture in nation-wide cooperation and its approach to stubborn economic problems," the minister said. "The personnel of the commission has been selected with the utmost care. Each member will be able to contribute a specialized fund of knowledge and experience to the study of the complex problem of unemployment and relief. The chairman of the personnel of the commission may be assured from the outset of the full co-operation of the department of labor."

The chairman issued this statement.

"The national employment commission has been set up by the government to bring about the re-employment of the people who would normally be self-supporting were it not for the dislocation of trade.

"In recent years we have witnessed the too prone to lean upon the government for the solution of all our problems and have fallen into a habit of destructively criticising the government or the economic system—a course which can get us nowhere.

"Our government believes, and the national employment commission shares that Canadians are ready to move out of this atmosphere of doubt and criticism. Here—that commission is prepared to take their part in a nation-wide co-operative effort to face squarely the problems before us and to make such sacrifices as will bring about their solution.

"With this end in view the national employment commission will seek the co-operation of every man and woman, young and old, in a team effort to win back for all the right to a true feeling of independence."

"Personally I feel this will give an opportunity for contact between industry and government, an opportunity which has been lacking in the past. The new chairman did, outlining the plans of the commission.

Reduced Rates On Coal

Wans Lower Freight Rates In West Meet Competition

Saskatoon — Lower railway rates in order to make coal a more attractive fuel and hence increase the market will be one thing for which the new executive of the Western Canada Fuel Association will press during the next year. This was unanimously decided at a general meeting of the association here.

The unanimous vote the mine operators, wholesale and retail coal merchants instructed the chief executive officers of the association to approach the officials of both railway companies with a view to getting reduced freight rates in western Canada. In urging this move dealers pointed out that transportation costs were the largest single item in the price of coal in more distant markets. A reduction in freight rates would enable coal to meet the competition from substitute fuels, particularly in the Winnipeg market.

The Red Wolf Of The Forest

Effort to Bring Male This Year To Lessen Loss From Forest Fires

The most determined efforts to keep Canada as clear as possible of forest fires in 1936 have been instituted in all parts of the Dominion Adequate supplies of fire pumps, hoses, rubber spreaders, have equipped the fire ranger forces, and all is being made ready for the two unknown words that the wealthy will be like and what the public will do. The latter element represents the 91 per cent. cause of all forest fires. Men with lighted matches and tobacco settlers clearing their land campers and their cooking fires, each innocent-looking human action annually create a deadly harvest of ruined forests, dried up waterways and homeless families

Nearly five hundred rangers on the "line of fire" across Canada are appealing to the public to have hand with them as protectors of the forests and streams during the present year. In many districts the friendly union of the rangers and those who travel in the woods for work or pleasure has succeeded in virtually outlawing the fire fiend and has kept the woods and grow ing with out a single blemish for many years past

A Great Accomplishment

Armless American "Toy Wonder" Wins Top-Dancing Contest

Lupe Barsis, armless "toy wonder" of McAllen, Tex., won first prize in a tap-dancing contest in San Antonio, adding another feat to his list of accomplishments.

Deprived of his arms when struck by a train at McAllen 18 years ago, Lupe has learned to do nearly everything for himself except to button his shirts and comb his hair.

He has rescued four persons from drowning and is considered an excellent swimmer and wrestler.

Oldest And Best Razor

Harry A. Dickson of Miles City, Mont., claims to have the most ancient and best razor in America. He has its pedigree and says it is 146 years old, that it was made in Sheffield, England, in 1790, was brought to this continent by Luther Bybee in 1792, and was handed down by him to his grandson and by the latter to his great grandson, Luther Bybee III.

Moose River Mine

Work Commenced in Draining Water From 141-Foot Level

Pipe lines laid down in the old "rod-bag" shaft of the ex-ed-in Moose River mine are now draining the water from the 141-foot level from which Dr. D. E. Robertson and Alfred Scadding were rescued by Nova Scotia miners.

With Deputy Minister of Mines Norman McKenzie, Fritz Henderson, mine foreman, descended through the Reynolds shaft and George Henderson said he hoped to operate the mine again soon. The Reynolds shaft entrance had been boarded up and all persons from entering the hazardous tunnel dug by dresgermen.

At the 141-foot level where Dr. Robertson, Magill and Scadding sat on a little platform awaiting rescue, they found six feet of water.

"The rat hole is the same as when it was dug. It hasn't fallen in much," Henderson said.

Unique Cure For Fatigue

Marconi Uses Short-Wave Wireless Waves To Revive Energy

Senator Marconi has revealed his cure for tiredness—the application of short-wave wireless rays.

In an interview at Rome he said: "Short waves applied to the human body do a lot of good. Safe and effective instruments for applying them have been invented and I apply them to myself when I am tired by my work.

"The rays of the short waves remove every feeling of fatigue from me and revivify my energies.

"I find that the application of Marconitherapy does me a lot of good."

Catapulting Lifeboat

The Inventor Demonstrates The New Automatic Safety Appliance

The successful 20-foot "flight" of a new automatic safety lifeboat so impressed Rt. Hon. Mosolli Nanni, lately, that he predicted the next test leap would be from the George Washington bridge. A little later, he showed that "the top deck of the biggest steamship" would provide sufficient height.

Nanni predicted that the catapult-ing lifeboat would make shipwrecks obsolete He said it eliminated the danger of escaping from a ship in case of fire, explosion, "or any other reason why anybody should want to leave a ship in a hurry."

A successful demonstration took place at New York recently. Nanni's boat was an ordinary unpowered bowed-beamed lifeboat. It was supported from the ground by two, long rods about three inches in diameter, which fitted into two round chambers in the hull.

One end of the rods was imbedded in a metal barrel. The barrel was slid onto the other end of the rods so that the rods filled the chambers from stern to bow. A tank containing compressed carbon dioxide, which supplied the motive power, was built into the bottom of the boat. Near the bow was a lever for releasing the gas.

The gas when released immediately filled the chambers, forcing the boat off the rods and catapulting it into the water.

Applications For Pensions

Says Weakness In Administration Has Been Corrected

Mr. Justice Fawcett G. Taylor, acting chairman of the Canadian pension commission, told the House of Commons committee on ex-service men's problems that on May 1 this year, there were 2,600 applications for pension still to be heard by the travelling quorums. A year ago the number was 7,000.

Weaknesses in pension administration had been corrected in the past two years, he said, and had seen the force of keeping any diary with "problem cases," said the speaker.

"Your entire organization had been employed a year ago, and it was likely they would be required for some time to come," he explained during questioning with "problem cases," said Mr. Justice Taylor.

He did not favor the policy of travelling quorums giving immediate decisions.

The questions were directed to him in connection with assessment of pension. This was made by the district medical officers and referred to the medical adviser in Ottawa. Where these two differed, the matter went to a board of two commissioners for decision. The travelling quorums had no authority to decide upon the assessment, said Mr. Justice Taylor.

Exclusively For Horses

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out 1 pint (pound) of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Bowels need a movement only once in 3 days. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk, "punk" and "rotten" all over.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. It takes those purifying bile salts to get the bile flowing. Then you get a thorough cleansing. Your bowels are opened as they should be and you feel "up and up." Harmless and gentle, these bile salts are in Carter's Little Liver Pills. Ask for them by name. Insist on genuine Carter's. Refuse substitutes. Only 25c at all druggists.

Largest Producer Of Wheat

Soviet Russia Replaces United States In Grain Production

The imperial economic committee announced in London that Soviet Russia has replaced the United States as the largest producer of wheat, oats and barley. The announcement was based on the grain crop report for the period of 1928-30.

The world carryover of wheat on August 1, 1930, probably will be reduced to 17,000,000 bushels, a drop of nearly 90 per cent. from the 1934 figure of 21,000,000 tons, the report stated. Increased acreage and yields were credited with responsibility for the drop.

The price of wheat in 1925 reached its highest level since 1920, due to expectation of a gradual liquidation of the huge 1924 carryover, the committee found.

The report, chiefly a statistical analysis of the world production of wheat, barley, oats, rye and flax, said in 1934 the area of production for these crops was lower than the average from 1928-1932.

The United States was the chief sufferer in the general decline of lands in these five crops, it showed four. It exported 5,646,000 tons of the six products in 1928 and only 647,000 tons in 1935, the report stated.

Kidnap Investigation

Says Secret Service Still Working On Lindbergh Case

The New York Herald Tribune that "an organization of investigators and private detectives so secret its members use numerical designations, is actively continuing the investigation of the Lindbergh kidnapping case with the knowledge, if not the active support of Governor Hoffman of New Jersey."
